J. H. BURNHAM SAYS WORKERS SHOULD GET $5

CAN BARELY EXIST ON THEIR PRESENT SCALE OF COMPENSATION.

COST OF LIVING IS $26 A WEEK

PREMIER BORDEN SAYS COUNTRY IS COMMITTED TO 8-HOUR DAY.

Ottawa, June 3.—During the debate in Parliament on present day industrial conditions, Mr. J. H. Burnham of West Peterborough struck at what he termed "the root of the whole matter, namely, the fact that workingmen cannot live on the wages they are getting." He showed, from the Government figures ,that it costs a family of five $26.14 per wek to live, without providing anything for old age, and went on to argue that the minimum wage for a laboring man should be $5 per day. "That is the cause of the present unrest," he said, "and people who tell you free trade is the remedy are not talking by the book."

"Give it a trial," interjected Dr. Michael Clark.

"It had its trial and failed," said Mr. Burnham.

Premier Borden's Position.

The Prime Minister's message to the people of Canada was: "Keep your heads; you are better off than the people of Europe." He dismissed as too drastic the suggestion of the Opposition Leader that a tribunal should be set up for the purpose of settling industrial disputes to the end that the strike weapon would be discarded. He bitterly resented the insinuation that the Government is subject to outside influences, declaring that it was subject to no influences and no dictation outside of Parliament, "and never will be so long as I am the head of it."

ADVISE THE OTHER UNIONS NOW OUT TO RETURN TO WORK.

PREFER TO CARRY ON OWN FIGHT

MAYOR CHURCH AND EMPLOYERS STILL TRYING TO EFFECT SETTLEMENT

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, June 3.—Mayor Church and other conciliators today continued their efforts to secure a basis of agreement between the striking workers of the metal trades and their employers. The feeling here is that if the differences of the employers and the striking employes of this industry were on their way to a settlement the sympathetic strike called by the "general" strike committee would soon be declared off.

The city is still to all appearances continuing normal in an industrial way. Eighty per cent of the population are entirely unaffected by the "general" strike as it has progressed so far. There were no additions reported today to the strikers ranks so far as known. None are expected till June 16th when it is quite possible there will be a strike of street railway men on their own account. Other unions, particularly the boot and shoe workers, are negotiating with their employers for increases with little prospect at present of a settlement being reached.

Will Fight Alone

Rresident R. C. Brown of the Metal Trades Council at 1.30 today issued a notice to the workers of the various unions who went out on strike in sympathy with the metal trades workers advising them to return to work at once. President Brown thanked them for their sympathetic action but said that nothing could be gained by their remaining out longer and the men of the metal trades preferred to fight their own battle from now forward.

ALD. HAMILTON SUBMITS A NEW VIEW OF ED. CONROY'S TENDER

Cannot See How He Can Build Bridge on Margin of $13,000 For Profit and Rent of Plant—Whole Question Goes Back to Long-Suffering Board of Works.

Ald. McIntyre urged in the City Council last night that the bridge by-law be put through one way or another and this vexed question settled definitely.

Price Goes Up.

Earlier in the evening a communication from Contractor Conroy made his cost-plus guaranteed price for the bridge clear as follows: The fixed cost figure to be $260,000, EXCLUSIVE of his $13,000 for commission and rent of plant, the city to buy the perishable tools which would cost, he estimated $2,000. This would bring the guaranteed cost of the bridge, apart from the perishable tools, up to $273,000.

The guaranteed bid of the Canadian Engineering and Contracting Co. of Hamilton is $276,460 INCLUSIVE of commission.

The Working Day.

Ald. Turner here took opportunity to show how he reached the conclusion that the saving to be effected by the men working 9 hours instead of 8 a day would wipe of an additional $10,000 now estimated by the contractors by reason of the enforcement of an 8-hour day. He put it this way: Take a basis of 150 men working on the structure—nine hours a day—would mean an hour's overture at time and a half each man representing 75 whole hours additional the day. Multiply this by 6 and you have 450 additional hours the week, equalling at 45c the hour $202.50. This increase over the cost estimated by the contractors spread over 75 weeks would reach the sum of $15,187.50. Consequently, he declared, that the men in conceding a 9-hour day would save on the cost of the work at least $10,000 and render the signing of the contract with the Canadian Engineering and Contracting Co. possible.

Conroy or Nothing!

Ald. Phelan reiterated his reasons for supporting Ed. Conroy's bid for the bridge—a local man, he declared, substantially backed by the Royal Bank. "You'd think to hear Ald. Turner talk, that the city had lots of money with which to build this bridge, when he proposes to practically give away some $29,000 to a Hamilton firm. Mr. Conroy is qualified to do the work, he can give adequate security, he will accept in payments the city's debentures on the certificate—CERTIFICATE mind you—of the engineer; and I vote for Conroy."

The Mayor: "I don't think Conroy can build the bridge, and I have as much right to my opinion as Ald. Phelan."

Too Low a Commission.

Ald. Hamilton here advanced a new view of Conroy's tender, in which he could not see how Conroy could make good to himself on a plus margin of only $13,000. "An engineer," he said, "would cost him $6,000, his own salary say a like amount, $2,700 for his guarantee bond $3,000 for clerical help, $2,000 for tools, interest and depreciation of plant say another $3,000, all of which represents $22,000 for his labor and personal expenditures. And yet he agrees to accept $13,000 to cover all the foregoing items."

LABOR MEN IN BODY DEMAND JUSTICE FROM CITY COUNCIL

There Will Be No Discrimination Against Union Men Declared His Worship and Ald. Phelan—Rousing Conference in Which Harmony Prevailed—Meeting Well Handled by Mayor—All Signs of Heated Discussion Nipped in the Bud.

The City Council Chamber was invaded last evening, by a small army of union men and representatives of the Trades and Labor Council, in protest to alleged discrimination against union men by City Officials in regard to the employment of labor.

While Council had last week, voted a wage of 45c an hour for an 8 hour day, to laborer's, the non-union men at that time working had not been subsequently replaced by those who went on strike for the shorter working day and wage increase, the course usually pursued in such cases. Hence the monster parade of union men, and gathering in protest at last night's regular council session, the attendance at which overflowed the Council Chamber into the lobby and down the stairs to the street.

His Worship Mayor Duncan, is to be congratulated on the commendable impartiality of his rulings, and executive skill in side-tracking any movement suggestive of untoward hinted controversy. The men's case was clearly and concisely put by the speakers, explanations and arguments offered by the council, and the incident closed with a spirit of mutual harmony existing which reflected considerable credit to all concerned, and especially so on the men whose position in the present absence of enough work to go around is far from enviable.

It cannot be said however, that men got any more than the promise that they should be re-engaged as employment offered and that work on the Romaine street sewer should open up tomorrow and be pushed, union men being taken on as fast as needed.

Council also accepted the recognition of 45c an hour for laborers and 67 1-2 cents for carpenters as the mimimum wages, it being understood that the old men (semi-pensioners), employed at light work such as steet cleaning, should receive their old wages without interference with on the part of the union.

It is to be assumed that the men, as in all such cases, want a hard and fast agreement with the city that the city's work shall be done by union men and that the principles of the "closed shop" shall apply. To this, however, the Aldermen did not committ themselves.

Discrimination

President Bolwell of the Trades and Labor Council opened the proceedings with the declaration that from all reports it would seem that unfair discrimination against union laborers had been practised by city officials fired by Peterborough citizens' Aldermanic representatives. "A short time ago," he said, "the council in setting the wages for laborers and carpenters at 45c and 67 1-2c an hour, respectively, either did not go far enough or city officials had assumed more authority in the employment of labor than vested in them. After these wages had been agreed to the men who had been on strike in what they considered a just cause, had, when applying for work been discriminated against in favor of those who had taken their places. Such procedere is contrary to the well and generally known conditions attached to all settlements of labor disputes, that union men shall not suffer from discrimination."

President Bolwell in conclusion, explained that the city officials responsible for the employment of labor had evidently misinterpreted the wage of 45c an hour as a maximum rate to be graded downward, whereas wages set by all unions are always based on the minimum principle. He asked council to give these matters their consideration and see that justice is meted out.

British Fair Play

William Stevens, secretary of the Trades and Labor Council said Council had no right to discriminate against union laborers who went out in a just cause. All the men asked is British fair play, which unfortunately is sometimes overlooked in Canada.

Union Not Recognized

Thos. Tooms, for the laborers' union maintained that city officials had, contrary to the laws of British justice discriminated against union laborers and he characterised such discrimination as a disfigurement of the good old cross—symbolical of unity and justice—in the national ensign. Applications for work by union men, he declared, had been treated by the engineer in support of the minority of the city council—Alderman Turner and Hamilton—who had voted for a 40c maximum wage Tooms looked to the Mayor to see that this grievance is rectified and justice done, and that minority rule, which he compared to Kaiserism, is eliminated from the city's attitude toward its employes. He urged cooperation in the interests of all concerned.

Specific Cases

Ald. Turner contended that it might be as well to ask these men what course the city should take. As for British fair play, have not the men who are now working for the city as much claim to the application of that principle as union men? The Aldermen here called for the citation of cases of discrimination, to which Tooms replied as follows."

On May 30th, Bros. H. Smith and J. Pritchard applied to the Street Commissioner for work and the answer they received was, 'Have you men come to start work'. The men replied in the affirmative and he then asked them if they expected 45c per hour, and they said yes. The Street Commissioner then said he had orders from the City Engineer that 45c was the top price to be paid (only to the best men) and a lower grade for sweepers. He refused to pay the 45c and said that there was no work for them at that price. He also said the instructions he had received from the City Engineer were to the effect that the Union was not to be recognised and that the 45c was to be the top price with a tendency to grade down The men refused to start on the down scale system

"On May 29, Bro. Aiodine Aam's applied to the Street Commissioner for work on the sewer connections, that were being carried on by the City. The answer he received was: 'I have no work for you at 45c per hour The statement was also made that the City Engineer would not lay any more work out

"On May 29th. Bros. Kebbo and Temo and Allport applied to J Thirnbeck for work on surface drains and were refused, the answer being that there was no work for them."

A Minimum Wage

Referring to the resolution at last meeting fixing the wages for laborers and carpenters, Ald Gainey said, "I moved that resolution, and I explained that the 45c and 67 1-2 cents an hour were to be minimum wages."

Mayor Duncan "I understood that the old men engaged as sweepers were not to be interfered with by the Union."

The Mayor was sure the Engineer would not discriminate against any man and would put them to work as fast as employment offers. "There are men," he added, "who wont work, and others who by reason of their experience are valuable to us in such work as the Romaine street Sewer, where quicksand has to be contended with"

President Bolwell The Romaine street sewer was under construction when the strike was called, but is now closed down. Will you go on with the work now?"

W. P.

ALD. PHELAN AFTER NEWSOME'S SCALP

WANTS TO KNOW BY WHAT AUTHORITY HE GAVE PETERBORO PLUMBING BLACK EYE.

Ald. Phelan wanted to knaw in Council last evening what authority Editor Newsome of the Plumbing and Sanitary Journal, had walked into citizens' houses, inspected plumbing therein, and publicly given the city a black eye in regard to its plumbing and plumbers generally.

The Mayor—"He had no authority; he simply acted on his own initiative, and with the consent of citizens. The idea of the property committee's action in recommending independent inspection is the hope of refuting charges made of inferior work."

Teddy Bear.

The property commitee's recommendation that Walter Kitney be donated $10 toward the keep of a bear in the East Nicholls Park went back to committee.

Ald. Hamilton reported that Mr. Richard Hall, trustee of the park, objected to the proposition on the ground that the animal might escape and do considerable damage, for which the trustees would be held liable. On the other hand, Kitney declares that Mr. Hall had given him his ocnsent to the bear being maintained in the park.

Committee will go into this matter again and clear up all doubts evidently existing, and get clear on the legal aspect of the case in regard to liability for possible damages.

The Executioner.

Jimmp Gates, the dog catcher, raised his price from a dollar for each dog caught, and so recommended in the property committee report, to $1.25. His reason for the increase was that the Chief insists that he shoot the dogs as well as catch them. The committee will have to thresh this matter out again.

Bread Wagon Question.

The clause in the report recommending that all doors in bread delivery rigs be situated at the rear of the vehicles went back to committee also. Ald. Turner advanced that new rigs with doors in their side answer sanitary aims just as well

ARREST HEAD OF NEW REPUPLIC

GERMAN GOVERNMENT HAS PLACED DR. DORDEN IN CUSTODY.

Berlin, June 3.—The German government has issued an order for the arrest of Dr. Dorden, the president of the new Rhenish republic, the North German Gazette announces. The government also, the newspaper states, has entered a protest both at Paris and at Spa, the headquarters of the armistice commission, against the behavior of the French authorities in the occupied area of Rhineland.

TO MODIFY THE PEACE TERMS

COUNCIL OF FOUR HAS TWO IMPORTANT PROPOSITIONS BEFORE IT.

Paris, June 3.—Two changes in the German peace terms, one territorial and the other financial, are being considered by the Council of Four, it became known today. The financial question is the possibility of the acceptance of the German proposal to pay an indemnity of one hundred billion marks, which would involve the dissolution of the Allied financial commission, to which the Germans strongly object. It is understood that this proposal has strong support in certain quarters.

The second proposal is for a plebiscite in Silesia in order to guarantee to Germany a coal supply from the Silesian mines.

ANARCHISTS BOMB HOMES OF AMERICAN OFFICIALS

Those Active in Suppressing Demonstration Are Marked For Vengeance—Body of One Victim in New York Blown Half a Block by Explosion

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, June 3.—The Federal police are busy today rounding up suspects in connection with the many bomb outrages yesterday at the homes of prominent officials who have been active in suppressing anarchistic demonstrations. Five victims have been reported, including three in New York, at the home of Judge Nott, which was blown up early this morning. One of the victims at Judge Nott's place was Wm. Boehner, the private watchman. Parts of his body were found half a block away. Identification was made by the clothing and a ring of keys.

Killed With Own Bomb.

Washington police inspectors early today believed they had identified the man who was blown to pieces last night in an effort to kill Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer with a bomb, as an anarchist of Philadelphia. They also said they were sure a nation-wide plot against the lives of Government officials and prominent business men had been laid in that city.

School for Bombing.

Buffalo, June 3.—A school for instruction in the manufacture and use of bombs has been discovered here, the Buffalo police believe. No arrests have been made, but a number of drawings, alleged to be designs of infernal machines, have been seized.

ANOTHER GRANT FOR NEW BRIDGE

ALMOST ASSURED BY NOTIFICATION FROM RAILWAY BOARD.

The City Fathers last evening were the joyful recipients of the following assurance from the Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners:

The approval of the plans for the Hunter street bridge is standing pending an agreement between the parties in regard to the curvator of the C.P.R. spurs serving the Quaker Oats Co. and that as soon as the plans are approved the Board is prepared to recommend the statutory grant as provided by sub-section 3 of section 2 of 8-9. Edward VII.

This promises another grant toward the bridge, or rather approaches thereto and that portion of the structure which changes the level crossing to an overhead one.

WINNIPEG POLICE COME TO TERMS

SIGN MODIFIED AGREEMENT NOT TO GO OUT ON STRIKE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, June 3.—At a mass meeting today the Policemen's Union unanimously voted to sign modified terms contained in the ultimatum presented by the police commission, providing that the police must participate in sympathetic strikes. A resolution was passed to support the constituted authority at all times in maintaining law and order.

Troops which were ordered to be in readiness yesterday were on duty again this morning. The city was quiet during the night. A statement by the Railroad Brotherhood executives that they had transmitted to the executives of the Winnipeg Metal Trades Council an offer for a settlement which had been received from the heads of Winnipeg's three leading iron works was an important development.

Vancouver on Strike

strike of organized labor in Vancouver in sympathy with the Winnipeg strike, effective at 11 a.m today was called at a mass meeting last night. The exemptions from the strike were made in the cases of firemen and police, bakers and bakery salesmen, milk wagon drivers, theatre employes and other essential industries.

JOSEPH CROWE IS APPOINTED ALDERMAN IN MURRAY'S PLACE

His Appointment Acclaimed by the Labor Men—Promises Fair and Honest Activities

Ex-Ald. Joseph Crowe was last night apponited alderman for the remainder of the year 1919 and 1920, in place of ex-Ald. Murray, resigned. The appointment was unanimous.

Ald. Crowe at once filed his declaration of office, shook hands with His Worship and each of his brother aldermen, and dropped comfortably into his seat amid the acclaims of the labor men, whose candidate he really is.

One Lonely Alderman.

Ald. Turner suggested, when the bylaw authorising such appointment came up, the following names as representing desirable men to fill the vacated office:—Ex-Ald. Jones, ex-Ald. Dobbin, ex-Ald. E. F. Mason, Messrs. Vincent Eastwood, J. A. Aylmer, ex-Ald. James Finnie, ex-Ald. R. Neill.

Ald. Turned moved that ex-Ald. R N. Jones receive the appointment, but secured no seconder.

Ald. Turner then moved for ex-Ald. Dobbin as the new alderman, but again failed to get a seconder.

Ald. Turner: "Then let us make Mr. Crowe's appointment unanimous."

Sympathies With Labor.

Ald. Crowe expressed appreciation at his being elevated to the responsible position as member of the aldermanic board, to discuss matters of importance and moment to the whole community. He hoped to be found capable and worthy the high honor conferred upon him. "I want," he said, "to be fair and honest, and to do my duty above board in co-operation with the Council, and to work for the city as a whole." He had not coveted the office, he went on to say, but he hoped to fill the bill trustworthily and compatable with the confidence reposed in him by his fellow workingmen. "Being a labor man," he concluded, "my sympathies naturally go to labor; still I don't wish to commit myself to any particular body of the community, but will always endeavor to be fair and honest in all my municipal activities."

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

TUESDAY, JUNE 3, 1919

"GOD SAVE THE KING."

FIFTY FOUR YEARE AGO King George V. was born, at that time being only heir presumptive to the throne, his elder brother, the Duke of Clarence, being in direct line for the succession. The death of the latter in 1891 placed the other in the position of heir-apparent, and upon the death of his father, the late King Edward, he became King.

Everyone knows that King George would prefer the life of a sailor to that of the holder of a place in a royal palace, but England's King has, nevertheless, from the first discharged his official duties in a highly conscientious manner. When the war broke out he set the people an example in thrift and temperance. He made frequent visits to the battle line and to the military hospitals, inspiring the active soldiers and cheering the wounded with his presence. There is no doubt that if the constitution of the Empire permitted anything of the kind, he would have been an active combatant from the first, either in the navy or the army.

ALD. JOSEPH CROWE.

THE EXAMINER has every reason to feel peeved because Mr. Joseph Crowe has been unanimously elected a member of the City Council to succeed ex-Ald. Murray. This was done in face of the open protests of the Examiner against Mr. Crowe's appointment and its curbstone efforts to defeat the wishes of the Trades Council in the matter.

At the last municipal election the Labor party not only elected four aldermen, but put three of them at the head of the polls. That should be a sufficient indication, even for our contemporary, of the spirit of the electorate. Ex-Ald. Murray was one of the high men, standing fourth on the list. The place he filled was that of a representative of Labor. Labor had just as good a right, legal or moral, to nominate a man to succeed him, as if Ald. Murray had been elected under the old ward system, in which case the appointment would go to that ward.

Any man who is familiar with public affairs knows that the ideal condition for popular representation is to have all classes in the running, not only employers and workingmen, but the elect from different races. Some would even go so far as to maintain that the various creeds are entitled to a say in public questions. Without such a representation there can be no justice. It is when the representation becomes one-sided that the danger arises. Representatives of a particular class will look after the interests of that class primarily. That is only natural, but one class in a community is not the entire consideration. In our Parliament and Legislature the trouble is that there is in the membership a preponderance of professional and business men. Hence the birth of these new factions, composed of farmers and workingmen, the creation of which threatens to revolutionize the entire venerable system that is more and more proving itself a failure.

Ald. Crowe has had experience in the public service. He is a safe and sane citizen, even if he is the representative of a Labor organisation the members of which have been locked out by the manufacturers. Every voter in the city with a sense of justice will admit the righteousness of his appointment. If the Examiner's aldermanic paragon, Ald. Turner, saw fit to resign a position in which he is distinguishing himself mainly by his hostility to the working classes, his place would beyond all question be filled by another alderman of the same species. Ald. Turner may or he may not represent the Board of Trade in the Council, but one thing is certain, the Labor men of the city are not warranted in looking for any favors from him. His one lone official virtue is consistency, applying as he does the same principle to public as to private enterprise in this regard.

The people elected four Labor aldermen last January. The ratio of representation has been restored by the appointment of Ald. Crowe. The celerity with which this matter was disposed of last night, the unanimity of the choice—even Ald. Turner suporting him when he saw that he was alone in his opposition—cannot be altogether unconnected with the parade and the display of the spirit made by the workingman earlier in the evenig. It is possible to bring even the present City Council to terms, but anyone who wants anything from the aldermen are under the necessity of going after it vigorously.

ALD. TURNER'S POSITION.

ALD. TURNER last night objected to the appointment of Mr. Joseph Crowe to fill the aldermanic vacancy, taking the stand that Mr. Crowe represented not the city as a whole but a certain class. Ald. Turner would no doubt resent any intimation to the effect that his own representation was somewhat limited, but there is no getting over the record. Probably the trouble with him is that he cannot see beyond certain social and industrial lines.

But Ald. Turner is entitled to his own opinions. The Council was under no legal obligation to appoint Mr. Crowe. The only principle involved was one of justice. The appointment to fill a vacancy is made under a special Act which leaves the Council a free hand in the matter of choice. The aldermen can select whom they will regardless of recommendation, but it is a wise city father who can read the signs of the times and who keeps his finger on the popular pulse.

If Ald. Turner objected to the appointment of Mr. Crowe, he had the general statute as a guide in making a selection, but this authority he contumaciously ignored. He went far afield to suggest men for the position, mentioning the names of several prominent citizens who did not figure at all in the last municipal election. Failing to receive any encouragement from his colleagues, he further defied the general statute by nominating one after the other two candidates defeated last January and who stood at the very bottom of the list. Neither of his nominations were seconded, however. In this matter he had the distinction of standing alone.

Among the candidates defeated last January was one former alderman who in the election of 1918 under the old sytem trimmed no less a personage than Ald. Turner himself, and that to a frazzle, in the old South Ward. It would have been magnanimous on the part of Ald. Turner to have suggested the name of his former opponent. Probably he could not bring himself to that point, seeing that the ex-alderman in question has the misfortune to be a mere wage-earner.

A QUESTION OF HOURS.

NINE MEN WORKING eight hours a day put in as many hours of labor as eight men working nine hours. The rate per hour being the same in each case, there is no difference in the expense to the employer. The shorter hours provide a place for an extra man who might otherwise be idle. The principle at stake is one of altruism, an exemplification of the Golden Rule, a desire not only to live but to give others the same privilege.

Why, then, should any alderman hold out for the longer day, unless his opposition is inspired solely by an objection to granting anything in the way of a concession to the working classes.

SIR ADAM'S FREE HAND.

"SIR ADAM BECK was given a free hand," says a headline. That was hardly necessary. Like our own Ald. Turner, Sir Adam would not only take a free hand himself but the bit in his teeth as well.

A CHANCE FOR AN INDUSTRY.

PETERBOROUGH has a chance to secure another industry, the Stickney Motor Company, which offers on certain conditions to start up business in the plant of the old Cordage Company. The matter of granting these will be voted on by the qualified ratepayers Thursday.

The company, which will, if secured, engage in the manufacture of tractor vehicles, asks for a fixed assessment of $10,000 for ten years. They will be required to pay the usual school and local improvement taxes. They agree to furnish employment to at least fifty hands and the works will be in operation next year if the bylaw is adopted by the people in Thursday's vote.

The ratepayers have, as a rule, accepted all such opportunities, and there is not likely to be a change of procedure in this case. The company will make a desirable addition to the industrial life of the city, and no reason can be urged why their offer should be turned down.

A CASE OF TRIPLETS.

THE BIRTH OF TRIPLETS in any community is an event of sufficient rarity and importance to bring fame to that community in all parts of the Dominion, and such an event occurred here on Sunday in the family of Mr. Albert Doris on Bolivar street. This is a matter in which every public-spirited citizen should take a personal interest and pride, as it is certain to be reported in all the leading papers of Canada. It is pleasing to report that all the new arrivals are doing well and that physicians and nurses agree that they are well-developed infants with a splendid chance for existence.

If Mr. Doris lived in some European countries—notably Germany, at least before the war—the great event in his household would be accorded official recognition and he would receive financial assistance from the State to help support the unusual addition to his olive branches. England's sovereigns have offered cash rewards to any parents who so accelerate the birth rate. The case in Peterborough should be brought officially to the notice of the Government at Ottawa in the hope that the English custom may be followed in this instance. The citizens should take some action by way of welcoming the tiny strangers to Peterborough and to see that they lack for nothing. Unfortunately Mr. Doris' epochal family happening has come at a time when he has been out of work for several weeks and when business in his line shows little sign of an immediate revival.

BERT ESSON IS ALLOWED TO GO

FIRST CASE OF ALLEGED DEFAULTER TO ESCAPE ALL PENALTY.

Bert Esson is the first offender brought up under the Military Service Act in Peterborough who was not found gulty and punished. Magistrate Dumble reserved his judgment and allowed him out on his own recognizance to appear when called on. In the evidence it was brought out that when he was called on to report for service he was not medically fit to go and a constable who was sent up to arrest him refused to serve the warrant when he saw the condition that the man was in. eH was in bed for some time after the armistice was signed, and was of the opinion that at the close of the war there was no further need for his services in the army. He is, and has always been, actively engaged as farmer and prior to being drafted, he had volunteered to go at the same time as his brother and some other chums but was told by the military authorities that his services were more required just then on the farm.

FIVE HUNDRED DOLLAR FINE

Magistrate Gives Judgment in Kendry Liquor Case.

In thep Police Court this morning Magistrate Dumble gave his decision in the eKndry liquor case, which was adjourned from last Wednesday. The defendant was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $500 or spend six months in jail.

The charge, which was laid by License Inspector Stewart, was that the defendant had in his possession 240 bottles of liquor in a place other than his private residence, the liquor having been seized by Inspector Stewart and High Constable Moore at Kendry on the morning of April 30.

PURITY - QUALITY - ECONOMY

With the increased cost of labor and materials due to war conditions, it is not reasonable to suppose that a really first class baking powder can be made and sold at the old prices. Rather than sacrifice the quality of we found it necessary to make slight increase in price during the war period. Even though Magic Baking Powder may cost a few cents more than the ordinary kinds it is still by far the most economical baking powder on the market to-day when purity, strength and leavening qualities are taken into consideration.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS IS REALLY SOVIET SYSTEM

Councils and Committees Will Represent not States but Jobs—Recognition of Labor Unions.

The league of nations at heart will consist of a series of international soviets.

The soviet principle in government as distinguished from the democratic principle is this: democracy gives one citizen one vote; the soviet gives one job one vote. And in the league of nations a number of councils, conferences and committees are organized, not to represent states, not even to represent peoples; they are frankly organized upon the soviet principle, to represent jobs. The bankers have their soviet in the reparations committee with its tremendous power. The philonthropists have their soviet in the Red Cross. The farmers have their soviet in the bureau of agriculture organized under the league of nations, which deals exclusively with farmers' international interests. The merchants have their soviet in the economic council, which is made up of business men, and its work is to consider primarily buying and selling.

So the commission on international labor legislation is really an ideal soviet—a workingman's and bosses' soviet. It will function as an industrial legislature to consider special legislation for the workman and his employer. In a democracy one great committee or legislature would consider all these things and consider each in its relation to the common good. But the soviet principle provides for class legislation for class ends—bankers, merchants, farmers, and laborers—on the theory that the good of the whole which all these classes form. It is a new idea, and being well expressed in the organization of the commission on international labor legislation, it is worth while to look at that commission a moment.

Recognition of Labor Unions

Two things are established with the league of nations under the commission on international labor legislation: First, an annual labor conference—the first session of which will meet in Washington in October—and second, an international labor bureau. There the legislative and administrative governments are established. The conference or legislative branch of the government is composed of four members from each state in the league of nations—two from the government, one from the employers and one from the employed. As the fundamental principle of the commission is recognition of the unions, it may be assumed that only union labor or its friend will be accredited to representation in the conference, and similarly only accredited representatives of employers' unions or associations will be admitted. It is the soviet principle of "one job one vote,"—whether the job be in the front office—or the back shop. "No stateman wanted" seems to be the motto.

The administrative branch of the workmen's and bosses' council—to paraphrase the bolshevist vernacular—is the permanent labor bureau of the, established at Geneva, the seat of the league of nations. It will collect information on international or industrial life, distribute this information to labor unions and employers' associations throughout the world and prepare the programs for the conferences. It will publish a magazine in French and English.

Body Has 24 Members

The governing body of the commission consists of twenty four members, twelve representing the governments and six each the workmen's unions and the employers' associations. This governing body will be charged with looking after the administration of the international labor legislation passed under the direction of the conferences. This labor legislation will be secured by initiating a proposed labor law in the annual conference, passing it by a two thirds vote and submitting it to the lawmaking authority in each state in the league of nations. It cannot be pigeon-holed by the state department. After it is submitted to the lawmaking authority of the state that state, of course, is free to do as it pleases. But the publicity, prestige, impetus gained through recommendation by a national labor congress in which both employers and workmen are represented will mean much to a proposed law.

Now the governing body which has charge of the international administration of labor laws passed through the recommendation of the labor conference will devote itself chiefly to seeing that such laws are not made dead letters. A complaint by one government against another may be referred to the governing body to a commission of inquiry nominated by the secretary-general of the league. If the commission fails to bring satisfactory action the matter may be taken to a permanent court of international justice. This procedure is to prevent a reactionary country from passing a law and refusing to enforce it.

The whole object of the labor commission is not to provide immediate radical labor legislation, but to bring about an even advence all over the civilized world for all labor legislation, so that employers in nations which treat their workmen decently may not have to compete in the international market with employers who use exploited labor. Its object is to furnish an international channel through which may flow easily a stream of ideas whose application in law and custom will raise labor to a high estate in the world—an equal estate and a fairly proportionate share with capital in the good things of this life.

"Dividends in life" is an English phrase. During the war the English labor leaders declared that they were interested in dividends on capital only, as those dividends brought also dividends in life on labor. That primarily is the object for the international commission on labor legislation.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

As I seem to find particular pleasure in reminding readers, ignorance is the chief obstacle to good health I refer, of course, to health ignorance, which is more disgraceful than common, ordinary ignorance, because it implies defiance of the ancient injunction—know thyself. Our school system in this country, as well as th colleges (excepting only the medical colleges), seem to be in a conspiracy to keep the people as ignorant as possible—from the neck down This below neck ignorance of college bred people stands out startlingly in many letters I received through this column from members of college faculties.

As a killer, pulmonary tuberculosis still vies with cardio-vascular degeneration, thanks to health ignorance. The TBC gets them nice and young; the CVD is rather more leisurely, taking them in hand as early as 30, but averaging twenty to thirty years at a killing. Both do thorough jobs.

TBC is the great despoiler of youth.

Epidemic health ignorance, spread by the country's educational system is the ally of these arch enemies of civilization.

While you are thinking about it, did your school have a gymnasium, athletic field, swimming pool and a physical instructor as well educated in his or her field and as competent as your teacher of mathematics was? Chances are ninety-nine out of a hundred that you will have to answer no. Your education was completed only from the neck up.

Tuberculosis is the most curable of all chronic diseases. The disease has a natural tendency to become arrested provided the victim is not too ignorant. The more ignorant the victim the smaller the chance for recovery. Health ignorant, I mean.

A snowball in a certain hypothetical climate has about the same chance to survive that a health ignorant persons with pulmonary tuberculosis has to get well.

A health ignorant TBC patient isn't a patient at all; he is a mere gambler, and he gambles with the most precious thing in the world. He runs aimlessly about seeking some fanciful climate that does not exist; he tries remedies or treatments suggested by Tom, Dick and Harry; he throws physic to the dogs and his doctor along with the physic.

A health intelligent TBC victim selects one doctor and sticks to his doctor. If he can't afford private medical care he obtains admission to a tuberculosis sanitarium.

Heartburn.

MRS. H. F. S."

Avoid corsets through the waiting period. Walk at least a mile a day in the open. A teaspoonful of milk of magnesia may be taken as often as desired for heartburn. 2. Neither.

Cold Cream.

"Please publish the name of the best cold cream to protect the face from wind, something which will not grow hair on the face.

"MRS. W. B."

The best cold cream is that which is made up fresh on order by any druggist according to the formula for ointment of rose water (unguentum aquae rose) in the United States Pharmacopoeia.

Why Mother Yawns.

"My daughter is troubled a great deal with clammy perspiring feet. What would you recommend? My mother yawns continually during the afternoons and evenings. What is the probable cause and can you suggest a remedy? MRS. G. S."

Let your daughter use freely in the shoes and in the socks powdered alum every alternate day. Your mother sits around the house too much, suffers from oxygen hunger. Let her take two miles of oxygen on the hoof three times a day, or equivalent exercises.

LABOR MEN IN

The Mayor "Yes when the strike illed the city was stuck The T. R threatened to sue for damges did we not put on with the b and complete it beneath their tracks ,so we had to employ what help we could get."

Ald. Phelan— "We had no idea of discriminating against union men We'll start work again on the Romaine street sewer tomorrow and do all we can to find employment for the men. A little misunderstanding seems to have cropped up and justice shall be done."

No Agitators

The Mayor—"We won't have any agitators on the job; such men will be put off."

President Bolwell— "That's the idea, Mr Mayor; we don't believe in agitators."

Suggests a Test

Ald. Turner—"Mr. Tooms talks of co-operation in the interests of all concerned and I would like to put the men's principle of co-operation to the test. Were any spirit of cooperation evidenced by the men in agreeing to a 9 hour day for workmen on the bridge the contract could be let and the project gone on with. If the city pays 45c an hour for this work, and in return the men work on a 9-hour day basis, the difference between a 9 hour day and one of 8 hours only, would represent about 10 per cent the wage, in which case, I firmly believe, the $10,000 additional to the contractor's estimate by reason of the wage increase beyond their figuring would be wiped out."

Bludgeon in Hand

Tooms here replied that in place of cooperation manufacturers had heretofore run the men with a bludgeon in their hands. "The men," he went on to say are not dollar selfish in holding out for an 8 hour day. The idea is to distribute available employment over a greater number of men and relieve distress caused by lack of employment."

Ald. Turner took exception to Tooms dragging the word manufacturer into the controversy. "I am a manufacturer, but here I represent the people as a whole. There will be no overplus of labor, many have left the city and will not return. I feel assured that if we get the Canadian Engineering and Contracting people on the phone tonight, and let them and your men agree to a 9 hour day at 45c and 67 1-2c the hour, they stick to their guaranteed price for the bridge, of $276,800

President Bolwell— "I would like to ask Mr. Turner if he does not think a man working 8 hours a day would not return to his work next morning fresher and more fit than were he working 9 hours." He could not credit Ald. Turner's estimated 10 per cent saving by a 9 hour day; the time needed has to be spent on the bridge anyway, and the 8-hour day would not involve an expenditure of 5c more.

Ald Turner—"The contractors say an eight hour day would run the cost up The pouring of cement frequently necessitates overtime at time and a half, and the shorter work day would create more overtime. Ald Turner did not credit that a man would do as much work in 8 hours as in 9.

Thomas Tooms—"I'll bring you British government statistics that such is the case."

Personalities

Ald. McIntyre was a strong advocate for the 8 hour day and incidentally remarked that Ald Turner, who so insistently urges a 9-hour day does not work 6 himself.

Mr. Stevens wanted another word or two, but his worhip replied, "No, enough has been said."

Perkins Lloyd also would have liked to have his say, "but the Mayor denied him on the ground that the discussion was growing personal "The Trade and Labor Council," he said, asked for three speakers, whom we have heard, and I don't think any more need be said."

President Bolwell—"That's enough, Mr. Mayor."

Perkin Lloyd "But Mr. Mayor, you don't know what I have to say"

The Mayor "You be quiet or I'll have you put out. We'll take this matter up in general business, gentlemen.

At the opening of the controversy his worship had promised the men an attentive hearing, hoped that they would conduct themselves like the gentlemen they really are, but warned them that he would brook no disturbance nor interruption of speakers."

LITTLE BOY HAS PET ELEPHANT

HAPPY YOUNGSTER IS SON OF ROBINSON OF CIRCUS FAME.

Just about the luckiest Little fellow in the United States is Master John Robinson, the fifth, whose doting grandfather allows him to have a wee baby elephant for a pet. Lots of boys and girls have dogs, cats, goats and rabbits for pets. Master Jack and all those until he espied "Peaches." Then the other pets were discarded and "Peaches" was given the preference. The elephant is just four years old and so is the boy and they have been great friends for almost two years.

You see Master John's grandfather owns the big John Robinson circus and he can spare baby elephants just like most grandparents spare matches or toothpicks. "Peaches" is an exceptionally good elephant. He is never chained to stake like the other members of the herd of fifteen. He is a privileged character and, each day when the show arrives in town, he is turned loose on the grounds and immediately sets out to find his little master. They play together and sometimes fuss, but they always make up. Little John shares his bread and sugar with "Peaches" and feeds the elephant so much and so many times a day that the beast is as fat as a prize hog.

Recently the boy insisted that they both ride with him from city to city in the elegantly appointed private car "Cincinnati," used by members of the Robinson family. The request was refused, of course and "Peaches" continues to travel with his brothers and sisters in the cars constructed especially for them. Master John and "Peaches" are coming to Peterboro with the show Saturday, June 7th.

G. A. BRETHEN REPLIES TO LETTER OF "SUBSCRIBER"

Editor Review: A letter dealing with the formation of Farmers' Clubs, signed by "subscriber", is given space in a recent issue of your paper. We note in your editorial comments in the same issue a disposition on your part to accept the statements made by this gentleman as a fact, when you say, "That any one who reads his article will be forced to admit that 'subscriber' has certainly made out a case on the only issue he raises." Lest any of your readers should unthinkingly fall into the same error, I ask your permission to make some reference to this letter as published.

Your Mr. Subscriber who poses as a farmer introduces his letter by saying he hopes by its publication to arouse an agitation. In these times of trouble and unrest we are inclined to believe than any man would do well to go slow if he has no higher motive for rushing into print than a desire to 'agitate.' The world today is not suffering from any very noticeable dearth of agitators, but could use many, yea, very many men of cool, sober judgment who are willing to make sacrifice to get things adjusted and better all round feeling between man and man.

Not withstanding your statement that the author of the letter is an old subscriber and a bona fide farmer, I have some misgiving to his right to the latter classification. He certainly is no ordinary farmer.

A man who "hears the sad moan of the winter-killed trees" and "sees the dormant grain fields springing to life once more," we would be inclined to classify as a poet, hardly a farmer.

Now poets are dreamers and while "subscriber" may claim poetic license to make the statement, "the purpose of the organization of Farmers' Clubs is to conduct a mail order system." We can assure him that the conclusion he has drawn is not based on facts, in other words, "simply a dream." If Mr. Subscriber's knowledge of farming is as vague and impractical as is his knowledge of the real aims and purposes of the farmers' organization without wishing to question the veracity of your statement, we feel we would have very trifling reasons to call him a bona fide farmer.

However, to avoid the possibility of any further mistaken conclusions, I would suggest to Mr. Subscriber that as an aid to identification his plain signature over his post office address would be infinitely more valuable, especially to his friends and neighbors than paragraph on paragraph of "the sad moaning of the winter-killed trees."

Lest there be any misunderstanding left in the minds of your readers from the publication of these unwarranted charges against the farmers' organizations, I submit these facts: The United Farmers of Ontario is an organization of bona fide farmers for co-operative purposes—moral, economical, political. The buying and selling end is looked after by the United Farmers' Co-operative Co., Ltd. The officers of both these organizations are elected by the members at their annual meeting in December as well as those in the central office located in Toronto. These different organizations controlled by U.F.O. members all encourage buying and selling through their head office as thereby due to the large volume of business transacted, expenses are reduced and more favorable prices are secured for the individual member. We challenge "subscriber's" proof of his statement that any club, local or otherwise, encourages any other process of buying as it will be readily understood. Such practice would soon weaken the buying and selling power of the organization and present another illustration of a house divided against itself with the inevitable result.

Further, in reference to the local merchant while clubs are encouraged to buy and sell in large quantities through this central organization (a practice approved of by our Government as a war-time measure), I have yet to learn of the practice of retail buying receiving any encouragement and, personally, I agree with all "subscriber" has said re the place and usefulness of the local merchant, but feel satisfied with a reasonable rate of profit and ready to meet the need of his rural customers, he has little to fear from any material decrease in his volume of business.

As possibly throwing some light on some aspect of existing conditions in the world today, I would draw the attention of your city readers to the following: So far as the farmer is concerned the high cost of living is primarily due to a shortage of supply. Shortage of supply is due to increased cost of production and the abhorrence of the average men not born on the farm to work the farmers' 8-hour day (8 before noon and 8 after) for the same returns that the farmer receives. Increased cost of production is in sympathy with a very material increase in cost of help, of machinery, of building material and all farm equipment, and even more vitally a failure to secure maximum production because of the absolute impossibility of manning the farm with sufficient or efficient help.

Unlike some lines of endeavor the farmer is not working on a guaranteed cost plus, a nice profit added, but has to be personally responsible in making ends meet. Every encouragement afforded the farmer to produce more resulting in increased supply has a direct bearing on the cost of living in the city. He doesn't want it all in advice. Every obstacle to production such as daylight saving bylaws, etc., introduced by unthinking municipal officers bears just as directly upon the cost of your food stuff and "Johnny in the city pays dear for his whistle."

As was aptly said a few days ago by the member for Vancouver, the farmer of Canada will be the salvation of this country. The organized farmers exert the ballast to steady the whole country. For their own protection, for the well-being of the nation at large farmers' organizations are needed, as never before. The farmer grimly stays on the job—the world lives.

Trade opportunities offered the overseas dominions are varied and alluring, and the Canadian trade commission insists again and again that a far larger share of the Dominion's financial burden could be borne by manufactures if they would group themselves to secure this trade.

TORTURED BY RHEUMATISM

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Brought Quick and Permanent Relief

MR. P. H. McHUGH

108 Church Street, Montreal.
December 10th, 1917.

"I was a great sufferer from Rheumatism for over 16 years, I consulted specialists, took medicines, used lotions; but nothing did me good. Then, I began to use "Fruit-a-tives"; and in 15 days, the pain was easier and the Rheumatism was better. Gradually, "Fruit-a-tives" overcame my Rheumatism; and now, for five years, I have had no return of the trouble. Also, I had severe Eczema and Constipation, and "Fruit-a-tives" relieved me of these complaints; and gave me a good appetite; and in every way restored me to health". P. H. McHUGH.

HOUSING FOR COBOURG

Town Adopts Provincial Government's Scheme. Good Sites Available

Cobourg, June 2.—The town of Cobourg is now linked with the Provincial Department in the Ontario Housing Scheme and will build houses for industrial employes or others who may desire to take advantage of the proposition. Good sites are easily available, and this evening the council will put through a by-law appointing Housing Commissioners and an Inspector. The return of so many soldiers from overseas has accentuated the need foo more houses here.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing at any time.

Smooth Work

"How did Hicks manage to reform that nagging wife of his?"

All This Was Needed.

Young mistress (to her first cook)—"Now, cook, I've written down what your duties wil be on this card, which I want you to hang up in the kitchen."

Cook (running her eye down the list)—"I see, mum. Well, if you just write at the bottom, 'Cook leaves this day month,' that will make it complete."

A huge market for Canadian farm produce exists in Great Britain, where, according to the trade commission, our imports only amount to one and a half per cent. of the eggs consumed, two and a half per cent. of the butter, and two and a quarter per cent. of the beer.

Song of Woodrow

(Horatio Butterfly in John Bull)

I do not propose this week, to waste more words on Wilson. We shall soon know where we are, and in our next issue I suppose I shall be saying some very plain things about the peace made in America—which at the moment looks like being a fitting conclusion to the war made in Germany. But I will reproduce some verses which have recently come into my hands:

Of frightfulness unknown before,
Who wrote epistles by the score?
'Twas Woodrow.

Who watched the havoc Germans wrought,
And when our aid poor Belgium sought,
Who preached "Neutrality of thought?"
'Twas Woodrow.

Who saw French cities overrun,
And desecrated by the Hun,
And said that nothing should be done?
'Twas Woodrow.

When babes were massacred at sea,
Who said, "How rude those Germans b, Another note is due from me"
'Twas Woodrow.

When we were asked to aid the plight,
Of Allies struggling for the right,
Who said "We are too proud to fight?"
'Twas Woodrow.

Who captured ballots by the score,
And held the Chair he'd had before,
Because he kept us out of war?
'Twas Woodrow.

But, when at last the Country chose
To rise in arms against our foes,
Who quickly struck the martial pose?
'Twas Woodrow.

At Chateau-Thiery, who fought well,
Who chained the Huns at St. Mehiel,
And on the Meuse, who gave them Hell?
Not Woodrow.

And who should go, with courage high,
To sit in conclave at Versailles,
And stick his finger in the Pie,
But Woodrow.

Since Emperors from their thrones are hurled,
For whom should banners be unfurled
As autocrat of all the world.
But Woodrow?

I think these verses sum up the situation very nicely. There can be no question at all that, but for the American Professor's "idealistic" flopdoodle, Peace would have been signed months ago. Candidly, I think we are asked to pay too big a price for Uncle Sam's help. Besides, Mr. Wilson does not represent American opinion. If you doubt it, ask any American who has recently come over here—and read the American papers. Upon my word this Wilsonian "stunt" is the biggest bit of Yankee bluff I have ever come across!

MOTHER AND SON BITTEN BY DOG

EXCELLENT FIELD FOR OUR OWN JIMMY GATES AT PORT HOPE.

Mrs. Vincent Harwood, of Port Hope, very nearly lost her youngest son when he was attacked by a collie dog. They were out for an afternoon stroll when the dog turned on the boy and when the mother came to his defence she was badly bitten on the arm. The young lad was bitten in several places and both he and his mother had their wounds cauterized for fear of infection. The dog was killed and his head sent up to the proper authorities to be examined for traces of hydrophobia.

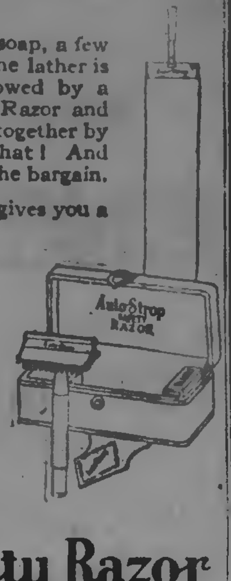
When you get up late

A RAPID brushing up of the soap, a few turns on the strop while the lather is getting in its work; followed by a once-over with your AutoStrop Razor and the job's done. Three minutes altogether by your watch. You can't beat that! And you have a cool slick shave into the bargain.

Of course, it's the stropping that gives you a keen blade when you want it.

To clean, you simply put the blade under the tap, wipe it off, then it's ready for the next shave. No precious minutes lost fumbling with parts. That means more time for breakfast, and a smile for the day's work.



Remember, the AutoStrop Safety Razor goes to you with a money-back guarantee. Razor, strop, and 12 blades complete for $5.00.

HASTINGS WOMAN BURNED TO DEATH

MRS. LEANDER BURKE USED COAL OIL TO START KITCHEN FIRE.

Mrs. Leander Burke, of Fuller, Huntingdon Township, Hastings County, was burned to death while her husband was at the barn attendin to the morning chores. It is presumed that she had been using coal oil to light the fire and that the flames had suddenly shot up and ignited her clothing. The flames were prevented by a linoleum from spreading to the woodwork. All her clothing was burnt off and her body badly charred.

Mrs. Burke was about sixty years old and was a well-known and highly respected figure in that neighborhood. She was a prominent worker in the Methodist Church, her husband being a local preacher. Several grown-up sons and daughters survive her.

"Placing Canada on the map of trade" is the happy way in which Mr. W. B. Ramsay, Montreal, who represented a group industry in London, and who has brought back heavy orders to Canada, describes the work of the Canadian mission in London.

SALVATION ARMY VETERANS ENTERTAINED AT BANQUET

Four hundred and fifty guests sat down last night to the banquet prepared at the Salvation Army Temple for the Veterans, their wives and families, by Mrs. Badley and her staff of workers. After everyone was satisfied a concert was given by the Salvation Army Temple band, assisted by several artists of well-known fame. As business of great importance was being transacted at the City Hall, large numbers of men considered that they should put duty before pleasure and left at the end of the banquet, but those who remained enjoyed a first-class program.

Adjutant Buntin, in his opening remarks, spoke of the 15,000 S. A. bandsmen who had done their bit for the Empire. He also asked that there should be no encores on account of the oppressive heat in which the various contributors to the program had to perform, but in several instances the audience simply clamored for more till they got it. Every item on the program was enjoyed thoroughly.

Mr. Fred Tuggy, in a few brief remarks, explained the purpose of the band league. Anyone could belong to it by paying 5c a week, and the money so received would help the bandsmen considerably as at present they are giving their time and talent free.

At the close a vote of thanks to all who had taken part in making the concert and the banquet a success was moved by Adjutant Buntin and seconded by Sergt.-Major Gandy, and heartily carried by a standing vote of the whole house. When the last of the Canadian soldiers has arrived home another similar evening's entertainment will be provided.

The Program.

The following was the program:

Opening Song (tune, St. Peter).

Prayer—Mrs. Adjutant Buntin.

Chairman's remarks.

March—"Victory—Temple Band.

Pianoforte solo—"Gigue"—Mrs. S. J. Richardson.

Reading—Selected—Miss Winifred Parker.

Saxaphone Solo — "Last Rose of Summer"—Bandsman J. James.

Selection — "Eventide" — Temple Band.

God Save the King.

Benediction.

CONDITIONS ON ONTARIO FARMS

The following is a summary of reports made by ariculture representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

The hot, sunny weather of the past week helped to dry up the heavily soaked land, and there has been a rush of sowing of all kinds of delayed spring crops. The intensity of the heat, however, following frequent heavy rains, has had the effect of making the surface of clay soils, which is stunting the growth of roots and other seeding showing up. On this account some sugar beets have had to be re-seeded in Kent.

Buckwheat and millet will be largely sown on account of the lateness of the season for some of the other spring crops. In Essex and Kent an extended acreage of tobacco is predicted. There will also be more corn and less beans generally sown.

Fall wheat continues to look well, and clover is in fair condition. Alfalfa is making very rapid growth, and looks better than usual.

Fruit was never more generally promising. Winter apples are shy in blooming, but the other varieties will do better. From Lincoln comes a report that peaches, which have blossomed well, are suffering from severe attack of leaf curl, and cherries, also heavy in bloom, are being attacked by brown rot. All small fruits are likely to yield generously.

Many cattle went on the grass rather thin, and good beef animals are scarce. Some have sold at $15 a cwt., but stocker steers have gone as low as $11 a cwt. Milch cows bring from $100 up. The milk flow is now abundant. Lanark reports cheese as selling at 32 1-8c a lb. on the local board.

Hogs are going off at from $21 to $22 50 a cwt. Little pigs are in great demand at from $18 to $23 a pair. Owners of horses are doing well in Ontario county. Three year old colts are bringing from $160 to $175, and good mature draft horses, from four to six years old, are going at from $225 to $250, and are scarce even at that price.

Brant says that most of the sheep will be clipped by the 10th of June, and that a large number of farmers are shipping their wool to Guelph, being pleased with the results there during the last two years.

With live stock on the grass fodders are likely to hold out nicely; but although there is a surplus of grain on hand for supplementary feeding, hay, ensilage and other coarse fodders are scarce. Hay is worth from $30 to $35 a ton.

Peel reports that returned soldiers are relieving the labor situation in that county to some extent.

Fame is a plant that cannot be forced in a hothouse.

PUBLIC BATHING SPOT IS IN SIGHT

COMMITTEE IN CHARGE AUTHORIZED TO GO AHEAD WITH SCHEME.

The City Council last night left the question of providing a public bathing place in the hands of the Bathing Committee with power to act.

In this connection the committee reported as follows:

"Gentlemen,—Your Special Committee appointed in regard to bathing places, beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

"1.—That a bathing house be built and a bathing place prepared at the east end of Lake street at a cost not to exceed $1500.00."

A communication from Peck, Kerr and McElderry objected to the above proposed site, on behalf of the Alfred McDonald estate, on the following grounds:

The property on both sides of the street is owned by the estate and proceeding with this project would undoubtedly be a nuisance to the owners and tenants of the property. In addition, the protest claimed, the site is objectionable for other reasons, as water at this point is apt to be stagnant and dirty and the shore is not a good sandy or gravelly bottom. The islands in the river were suggested as a much better location.

This legal threatened injunction proceedings should the proposition be proceeded with.

The report was amended by striking out the words, "at the east end of Lake street," and the report thus amended adopted.

This leaves the committee with power to select a site and to go ahead with the scheme.

Patriotism and Profit

It is patriotic to buy War Savings Stamps because Canada must have money for reconstruction.

But it is also profitable to buy War Savings Stamps because you are investing in Government Bonds yielding over 4½%.

You don't need to be a capitalist. You can start with 25 cents. Buy a Thrift Stamp for a quarter. When you have sixteen of them, exchange them for a War Savings Stamp, and you will have laid the foundation of a solid investment with your odd savings.

You can add to this investment as often as you save $4.00, and in 1924 the Government will pay $5.00 for every War Savings Stamp you buy now for $4.00 odd.

In May W-S.S. Cost $4.04

In June W-S.S. Cost $4.05

This is the biggest opportunity ever afforded to wage earners to become investors.

HOW THEY ARRANGE THE GOLF LINKS IN CHICAGO

Grounds in That City Are Reckoned Among the Best Appointed in the United States

Chicago, June 3.—What beehive of industry is this, you wonder, as you reach the Exmoor Country club. They're making lots of improvements out there. A beautiful lawn in time you feel sure, will displace this mud you carefully avoid.

There's something new on every side, apparently. For one thing that famousing dancing floor they're laying right out on the lawn. It's a big dancing floor, too, made out of concrete that won't crack, it's claimed. It will be given a coat of parafin when the dancing season opens. The club magazine telling about the new floor assures the golfers it won't be in their way when they travel from the locker room to the first tee.

Lots of trees have just been planted, broken soil around them reveals. There's one just to the left of the fairway for the first hole that is surprisingly large, forty feet, anyway; an elm that cost $100 on the Chicago market for trees. Jack Croke, the professional, who is in charge of the grounds also said. Elm trees—that's the stuff! he says. The oaks are looking somewhat sickly. The fallen leaves have to be raked away where golf is being played so the balls won't get lost. And the dead leaves would help the oaks to live, he said; help keep the soil moist.

Exmoor raises its own trees now in a little nursery of about two acres. Hundreds of them are planted about three feet apart. They're thinned out as they grow. It's advisable to keep moving them, Croke says. It toughens them up. Transplant them at least three times before putting them permanently on the course.

"Elms and the silver maples are such beautiful shade trees," Mr. Croke said. "It'll take years to benefit from all this work. A later generation will gain the great advantage. But it must be done."

That later generation also will enjoy the new benches now being made for the tees; solid as a rock almost, and comfortable, too. They're made of cypress wood.

The first tee is being made twice as big. The sixteenth green is being changed; it won't be level any more, not by four feet. Greens no longer re billiard tables. Fourteen and four will be changed similarly. New bunkers are going in all the time.

And a new four room golf shop is going up. One room where members drop in has an attractive fireplace.

One golf editor told so many pleasant golf facts about the so attractively named Bobolink Golf club that we're going to talk about birds. All golfers notice the birds, don't they? Neither do we. But we ought to.

Take the bobolinks for instance.

"We see them long toward evening, toward twilight," said George W. Norman, golf professional. "I don't believe one ever hears a sound out of the bobolinks till then. I never did. I talked with a bobolink enthusiast not long ago. He said they never give that attractive whistling sound until twilight. The rest of the day they're too busy doing the day's work—food, courting, nesting, care of the young.

"It's a favorite haunt for boblinks around here. That's the way the club got its name, of course. I saw twenty-five of them one evening, I remember. One can see their yellow heads so easily; one especially sees them in the lowlands of the Skokie valley.

"Let's keep these bobolinks around here. We haven't any rules about being careful of the birds. Everybody careful of them anyway. They'll disappear unless we treat them right."

Fore, birdies! We won't hurt you

That valley, as everybody knows, is famous for its golf clubs: Skokie, Boblink, Exmoor, Old Elm, Onwentsia. You get so fine a view of the course along that valley from the club houses usually built along the east ridge.

MONAHAN WILL TRAIN WILLARD

IS SAID TO BE BEST TRAINER IN WORLD OF PUGILISM.

Toledo, O., June 3.—Grant news reached Ray Archer, business representative of Jess Willard, the same eing a telegram from Walter Monahan, from Newport News, Va., that he had received his discharge from the army and would report here Monday.

"The very best trainer in the world and Willard's favorite sparring partner," declared Archer as he read the brief wire from the 220 pound hospital corps man, whose name first saw the light of print when he joined Jack Johnson nine years ago this month at the Sealroch house, San Francisco, when the colored man was in training for his fight with Jeffries.

Monahan will rule the Willard training camp, which will be located at the Casino, a former roadhouse, recently used as the headquarters of the big arena where the heavyweight championship will be staged.

"Kid McCoy will not train Willard. I understand he is coming east with the party, but not in an official capacity," said Archer in response to the suggestion that McCoy would make an ideal man to train the champion. "Jess doesn't want anyone to train him but Monahan, and will be delighted to hear that Walter has been discharged."

Archer has arranged to start cleaning out the Casino building and to erect a regulation ring, out of doors, with punching bag platforms and whatever else Willard will desire.

The Willard camp is about a half mile south of Dempsey's quarters and it is probable the pair will meet upon the road when taking their daily run. Efforts of antis to stir up feeling by intimating that a rough and tumble fight would follow such a meeting have not caused even a flutter of interest. The public apparently realizes that the day of such tactics in the boxing game has passed.

TORONTO TO NEW YORK CITY

A through train service from Toronto to New York city leaving Toronto 5.45 p.m. daily was inaugurated by the Grand Trunk on May 4th. This train carries through coaches and sleeping cars and arrives at New York at the Pennsylvania Terminal 33rd Street, and 7th Ave. Also train leaving Toronto 4.00 p.m. daily runs through to Buffalo making direct connections at Buffalo for New York, coaches and parlor, library, buffet car Toronto to Buffalo, sleeping cars Buffalo to New York and Philadelphia. The Pennsylvania station is so centrally located that it is a great convenience to the visitor to New York and is in easy reach of some of the latest hotels, also the shopping and theatre districts. There is also direct tube service to and from Brooklyn.

The race is not always to the swift. The fastest colors are those that won't run.

Medicine may be taken at regular intervals, but hints may be taken at any time.

Says a rural editor: "A smart man is never a success as a fisherman. We have tried it ourselves."

Do You Know How To Light A Fire?

IF NOT ETHEL BARRYMORE WILL TELL YOU HOW THURSDAY NIGHT.

There is a little scene in "The Off Chance," the smart comedy by R. C. Carton, in which Miss Ethel Barrymore is to be seen at the Grand Opera House for one performance, Thursday evening, June 5th, that a lot of hus[illegible] who haven't been able to [illegible] their wives ought to see and [illegible]. It is the scene between Lady Cardonnell, played by Miss Barrymore, and her son-in-law, the Duke of [illegible], interpreted by Wilfrid [illegible], wherein the former wants to [illegible] why the duke and his pretty wife Enid, played by [illegible], haven't been able to [illegible] along together.

"[illegible] beastly good," exclaimed the duke. "And I can't stick it. I'd rather die with a devil than live with [illegible]. I don't know how Enid ever [illegible] herself to marry anybody, let alone me."

"Why?" asks Lady Cardonnell.

"Why? Because she's as cold as the northeast wind—that's why."

"How do you know?"

"I'm her husband."

"That's nothing. Lots of clever people never learn the right way to light a fire."

SIGNAL HONOR FOR THIS CITY

IS APPEARANCE OF ETHEL BARRYMORE AT GRAND THURSDAY NIGHT.

Ethel Barrymore, who will be at the Grand Opera House for one performance, Thursday evening, June 5 in R. C. Carton's comedy, "The Off Chance," throughout her present tour will visit only a few of the larger [illegible] subsequent to her appearance in New York later in the season in a new play by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero. It was in Pinero's "Mid-Channel" that Miss Barrymore scored one of the most emphatic successes of her career. "The Off Chance" was the best liked of the group of plays contained in Miss Barrymore's repertoire during her engagement of an entire winter at the Empire Theatre in New York last season and for this reason, since it appeared to appeal strongest to the enormous Barrymore following, was chosen by the actress and the Charles Frohman Company as her vehicle on her present tour. During the latter, Miss Barrymore is to visit cities in which she has not been seen for several seasons and such engagements promise to be little less than ovations.

AT THE GRAND

Faber and Taylor, in a comedy skit, "Going North", are the headliners at the Grand this week and present a most amusing act.

The Archie Nicholson duo, musical comedians, pleased the audience with their offering. Earl Girdeller and his dog have quite a novel little act, which went well.

The feature picture is entitled "Just For Tonight," with Tom Moore in the leading role. A Chaplin and Arbuckle film and the Screen Magazine complete a most entertaining program, which will be repeated today and tomorrow with a matinee each day.

Although the mercury was hovering around the ninety mark yesterday the Opera House was quite cool and comfortable. Manager Dahn has his cooling plant in operation now, and declares the Grand will be the coolest spot in town this summer.

WORK DELAYED ON CITY SEWER

LABORERS WHO REPORTED FOR DUTY THIS MORNING WERE DISAPPOINTED.

Relying on the promise given at the Council meeting last night that work on the Romaine street sewer would be resumed today, a large number of laborers were on hand ready to go to work, but there was not a single city official in sight. After waiting for a time the men reported the facts to Business Agent Tooms of their union. Mr. Tooms got in communication with Mayor Duncan and learned that the city was not ready to go on with the work. The Mayor stated that a start would be made tomorrow morning and that four men would be placed.

When the strike of the city laborers were called there were twenty-five men engaged on this sewer.

Laughter Adds to Attractiveness.

Not only does laughter keep the blood flowing rapidly but it also keeps the spirit light, buoyant and carefree. This means that you are happy and gay, and all this reflects itself in your eyes and face. Good cheer makes your eyes sparkle and your face radiant, and altogether you are not only a healthier, happier individual, but also a more beautiful person as a result of your cheerful nature, and well able to bring radiance and cheerfulness into the lives of others as well as into your own.

Only Foolish Depend on Luck.

The person who depends upon luck may find advancement for a time, but any success which is founded upon luck or privilege is bound to be unstable. Take any great man or woman who has reached the top and you will find that they have fought every step of the way. It is never an easy thing to climb a high hill, but there is always a good view at the top. If we are content to stand at the bottom and see other people climb, that is up to us.

Date Trees Flourish in Arizona.

That dates can be made to thrive in Arizona is being demonstrated by the agricultural experiment station of the University of Arizona, whose orchards contain 508 trees, representing 125 different varieties. The fruit is ripened artificially and marketed in the East. Alkaline soil and the available water of the region appear to be well suited to the needs of the date trees, which, it is declared, will bear fruit for 100 years.

Phrenology.

Phrenology is a pseudo-science whose devotees claim that the external features of the skull furnish an index to the mind and character. Since its origination by Doctor Gall, in 1796, the system has undergone many changes, but it does not exist in the realm of the recognized sciences.

Aim High, Is Good Advice.

Aim at perfection in everything, though in most things it is unattainable. However, they who aim at it and persevere will come much nearer to it than those whose laziness and despondency make them give it up as unattainable.—Chesterfield.

The Biggest Dollar.

There are those who gauge the worth of a dollar by the things it will get to add to their own selfish happiness. Poor way, though. You and I never will know the true value of a dollar until we spend it for somebody else.—Exchange.

Concentrate, and Win.

If you would reach the goal you have started out to attain, stop squandering your forces, and then, instead of wondering why you have failed you will be surprised to find yourself on the road to success. EDITOR'S MAIL

MR. HONE CLOSES DEBATE

Editor Review:—Referring to Mr. Bagley's recent rejoinder, I accept his retraction of the statements, "The prohibitionist knows nothing of the power of the Holy Spirit to save a man in the hour of temptation," and "God deliberately placed temptation in the Garden of Eden."

I refuse to be drawn into a discussion on the interpretation of certain passages of the scripture. I prefer to believe that, to quote Mr. Bagley, St. Paul was "a scholar and said what he meant." When he meant "not given to MUCH wine," he said that and when he meant "not GIVEN to wine," he said that. When he told Timothy to "take a little wine FOR HIS STOMACH'S SAKE," he meant what he said.

Mr. Bagley knows, or should know that under the License Law a man would be liable to fine and imprisonment for manufacturing wine without a license as under a prohibitory law. So the "clique" referred to includes all those who favor either one of these measures and both classes will resent his insinuations. I would therefore, suggest that his challenge on this imaginary situation be directed to Mr. Burnham rather than the Minister of the Gospel. A debate on such a question between two authorities on the scriptures and moral distinctions and such "legal luminaries" would not only be suited to the mentality of the debaters but would also be exceedingly interesting to the general public.

It is useless to continue this debate with a man who is so narrow minded as to "not bother with" every side of a question under discussion or who spends half his time saying what he doesn't mean, one quarter saying the opposite to what he means and the other denying what he said before. This, therefore closes the debate so far as I am concerned.

But for the benefit of those who may have an open mind on this question, I should like to quote what ex-President Taft has to say in a recent article:

"All will admit that the state may properly pass laws to preserve the morals of the community by punishing murder, rape, and such crimes.

The more doubtful question is where the line is to be drawn as to acts not intrinsically vicious and immoral but having a tendency, if unrestrained, to lead to the demoralization of society. The line is more or less a matter of custom. The attitude of the public differs radically in different countries and at different times in the same country. THIS SHOWS THE ABSURDITY OF REFERRING TO THE USE OF WINE IN THE NEW TESTAMENT AS AN ARGUMENT FOR THE INALIENABLE RIGHT TO DRINK . . . . Liberty guaranteed by the constitution is liberty regulated by law. The law which regulates liberty is that which is adopted by the will of the majority for the general public benefit. In no community where there is any neighborhood relation between one person and another or between one family and another can there be complete freedom of action. The cave man is really the only man that ever enjoyed that kind of liberty, and this liberty was subject to complete restraint by death from a stronger cave man with a larger and heavier club. Liberty regulated by law is that measure of freedom of action which can be accorded to each person without injury to the enjoyment of similar liberty by others or to the general welfare of all."

"There are many men, as we know who might drink liquor and be moderate in its use. But we must recognize that liquor is a very considerable source in stimulating crime. We must recognize that it plays a large part in the production of poverty and suffering not only for the excessive drinker himself but for those related to him and dependent on him. Such a man in many way imposes a burden on society at large. The restraint of the liberty of the individual to whom the use of intoxicants is enjoyable and harmless is but a slight restriction of his freedom of action. IT IS SOMETHING HE MAY VERY WELL BE CALLED UPON TO GIVE UP TO SAVE FOR SOCIETY THOSE WHOM IT DEPRAVES AND DESTROYS.

"The drinking of liquor is a social practice and is increased or minimized in a very large degree by the opportunity and proximity of access for many who would never drink at all unless it were set under their noses by the infesting presence of saloons in their community. Where the sale of liquor is allowed. The comparative cheapness in the production of alcohol and beer, even with a heavy tax laid upon them, enables the vendors to reap a heavy profit from every retail sale." . . . . . .

. . . The political machine of saloon-keepers and liquor dealers wields, through the ubiquitous saloon, a vicious and pernicious influence upon voters.

This array of the [illegible] and vicious effects of the free manufacturers and sale of liquor upon the community can leave no doubt that the curtailment of personal freedom in effective prohibition is small compared with its benefit to society. This settles its conformity to true principles of personal liberty."

I wish to thank the "Review" for the space devoted to my remark on this subject.

CITY ALDERMEN HAVE AN OUTING

WENT FOR TRIP OVER SYSTEM IN ONE OF NEW CARS.

Manager Ferguson of the Peterborough Electric Railway issued an invitation to the Mayor and aldermen to be his guests for an afternoon trip in one of the new cars. The party met at the corner of George and Charlotte streets at 3 p.m. today from whence they proceed to go over the various branches of the system.

for useful service to our country and to the world," he went on. "Fifty million people have been taken from productive activities by the war, and it is not in the power of this or any other Parliament to remedy the conditions brought about by the world struggle. If the tariff were wiped out root and branch tomorrow would it overcome at once the world-wide shortage of the necessaries of life?

What Government Has Done.

The Government has been accused of doing nothing. It had planned for demobilization of half a million men, for their repatriation, and had provided employment for thousands of workers throughout Canada by inaugurating public works, by arranging credits amounting to one hundred and thirty million dollars so that the products of the workingmen of Canada would have their proper place on the markets of the world.

Worse in Europe.

"There was undoubtedly serious unrest in Canada, but there was far more serious unrest in Europe. The cost of living was higher in Europe than here.

"As to the eight-hour day, the Government was committed to that by provisions in the Treaty of Peace. There was also a clause giving full liberty of organization to employed as well as to employers.

Provincial Rights.

"But we cannot invade the sphere of Provincial jurisdiction because Labor troubles at the time are serious," continued the Premier. "Those are matters that are within the jurisdiction of the Provincial Legislatures and not within the jurisdiction of the Federal Parliament. Collective bargaining comes within the purview of the Provincial Assemblies."

As to the suggestion of the Opposition Leader that a tribunal for industrial disputes should be established, he would hesitate to ask his Government to take the drastic step that would rob the laboring men of the right to strike which they regarded as their magna Charta. That would cause greater unrest.

BARBERS' EARLY CLOSING BY-LAW SENT BACK TO LEGAL COMMITTEE

Confusion Arises Over Dual Time—Routine Business of Council Last Night.

The superintendent of the sales branch of the government fish department wrote council acknowledging receipt of the municipality's selection of local men to handle government fish. But some of the Aldermen were surprised last evening on learning that the department expected the city to guarantee all accounts entered into by these dealers. This seems to be the usual proceeding however, and the matter went to the Legal Committee for enquiry.

Early Closing Bylaw

The barbers had a petition before Council signed by all local men but three or four asking the repeal of their early closing by-law and the amendment to enforce the closing of all barber shops between the following hours (daylight saving time): Excepting Saturdays and nights before holidays from 7 p.m. to 5 a.m., on Saturdays from 10 p.m. to 5 a.m. Monday, on night before holidays from 10 p.m. to 5 a.m.

Ald. Edgar pointed out that some objection is raised against the bylaw from the point of standard time.

City Solicitor Widdifield pointed out that unless the bylaw read daylight saving time any barber could govern himself by standard time and stay open till 8 o'clock.

The by-law went back to the Legal Committee for enquiry as to sufficiently signing of the petition, and for the solicitor's advice as to the by-law's legal enforcement owing to the confusion existing by reason of two times being observed—standard and daylight saving.

Bylaws

Ald. Phelan fathered a by-law to authorize the construction of a pavement on King street from George to Water, and north on Water, to Charlotte street. This passed its several readings.

A by-law to authorize the borrowing of $11,000 for the purchase of a school site passed its three readings.

The milk by-law was amended to read that the names of vendors shall appear conspicuously on their milk rigs.

Ald. Edgar did not think it fair that the sanitary inspector should take milk from the merchants, from which to make his tests. This is a loss to the merchants that should be assumed by the milk vendors themselves.

Dust! And More of it!

Ald. Gainey complained that merchants and residents in East city are long-suffering from dust. Hunter street has not yet been oiled, and merchants' goods are treated to dust baths continually, while residents must keep their doors and windows closed to keep out the dust fiend.

R. Reid and others petitioned that Smith street bridge be oiled. This is a popular highway for autos to and from the golf grounds and the bridge roadway lies buried beneath two or more inches of dust.

Ald. Phelan pointed out that but few streets have been oiled as yet, and as soon as oil arrives the dust nuisance will be at once abated. (Smith street bridge oiled yesterday.)

$50 For Tools

The suggestion that the city pay the horticultural society $50 for the tools they used when caring for Victoria Park went back to the property committee.

The city is now caring for this park itself, and the position is taken that the tools were really purchased by the horticultural society out of grants made them yearly by the city to care for the park. In this case the tools are the city's property.

Ald. Phelan pointed out that as the County had made yearly grants of $100 to the society toward this parks' maintenance the county would probably claim vested interests in these tools.

Worthy Concession

Mayor Duncan pointed out that Riverside Park executive asked the loan of the city's scraper and team with which to level off the loose ashes on the road entrance to the ball grounds. This request was readily granted.

Half Holiday

The city's office help will be granted the same summer half holidays as decided on by the retail merchants—probably each Thursday afternoon in June, July and August.

ALD. HAMILTON

Ald. McIntyre and Garside moved that the lowest lump sum tender be accepted—that of Ed. Conroy for $251,639.35—and that a bylaw to authorize the execution of a contract with him be passed.

Ald. McIntyre's attention was drawn to the fact that Conroy had withdrawn his lump sum tender; but he argued that as council has his marked cheque, he could be held to that tender.

City Solicitor Widdifield, however advised to the contrary.

For the information of Ald. Joseph Crowe, who earlier in the evening had been appointed to fill the seat vacated by ex-Ald. Murray, the Mayor explained that the lowest lump sum tender not withdrawn was that of the Concrete Construction Co. at $252,000.

Ald. Crowe: "Then why not give them the contract, and have done with it."

His Worship replied that for some reason or other Council was not satisfied with their security.

Ald. Phelan here contended that Mr. Conroy was entitled to the same privilege of a hearing as his bids as accorded his competitors, and moved in amendment that direction, seconded by Ald. Crowe.

Subsequently Ald. Crowe withdrew from the amendment in favor of hearing the whole question opened up for his information in committee.

On motion of Ald. Edgar and Hamilton, the bridge question was again sent to the Board of Works on a vote of 6 to 4.

Ald. McIntyre's resolution in Conroy's favor was defeated.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

Ontario State Council to Convene at Kingston This Week.

Kingston, June 3.—The sixteenth annual convention of the Ontario State Council of the Knights of Columbus began today in Kingston. The meeting took place in the clubhouse of the Kingston Council, which will also be the headquarters of the delegates while in the city. It is expected that fully 100 delegates will be in attendance from all parts of Ontario.

The officers and delegates attended a Pontifical High Mass celebrated by Archbishop Spratt, this morning, at St. Mary's Cathedral. The sermon was preached by Rev. Father Meehan. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon Mayor Newman extended a civic welcome, after which the delegates proceeded to the business of the convention.

Wednesday afternoon the Kingston members will entertain the visitors to a motor ride around the city, followed by a banquet at the Hotel.

City Owes 80 Cents

Ald. Gainey wanted a man named Middleton re-imbursed 80c which he spent a year ago for a shovel for city work by order of the Streets Commissioner. Under instruction, Middleton had applied to the engineer for this 80c but, the latter claimed that he had no authority to pay him the money.

Ald. Phelan explained that the City Engineer could not pay out monies without vouchers for same. He, (Ald. Phelan) however, would issue an order for the payment in question.

Ald. Gainey: "With a year's interest, Ald. Phelan."

TWELVE DIE FROM PTOMAINE POISON

TERRIBLE TRAGEDY FOLLOWS CIVIC BANQUET AT DAWSON CITY.

Dawson, Y.T., June 5.—The past few days witnessed the blackest period in the history of Dawson with the exception alone of the Princess Sophia disaster, which claimed many Dawson lives—as the result of death occurring from ptomaine poisoning following the dinner at the Yukon Gold Company's plant, No. A 54, below Sunker Creek, May 24, at which 2 prominent men of the north sat down in a veritable lottery of death. Twelve drew fatal tickets.

Four other men in hospital are expected to recover.

The entire camp supplies and utensils of this camp have been destroyed. The poisoning is said to be of a rare type of germ known as botilus. Samples of blood have been submitted to eminent bacteriologists of America for analysis.

Red Flag Editor Is Sentenced to Death

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Copenhagen, June 4—Herr Levine of Munich, editor of the Red Flag and a revolutionist leader in Bavaria, has been sentenced to death, after a 2-day trial, according to a despatch received here from Munich.

Paris Tied Up By General Strike

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 4—Paris walked to work this morning, no subways, tram cars or taxi buses being in operation because of the strike here. The situation is reported unchanged.

VETERANS PLAN STREET PARADE

MARCH IN WINNIPEG WITH SANCTION OF THE CITY OFFICIALS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, June 4.—Members of the Veterans' Association, who have refrained from participating in demonstrations by the strikers on the advice of their leaders, planned a parade today under the sanction of city officials. Although conciliation offers have been obtained from both sides in the metal workers controversy by the Railroad Brotherhood mediators no details have been made known.

Nearly all branches of organized labor answered the strike call in Vancouver yesterday, only street railwaymen and postal workers refusing to walk out. Conditions in Edmonton and Calgary where a general sympathetic strike failed to tie up public utilities, are reported as almost normal. At Victoria Labor organizations deferred action on a general strike in sympathy with Winnipeg workers until Thursday night. News of the settlement of the sympathetic strike at Toronto apparently had not altered the situation in Winnipeg early today.

TWO ARE KILLED IN LABOR RIOT

AUTOMOBILE PLANT IN TOLEDO TIED UP AS A RESULT.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toledo, O., June 4.—Operations at the Willys Overland Automobile Co. were at a standstill today as a result of rioting last night, in which two persons were shot to death and seventeen injured. No attempt will be made to operate the plant, which involves thirteen thousand employees, pending word from Governor Cox for troops to handle the situation. The feeling in the Polish neighborhood where the deaths occurred is running high.

TRANS-CANADA TRAIN NOW ON WAY ACROSS CONTINENT

New Service on C. P. R. Line From Montreal to Vancouver is Being Given a Trial—Will Reduce Time of Journey by Twenty-Four Hours

(Special to the Review)

Winnipeg, June 4—The new Canadian Pacific railway Transcontinental train, the Trans-Canada Limited, passed through Winnipeg at nine this morning en route to Vancouver. The new service, including a daily train each way will cut 24 hours off the regular running time from Montreal to Vancouver. The train which arrived in Winnipeg this morning left Montreal at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon and clipped a full half day from the regular run. George Ham and F. W. Fox, Canadian Railway Officials, were on the train. Mr. Ham will go to Vancouver and Mr. Fox will leave the train at Calgary. C. E. Macpherson, passenger traffic manager, went west on the train.

The new trains are made up of nine coaches. The train today carried 100 passengers to Winnipeg, thirty-five passengers got on the train at Winnipeg en route to points west. The train is due in Vancouver Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. The cutting off of 24 hours from the trip from Montreal to Vancouver is accomplished through making fewer stops and running at a faster speed. Nearly six million dollars worth of equipment is being used in the new service. Added to this is the wages for the train crews and the army of men connected with operating the train used in the new service on the three thousand mile run. The new service requires 12 train crews. Fifteen fully equipped dining cars are required, they are valued at $750,000. The 12 observation cars are valued at $480,000. In addition there are five compartment cars, 12 baggage cars and 24 locomotives.

While the new train service will be largely used by tourist traffic it will be of special value to business men to make trips between Montreal and Vancouver, it will be particularly valuable to Winnipeg business men who will save a full day in making trips to either Vancouver or Montreal.

Arrives at Moose Jaw

Moose Jaw, Sask., June 4th.—Sharply on time the new Canadian Pacific Railway transcontinental train, the Trans-Canada, arrived here last night at 8.25 en route to Vancouver. There were 135 passengers aboard and on its arrival a number of others entrained here. George Ham and F. W. Fox, C. P. R. Officials were on board, the former going through to the coast whilst the latter will leave at Calgary en route for England. A considerable number of citizens greeted the arrival of the new train in which much interest was evinced.

WHERE TO VOTE TOMORROW FOR NEW INDUSTRY FOR THIS CITY

All Entitled to Vote For Aldermen Can Vote on the Stickney Motors Limited By-Law—Vote For a Good Thing!

Peterborough electorate are asked to vote tomorow on a bylaw to aid the establishment here, of the Stickney Motors, Limited, a new Canadian firm incorporated under Dominion charter.

Who Can Vote

Attention is drawn to the fact that the voters' list of January this year is to be used at the polls, and all entitled by that list to vote for Aldermen are qualified to vote on this by-law.

The Proposition

The city proposes to grant this big industry a fixed assessment at $10,000 for 10 years, a very moderate concession to secure an industry, the bulk of whose hands will be high-paid skilled mechanics, and whose products are assured of an ever-growing market. The company will take over the big factory buildings lately operated by the Renfrew manufacturing Co., and they guarantee to employ a yearly average of 50 hands.

The Stickney Motors Limited will manufacture motor trucks, gasoline engines, tractors and other such like machines, and their rapid expansion can be taken as a sure thing.

The Vote Needed

To carry the bylaw and assure the location here of this desirable industry the measure must secure at the polls in its favor three fifths (3-5) of the actual vote polled, and in the interests of the city as a whole, citizens should see to it tomorrow that this bylaw is not defeated.

VETERANS FAIL TO REACH TERMS ON BIG STRIKE

TROUBLE BREWING BETWEEN FACTIONS IN THE BRANCH ASSOCIATION.

TROUBLE TODAY IS PROBABLE

CANADIAN FLAGS ARE TORN FROM FLAGS OF RETURNED MEN.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, June 4.—The possibility of trouble between the returned soldier factions over the question of approving the general strike became apparent today after the majority faction, which has condemned the recent boisterous parades in which some returned soldiers participated, arranged for a parade. The leaders of the minority faction declared they also would march in a separate demonstration.

The executive of the Great War Veterans' Association declined to recognize the action of about seven hundred members who passed resolutions last night approving the sympathetic strike of the Winnipeg unions. It was pointed out that there are about ten thousand members of the Winnipeg association, and that an overwhelming majority of the members declined to attend the gathering.

A number of returned soldiers were seen on the streets this morning wearing Canadian flags on their coats. Strike sympathizers who figured in the recent parades, objected to the wearing of the Dominion emblem and forcibly tore the flags from the coats of several men.

Police Force Increased.

Fifty additional policemen were sworn in, equipped and placed on active duty today by the city police commission. All formerly served on the force. Union engineers in Winnipeg bakeries and creameries were called out this morning by the Central Strike Committee, and most of the men obeyed the order. Some of the men driving milk and bread wagons also quit work.

James A. Duncan, secretary of the Trades and Labor Council of Seattle, Wash., arrived in Winnipeg this morning and will address a meeting of strikers at Victoria Park this afternoon.

FRIEND OF DOGS MAKES HIS PLEA

OBJECTS TO HAVING CANINES SLAUGHTERED BY DOG CATCHER GATES.

The following open letter has been addressed to City Clerk Armstrong:

Dear Sir.

Would you kindly furnish through the columns of the press, the following information regarding the conditions under which Jimmy Gates is, or is about to start out to capture dogs?

I realize that about two years ago, more or less a by-law was passed by the city council prohibiting dogs to run at large and that Gates was appointed official dog catcher. I have no doubt about him being the man, for I saw him shoot a lovely big collie dog within a few feet of me on the street. The dog in question was lying harmlessly in the sun. However, we all realise that the bylaw prohibiting the dogs running at large is still in force, and furthermore, we realise that during the past eight or ten months it has neither been observed nor has there been any effort put forth to enforce it.

Therefore, is there any reason at the present time why the official dog catcher should again start out on his destructive rampage? Am I right in assuming that all that stands between the dogs of Peterborough and destruction is a question of whether Gates has some other job that is more remunerative or not? Or does the matter of a dog's life or death really rest in the hands of Gates?

If such is the case our City Council must certainly be giving the question serious thought. If there is no reason why dogs should not have the freedom in Peterborough as in other cities and towns, why not rescind the by-law and let the people know where they are at.

The above information will be very much appreciated by.

LOCAL VETERANS WILL NOT ACT AS STRIKEBREAKERS

Turn Down Request of Port Arthur Branch to Co-operate in This Matter—Men Who Failed to Reach Front Eligible For Membership

At the regular meeting of the G. W. V. A. last night a letter was read from the branch at Port Arthur, asking that the Peterborough branch follow their example in standing behind such men as were employed "to take the place of strikers." On motion of Comrade Williams seconded by Comrade Miller it was decided to not adopt the policy of the Port Arthur branch, it being felt that the local workers should be supported in their demands and strikebreaking should be discouraged.

Comrade Miller wanted to know why no representative of the G. W. V. A. attended the demonstration by the Labor Unions at the City Hall on Monday evening and was informed by the secretary that it was the intention of the executive to appoint a representative but there was no quorum when they were called together and nothing could be done officially. Secretary Whatley stated that it was his intention to be present unofficially but he was prevented from attending at the last moment.

No action will be taken at present with regard to keeping ex-soldiers who failed to reach the firing line out of the G. W. V. A. A letter was read from the Lindsay branch of the G. W. V. A. protesting against the remarks of a Peterborough magistrate concerning the significance of the military button. As some members expressed doubt regarding the legality of the fine that is printed on the back of the button it was decided to obtain the opinion of a lawyer.

The election of delegates to the Dominion Convention at Vancouver was postponed owing to the fact that this convention will not be held until later this year. The Association registered their thanks to Warne Bros. for their gift of a clock and to P. Connal & Son for a set of books.

CLAUDE GRAY HAD LEFT LEG BADLY BROKEN BY STREET CAR

Was Riding on Bonner-Worth Auto Truck When it Collided With Street Car on McDonnel Street Last Evening.

About 6.15 p.m. yesterday evening as a street car, proceeding east on McDonnel Street, in charge of motorman Keating, 3 McGill street and Conductor Fairburn, 59 McDonnel street came near the Bonner-Worth factory one of the firm's auto trucks driven by Angus Murray, 500 Park Street, come out of the west side of the factory and went on the left hand side of the street, as it was impossible to proceed along the proper side. Angus Murray was driving the auto and Claude Gray, a boy of about 14 years, was riding on the left hand running board. Gray was thrown to the ground by the force of the collision when the street car struck the auto, the rear wheel of the truck passing over his leg and breaking it near the thigh. Dr. Harvey was called and the boy was conveyed to the Nicholls Hospital. According to Dr. Harvey's statement the bone was pushed right through the flesh at the time of the accident, making an ugly would. He was also badly bruised about the body.

John Thirnbeck, 525 McDonnel street was standing outside of his house near the scene of the accident and says that he heard the motorman ring his gong. The fender of the street car was badly smashed and the brake were set so tight that they had to be pried off the rails with crowbars. The only passenger on the car at the time was Mr. Moshier.

Owing to the condition of the road near the Bonner-Worth factory, an Cambridge street it was impossible for the auto to go along the proper side, but if the auto had turned to its proper side at the corner of instead of waiting until it got half way down the block there would have been no accident.

P. C. Lawrence arrived on the scene shortly after the acident occurred.

ANOTHER FINE OF $500 IS IMPOSED

NEW PHASE OF THE KENDRY LIQUOR CASE UP IN COURT

Another charge of having liquor in a place other than his private residence was laid against a local young man in the police court this morning. License Inspector Stewart stated that information regarding the shipment had been furnished to him by Cecil Wodd and that in company with him he visited several garages and Sullivan's shop.

Gerald Dunford swore that on April 3 he was engaged to go to Kendry where he met the defendant and together they put four boxes on a truck and along with him they took them to the residence of Mr. Carroll, about a mile out of the city. The defendant told him that the consignment was liquor.

Cecil Wood a young farmer, from Springville, identified G. Dunford as one of the two men in question but was not positive wiht regard to the defendant.

No defence was put in but the technical point was raised that the summons was issued more than a month after the information was laid. The objection was overruled and the defendant was fined $500 and costs or six months in jail.

Mr. Burnham Acquitted

The case against Mr. Burnham, charged with violation of the traffic law in passing a standing street car, was dismissed but no costs were allowed. The evidence submitted by Mrs. Burnham was that Mr. W. H. Pretty, the complainant, was standing out on the road before the street car had come to a stop, and that in order to avoid running him down they had to make a sharp turn. The evidence of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Price and Motorman Dwart was along the same line.

MEN IN TORONTO GO BACK TO WORK

ONLY THE METAL WORKERS WILL REMAIN OUT ON STRIKE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, June 4.—Many of the workers who walked out on strike last Friday in sympathy with the men of the Metal Trades, went back to their daily toil today. The Marine Federation and shipbuilding men have notified their employers that they will return to work tomorrow under the old conditions pending further negotiation into their local grievances. This morning the carpenters are discussing things with their employers, and it is expected that an agreement will be reached shortly, and they will go back. The metal manufacturers, in a statement to Mayor Church this morning, said that they would not negotiate further with their men, until they returned to work under the old agreement.

By tomorrow it is expected that the only strikers on the street will be the Metal Trades workers, who have been out for some weeks.

INJURED BY FALL FROM STREET CAR

HENRY RICKEY ATTEMPTED TO LEAVE A MOVING CAR BACKWARDS.

Mr. Henry Rickey, 748 George street sustained serious injuries to his head when alighting from a street car at the corner of Hunter and George streets this morning about 6.30 a.m. Mr. Rickey, who works in the Quaker Oats Company, stepped off backwards, according to eyewitnesses before the car had come to a stop, with the result that the momentum of the car threw him to the pavement. He was immediately rushed to his home where he was attended to by Dr. P. P. McNulty.

CHEESE SOLD AT 30 1-4 CTS. TODAY

1027 OFFERED AT PETERBORO BOARD — GILLESPIE AND THOMPSON THE ONLY BUYERS.

Ten hundred and twenty-seven cheese were boarded at the Peterborough Cheese Board this morning and were bid in at 30 1-4c.

There were but two buyers present, Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie for the Peterborough Milk Products Limited and Mr. T. H. Thompson for Ayer & Co., Montreal.

Thompson started the bidding at 29c for the whole board, followed by Gillespie with 29 1-4c the whole board. The two buyers then ran their bids up as follows:—Thompson, $29 5-16c; Gillespie with 29 1-4c the whole board. "FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 4, 1919

SUPPORT THE BYLAW.

THE STICKNEY MOTORS, Ltd., has already installed over $25,000 worth of up-to-date machinery in their plant, the old Cordage Company building. When the firm begins operations it will give employment to at least fifty men, and most of these will be highly paid craftsmen, and such men are usually the heads of families. The firm will take up a line of industry entirely new in this district so that it will not be in competition with any firm already established in the city. In this case there will be no overlapping of effort.

The firm asks the city, not for a free site, plant, or for a cash bonus, but makes the request for a fixed assessment of $10,000 for ten years, which will yield a civic revenue at least double that which would be derived from the same building if the place were left vacant. The condition is reasonable.

There is little probability of the ratepayers turning down this opportunity to secure a new industry, whose products will go to all parts of Canada and to Europe, which will carry the name of Peterborough to every corner of the civilized world. The tractors which the company propose to build will find a ready market in the war-wasted countries on the other side of the Atlantic.

The bylaw which provides for the granting of the request of the new firm for a fixed assessment will be submitted to the ratepayers tomorrow (Thursday), and it is certainly worthy the hearty support of all classes qualified to vote, involving as it does an important addition to the city's industrial life. It will widen the market for labor and bring new wealth to the city, wealth in which the city as a whole will share, workingmen included. In order to carry, the bylaw must have the support of at least hree-fifths of those who vote. Let there be a record turnout of the ratepayers to the polls tomorrow.

PETERBOROUGH'S REPUTATION.

ALD. PHELAN is very properly jealous for the reputation of the city. At the Council meeting the other night he demanded, with whole-hearted indignation that was creditable to his devoted loyalty to the place of his natitity, by what authority a man came here from Toronto recently and, after investigating the plumbing in a number of residences, published a report which gave Peterborough a black eye.

If the city's optic is off color, the disfigurement was caused not by the investigator from Toronto, but the responsibility belongs to the civic body in which Ald. Phelan holds so distinguished a place. The doctor who makes a diagnosis cannot be blamed for the disease for which he prescribes a remedy.

The matter which has touched the civic pride of Ald. Phelan is to be investigated by calling in the services of another expert. If it is found that the Toronto man was right, the citizens will know where to place the blame. Two years ago there was some agitation of this very question, and one of the best of the many good works undertaken by ex-Mayor Duffus was his efforts to have the supervision of the plumbing industry turned over to the Board of Health, and which effort, like so many attempted reforms, was frustrated by aldermanic opposition

Before the last municpal election an appeal was made for new blood in the City Council, one of the arguments used being the fact that important matters were to be disposed of by this year's Board, including the building of the Hunter street bridge and the sewage disposal plant. All but three members of last year's Council were defeated, but he new Board has been a disappointment The year is already all but half gone, and now in what position does the city find itself? Perhaps both civic eys have been discolored by rough aldermanic treatment instead of the one that Ald. Phelan notes.

Taxpayers complain that property held for rent does not yield them a return of three per cent. Householders allege that they cannot afford to live in other than rented homes, and the apartment houses are taxed to capacity. The tax rate this year is no lower than it was in 1918, except for the natural reduction by the removal of the levy for the Patriotic Fund and other war objects.

The city has just emerged from an expensive lawsuit that went against it, a case left as a legacy by the Council of last year, but the hold-over members are in a measure responsible.

The contract for the Hunter street bridge has not yet been let, and nothing has been done with regard to the sewage disposal plant. Suits for damages are threatened in each case. The city has agreed with the Quaker Oats Company to make all reasonable effort to complete the bridge, at least start work upon it, this year. The Quaker Oats Company has 16,000 yearly reasons for believing that the city, when its own financial interests are involved, insists upon the letter of every agreement in its integrity.

The contiguous townships threaten the city with a suit for damages because no move has been made in the direction of building a sewage disposal plant.

The official sent here by the Underwriters' Association to inspect the fire brigade sent in a report which caused the Association to increase the mercontile insurance rates in this city by ten per cent. Another outsider, despite the gallant defence of Ald. Phelan and his colleagues, gave the city a black eye.

Charge the aldermen with unwarranted delay in building the bridge or the sewage disposal plant, and five of the present members of the Council, backed up by the Mayor, will plead the same excuse—they can do nothing on account of the high wages demanded by the workingmen.

Everything is high these days. Every class of material to be used in the bridge or in the sewage disposal plant, has reached an abnormal figure. They make no attempt to secure a reduction in the cost of cement, lumber, steel or machinery, but in the workingmen's wages alone. No man among the six has offered any suggestion looking toward a war on manufacturers' combine. But show them a labor union and they at once begin to look around for an axe.

MRS. M'CLUNG'S MESSAGE.

AN ESTEEMED READER, esteemed despite the constitutional grouch which affects him, protests against the suggestion of Mrs. McClung, made in an address here recently, in favor of community kitchens, so that women, even though married, may pursue a career instead of turning cooks. The reader in question says: "If Mrs. McClung is discouraging the women from cooking or undertaking other household duties, then all hope for a happy home is gone."

Our friend has the situation reversed. Mrs. McClung's plan, if implementd, would promote instead of destroy domestic felicity by relieving so many women of uncongenial occupations. The only truly happy man is the one who has found the work for which Nature designed him, and in this regard women are no different. There is no contentment for the man doomed by force of circumstances to perform manual labor if he has professional ambitions.

A large percentage of women would prefer a career to slaving in a hot kitchen, vainly striving to prepare dishes to please the fastidious taste of the male members of her family. There is little of communion of spirit in such a household. At least half of the present day domestic brawls originate in the kitchen.

Not every woman would choose a career rather than household duties, but woman should be allowed the same latitude in the selection of an occupation as that accorded man.

PEACE HAS ITS HEROES.

"PEACE HAS ITS HEROES no less than war," and Peterborough has its representatives in both classes. Perhaps, after all, the one who saves life performs a higher mission than he who slays a score of mortals, especialy if he risks his own life in the task.

Don Fitzgerald, a student of the Collegiate Institute, brought more honor to that institution when he saved the life of a young girl at Inverlea Park bathing beach, than if he had passed a departmental examination at the head of the list of competitors. He is the stuff of which military heroes are made. The parents and friends of such a youth need have no misgivings as to his future. Such boys are sure to grow up into men who never fail either in business or in moral duty.

Don. Fitzgerald will be awarded a life-saving medal by the Royal Humane Society as a recognition of his gallant act when the circumstance is called to the attention of the secretary. Only a year ago The Review was instrumental in securing such a reward for a local citizen who performed an act of equal daring. But Don. Fitzgerald is probably eligible for a more substantial reward when the Carnegie Hero Commission hear of his gallantry, as they will. One of the most pleasing features of the affair is the fact that as soon as the little girl regained consciousness she asked to see her rescuer.

There must be something amiss with the arrangements at any bathing beach where such an accident is possible. Official investigation seems called for here.

THE MARKETS IN LATIN AMERICA

Do you know that

You could put the entire United States into Brazil and still have 166,000 square miles to spare.

Buenos Aires, with 1,700,000 inhabitants, is the third largest city on the American continent, being surpassed by only New York and Chicago.

In January, 1919, $39,000,000 worth of U. S. goods went to Brazil, Argentina, Uruguay and Paraguay, an increase of 190 per cent. over January, 1918.

Edward N. Hurley says: "An increased demand for U. S. merchandise of every kind for export to South America is being felt."

When it is winter in the United States it is summer in Argentina, which suggests a possible solution for the problem of seasonal manufacturing in the United States.

Brazil has ten cities with over one hundred thousand population, including one, Rio de Janeiro, over 1,500,000, and Sao Paulo, over 500,000.

In Argentina 75 per cent. of the women use face creams, powders and other toilet articles. They prefer expensive imported articles.

In Buenos Aires alone there are over five hundred drug stores selling high grade toilet goods. In addition there are over six hundred perfume shops, beauty parlors, barber shops and department stores handling these products.

Already 1,479 North American manufacturers have agents or representatives in Buenos Aires. There are 2,768 European manufacturers represented there.

U. S. SENATE AND THE TREATY

(Ex-President Taft in the Chicago News)

Critics have said that the president has ignored the constitutional function of the senate in his attitude toward the peace treaty and its making. On the other hand, individual senators have made suggestions which ignore the limitation upon the senatorial function in treaty-making

The president is the only organ of government through which our relations with foreign governments can be initiated or changed in the first instance. No one can constitutionally communicate for the United States with another country except through the president. He is our spokesman. Only he can make an armistice, only he can sign protocol of peace, only he can initiate a treaty, only he can communicate its confirmation by the senate to the nations with which it is made and only he can proclaim it. Until he does proclaim it, it is not a treaty of the United States.

The function of the Senate in treaty making is to consider the treaty as negotiated by the president and advise and consent to it or reject it The Senate may advise and consent to it conditionally, that is, it may advise and consent to the treaty if it have certain amendments. It is then within the functions of the president to institute new negotiations with a view to making a treaty with the amendments in it, and this, by virtue of the previous action of the senate would become a treaty binding upon the United States, if the other countries accepted it as thus amended.

In other words, should the senate attempt to dissect out of this treaty the covenant of the league of nations and substitute new provisions, then peace would be postponed until the numerous signatories of the treaty and Germany which is to be the last signatory, consented to the amendments proposed by the senate and submitted to them by the president This would necessitate postponement of the coming peace.

It is said that the senate may by resolution declare a state of peace and then proceed at leisure to consider the treaty. A resolution of the senate declaring peace would have no more legal effect on the peace than the editorial of the newspaper suggesting it, unless the president himself were to initiate some change in the relations established by the armistice with Germany. In other words, no such "protocal" as the proposers term it, would have any effect except after action of the president and acceptance by the Germans.

It is reasonable to suppose that the president would answer to such a resolution by the senate that he had, after full conference with the allies and Germany, obtained their agreement to a form of treaty which he had submitted for the highest public interest required that the senate take action upon the treaty as submitted after due deliberation, and would merely delay and confuse the coming of final peace. There would thus seem to be no course for the senate but to deal with the treaty as presented to it by the president. It may accept part of it and when it has done so, then the rest must go back to the thirty-two signatories and to Germany for acquiescence in that rejection and in the substitute for the parts rejected, of amendments necessary to make the treaty a workable instrument. The responsibility for such indefinite postponement must fall upon the senate, and, it cannot be escaped by suggestions of a protocol or a temporary peace which the senate itself cannot initiate or establish.

The foregoing presents no reason why if the treaty is objectionable and exposes the country to unwise danger and risk the senate should not reject or amend it. But the fact that substantial amendments must indefinitely postpone peace will lead to a closer scrutiny of objections to the league of nations covenant.

NORWOOD

(Special Correspondence.)

Norwood, June 4.—Friday evening of last week was a night long to be remembered among the Odd Fellows of this district.

Norwood lodge has been securing several new members and it was decided to enlist some outside assistance in conferring degrees on the new candidates and an invitation was sent to the Peterboro lodges who have always showed great willingness to assist in promoting Odd Fellowship throughout the district.

The lodges of Peterboro sent down degree teams with full paraphernalia for the first, second and third regrees. The hundred or more Odd Fellows who were present were more than pleased with the splendid work of the Peterboro brethren.

In addition to the several car loads from Peterboro, Millbrook lodge was represented by about twenty members who brought down four or five candidates for the degrees. Royal Lodge, Havelock, sent over two car loads.

After the conferring of the degrees Bro. E. J. Laing, of Havelock lodge, was presented with a Veteran's Jewel by the members of his lodge, he having been a member for twenty-five years.

The proceedings were followed by a supper served in the lodge room, after which all who attended went home feeling glad they are among the fraternity recognized by the three links which stand for friendship, love and truth.

Lieut. R. J. Stewart, of Toronto, and a former citizen of Norwood, made the gift this week of a cottage and grounds at Stoney Lake to the four Protestant churchs of this village for the use of their pastors as a plce to spend their summer holidays. The property is to be maintained jointly by the several congregations.

A public reception for returned soldiers was held in the town hall, Norwood, on Friday evening last. Following the reception a social time was spent and refreshments served. The Norwood band was in attendance. The folowing returned men were present: Lieut. Webb, Earl Cummings, Geo. Martin, G. Waker, C. Watson, G. Puffer, D. Starke, W. J. Stares, A. Willman, H. McMaster, P. McNeeley, P. Killingbeck, Jas. Baskin, Wes. Stephenson, L. Norris, G. Degby.

Miss May Reynolds, Toronto, is spending a short time with her mother, Mrs. A. Reynolds.

Mr. J. L. Squire received a cable from his daughter, Nursing Sister Lieut. Gertrude L. Squire, R.R.C., stating that she had sailed on the steamship Megantic which is bringing over a large number of wounded Canadian soldiers. It is expected the steamer docked May 31st.

Corp. W. J. Stares is home from overseas and has been the guest of Sergt.-Major and Mrs. Garlich. Corp. Stares enlisted in Norwood, October, 1914, and was a member of the 21st Battalion.

Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. R. J. Stewart, of Toronto, spent a few days in town, the guest of the latter's brother, Mr. Ira Cummings.

Rev. N. H. and Mrs. Adams, 396 Don Mills, Toronto, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Edna Mary Ridley, to the Rev. Watson Alfred Westcott, B.A., of Queensville, youngest son of Mr. John L. Westcoot, Beaverton, the marriage to take place early in June.

Arrangements are being made to hold the usual weekly half holiday on Wednesday in Norwood during June, July and August.

Congratulations are due R. Percival English, who has successfully passed his final examinations at the Ontario College of Pharmacy, Toronto. Percy was among the number who secured honor standing and in addition took the pharmacy medal. He is a son of Mrs. F. C. English, Peterboro street.

Rev. N. H. Noble is able to return home from the hospital and Rev. W. A. Peppin, of Weston, will supply for him until he has fully recovered from his operation.

The members of the Norwood lacrosse team are planning to hold a social evening in the armories on Tuesday evening, June 3rd, and have issued 200 invitations. The patrons and patronesses are Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Cuffe, Mr. and Mrs. Sutcliffe, Mr. and Mrs. McRae, Mr. and Mrs. Robb, Mr. and Mrs. Hawkens, and the stewards are Messrs. A. L. Laing, A. M. Weir, H. A. Knox, A. N. Weir, B. A. Rogers

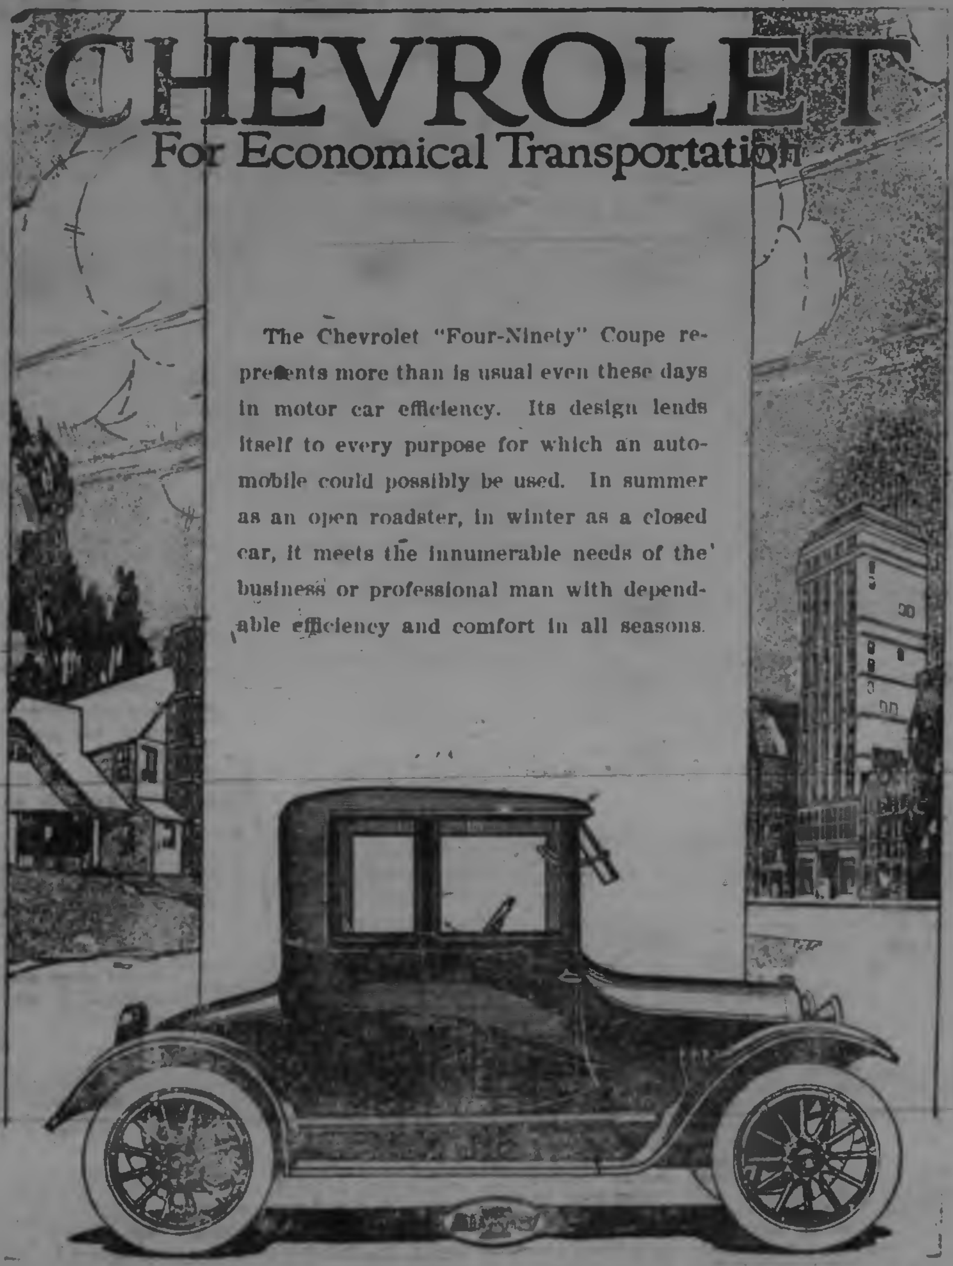
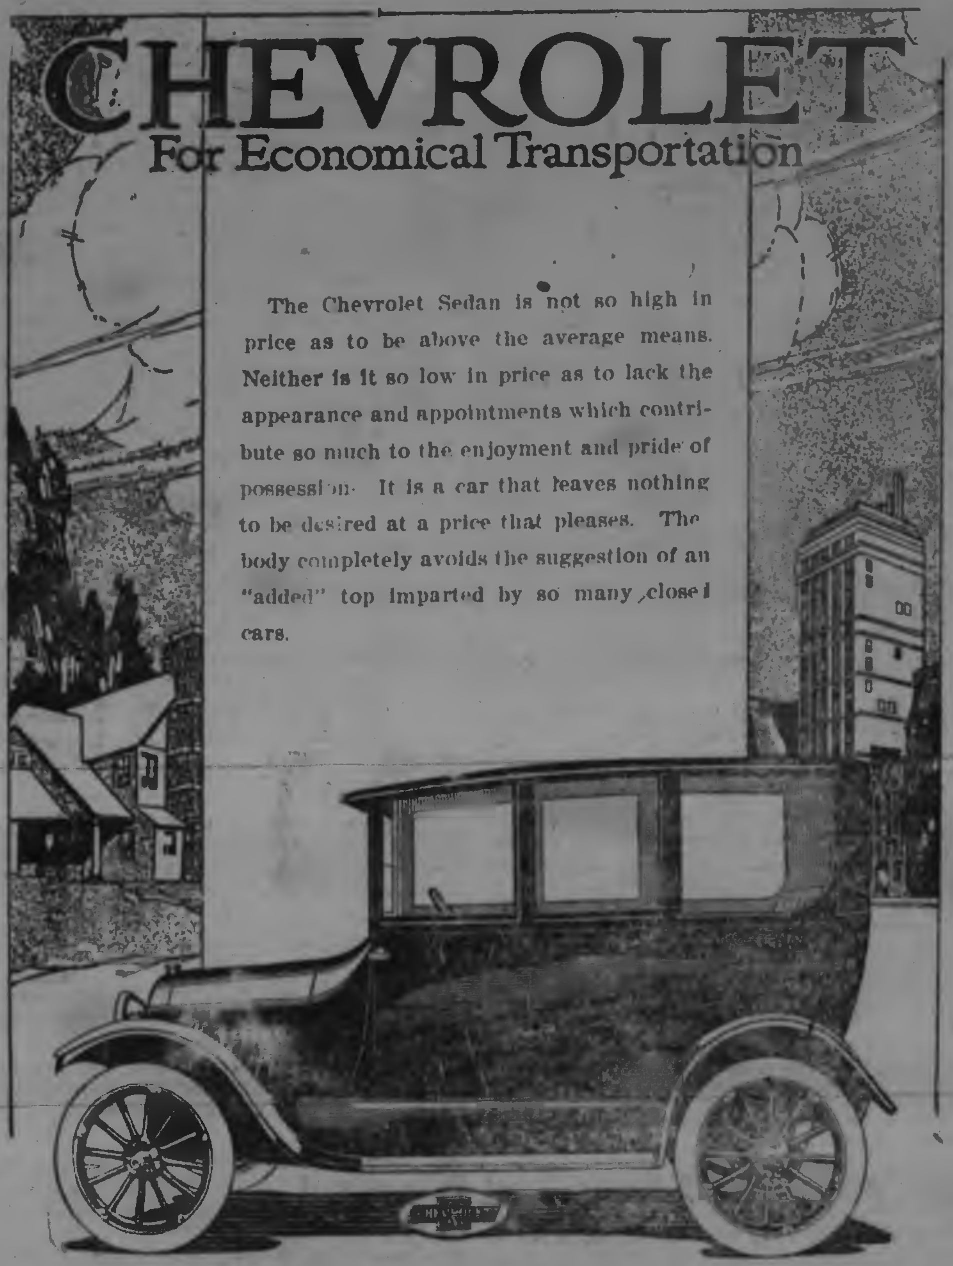
CHEVROLET

Important Annoucement To Motor Car Buyers



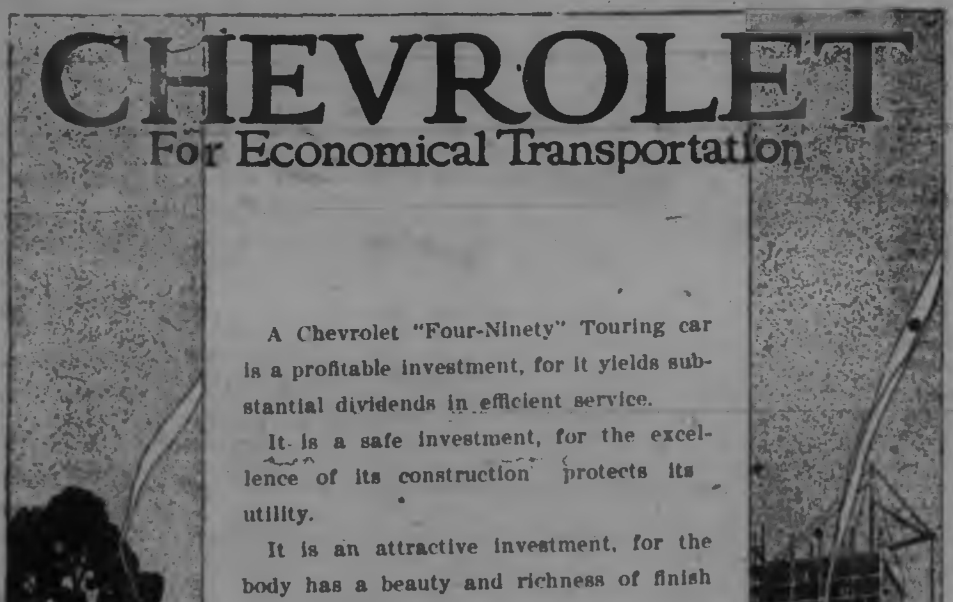
CHEVROLET
For Economical Transportation

The Chevrolet "Four-Ninety" Coupe represents more than is usual even these days in motor car efficiency. Its design lends itself to every purpose for which an automobile could possibly be used. In summer as an open roadster, in winter as a closed car, it meets the innumerable needs of the business or professional man with dependable efficiency and comfort in all seasons.



CHEVROLET
For Economical Transportation

The Chevrolet Sedan is not so high in price as to be above the average means. Neither is it so low in price as to lack the appearance and appointments which contribute so much to the enjoyment and pride of possession. It is a car that leaves nothing to be desired at a price that pleases. The body completely avoids the suggestion of an "added" top imparted by so many closed cars.



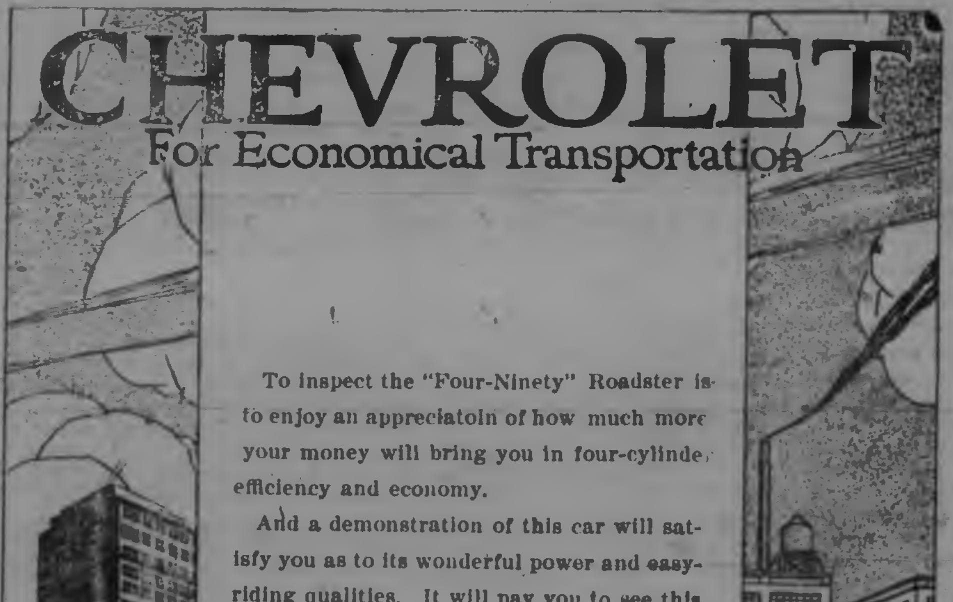
CHEVROLET
For Economical Transportation

A Chevrolet "Four-Ninety" Touring car is a profitable investment, for it yields substantial dividends in efficient service.

It is a safe investment, for the excellence of its construction protects its utility.

It is an attractive investment, for the body has a beauty and richness of finish quite unusual with cars of its price.

It is an economical investment, for its first cost is modest and its upkeep low.



CHEVROLET
For Economical Transportation

To inspect the "Four-Ninety" Roadster is to enjoy an appreciatoin of how much more your money will bring you in four-cylinder efficiency and economy.

And a demonstration of this car will satisfy you as to its wonderful power and easy-riding qualities. It will pay you to see this model and to know it better.

SENATOR SPONSORS PLAN TO RETIRE THE U. S. DEBT

Amortization Scheme That Would Pay All Obligation in 44, 32 or 24 Years.

Washington, June 4.—Senator Reed Smoot, (Rep., Utah), one of the Congressional financial experts, has put out a program to check money inflation by paying off the Government debt by an annual appropr ation, continued over a period of years.

"There are just two methods by which the world can meet the condition it faces," said Senator Smoot. "Either the nations must look the facts squarely in the face, recognize that they cannot carry the burden, and repudiate their domestic debts, or else they must impose a special levy on wealth that will nearly reach the point of confiscation. The world cannot live on its present plane always, and it will not.

"In speaking of repudiation I confine it to domestic holdings of their obligations, for I believe that no nation would be willing to repudiate debts owing to the nationals of other states; that would break down the whole fabric of national credit. The levy on wealth, of which I speak as an alternative, is under serious discussion in the countries of Europe.

"To meet the situation in this country and make our process of deflation keep step with that of countries which may be forced to adopt one or other of these expedients I am working out a plan of amortizing our debts through a sinking fund. A few evenings ago I met with a group of important business and financial men to discuss different plans for administering such a fund.

"A sinking fund designed on a basis of 2½ per cent. annually would produce $750,000,000 each year, and return that amount of the debt. That is, it is proposed to keep up the interest, and in addition raise from revenues enough to return each year 2½ per cent. of the present face value of the debt. I assume for the purposes of this calculation that the aggregate debt is $30,000,000,000. It will be found to reach just about that figure when all items are before us.

"A 2½ per cent. annual sinking fund payment would pay off the debt in a little under 24 years; just about 23 years nine months. It would be made absolutely mandatory to invest this fund in retiring the Government's securities; it would not be permitted to be invested in any other way.

"On the same basis, a sinking fund of 1 per cent. annually would raise $300,000,000 a year with which to return the debt, and would extinguish the whole in 44 years.

"A fund at 1½ per cent. would raise $450,000,000 annually, and in a little less than 32 years would wipe out the debt. This, of course, all assumes that there would be no increases in our obligations meanwhile.

"In discussing such a program, my conferences have developed that opinion falls into two general classes. One believes that 2½ per cent. is too high a rate to be borne without serious interference with business. The other thinks that 1 per cent. annually is too low; and the two seem disposed to meet on the compromise at 1½ per cent., which seems likely to be the feasible basis."

Turning to the measures under which such a sinking fund woud be administered, the Senator said he would propose to appropriate by a permanent law, for the period of amortization decided upon, the amount required under the plan. Thus Congress in the beginning would discuss and weigh all the factors and decide whether the policy should be to amorize on the 1 per cent., 44 year basis, on the 1½ per cent., 32 year basis, or on the 2½ per cent., 24 year basis. Having decided which plan it preferred, it would adopt that plan in its legislation and pass a continuing appropriation act setting aside the amount required and directing how it should be used in taking up each year that amount of the Government securities.

ALDERMEN ENJOY TRIP ON NEW ONE-MAN STREET CAR

Taken Over the System Yesterday as Guests of Manager Ferguson—Improvement in Service Takes Effect Next Monday.

It was a merry bunch of twelve that spent part of the King's Birthday in riding over the local electric car lines. Manager Ferguson had invited as his guests the Mayor and Aldermen of the city and one of the new one-man cars was utilized as a special for the occasion. Mayor Duncan, Aldermen Edgar, McIntyre Taylor, Morrison, Gainey and Crowe, Mr. McIntyre, the Toronto electrical expert; Manager Ferguson, two press representatives and the motorman made up the even dozen.

At 3.07 p.m., the car, in charge of Motorman, Mr. Robert H. Guthrie, who had taken Peterborough's citizens up and down the lines in safety for the past nine years, left the corner of Charlotte street and proceeded north on George street. Several experiments were made to find out what would happen in case of an acident if the car was running at full speed. Each time the car came to a stop within its own length the moment the motorman lifted his hand off the controller.

The car then proceeded along the C. G. E. line, the numerous turns in the Hydro-Electric Company should straighten the line out by running it past the De Laval plant. Next they were taken over the new line on the Monaghan Road going as far south as Patterson street. By the time they returned to the corner of Charlotte and George Streets, it was 4.23 p.m. and Manager Ferguson concluded his duty as host in a most agreeable manner to all parties concerned by pledging the health of His Majesty King George V., in Peterborough's best and coolest.

Monday next the citizens of Peterborough will have an improvement in the car service as the Charlotte street cars comence to run up George Street as far as Hunter St., This will not only enable the residents along Charlotte street to ride to the centre of the city without changes but will cut down the changes for patrons on the Jackson Park line from two to one.

ENGLAND'S "SHOP STEWARDS"

Movement Has Become a Very Important Part of Labor Situation.

The shop stewards' movement in England has became a very important part of the labor situation there. Before the war the shop stewards were the official representatives of the unions in the worshops, but they were quite minor delegates, whose business was practically confined to seeing that new employes were members of the unions and that the old members kept their contributions up to date. During the war, however, their functions have grown tremendously and there has, also, grown up an organisation of unofficial shop stewards, who exercise vastly greater powers than the official delegates.

By an agreement of the unions with the Ministry of Munitions there were to be no strikes during the war. Hence, the calling of strikes devolved upon the unofficial shop stewards. This was the beginning of their power. They then extended it by forming committees of shop stewards in various factories and from this progressed to forming workers' committees, the shop stewards being the committee members, covering an entire locality. These committees are now frequently recognised by the employers in individual factories, and negotiations are in progress for their general recognition on a national basis. The originators of the movement hope thus to organize a new trade union system in England, with the workshop as the basis for industrial action. A labor correspondent of the London Times says of the movement:

"In the minds of most of the advanced element in the shop stewards' movement the right basis for industrial action is a workshop basis and organization in the labor movement should, in their view, be built up on an all-grades workshop basis. They seem to develop workshop organisation apart from the unions, both as a lever for bringing about amalgamation and as a means of securing control over industry.

"The unofficial shop stewards' movement, as a whole, seeks the overthrow of capitalism and the realisation of the workers' control over industry. The most active section are the industrial unionists of the Socialist Labor party, but they are only a small minority of the whole, and there are many different theoretical points of view represented in the movement, while the bulk of the adherents have hardly a definite theoretical point of view at all. Workshop organisation has come naturally as the result of wartime experience and is certain of an important permanent place in trade union machinery, but there is no likelihood that the existing unions will be overthrown, though there is every chance that there will be big amalgamations among them, and that the shop stewards and workshop organization generally will receive full recognition in the future structure of trade unionism in the engineering and shipbuilding industries."

Kaiser's Fortune Is Safe

It is said that before the Kaiser left Germany he had received from Ebert a promise that his personal property and private fortune would be scrupulously respected and given to him as soon as possible. This is one reason why the Kaiser party is supposed to be so friendly to the present German Government, for it is hardly likely that if it were succeeded by a more radical administration the Kaiser would be so well treated. For one reason the extravagance of the present regime and the difficulty of collecting taxes would be a serious handicap to its successor, and since a more radical Government than that of Ebert would find it almost impossible to borrow money abroad it would be forced to turn its attention to the great private fortunes in Germany and especially to the vast possessions of the Hohenzollerns. In the past few months much of the Kaiser's money has been transferred to Dutch banks, but we learn, on the authority of Frederick Cunliffe Owed, that his principal banking account is with the Coutts' in London.

Why it has not been seized is not explained. It may be that the ownership of the money is concealed, and one can readily understand why monarchs in these days would prefer to bank in England than in their own countries. William of Germany has only followed the custom of his mother and also his father, both of whom kept their private account with Coutts. King Alfonso of Spain is another client of this famous private bank. His mother is also on their books, and on one occasion when she was regent, a private messenger returning to Madrid after having made a large deposit in London was captured by Carlists and the documents he carried seized. They were then published with a view of showing the Spanish people that their Queen and Regent had so little confidence in the banking institutions of her own country that she entrusted her fortune to Englishmen. We are not aware that this bit of demagoguery got the Carlists anything. At any event she retained her position and did not discontinue her practice of employing the Coutts as her bankers, and her son has done likewise.

Te late Napoleon III. of France banked with the same firm and his widow, the Empress Eugenie continues to do so. Coutts are also King George's bankers. The bank has been in existence since 1692 and has a world reputation. The chief owner at present is Lord Latimer, who was formerly Francis Money Coutts, who inherited his holdings from his aunt, the late Baroness Burdett-Coutts, celebrated as a philanthropist. Her husband was William Lehman Ashmead-Bartlett, an American-born, who on his marriage with the baroness assumed the name of William Burdett-Coutts. One of the most famous of the Coutts bankers was Tom Coutts, the great-grandfather of the present Lord Latimer. On one occasion Queen Charlotte highly incensed at the radicalism of Sir Francis Burdett, the banker's son-in-law, threatened to remove her account from Coutts if the young man was not curbed. Tom Coutts replied by giving the Queen just two hours in which to remove her account, and it is said that despite her supplications, he refused to permit her again to reopen it.

But reverting to the Kaiser's fortune, it is known to be very large and is more than surpected of having been greatly augmented by the war. William Hohenzollern, it is said, was a partner with Albert Ballin in an organization formed to supply the German armies with food supplies and made millions of dollars out of his own subjects and victims. He was a large shareholder in Ballin's peace-time enterprises and in the Krupps' industries. For a time he was a member of the notorious "Princes' Trust" in Germany, but drew out before disaster overwhelmed it. He was also an investor in foreign securities, and is supposed to have been a particularly large holder of Pennsylvania and New York Railway and Steel Trust stocks. His land holdings in Western Canada are also believed to have been extensive, but apparently he was able either to sell out his foreign investments or to so cleverly conceal them that he suffered no loss on this account in the war.

The one monarch in Europe who costs the country nothing to maintain is King George of England. When Queen Victoria came to the throne the value of crown property, or rather the revenues from it, which was, in fact, the revenue from the possessions of former Kings that she had inherited, just about equalled the civil list voted to her and her family by Parliament. Therefore she deeded it to the nation for the term of her life in return for the civil list. King Edward followed the same practice and King George likewise. In the meantime it has happened that the crown properties have greatly increased in value, while the civil list has remained almost stationary, so that the nation really makes money out of its royal family. The King's private fortune is considerable, and is derived from the frugality and wise investments of the Prince Consort and Queen Victoria. It may be shocking to some readers to inform them that a good part of it comes from Scotch whiskey distilleries established at Balmoral by his grandfather.

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

Communication from a live reader:

"I am a woman 58 years old and have been turning somersaults now for nearly two years. At first I could hardly turn six, as they made me so dizzy and sometime caused severe nausea, but I persevered and took them easy, and now I can turn twenty or more without any trouble and bound up on by feet after each one.

"I turn them on two large hair pillows laid on the floor lengthwise. Then I lie flat on the floor with pillows on my feet, hands on my hips and raise my body to sitting posture ten times, always inhaling a deep breath and holding it a few seconds before raising.

"Then I take the pillows off my feet and lie flat again, raising my legs to the vertical ten times without bending the knees and I am ready to start my day's work. I do this mornings instead of evenings, as I found morning exercise agreed with me better. I will not try to tell you how much my health has improved under this regime, but will only say I am grateful for your suggestions." (Signed but signature not for publication.)

From another live one:

"I'm an old boy between 50 and 100 (52 to be precise), sixty-five inches tall, with unnecessary to mention, weight 141 stripped. In my law practice * * * I then weighed 165 pounds * * * under your advice I eschewed an abundance of meat and sweets * * * my retrenchment in eating has been reasonable and gradual and I feel better for it.

"But my real theme is easy or painful somersaults. We have euthanasia, why not eusomersaults. A bed is not big enough for me to flop on. After I had whanged my poor old spine on the floor for a time I devised the following painless method which I am glad to pass on to your well bumped readers.

"I take two feather pillows, twenty-eight by twenty inches, each weighing eight and one-quarter pounds and place them on the floor end to end. Arrayed in pyjamas and comfy slippers, I take a step or two forward to get a little momentum, place my head close to the near edge of the nearer pillow, and over I go, imparting an accelerating twist to the body as I go over. I land on my feet and the momentum carries me upright.

"My sons, recently discharged from the army and navy, tell me I do it as gracefully and easily as a circus tumbler. The snap with which I perform ought to throw that old splanchnic blood to my very toes. And oh my method is elysium for the spine and body." (Signed, but not for publication.)

Now, then, do you think somersaults are safe for persons under 10 years of age I don't want to strain your brains, but these communications prove that it isn't necessary to be old at fifty.

Take two pillows and half a dozen rolls before breakfast and at bedtime. It keeps you young.

Why Some Children Have Croup

"My three children, aged 8, 5 and 4 years, all had something like the flu. When they were pretty well over it, but still coughing a little, a beautiful spring day made them beg to go out. So I bundled them in sweaters and coats and let them go out to play for just twenty minutes at noon. That night the youngest had croup. Was it caused by just that bit of fresh air? Why are some children so subject to croup? What causes croup? Mrs. H. B."

Croup is spasm of muscles of the larynx brought on usually by trifling nose or throat inflammation. Children suffer from croup due to conditions which would cause only huskiness or hoarseness and cough in adults. Your evident fear of fresh air is the chief cause. Croup prevails in households where fresh air is most feared. Croup is practically never encountered in a home where there is plenty of fresh air at all times, particularly in the bedroom. The breathing of cool or cold air is a preventive and often a cure for an attack of croup; whereas the breathing of nice warmed foul air is a predisposing cause of croup.

Stenographers Have Them Too

"I myself and several friends working in our office had the flu, and since then our hair is coming out badly. Having to work in a business office we hate to cut it off. I have been trying electric treatments, but with no apparent result. Untidy appearance is enough to get a stenographer discharged in our office so won't you come to the rescue.

"M.M.O."

As health is regained the hair will grow in again. Massage of the scalp night and morning is advisable. Cutting the hair has no influence on the growth of the hair.

Yeast Increased Weight

"Having taken one yeast cake at night for twelve weeks and having gained seven pounds, I would like to continue taking them if no harm would result. M.E.H."

No harm can result.

Another aged resident of Percy has passed away in the person of Mrs. Mary Faux, who had reached the advanced age of 78 years. She leaves to mourn her loss four sons and one daughter, namely, Gilbert, John, James, Henry and Anna. Interment was made in the R. C. cemetery.

The Young Peoples' Club of St. George's Church held a sale of home-made cooking on Saturday last in the store lately occupied by Mrs. Holland.

A fair attendance greeted the performers in "The Better 'Ole" in the town hall on Friday evening. Those present were pleased with the performance as well as with the music.

Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. Birdsall, of Birdsall, have been in Kingston, where they attended the wedding of their son, Lieut.-Col. Francis Everett Birdsall, to Ethel Wilmot Sinclair, youngest daughter of Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. R. E. Kent. Besides the members of the immediate families, there were present a great many of the bride's friends, as well as the officers of the groom's unit, and his former comrades in arms, which gave to the event a distinct military tone.

The bride looked charming in a beautiful gown of white charmeuse satin with lace and pearls and wore the conventional veil and orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and sweet peas.

Bishop Bidwell performed the marriage rite in St. George's Cathedral. As the bridal couple were leaving the church, the officers lined up on each side of the main entrance and formed an arch of swords, under which they passed.

A reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents, after which the happy couple left via G. T. R. on their honeymoon trip to visit some United States cities.

Among the numerous gifts was a tea table from the officers of the district depot, which bore a plat inscribed, "To Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. F. E. Birdsall from the officers of No. 3 district depot, M.D., No. 3, Kingston, May 21st, 1919." The groom's gift to the bride was a silver jewel box.

The many friends here of Lieut.-Col. Birdsall extend congratulations and join in wishing him and his bride many years of wedded bliss.

HAVE ROSY CHEEKS AND FEEL FRESH AS A DAISY—TRY THIS!

Says glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast washes out poisons

To see the tinge of healthy bloom in your face, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, to wake up without a headache, backache, coated tongue or a nasty breath, in fact to feel your best, day in and day out, just try inside-bathing every morning for one week.

Before breakfast each day, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it as a harmless means of washing from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the whole alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases and acidity an dgives one a splendid appetite for breakfast.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the blood and internal organs. Those who are subject to constipation, billous attacks, acid stomach, rheumatic twinges, also those whose skin is sallow and complexion pallid, are assured that one week of inside bathing will have them both looking and feeling better in every way.

Marine Tips.

Sailors have a curious way of knowing when their ship is approaching land. They go to mother nature for their knowledge. If you are on the ship they may ask you to feel the deck, which is wet with dew. Even though the stars are shining clearly, and the sea absolutely smooth, the deck seems as though water had been poured across it. The sailor will then inform you that dew is never to be found more than thirty miles from land, so the dew is a good prophet.

Insects in Glaciers.

Few people know that in the glaciers of the western national parks live several species of minute insects, hopping about like tiny fleas. They are harder to see than the so-called sand fleas of the seashore, because much smaller. Slender, dark brown worms live in countless millions in the surface ice. Microscopic rose-colored plants also thrive in such vast numbers that they tint the surface here and there.

Quoting Omar.

A lawyer noted for his flowery oratory was speaking for the defense, and wishing to emphasize the tender relations that had existed between his client and the complainant, he exclaimed in the middle of an impassioned speech: "What does Omar say on this subject? 'A dog and a bone and a hank of hair, and thou beside me singing in the wilderness.'"—Boston Transcript.

Triumph Over Necessity.

Manhood begins when we have in any way made truce with Necessity; begins even when we have surrendered to Necessity, as the most part only do: but begins joyfully and hopefully only when we have reconciled ourselves to Necessity; and thus in reality triumphed over it, and felt that in Necessity we are free.—Carlyle (Essays).

Notable Day in History.

February 26 is the anniversary of the escape of Napoleon from Elba in 1815. The ex-emperor's return through France was in the nature of a triumphal march. In a short time he was again at the head of an army, and not until after Waterloo was his power at an end. He was then sent to St. Helena.

The power house at Swift Current was destroyed by fire on Friday afternoon.

A New One

A farmer whose orchard is near a school for boys was annoyed by the depredations of the youngsters, says the Louisville Courier-Journal. Finding two boys helping themselves to his apples, he escorted them off the premises, giving each a parting kick at the gateway. Next day the boys were again loitering near his orchard

"What are you scamps hanging around here for?" he cried. "I told you yesterday what you would get if I caught you here again."

"Yes, sir, we remember" said the spokesman, "We haven't come for apples this time. We came to ask you to join our football team."

BEST PICTURE EVER YET SHOWN

Manager Dahn of the Grand Opera House has booked for that popular place of amusement "The Hearts of Humanity," which competent critics agree in declaring is the greatest moving picture ever produced, superior to all productions yet offered the public. The presentation of this film will not be affected by the hot weather as the Grand, by reason of modern arrangements just completed, is now one of the coolest places in the city.

NOTED PLAYERS HERE THURSDAY

ETHEL BARRYMORE COMES TO GRAND WITH MOST DISTINGUISHED COMPANY.

The company with which Ethel Barrymore has been surrounded in R. C. Cartons' exquisite comedy. "The Off Chance," in which Peterborough is to see that most popular of our actresses at the Grand Opera House for one performance Thursday evening June 5th is one containing several well known and distinguished names. Important roles are protrayed by Eva Le Gallienne, daughter of the poet, Edward Emery, and Albert Gran, all of whom scored something of individual successes during Miss Barrymore's long engagement in the comedy at the Empire Theatre in New York last winter. William Boyd, who was the likeable T. A. Buck, jr., with Miss Barrymore in "Our Mrs. McChesney," and Anita Rothe, who also appeared in that comedy and who has been identifie dwith many of Miss Barrymore's successes since she was the amusing ballet mistress in the memorable "Captain Jinks," have pleasing roles in "The Off Chance." Remaining characters are portrayed in such capable players as Joseph Brennon, Harry Plimmer, T. Wigney Percyval, J. M. Troughton, M. MacLeod Savage, Marcelle Roussillon, Cecelia Radcliffe and Mary Balfour.

"I attended a select reading of his own poems by Jay B. Iden at an East side church the other evening," said J. Fuller Gloom. "As an elocutionist Mr. Iden has very dark hair. The entertainment was free and I was convinced almost from the start that it was richly worth it."—Kansas City Star.

Luncheon on City's Products.

A made-in-New Orleans luncheon was given in that city recently, at which every dish, from soup to nuts, was made entirely of New Orleans products. The object was to prove to housewives that they need buy no other than homemade groceries and delicacies.

Power in Gentleness.

Men are led away from threatening destruction; a hand is put into theirs which leads them forth gently toward a calm and bright land so that they look no more backward—and the hand may be a little child's.—George Eliot.

Maybe.

"You can catch anything if you have the right kind of bait," remarked the facetious feller. "For instance, a man can take a little angle worm and catch a fish and the same man can take a little dinky street car and catch a train."

Sunken Treasure Ships.

One of the most interesting wrecks on record is that of the British frigate Lutine, which was sunk off the coast of Holland in 1799. It was customary in those days to carry much gold and silver on war vessels, and this particular ship was known to have 1,900 gold bars and 500 bars of silver, with a total value of over $6,000,000. It was driven aground in a storm and sank in comparatively shallow water. Great Britain at that time was at war with France, and Holland, an ally of France, claimed the frigate as a prize of war. The water was so shallow that at low tide it was possible for a fisherman to reach it with scoops and grapples and recover some of its treasures. A salvage company organized by the Dutch people to recover the wealth of the Lutine succeeded in getting not more than $500,000 worth of gold and silver. The position of the wreck, however, was decidedly unfavorable. It was in an exposed spot and the bottom was swept by strong tidal currents. Gradually it became buried in sand, and all salvage operations had to cease.

There are other rich treasures in the sea. In Cumana Bay, Venezuela, lies the wreck of the Spanish flagship San Pedro, with $2,000,000 worth of gold on board, which so far has defied all attempts to salvage. The richest treasure of all is probably a Spanish galleon, sunk off Lizard Point on the Cornish coast in 1784, which is believed to have aboard $85,000,000 worth of gold.

But we need not go so far afield for valuable wrecks. Our own lakes are filled with them. In fact, Lake Huron is known locally as the "Lake of Sunken Treasure." It is estimated that some $12,000,000 worth of gold and silver is buried in the deeps of the Great Lakes.

A Catch of Speckled Beauties
Ladies are Adept at the Art

Splendid catches of trout — speckled and salmon — are being made in the Algonquin Park of Ontario this year. That great region with its 1,500 lakes and streams and millions of acres of wooded land is maintaining its reputation as an angler's playground that is never "fished out." With the removal of war-time restrictions on travel, men and women from all sections of the continent are seeking the reserve in search of sport and health-giving environment. Bass fishing will open on the 15th of the present month, and as that date also marks the opening of the Highland Inn, the largest of the hotels in the Park, many sportsmen are planning to make their trips around that date in order to enjoy the full range of angling pleasures.

KING GEORGE HAS NO ENTRY IN DERBY RACE THIS YEAR

Famous Sporting Event is Revived Today After Being off the Calendar Since the First Year of the War.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, June 4.—Derby day, the world's greatest popular sporting event, has returned after leaving a blank on the British calendar for four years. With early morning the population began progress towards Epsom Downs comparable with the migration of the tribes of Israel. If today's victory Derby, as it is called reaches the high water mark, there will be 200,000 within sight of the race track, the people are travelling in trains, busses, four-in-hands, delivery, wagons, donkey carts, on horseback, a-foot and by airplane.

The King and Queen will be there, the only element lacking is an uncertainty about the big race. There will be fourteen starters. Andrew Black's Panther has long been considered a sure thing, although Sir Walter Gilbey's Whiskey Magnate will be a strong contender and Major Waldorf Astor's Buchan has been rated as a possibility. There has been much interest in All Alone because this racer is owned and has been trained by Lady Torrington. The King's stables had nothing good enough to start in the classic event.

MATTHEWS BLACKWELL MAKE IT FOUR STRAIGHT GAMES

Won From De Lavals Last Night by Score of 4-3—Some Snappy Plays by Both Teams.

Matthews-Blackwell made it four straight wins last night when they beat De Laval by a score of 4 to 3. The play was good on both sides, especially when the extreme heat is taken into consideration. This is the first game of the series in which the players went the full nine innings. Frost for the winners pulled himself out of several tight corners by playing good, heady ball.

First Innings.

De Laval—Dugan flied out to Holyman; Burgoine and Rose rolled easy grounders to Lowe.

Matthews-Blackwell—Adams was given a walk, stole second and third and came in when Dugan muffed Butcher's liner. Lowe fanned. Hagerman lived at first on Barrie's error. Holyman singled, forcing Hagerman at second, and Shaughnessy was thrown out at first. Score 0-1.

Second Innings.

Cavanagh fanned; Campbell singled, stole second and went to third on a wild pitch. Legon struck out, and Barrie's fly was attended to by Adams.

Third Innings.

Neary singled but was forced at second by Prest, who suffered the same fate at the hands of Dugan. The latter was caught stealing second.

Adams singled, stole second and third. Butcher fanned, but Lowe lived on Prest's fumble. Hagerman singled, scoring Adams. Holyman walked. Shaughnessy struck out, and Jackson flew out to Cavanagh. Score 0-2.

Fourth Innings.

Burgoine fanned. Rose singled, stole second, and went to third on Cavanagh's single. Campbell and Legon both failed to make first.

Swanston rolled out to Rose. Frost lived on Barries' error, but was thrown out by Legon after a brilliant catch of Adams' soarer. Score 0-2.

Fifth Innings.

Butcher fanned, Lowe and Hagerman each singled, but Holyman struck out and Shaughnessy was thrown out at first. Score 0-2.

Sixth Innings.

Burgoine singled, but Rose forced him at second. The latter stole a base and went to third on Cavanagh's single. Campbell fanned and Legon died at first.

Jackson was thrown out at first by Barrie; Swanston singled, stole second and third, but Frost and Adams both struck out. Score 0-2.

Seventh Innings.

Barrie singled. Neary sacrificed, and Barrie scored on Prest's single. Dugan flied out to Adams and Prest was caught off second base.

Butcher struck out. Lowe lived on Neary's error, stole second and third, and scored on Hagerman's single. Hagerman stole second, but was caught on the road to third. Holyman fanned. Score 1-3.

Eighth Innings.

Burgoine singled and Rose advanced him to third. Cavanagh lived on Hagerman's fumble, Burgoine scoring. Campbell flied out to Holyman. Rose was caught off second, and Legon struck out.

Shaughnessy lived on Barrie's error, was advanced to second by Jackson's single, stole third, and scored on Swanston's single. Frost fanned. Adams singled and Jackson was nabbed at the plate. Butcher flied out to Barrie. Score 2-4.

Ninth Innings.

Barrie's fly was taken care of by Shaughnessy. Neary lived on Holyman's fumble. Prest was thrown out at first. Fitzgerald, batting for Dugan, singled, scoring Neary, and Burgoine was out at first. Score 3-4.

WILLARD BEGINS HIS TRAINING

Toledo, June 4.—Boxing as though in a real battle, Jack Dempsey, challenger for the world's heavyweight championship, went twelve three-minute rounds, the exact distance he will travel in his championship contest with Jess Willard here on July 4th, and after the strenuous workout put his ring togs away until next Saturday.

Jack Kearns, manager of the challenger, and Jimmy Deforest, veteran trainer, decided to lay Dempsey off for a week for fear of having him go stale. He will do no training whatever. His trainers assert that he is ready to step into the ring tomorrow, and that a week of loafing will make him eager to resume his training grind.

Dempsey boxed five rounds with Sergeant Bill Tate, four with the Jamaica Kid and three with Terry Kellar, taking them on in rotation. He upset Kellar and Jamaica with vicious punches to the jaw and set such a ferocious pace for the giant Tate that he rushed across the ring to escape punishment. In addition to the boxing Dempsey did seven miles on the road.

Willard wanted to work yesterday but the ring at his training quarters was not ready, and the hot, sultry weather bothered him somewhat. He felt the need of rest after his long ride from Los Angels, and decided to start road work today and box in the afternoon. The champion has not located a place to live, but Ray O. Archer, his business representative, said he would have Willard established in an apartment away from the excitement down town before tonight.

The champion admitted that he "put one over" in regard to his age when he started boxing. The record book shows his age as 33. Tom Jones, his manager for six years, recently declared that Willard was 40 years old. The title holder, however, confessed to 35 years.

"I forgot a couple of years when I started out because I thought it would help me to get more matches if the promoters thought I was younger than I really was," Willard explained.

Fete By Peter Robinson Chapter

A very successful garden party was given by the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E., at the residence of Mr. G. W. Hatton, North Monahan, yesterday afternoon and evening in aid of the G. W .V. A. fund. Mrs. Fred Roy, 308 Rubidge street, won first prize at the bridge game in the afternoon. In the evening a largely attended dance was held in the house, Mr. Linton of Toronto presiding at the piano. The 57th band was in attendance and its selections were highly appreciated by all those present. The grounds were beautifully illuminated by Chinese lanterns, loaned and set up by Messrs. Grant, Thorpe and Cowain. The booths, at which home made candies and neat little nosegays were sold, drew a large patronage, and those who left their purchases off too long were disappointed to find that the supplies were sold out.

Nine young girls trained by Miss Littlefield of the Y. W. C. A. gave a fine exhibition of the Spring dance.

Date Is Changed For Garden Party

The 57th Chapter I.O.D.E. Garden Party which was to be held Friday, June 13th, at the residence of Mrs. Vincent Eastwood, George Street, will be held on Tuesday, June 16th, afternoon and evening at the same place. Those wishing to reserve tables for cards in the afternoon may apply to Mrs. C. R. Widdifield, Flemming Terrace.

The 57th Regiment Band wil lbe in attendance. Admission 10 cents.

EXPLAINED LAW TO WOMEN VOTERS

The regular meeting of the Women Voters League was held in the public Library last evening and a very interesting address was given by City Clerk Armstrong on the subject of the Municipal Government of the City of Peterborough.

The necessary qualifications to enable women to vote were touched upon and the point of voting on property made clear, viz.: That any woman may vote on property in her name or on property she rents which is assessed at $400 or more, and in the case of joint tenancy, if two are concerned, each may vote on property assessed at $800 or more. The latter is very important point as a lease signed by both husband and wife enables both to vote as tenants.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Millbrook, June 4.—The opening services of the Pontypool Methodist Church were conducted by the Rev. S. C. Moore, president of conference, on Sunday, last. The formal transfer of the property to the conference was read by Mr. Wesley Glenny and the key handed over to Mr. William Ridge, whose father gave the land for the first church in 1873. The president, after dedicating the building for the worship and service of God, preached an eloquent and compelling sermon on "If I Forget Thee O, Jerusalem, Let My Right Hand Forget Her Cunning."

During the morning service Mr. Spencer on behalf of the choir, presented the trustees with a splendid organ for the church. At the close, William Arthur McLauchlin, infant son of the pastor, was baptized by his grandfather, Rev. J. W. Down.

The evening congregation could not all be accommodated, but those who listened to the "Gospel of the Second Mite" will never forget the splendid uplift of the occasion.

Splendid music was rendered by the choir, led by Mr. Spencer. The Monday services consisted of a congregational supper in which nearly 500 participated. Mr. Higgs occupied the chair and congratulated pastor, trustees and people on the completion of so fine a building. Then came a short program of music by the choir and Misses Sucie and Rathbone of George Street Church, Peterboro.

Rev. A. J. Thomas, M.A., B.D., thrilled the audience with his "Essentials of Prosperity in Church Life." The appeal was then launched by the Rev. J. W. Down, an expert, as was soon seen. The clock showed $8,000 required, and after the first hesitancy the crowd caught the idea and splendidly took up the allotments from $150 down to the $15 items for the babies. After a thrilling finish it was found that only $450 remained to be raised. Next Monday night's concert is to see the whirlwind conclusion. The whole $8,000 will be then provided for by a three years' scheme.

Violin Recital At Conservatory

On Saturday afternoon last at the Conservatory of Music the pupils of Miss Lora Logan, assisted by the pupils of Miss Littlefield, gave a violin recital which was very much enjoyed by those present. The manner in which the pupils acquitted themselves reflects credit both on their teachers and on themselves. Following is the program of the afternoon:

COST OF LIVING UNDER PROBE

NEW COMMITTEE OF COMMONS BEGAN THE SESSION THIS MORNING.

Ottawa, June 4.—The recently appointed Cost of Living Committee of the Commons opened their session this morning in the heat which caused many dignified M.P.'s to sit in their shirt sleeves. George B. Nicholson of Algoma was elected chairman. It was decided to ask Mayors of all towns and cities to form committees of representative men and women of the Board of Trade, G.W.V.A. and Labor organizations, to investigate and report on local conditions. The Minister of Finance will be asked for data respecting the capital of bank and other financial organizations.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS' ART EXHIBITION

WILL BE HELD TOMORROW AND FRIDAY AT THE CENTRAL.

The annual exhibition of the Art and Drawing Work of the Peterboro Public School pupils will be held on Thursday and Friday of this week in the Kindergarten room of the Central School.

Samples of the pupils' work from each of the grades of all the schools will be shown. This willl give a good idea of the work being done throughout the year in the various classes.

The Exhibition will be open on both days from 4 to 6 p.m., and from 7 to 10 p.m. Admission will be free: parents, pupils and all interested in the work are cordially invited to attend.

EDITOR'S MAIL

MR. BAGLEY'S FAREWELL.

Editor Review: Mr. Hone has said his last word, but a prohibitionist who is afraid to sign his name continues the debate.

In final, reply to Mr. Hone, I would say I have not retracted anything. I am glad Mr. Hone agrees with me that St. Paul meant what he said when he recommended Timothy to use wine instead of water as a beverage, and hope he will never have the audacity to issue his challenge for a text again. Let him stick to his science and leave scripture to be dealt with by those able to handle it.

To his paragraph commencing "it is useless to continue this debate," I simply say tu quoque.

As to the long extract from Mr. Taft, it throws no new light on the subject. The antithesis Mr. Hone draws between himself and those who have open minds is interesting. No doubt they will know how to vote when the time comes. The REAL MEN from overseas will have their votes to cast and they will not forget the action of those whom their absence did their worst to deprive them of their personal liberty, whilst they allowed the Pork Barons and profiteers full fling. They will not forget the efforts that the "good" bunch put forth to deprive them of their rum ration, and even their cigarettes, and now their harmless necessary glass of pure malt and hops and want to poison them with chemical "substitutes."

Yours etc.
JAS. GUISE-BAGLEY.

Here ends this debate so far as The Review is concerned. We have no interest in the annongmous correspondent in a local contempory and refuse to be involved in that feature of the discussion.—Ed. Review

METAL WORKERS' BOSSES IGNORE THE CONCILIATORY OFFER FROM THE STRIKERS

Winnipeg Veterans Plan Rival Street Parades and Trouble Is Expected.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, June 5.—Both anti-strike veterans and those who have endorsed the walkout here, planned to hold street parades again today. Conciliation offers have been transmitted by both sides through the Railway Brotherhood officials, but neither the metal workers nor the employers have replied so far as known.

Plans for presenting as strong a show of force as possible to preserve order were agreed on yesterday at a conference here of civic, provincial and military officials, when fears of clashes between the rival paraders were expressed.

Reports from cities farther west which have been affected by the general strike movement indicated that conditions were approaching normal and no further walkouts of importance have occurred. Delegates from Western Canada were to meet at Calgary today to plan the organization of the One Big Union, and Victoria despatches said the strike there was marking time awaiting the results of this meeting.

Calgary printers voted not to join the sympathetic strike. Public service utilities, newspapers and stores were operating as usual in Vancouver.

To Oust Aliens.

Mayor Charles F. Gray was informed that a parade of several thousand soldiers intended to march to the Trades and Labor Council today, to force an entrance if possible, and demand that all aliens be ousted from the Winnipeg unions.

City Distributes Milk.

The city today took over the distribution of milk and was arranging to provide for bread distribution if necessary. It was reported that the strike leaders were preparing to rescind their order of yesterday ordering all union handlers of foodstuffs to go on strike. Mayor Gray said that milk stations would be opened in all public school buildings and that adequate protection would be furnished.

CALL OFF WINNIPEG STRIKE?

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, June 5.—It was rumored that the central strike committee was considering the advisability of calling off the sympathetic strike in view of the impending action by the War Veterans. It was stated at the Board of Trade that hundreds of Union men were ready to return to work despite contrary orders from the strike committee as soon as they were assured of "adequate protection."

The Strike situation seemed to be completely reversed. Labor leaders who have publicly and aggressively attempted to combat every Federal and Provincial and Municipal attempt to restore tranquility in Winnipeg, were asking "for protection" it was learned at the city hall.

PER

MAN FROM OUTSIDE CITY WAS HIRED TO HELP BREAK STRIKE

Charge Was Made at Trades Council Meeting Last Night—Firemen Refuse to Care For Horse That Non-Resident is Still Driving.

The intense heat of last night cut short the usual flow of oratory at the meeting of the Trades and Labor Council, and the sweltering delegates were glad to make their escape before 10 o'clock, an unusually early hour for that organization.

The matter of the recent city laborers' strike was discussed when Business Agent Tooms reported that city officials refused to pay street sweepers 45 cents an hour, their contention being that the Council had decided that these men were to be graded downward. Aldermen Morrison and Garside were reported as favoring this plan, although the record of both was cited by way of rebuttal. It was charged that the real decision of the Council was not interpreted correctly by Mayor Duncan when he gave his instructions to the heads of departments.

There is supposed to be in existence a bylaw prohibiting the employment of non residents of the city on civic work, and Secretarly Stevens will write the aldermen asking that the bylaw be enforced. When the city laborers quit work the black horse owned by the municipality was driven by a local man who went out with the others. A non-resident was hired to take his place and is still holding the job. The black horse is sheltered at the firehall, and the members of the brigade are supposed to look after the animal, with the other city horses. This they have refused to do so long as it is driven by a strikebreaker, and in this action they are upheld by Chief Grange and Ald. Morrison of the fire, water and light committee.

A letter received from Mr G. N. Gordon asking Labor men to support the Stickney Motors bylaw and to act as scrutineers at the election today was heartily concurred in.

The Committee That Failed.

After failing to obtain any information with regard to the painting contract at the Public Library, which is said to have been awarded to Mayor Duncan, the special committee appointed to investigate were discharged from further duty. Commissioner Sollitt, the only member of the Library Board from whom there was any hope of receiving information, is out of the city.

Petition Premier Hearst.

It was decided to circulate petitions asking Premier Hearst to call a special session of the Legislature to enact a forty-four-hour working week and to abolish child labor. Copies of this petition, with a request for co-operation, will be sent to every Trades Council in Ontario. The petition will ask for the exemption of the farmers from the proposed legislation, the delegates realising that a forty-four-hour week is impracticable in the country districts.

Mr. Fife's Dual Position.

Mr. H. A. Fife, electrician at the Quaker Oats plant, and who is also electrical inspector for the Hydro Commission, will be asked to appear before the Trades Council at the next meeting to explain why he holds two positions. His right to do so was challenged at a former session, and Mr. Fife declared that he was ready to explain. There is no doubt that he can do so to the satisfaction of the delegates.

RETURNED HERO IS MODERATOR

LIEUT.-COL (REV.) JNO. PRINGLE HONORED BY PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY.

Hamilton, June 4—Lieut.-Col. the Rev. John Pringle, D.D., of St. Andrew's Church, Sydney, Nova Scota, was elected Moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly, which was opened in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church last evening. As there was no other nomination for the office Dr. Pringle was elected by acclamation. The nomination was made by Principal McKinnon of Halifax, and seconded by Rev. Dr. Baird of Winnipeg.

In electing Dr. Pringle to the General Assembly paid a tribute to the Chaplain service, and at the same time bestowed honr upon a man of action who as Principal McKinnon said, was one of the first to volunteer for service in the Yukon, and whose trail extends from the snows of that country to Nova Scotia. He went overseas with the First Canadian Contingent, was with the troops at Salisbury Plain, and stood with them to the end of the war. "One of his sons was killed in action; John Pringle is a man in his own right a man's man," said Dr. Baird, in seconding his nomination.

Dr. Pringle is a native of Prince Edward Island, and came of soldier stock, his father and two uncles being military men. He was educated at Prince of Wales College, Charlottetown, and at Queen's University. His first charge was at Georgetown, Ont., after which he served in Kildonan, Port Arthur in the western States and the Yukon, and is at present pastor of St. Andrews' Church.

Dr. Fletcher's Sermon

Rev. Dr. Colin Fletcher, the retiring Moderator, preached an earnest and inspiring sermon at the opening of the Assembly. In referring to the present state of unrest, Dr Fletcher said the situation was as serious and as critical as that which had passed away. He said the Church could not accomplish its purpose in the world by force or by authority, but by the more excellent way of Jesus Christ.

The life of man was more than master and servant, employer and employee. There must be the winning note Christ's Lordship did not isolate Him from mankind, for He said: "Henceforth I call you not servants but friends."

While he did not blame a minister for discussing economics if he knew what he was speaking about, Dr. Fletcher said there was more than enough of opinion in the world. "It is astonishing what remedies people have always applied to others than themselves," said the Moderator. He urged the preaching of the lordship and friendship of Christ, and said "the Savior of the world is not a condition or a principle, but a living person, and a glorious Personality."

Clarence Smith, Zephyr, was killed in a runaway accident.

STRIKERS GOING BACK TO PLACES; CARPENTERS OUT

SYMPATHETIC WALK-OUT IN TORONTO IS SLOWLY DYING DOWN.

CARPENTERS DEMAND 75 CENTS

WAGES OF HOISTING ENGINEER UP TO $42 A WEEK.

Toronto, June 5th—Practically all of the sympathetic strikers, including the garment workers and the members of the Marine Federation are back at their work. Strikers of the metal trades alone remain out, and declare their intention of fighting until victory is secured. Their position now, according to the many speakers at Queen's Park meeting yesterday is much better than for some time, through the financial support accorded them by the international unions and other unions not involved in the strike. It will now become a test of endurance betwaan the metal trades workers and the Metal Trades and Founders branch of the Employers Association. There was no settlement of the difficulty in sight yesterday."

"The men must return to work under the old agreement," said Mr Fred Bawden, chairman of the Employers' Association, Metal Trades branch, to Mayor Church yesterday, who was endeavoring to bring the employers and unions together.

"I tried to get them to meet the men, but they would not," said Mayor Church. "I am now submitting the proposed settlement to the men."

Mayor's Proposal

The eight-hour day or 48, hour week admitted ;present rate of pay; also agree to meet the individual unions and discuss with each union the points at issue, and make separate settlement; give up collective bargaining until the question can be disposed of by general, Federla and Provincial legislation; the men to return to work at once.

Carpenters still on Strike

Carpenters remain on strike. The sympathetic strike having been cated off they have decided to fight for their own demands. A meeting was held yesterday and the following statement was issued by Mr Alex. Lyons

"At a mass meeting of the carpenters today the men unanimously turned down an offer of 67 1-2c per hour by the employers as a basis of agreement to start negotiations for the settlement of our dispute. The men are demanding 75c per hour, compared with 65c which they aree now being paid. The new terms also include a 44 hour week. A committee of the men will meet in conference with the employers again at 4 o'clock this afternon, when it is hoped that some satisfactory setlement will be reached.

$42 for Hoisting Engineers

Forty-two dollars a week will be the minimum wage for hoisting engineers for the coming year. Mr. Richard Banks stated last night that the contractors in Toronto on the harbor work and important building construction had agreed to this wage after some negotiation. The increase of $1 a day commences on June 1st and will affect more than two hundred men, the majority of whom are at the present time upon harbor work.

The size of the wage envelope seems to be the chief consideration with the union of hoisting engineers. They have agreed to the 10-hour day. Mr. Banks said that while the minimum wage had been fixed at $7 a day, there were many members of the union who were making much higher wages.

Since 1915 the wages of the hoisting engineers have increased one hundred per cent.

Garment Workers Demands

With the settlement of the strike of garment workers on ladies' garments in New York city, the unions in Toronto and Montreal will file their wage demands upon the manufacturers was affected whereby the workers in the industry were given the forty four hour week, $1 an hour and a guarantee of eight months work in the year.

HOUSE OF COMMONS VOTES TO GIVE MUNICIPALITIES FULL CONTROL OF STREETS

Long Looked For Check to Private Corporate Interests is Applied at Last.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, June 5.—At an early hour this morning the House of Commons gave its aid to municipal ownership and championed municipal rights by carrying the Mowat amendment to the Consolidated Railway Bill by the close vote of 56 to 52. The effect of the Mowat amendment is to place the Toronto and Niagara Power Co., along with all other public utility companies under the general law with respect to the necessity of obtaining municipal consent for the use of streets, also in acquiring the assets of any public utility company. The Toronto and Niagara Power Co., will have to accept all obligations toward the municipality which this company so acquired was bound to.

All the Cabinet Ministers in the house at the time voted against the amendment. They were Hon. N. W. Rowell, Hon. Dr. Reid, Hon. A. L. Sifton, Hon. F. B. Carvell, Hon. S. C. Newburn and Hon. C. C. Ballantyne.

Mr. Mowatt, Toronto ,then moved another amendment that any company purchasing the Toronto Electric Light Company be bound by the same provision. This also carried by the same vote.

A motion by Hon. Dr. Reid to bring the employees of the Railway Commission under the Civil Service Commission was carried unanimously. The bill as amended was then reported and now stands for third reading.

A PLEA FOR THE CHILDREN

Do you know there are over one thousand children in Peterborough who will not have any vacation this summer unless the Playgrounds Association can carry on? It will be necessary to have at least three supervised playgrounds where the kiddies will have a good time and be properly looked after by qualified supervisors.

Will you not forego say fifty cents of your vacation money towards this scheme, that will mean so much to such a large number of Peterborough kiddies, not to speak of the boon it will be to their tired mothers?

The Playgrounds Association is not a fad. It is a proven success in Peterborough, so much so that we have to increase the number this year in order to meet the demand of the public.

We will count on your support, because you haven't forgotten the days when you were a youngster yourself.

PETERBOROUGH PLAYGROUNDS ASSOCIATION.

Subscriptions for the Playgrounds Association will be received at The Review office. Who will be the first to make a donation for this worthy object? Remember what He said about "one of the least of these."

SIXTY-NINE LOSE LIVES IN AN EXPLOSION OF POWDER

Men Were Riding in Tunnel on Car Drawn by Trolley When Cable Broke and Flying Sparks Ignited Explosives—Bodies Were Blown in All Directions.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 5.—Sixty-nine workers were killed and forty others injured at Baltimore No. 2 Tunnel of the Delaware & Hudson Co. near here early today. A car of black powder, attached to a train of cars on which the men were riding to their chambers in the mine explode. An electric motor drew the cars. The trolley wire broke and sparks ignited the powder. The men were blown everywhere, but most of the deaths were caused by fire and suffocation.

Explosion Was Terrific.

The accident occurred shortly before 7 o'clock. A train of empty cars was sent to the mouth of the tunnel to take the men into the chambers. One hundred men piled into the cars, which were drawn by an electric motor. Near the end of the train was a car of black powder. When two hundred feet in the tunnel the trolley wire broke and fell. The sparks ignitd the powder, and instantly there was an explosion that sent the bodies of men flying in all directions. The force was so terrific that it was heard throughout the greater part of the city. Flames caused a greater loss of life, many bodies being burned beyond recognition.

ALD. PHELAN IN TORONTO TODAY

KEEN ON SCENT FOR ANOTHER GRANT TOWARD THE BRIDGE.

Alderman Phelan, chairman of the Board of Works and Special Bridge Committee, with City Solicitor Widdifield, left at 6:21 this morning for Toronto. The object of this visit was to be present at the meeting of the Dominion Railway Board at 10 o'clock this morning in the city hall, Toronto. The board was to pass decision on Peterborough's application for a statutory grant toward the new high level bridge by reason of its erection changing the C. P. R.'s spur line level crossing to an overhead one. There is a fixed percentage sum set aside by the Railway Board for all such cases in which railway grades are changed to eliminate danger from level crossings, and Peterborough may reasonably expect to receive consideration in that respect.

Private W. Thorpe Home This Evening

Pte. W. Thorpe left Kingston at 1.05 this afternoon. He will reach Peterborough at 5.30 this evening, Grand Trunk.

ENLISTED IN 1915—SEVERELLY WOUNDED IN THE BATTLE OF CAMBRAI.

Pte. Edwin R Hatton, of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Hatton, arrived home from overseas at noon today via the C.P.R.

Mr. Hatton, Peterboro's Crown Attorney, was agreeably surprised last night at hearing his son's voice talking to him over the 'phone from the Walker House, Toronto, where Pte. Hatton stayed overnight, having reached the Queen City yesterday afternoon.

Dragoonsman Hatton enlisted in the West in 1915 and on reaching overseas, was assigned to the pay office, London, where he stayed for a year or more. He finally saw heavy fighting in France with the R.C.D during the last stages of the war, and was severely wounded at Cambrai in October, 1918. At this, his last battle, his horse was killed from under him, and he himself suffered a serious compound fracture of the left arm from fragments of an exploded shell. Since that time he has been an inmate of an English hospital, where his wounded arm was operated on several times to save it. This gallant young soldier is now on the high road to recovery, and reports that his wounded arm is doing nicely. He has still one brother, Norman, overseas, while another brother, David, returned but recently. This patriotic family gave three out of four boys in their country's defence—all volunteers.

C.P.R. PRESIDENT DOWN ON STRIKE

SAYS AFFAIR AT WINNIPEG IS MENACE TO LAW AND ORDER.

(Special to The Review.)

Edmonton, June 5.—"It's the easiest thing in the world to be a railroad president. All you have to do is to please the public," quoted President E. W. Beatty, of the C. P. R., in speaking to 250 business men of Edmonton at the Board of Trade luncheon in the MacDonald Hotel at noon. President Hensley, of the Board of Trade introduced Mr. Beatty as the youngest man ever to have filled such a responsible position and President Beatty's youth is what strikes one at the first glance. He is big and boyish in appearance and his face is strongly cast, in fact, President Beaty has a Northcliffe face, the resemblance being striking. At the table with President Hensley were the Premier of Alberta, Mr. Beatty, and other members of his party.

Bovernment ownership of railways formed the chief topic of Mr. Beatty's remarks. Only recently he has completed an extensive tour of American railroads. In an interview prior to the luncheon, Mr. Beatty briefly summarized the Winnipeg strike and its off-shoots in other western cities. Said he: "No movement that has for its purpose the strangling of constituted society and authority can hope to succeed in any law-abiding country such as Canada." "The general public will not stand for it," he remarked, "and unless the strikers have public sympathy behind them they cannot get very far."

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

THURSDAY, JUNE 5, 1919

A FAIR, OPEN FIGHTER.

WHEN MONDAY NIGHT'S meeting of the City Fathers was discussed at last night's session of the Trades Council, of the "Big Six," Ald. Turner, the most outspoken of the sextette, alone found favor in the eyes of the delegates. It was the opinion that he is at least a man who is ready to fight in the open. There is never any doubt as to his attitude on the Labor question. In this regard he differs from other members of the Council who speak fair words while at the same time they keep knives up their sleeves ready for use the minute a back is available for attack.

THE HIGH COST OF PLUMBING.

IF THE PLUMBING done in this city is below the standard, as Editor Newsome of Toronto alleges, to the indignation of Ald. Phelan, then it must be said that the cost of it fully justifies better conditions. The master plumbers of Peterborough have, as a matter of course, ther organization. Their charge is ninety cents an hour. Members of the Board of Trade declare that this figure is higher than that which obtains in any other city in Canada or in the United States so far as statistics have been obtained.

This schedule of rates yields the master plumbers a handsome profit on the work of their employes, who receive sixty cents an hour for an eight-hour day, and who furnish nearly all their own tools at that. The employer's rate of gross profit, then, is fifty per cnet., so that after all, the paragrapher's quibs about this industry appear to be not without foundation in actual fact.

If, as the Toronto editor charges, cheap material is being used in the plumbing work in this city, then the business must indeed be a profitable one. If the Toronto man's allegations lack foundaton, then no one should welcome an open investigation more than the plumbers themselves. Again, if it is true, as alleged, that the cost of plumbing is higher here than in any other city in America, one item in the almost prohibitive cost of building is explained.

THE PUBLIC AND PUBLIC BUSINESS.

THE MEMBERS of the Library Board are appointed to transact the business of the public, which business involves the spending of public funds. But the Library Board seems to be under the delusion that the public business can be transacted to better advantage when conducted in secret. It does not appear to strike them that the electors can have any interest in what the Board does nor are they concerned as to how the money of the people is expended.

Some time ago the Board gave out the job of painting the Library. It has been rumored that this work was done by Mayor Duncan, who by reason of his office is not supposed to accept contracts from the city. The members of the Trades Council, when the matter was called to their attention, appointed a special committee to investigate.

The committee found it impossible to obtain any information regarding the matter. Librarian DelaFosse refused to say anything. Other members of the Board when approached were equally reticent, each of them referring the committee to Mr. Sollitt, the member who is supposed to represent Labor on the Board. This gentleman by reason of his occupation is in the city only during brief and infrequent periods, so that the members of the committee failed to locate him upon any of his visits to his home. At last the task was abandoned and the committee, after reporting progress at the meeting of the Trades Council last night, asked to be, and were, discharged from further duty. Even if they had met Mr. Sollitt they regarded it as unlikely that he would have been any more communicative than his colleagues on the Board. If any contravention of the law could have been established the aim was to attempt to unseat the officials responsible, but the official terms of those whom it was most desired to reach will expire anyway in a short time.

The public business of the city is the business of the public. Every taxpayer in the city has a right to know how the civic revenue is expended, whether the expenditure is in the hands of the City Council, the School Board or the Library Board. It is in the case of the latter only that any trouble is met with in this regard. The members of that body are men of high scholastic attainments as a rule, but even this should not set them high above the ratepayers whose money they handle when those ratepayers ask for information.

COUNCILS AND SCHOOL BOARDS.

MAYOR CHURCH of Toronto announces that he will have submitted to the people the question of having the expenditures of the School Board in that city controlled by the Council. This matter is interesting here chiefly because a similar local agitation is taken up at intervals. If the Legislature ever could be brought to the point of so amending the law, something that they have repeatedly been asked to do and have just as often refused, what benefit would any city derive? Is aldermanic wisdom and experience alone sufficient to be entrusted with the task of spending public money?

The members of the Peterborough Board of Education are under statutory obligation to provide more school accommodation for the city, just as the aldermen are charged with the duty of building the Hunter Street bridge and a sewage disposal plant. The penalty for failure on the part of the School Board would be a suspension of the government grant to the local schools. The penalty for failure on the part of the aldermen may assume the form of suits for damages against the city.

The Board of Education have their task already well under way. Aside from a departure in the matter of acquiring a site, contemplated at the outset, but abandoned later, the proceedings have been carried forward with business-like despatch and the plans for the new building are now being drawn up. Money for the purchase of a site has been arranged for. There has been no filibustering on the part of any member of the Board.

The members of the School Board are not held back by the alleged excuse that the cost of labor renders building impossible, even while, like the aldermen, they have no objection to the high price of material. One of the members of the School Board, who is one of the largest employers of labor in the city, says that it is useless to talk of waiting for pre-war industrial conditions before taking up the work of building. These conditoins, he is satisfied, will never return.

The building of the Hunter street bridge is still a dim prospect. Nothing has been done in the matter of a sewage disposal plant. The provincial authorities, who insist upon this improvement, were disposed to leniency during the war. They are now likely to demand action. The new school will be under construction before the aldermen get out of their present maze, and work will be provided for the mechanics and laborers of Peterborough.

If the building of the new school was a matter that rested with the aldermen, that matter would beyond all question be in the air yet like the bridge and the sewage disposal plant, even though the latter improvement is mandatory upon the city just as is the addition to the school accommodation.

THE PROBE AGAIN.

THE PARLIAMENTARY Committee appointed to probe the high cost of living and to suggest a remedy, was organized yesterday in Ottawa and the program is announced. From past experience the people have as little to hope for in the way of relief from this new investigation as from any of the others that are now so many fruitless records of history.

The new commission announces that it will seek municipal co-operation. Mayors of towns and cities are to be asked to investigate and report on local conditions. What assistance is to be expected from this quarter? The municipalities already possess special powers to make such investigations, and so far not one is reported as having made a move.

SYMPATHETIC STRIKES.

THERE ARE TWO outstanding objections to sympathetic strikes. In the first place they are a violation of the constitution of the American Federation of Labor, with which nearly all the unions in Canada are affiliated. They involve the breaking of contracts between the employers and their men, and the holding of these contracts as sacred obligations has always been insisted upon by certain unions and individuals, among which the printers take a leading part. Such unauthorized strikes, therefore, defeat themselves by alienating the sympathy of the public, an important deciding factor in all disputes between Capital and Labor.

The sympathetic strike in Toronto has been killed at the outset by the very men for whose benefit it was designed. The Metal Workers prefer to carry on their own fight, and advise other strikers to go back to work. This action, more than any that could be taken, will do more to impress the public generally with the fact that there is still honor among the workingmen of the country.

* * * * *

IF THE NEW High Cost of Living Commission asked the local aldermen for statistics on wages, the information would be readily furnished. Interfering with prices, however, is another matter.

* * * * *

COULD THE HIGH standard of representation on the School Board be maintained if the members of that Board were made subsidiaries to the City Council and deprived of the right to control their own expenditures?

TARIFF TREND IS UPWARDS

Canada is the only country in the world where there is any pronounced agitation for tariff reduction. In the United States the movement for greater protection steadily gains strength. The majority of the members of the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives have decided, after a full consideration of the business situation, to take up a general revision of the tariff at once. Mr. Longworth, House leader of the Progressive wing of the Republican Party and a member of the Ways and Means Committee, has also introduced the first tariff mesure of the session. The bill which is said to have the support of the Republican members deals primarily with dye-stuffs but includes also products employed in making drugs, photographic developers, flavors and explosives. Special interest is attached to the bill, not because of its specific clauses, because it is the first practical expression of the higher tariff movement. The following comparative table shows the rates now in force under the special war measure passed September 8, 1916, in the first war revenue bill, and the rates proposed by the Longworth bill:—

	Present Legislation	Longworth Bill
Group 1.—Small number coal tar products.	Free	Free
Group 2.—Long list of products, apparently largely raw materials ued in the manufacture of finished products.	2½c per pound plus 15 per cent ad valorem	6c per pound plus 35 per cent ad valorem
Group 3.—Mostly finished dye stuffs, and other chemical preparations.	5c per pound plus 30 per cent ad valorem	10c per pound plus 50 per cent ad valorem

The National Association of Manufacturers of the United States in session in New York, warmly approved the action of the United States Tariff Commission in recommending to Congress the enactment of a bargaining tariff. In a special report, the Committee on Readjustments declared that such a measure has been consistently advocated by many leading business men and the decision of the Tariff Commission would be highly commended. "Desirable as such a measure was before the war, it has now become essential to our commercial development," the Committee said. "Our new and influential position in foreign commerce and finance makes imperative a bargaining tariff for the protection of American comercial interests in foreign countries." Over a score of American industries have written to Chairman Fordney of the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives urging the necessity for protective tariffs not only for the purpose of fostering the infant industries that were started during the war, but to prevent the dumping of goods upon the United States market. Speaking before the American Brush Manufacturers' Association, Mr. J. G. McKenzie stated that the brush manufacturers of the United States would make a determined fight for a high tariff to protect their industry, and that they believed that they had a fair chance of having their demands granted and incorporated in the forthcoming tariff. Mr. McKenzie said that a demand should be made for a tariff rate of 100 per cent. The present duty is 45 per cent having been reduced from 50 per cent in the Underwood Tariff of 1913.

Vice President Changes Views

Mr. Thomas R. Marshall, Democrat Vice-President of the United States, speaking at the convention of the American Cotton Manufacturers Association of Atlantic City, made the following striking statement on the tariff:

"What danger there may be to the Republic from an influx of foreign goods I do not know. Time was when, theoretically, I was a tariff-for-revenue Democrat, practically a free-trader, but every principle known to economic man has been jostled out of position by the war and I find myself very much in hope that the Tariff Commission, while refraining from giving bonuses for services unperformed by the manufacturers of this country, will take care to see that they have an even start in the race for the commercial supremacy of the world."

"What the trouble?"

"Our press has broken down."

John's Proficiency

Well, Mr. Pedagogue, does my boy show any special aptitude for work?" asked the proud father.

"I think so, Mr. Bronson," answered the schoolmaster. "I am not certain as yet whether John will make a sculptor or a baseball player. He is unerring in his aim with paper wads, but the condition of his desk top convinces me that he can carve with considerable facility."

Something to Crow About

Jones called his prize rooster. "Rob?"

"Yes; that is the short for Robinson."

"But why call him Robinson?"

"Because he crew so."

CAVAN COUNCIL

Cavan Council sat as a Court of Revision on Wednesday, May 28th, at 10.30 a.m. The only appeal, except striking off dead dogs, was the appeal of Mr. Robert Hootan against his assessment as being too high, but after hearing the assessor, the appeal was dismissed. Mr. Hootan was not present.

Council met in regular session in the afternoon, members all present, the reeve in the chair. Minutes of previous meeting were read and approved. The following accounts were presented, and on motion of McCamus and Baptie, ordered paid:

William Elliott, building Zion bridge	$ 60 50
William Ward, building Zion bridge	17 50
Thos. Williamson, building Zion bridge	19 25
M. Brock, building Zion bridge	7 50
W. G. Russell & Son, cement, Zion bridge	65 35
S. Donnelly, teaming, Zion bridge	20 70
John Coulter, timber, Zion bridge	10 00
J. E. Clarke, repairs, culvert, 8th Con.	10 20
James Paul, material and work, 8th Con.	20 20
Members of Council, day's allowance	15 00
Members of Council, committee work	6 00
James Paul, assessor	135 00

Mr. W. H. Lough and Mr. Finnie waited on Council and complained of bad condition of road, 11th concession, west.

McCamus and Clarke, that matter be referred to Deputy-reeve Baptie and Councillor Bland.—Carried.

Mr. McDowell, merchant, Cavan, requested, through Councillor Clarke, permission to put weigh scales on the north side of roadway at his store.

McCamus and Baptie, that the application be referred to Councillor Clarke to investigate with authority to act.—Carried.

Council adjourned to Wednesday, June 25th, at 1.30 p.m.

MET AS COURT OF REVISION

The Court of Revision for Burleigh and Anstruther Townships was held on May 31, with Reeve Norman Lean and Councillors Stone, Dane and Earnshaw present.

Moved by Councillors Earnshaw and Stone, that W. Staples' name be placed on the assessment roll as tenant for lot 24, Con. 14.—Carried.

Moved by Councillors Stone and Dane, that G. K. Fraser's three dogs be placed on assessment roll for taxation.—Carried.

Moved by Councilors Stone and Dane, that A. S. Conklin's two dogs be placed on the assessment roll for taxation.—Carried.

Moved by Councillors Dane and Stone, that Wm. Earnshaw's and Mrs. Dan. Lean's dogs be taken off the assessment roll, the same having been poisoned.—Carried.

Moved by Councillors Stone and Earnshaw, that E. R. Tate's assessment on lot 5, Con. 5, Burleigh, which is now $300, be raised $300, making a total assessment of $600.—Carried.

Moved by Councillors Dane and Stone, that Apsley road beat be extended east to Beech Tree Hill on Wellington road.—Carried.

Earnshaw, that Ed. Young's lot 5, Con. 4, Burleigh, now assessed on $250, be raised $350, making a total assessment of $600.—Carried.

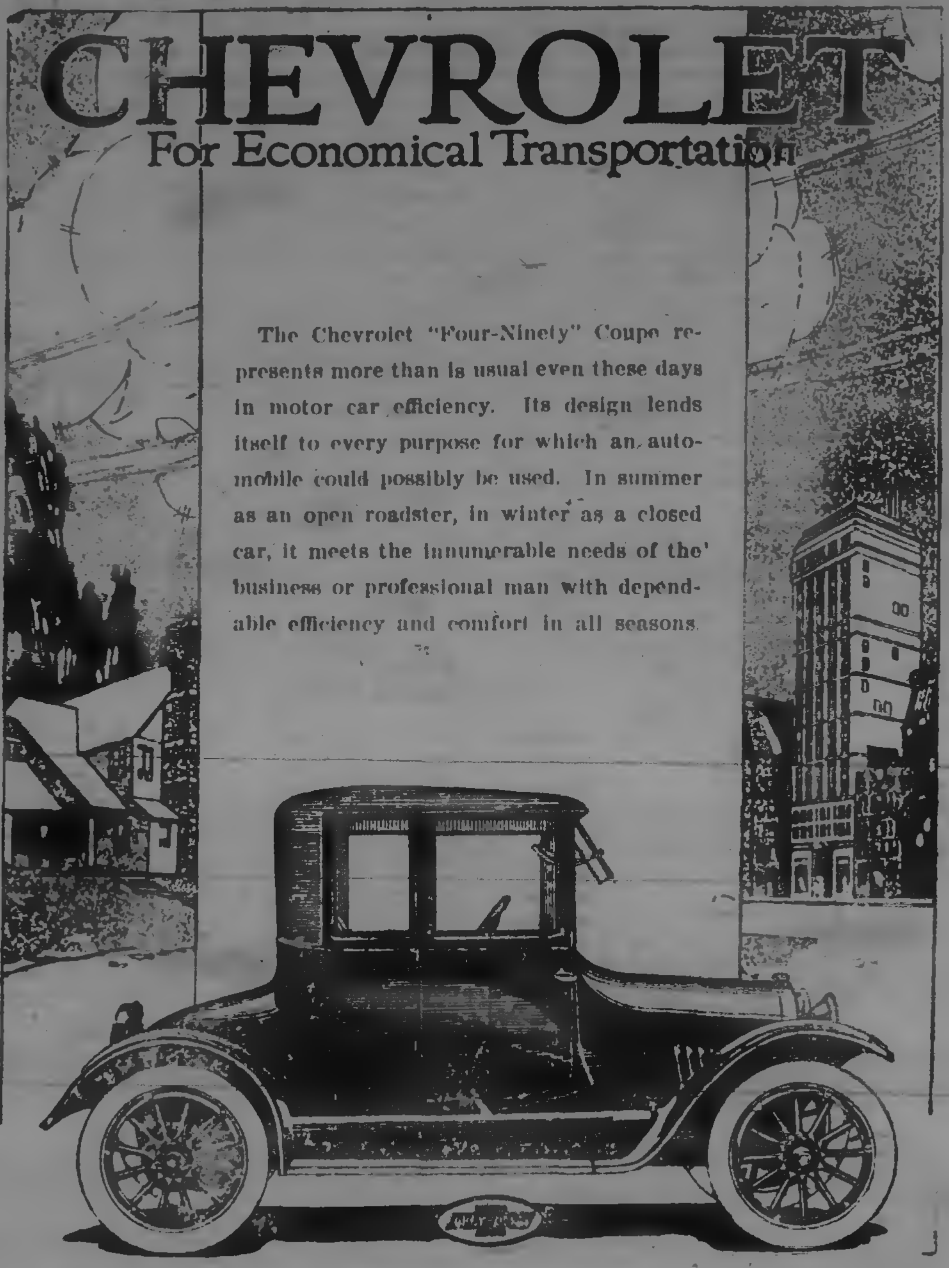
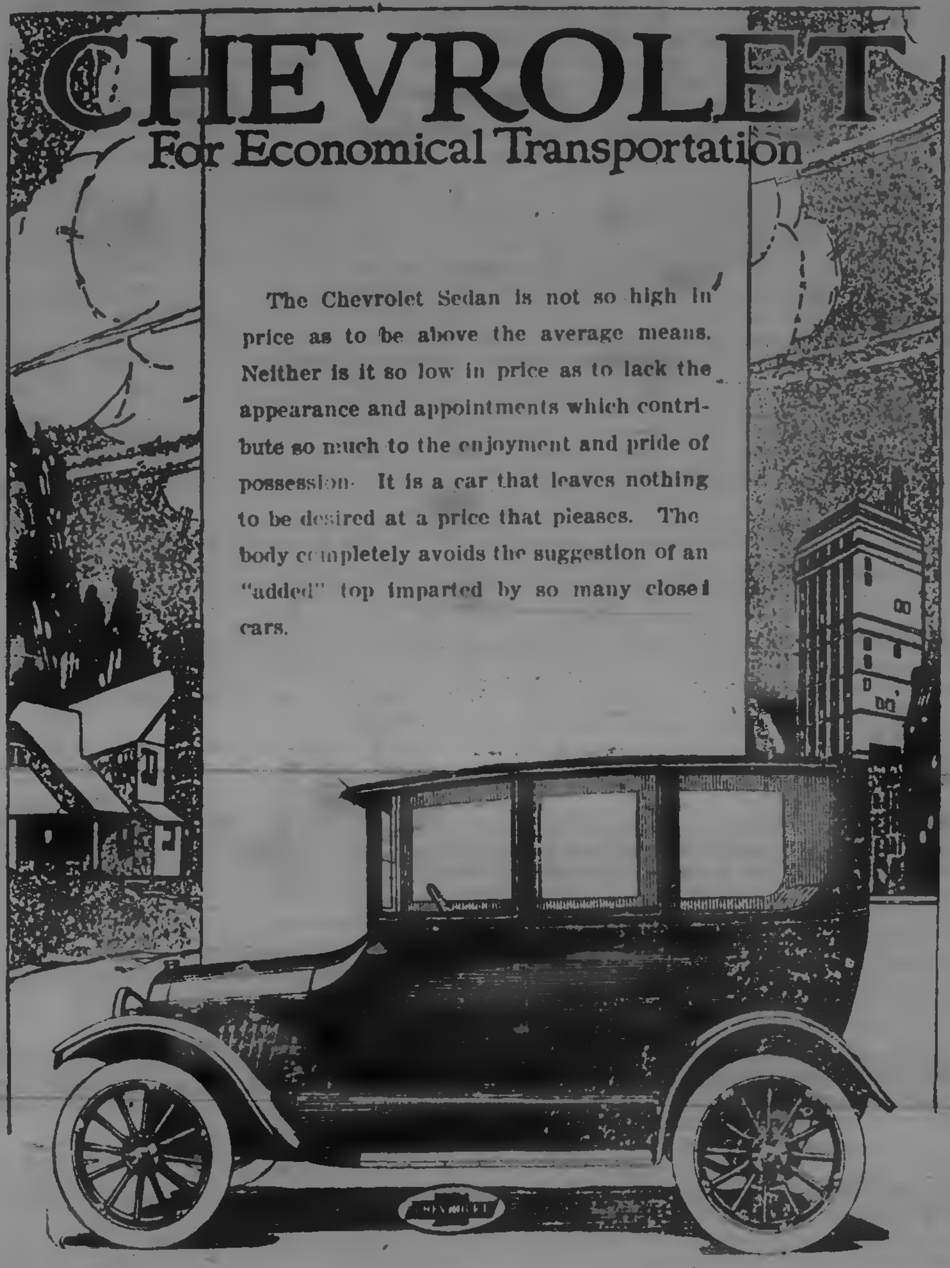
Important Annoucement To Motor Car Buyers



CHEVROLET

For Economical Transportation

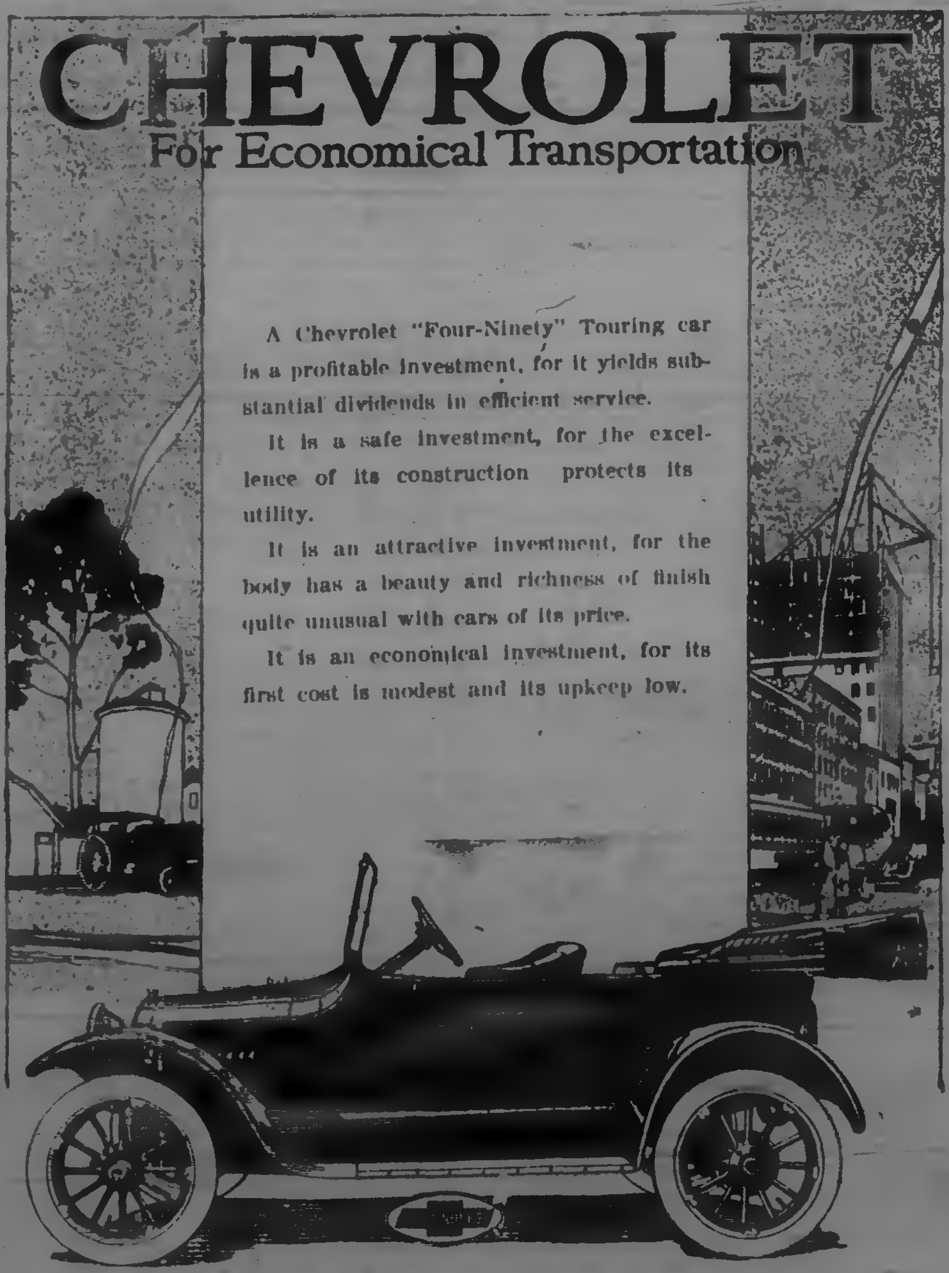
The Chevrolet "Four-Ninety" Coupe represents more than is usual even these days in motor car efficiency. Its design lends itself to every purpose for which an automobile could possibly be used. In summer as an open roadster, in winter as a closed car, it meets the innumerable needs of the business or professional man with dependable efficiency and comfort in all seasons.



CHEVROLET

For Economical Transportation

The Chevrolet Sedan is not so high in price as to be above the average means. Neither is it so low in price as to lack the appearance and appointments which contribute so much to the enjoyment and pride of possession. It is a car that leaves nothing to be desired at a price that pleases. The body completely avoids the suggestion of an "added" top imparted by so many closed cars.



CHEVROLET

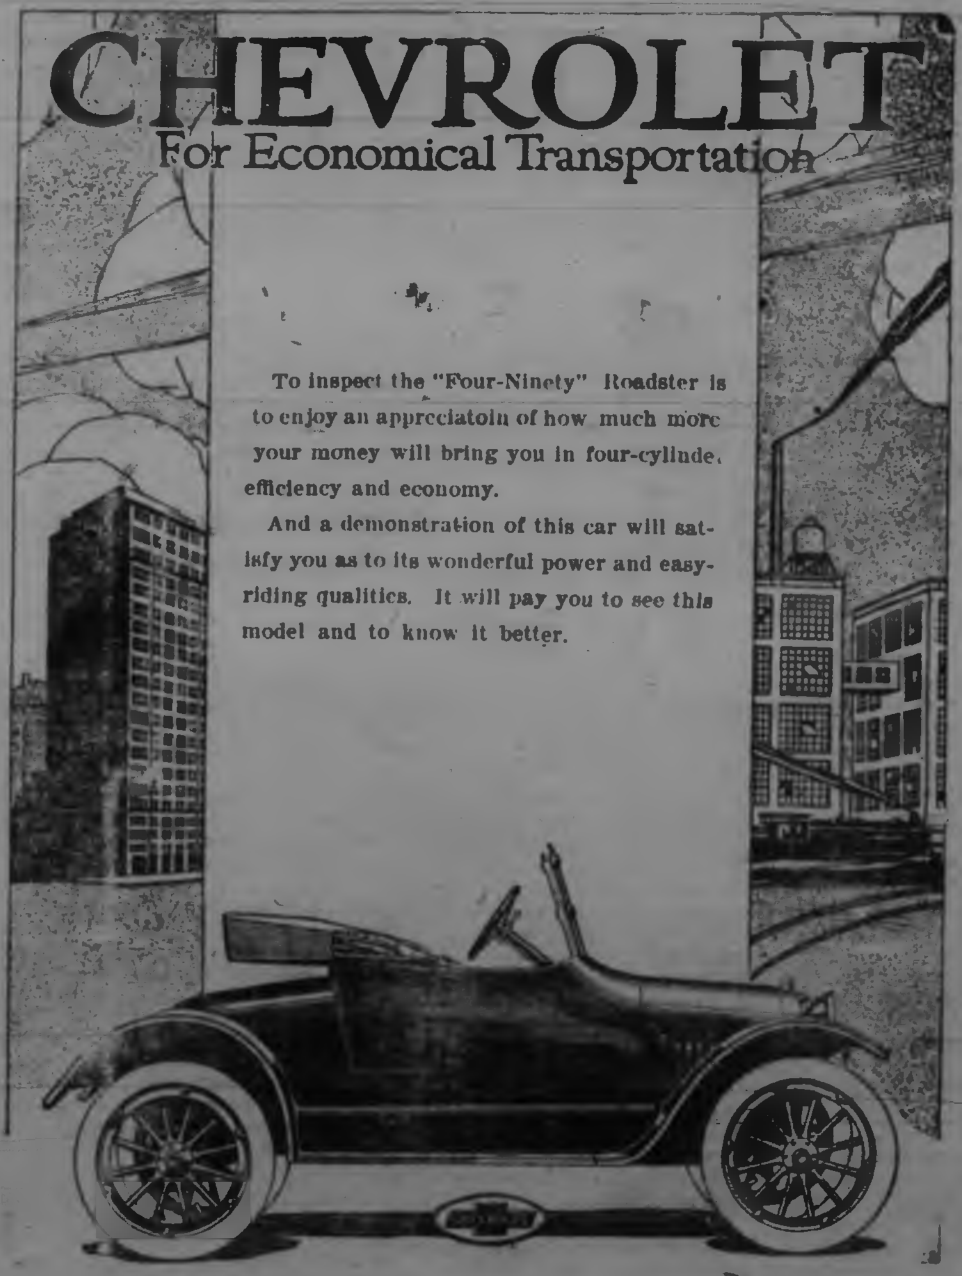
For Economical Transportation

A Chevrolet "Four-Ninety" Touring car is a profitable investment, for it yields substantial dividends in efficient service.

It is a safe investment, for the excellence of its construction protects its utility.

It is an attractive investment, for the body has a beauty and richness of finish quite unusual with cars of its price.

It is an economical investment, for its first cost is modest and its upkeep low.



CHEVROLET

For Economical Transportation

To inspect the "Four-Ninety" Roadster is to enjoy an appreciatoin of how much more your money will bring you in four-cylinder efficiency and economy.

And a demonstration of this car will satisfy you as to its wonderful power and easy-riding qualities. It will pay you to see this model and to know it better.

EVOLUTION OF THE PLAYER PIANO

The wonderful development of the mechanically played piano was recently illustrated, when a recital was given with the aid of an orchestra, and some pieces by Harold Bauer were produced on a mechanical instrument. And only the other day a concert was given in which pieces by Leo Ornstein were performed. A particular feature was the giving of some movements by the mechanical instrument and then having Ornstein go to the piano and finish the concerto. When one remembers that it is scarcely a generation ago that the mechanical instrument was nothing more than a musical toy, a little square box whose handle you turned much as you would turn a coffee grinder, which was run with a perforated roll and reeds, and which was almost viewed with contempt by musical people, and that today we have this wonderful development of the player-piano in its highest form, it is difficult for those who are not acquainted with the facts to realize the vast enterprise, the labor, the invention, the capital, the grit, the implacable purpose involved, before the evolution could be made in so brief a time.

MUSICAL POETS

If we think that the writers of literature comprise all the great minds of the world and that they deliver all the great messages to mankind, we are wonderfully mistaken. The intellect of a Beethoven is just as great as that of a Shakespeare. Wagner had no smaller mental calibre and Chopin and Brahms were poets of the same order as Tennyson and Browning. The message of each of these men are of equal importance, their mediums of expression simply differing. It is as stupid for an aspirant to culture not to understand something of Beethoven as it is for him not to appreciate and comprehend Browning or Shakespeare.

The man who does not appreciate good music fails to get about a third of the choice things some of the greatest and loftiest spirits have given us.

MUSIC AND INDUSTRY

Music offers compensation for the monotony and drudgery of work hours which are inevitable. Work in factories is devoid of the artistic and the pleasurable features which were a part of the old household industry. The factory system with its dead routine, its endless repetition of the same tasks, must have some offset, some compensation.

The best cure is music. Leisure must be enjoyable or it is futile. It must be nobly enjoyable or it is vicious. Just here is where music comes in with its enabling and highly enjoyable features.

If the worker is untrained for leisure the sense appetite prevails. Better than the saloon is music; better than trivial ragtime is a Chopin Nocturne; better than a brass band is a symphony orchestra. Music as a compensation for arduous toil and as a contribution to the nobility of leisure has a most important position. With music interwoven with industrial life there will be less labor trouble, less discontent and consequently less opportunity for the Bolsheviki to raise its uncouth visage.

HONEST PIANO TUNERS

Beware of the type of person you engage to tune your piano. By far most piano tuners are honest, but there are still many so called 'tramp tuners" who are not, by any means, above reproach. Not one seems to think of a piano tuner having "character" as one of his assets, but it is really one of his greatest. The conscientious, honest tuner, who does his job with a view to securing future patronage is wholly different from the tuner who thinks that the way to get business is to make it through crooked tricks of the trade. And beware of the tuner who tickles your vanity with assurances that your forty year old square piano has a "magnificent tone and brilliant," when you know he is lying and that your old square was obsolete twenty years ago.

ONLY TWO DIVISIONS

To the average person there are just two kinds of music, the kind he likes and the kind he does not like. There are individuals and organizations working to stimulate interest on British music. Others are advocating the use of more French or Russian or Italian or Spanish or American music. These efforts have their place. The champions of the music of the various nations have a useful mission to perform.

But in the long run the quality of the individual composition or the public's fancy for it will determine its use. No music deserves recognition simply because it is the work of a citizen of a certain nation. All the admonition, all the publicity, all the coaxing in the world is not going to popularize music that has not within itself the power to win popularity.

If a family wants a record of "The Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's Messiah for their phonograph they care not whether that oratorio is French or Italian or Serbian or Czecho-Slovak. It is the Hallelujah Chorus they want.

If a person goes to a concert to hear "Il Trovatore," "Madame Butterfly," "Pagliacci" or "The Mikado" he does not stop to think of the opera's nationality. It is of little concern to him whether Verdi or Puccini or Leoncavello or Sullivan is classified as a hottentot or a white man.

The average person usually does not like oratorios and hage symphonies. He does not crave marches and abhor opera. He does not praise the old masters and damn the modern or ultra-modern. The composer's nationality does influence some people's like and dislikes but generally speaking to the public music is the universal language—the only esperanto. The public divides music into two classes—and just two—what it likes and what it does not like.

CHILDREN AND THE PHONOGRAPH.

The possibilities of the phonograph as a developer of appreciative music study is recognized by many public school authorities and vocal teachers. By means of the reproducing instrument the hearing sense is at once arrested with the result that music is coming rapidly into its own. There is no better tonic for appreciative music study and a neglected ear than listening to carefully selected records. For children of kindergarten age music should be of an entirely recreative nature, such as merry nursery tunes, and the aim should merely be the awakening of the child's imagination and of his rhythmic sense by means of an attractive musical stimulus, to which he should be allowed to give himself up in unrestrained enjoyment. By degrees, he will begin to realize such fundamental matters as regularity of pulse, the "trend of the phrase," and the periodical recurrence of musical ideas. Afterwards comes the more intellectual process of knowing what happens. He becomes acquainted with differences of pitch and time, always by means of observing what takes place in the music to which he listens; he learns gradually how such things are expressed in notation, and a matter of great importance—his own creative powers are aroused and encouraged, not with the object of breeding a race of composers—which would be as absurd—but in order that the power to originate, however feebly, may be developed in him and so afford him another and and most valuable means of self expression. When the ear is thus trained to observe and to apprehend at an early age, the possibilities of development along these lines are almost endless.

MUSICAL BRIEFS

There is no more certain way of spoiling a good voice than by singing loudly.

The ability to sing a simple passage of music at sight, without any accompaniment is something that every choir member should strive to acquire.

Brahms and Beethoven both had a brusque manner. Brahms had the misfortune to have a bitter tongue, though his friends over-looked that, because they knew behind it all was great nobility of character.

Those who know Chopin's music realize the difference in expression of his national dances. The Polonaises Mazurkas, and Nocturnes differ so much from one another, yet they all express one distinct national feeling. Chopin poured forth his melody spontaneously.

The story is told that once the Kaiser, now plain William Hohenzollern asked the great Joachim to teach two of his sons the violin. Joachim replied: "Your majesty, I fully appreciate the honor of teaching your sons, but I am very sorry to say that all my time is so taken up with talented students that I find it impossible to accept your majesty's offer." Ever after that time Joachim was no longer a favorite with the Kaiser.

"I trust the time has come when all children will be taught music exactly as they are taught to write and spell," writes a teacher, "but first and foremost, they will be taught music in as commonsense a manner as they are taught spelling and geography. All school studies must be perfectly learned or rank is not maintained; that explains the present problem of the piano teacher. Children study music and practice alone, there is no competition, no comparison, no companionship in their music study Music will always be the most difficult study for children as long as it is done alone. Class lessons, and class work is the ideal way for children from seven to nine. When private lessons are given, if mothers cannot or will not supervise the practice, either three lessons weekly should be the minimum, or a practice teacher should supplement the teacher's work."

TORONTO TO NEW YORK CITY

GRANT OF $5,000 FOR NEW BRIDGE

DOMINION RAILWAY BOARD VOTED THAT AMOUNT THIS MORNING.

Another grant toward the cost of the Hunter street Bridge has been assured—this time from the Dominion Railway Board in consideration of the fact that the structure will change the C.P.R railway crossing at the Quaker Oats from a level to an overhead one.

The Railway Board met at the City Hall, Toronto, at ten o'clock this morning, when Ald Phelan and City Solicitor Widdifield were present in behalf of the grant toward the project. The Board examined the plans for the bridge, showing the proposed alteration in crossing grade, and they approved of the same. The commissioners awarded the city the maximum grant of $5,000.

COULD HAVE SAVED THOUANDS OF DOLLARS

BROWN SORRY HE DIDN'T KNOW ABOUT TANLAC SOONER—GAINS 17 POUNDS.

"If I had had Tanlac five years ago I could have saved not only a world of suffering but more than a thousand dollars besides," said W. F. Brown, of 132 Yorkville avenue, Toronto, Ont., Canada, recently.

"I had a terrible case of stomach trouble," he contiued, "and would bloat up with gas something awful. I would suffer with agonizing pains in my stomach and was never free from headaches. For nine months I was on a light diet, and became so weak that I could hardly dress myself; I lost weight until I was little more than skin and bones, and was so nervous I could hardly sleep. I took every kind of treatment and spent months in hospitals, but only got worse, and was so bad off that I was given up to die.

"One day my brother-in-law suggested that I try Tanlac, and I did so, and I am feeling a thousand times better. I have easily gained seventeen pounds, my appetite is fine, the gas and those awful pains have disappeared, and I can eat most anything without suffering afterwards."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

ART EXHIBITION OPENS TODAY

SPLENDID ARRAY OF DRAWINGS BY PUPILS IN LOCAL SCHOOLS.

The exhibition of pictures at the Central Schol is draw from the daily work of the Peterborough schools throughout the year. It has been carefully arranged by Miss McRae, the supervisor of art for the city, who considers no trouble too great in showing and explaining the work of the various classes. It is open p.m. today and tomorrow. from 4 to 6 p m and from 7 to 10

"Art is one form of expression, consequently the teacher must have two objects in view, first to train the child's mind to concentrate on forthy objects, and secondly, to assist his hand and eye to set these down in as beautiful or artistic a manner as possible." With these aims in mind the arrangement of the work becomes very easy to understand. The primer classes are engaged in freearm work, in cutting and with charcoal and crayons. The ruler and the guide lines are consigned to the limbo of the past, and children are trained to draw direct from nature.

In the Junior II. class the children begin to mix their own colors, using red, yellow and blue as bases. Not until the Junior III. is reached is there any attempt made in pencil work, as the lines are too fine for the unsteady hands of the youngsters.

From the Senior III. on design work is taught, based on flowers and insects, which are conventionalized. In this clas sthere is a collection of sixteen pictures illustrating the Heroine of Vercheres In the Junior IV. shading is first atempted.

What probably will strike the visitor as one of the most outstanding features of the exhibition is the systematic manner in which the boys and girls are helped from stage to stage of the subject, which is the first one that our remote ancestors of th eStone Age learned, and which should never have been the nightmare that it was to many pupils under the old system of taeching.

Babe Fell Forty Feet to Pavement

AND ESCAPED WITHOUT EITHER BROKEN BONE OR ABRASION.

New York, June 4.—An amazing adventure befell baby Virginia, fifteen-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Delaci, No. 2, 229 Southern boulevard, this afternoon.

Mrs. Delaci placed the infant on a couch near the rear window of her apartment on the second floor and went to the bathroom to prepare a bath for the little one. The baby left alone, climbed to the window ledge, pushed open the shutters, and fell to the rear court pavement, a distance of over forty feet There was no obstruction to break the fall, and the infant landed on the stone pavement.

The little one was not rendered unconscious, and did not even suffer any abrasions. When the distracted mother and several passers-by reached the spot they were amased to find the fallen baby cooing and gurgling with apparent delight over her adventure.

Dr. Lillian Arenbale a surgeon at Fordham Hospital, made a thorough examination of the infant and said no bones were broken, and that the child had apparently escaped without even a bruise. She regarded the case as a miracle.

Little Miss Virginia cooed and smiled throughout the examinaton. Maybe she was realizing that she had been born into the age of air conquest, wherein humanity defies the law of gravitation.

REV. W. H. WHITE OBJECTS TO WORD

TERM PARODICAL BROUGHT IN TO DISREPUTE BY FAMOUS MR. BUMBLE.

Toronto.—At the meeting of Toronto Synod notice of an apparently harmless motion presented by the Diocesan Finance Commissioner, Mr. R. W. Allin, stirred up a tempest during the session. The resolution read as follows: "That the Synod strongly recommends the Vestry of every parish in the diocese, in accordance with its powers under the Church Temporalities Act and the Canons, to appoint at its annual meeting a committee, to be known as the Executive Committee or by some similar name, which shall be consulted by and cooperate with the incumbent and wardens in and respecting all matters connected with the finances, temporalities and well-being of the parish, and that the lay representatives of the congregation shall be ex - officio members of this committee."

Although bitterly opposed on many grounds the motion was finally accepted with alterations. The trouble was that many of the clergy and laymen thought that his committee was to usurp the functions of the wardens and rector and that it would obtain full control of the parish. Chancellor Worrell gave it a good word and said that it came in response to the desire of the various parishes for self-government by allowing such a committee in each church of a parish.

The Bishop of Toronto suggested that the name be altered, as a starter, to the "Parochial Committee." This was opposed on several counts. Rev. W. H. Whyte, Peterboro, objected to the word parochial coming into the thing. He said that it reminded people of Mr. Bumble, in Dickens' "Olive Twist," Mr. Bumble having brought the word into ill-repute by frequent use of it. Canon Davidson wanted it to be known as the "Executive Board." He thought that this sounded more like the large companies and introduced a spirit of big business.

Speaking in Favor of Change

Other clergymen and laity spoke in favor of the board, explaining that it was necessary in order to help stir up interest in the work of the Church. It was declared that Mr. Allin "had accomplished more in one year of his work than the whole Church had in ten years" in the way of financing. For this reason they thought his suggestions should carry weight. The Bishop finally requested that the scheme be tried for four or five weeks, and not be put into the form of a canon until found good. It was finally passed, after the addition "and further, that the Executive Committees of the several congregations of any parish should meet together to deal with the joint interests of all congregations in the parish at stated intervals." The matter of the name was lost sight of in the discussion.

After some discussion it was decided to leave the motion by Archdeacon Ingles, which advocated changing the name of the Church to the "Anglican Church of Canada," to the parishes. It will be referred back to them before being sent to the General Synod. This is generally felt to be the end of this motion.

RANDALL CLARKE WAS FOUND DEAD

Consecon, June 5.—What appears to have been a deliberate and cold-blooded murder was revealed in the finding yesterday morning of the body of Randal Clarke, a fisherman, about fifty years of age, on the road near Consecon, Prince Edward County, shot through the heart.

Clarke was engaged in fishing operations on Consecon Lake and was a member of the fishing colony which covers the beach with huts and small fish houses. When last seen alive he was at Consecon village on Monday evening, and is said to have left that place with about one hundred dollars in his pocket, the proceeds of sales of fish. He was never seen alive again after disappearing down the lonely road leading to the beach. His dead body was found at five o'clock Tuesday morning by John Weekes, who was taking milk to the factory. The body was found lying on the road about one mile south of Consecon, death having resulted from several bullet wounds, one of which passed through the heart, another shattering an arm.

It is said that shots were heard in that locality shortly after nine o'clock.

From all information available there was no clue yesterday as to who fired the shots.

The hundred dollars with which Clarke left Consecon were said to be missing when the body was found.

THEY ACTED in TIME

During 1917, twenty men, all hale and hearty insured their lives in the Sun Life of Canada. All paid the first premium, none lived to pay the second.

They paid a total of $5078.26 and their beneficiaries received $74,212.60.

The records for 1918, owing to the ravages of the "Flu," will show the above record repeated many times, and all such acted in time.

What are YOU going to do about it? Act in time or be forever TOO LATE.

The Sun Life of Canada paid these claims willingly and promptly and will do the same for your loved ones IF YOU ACT IN TIME.

UNITED EFFORTS NEEDED TO SAVE THE SITUATION

United States Business Man Calls on All Classes to Help—Same Conditions Apply to Canada.

The following review of the situation in Europe and the co-operation that is required to save it applies with equal force to Canada as to the United States.

To meet the tremendous demands that are being and will be made upon America will call for the strongest united efforts on the part of labor, industry, agriculture, capital and government, according to Thomas E. Wilson, president of Wilson & Co., who arrived on the Rotterdam in New York recently. Mr Wilson has spent the last two months making a personal investigation of the food situation in Europe. He states that it will be a long time before any of the countries affected by the war are again on a normal basis, and that the conditions with regard to food production are peculiarly acute.

"The problems of the American people in this grave situation are many and the responsibilities are tremendous," Mr. Wilson said. "I believe the solution rests largely with us. No country in the world today is so well equipped to meet the situation. The American farmer must undertake for humanity's sake the production of grain and meat animals to the maximum. In doing so he is serving civilization and himself. The markets of the world are his if the situation otherwise is intelligently handled. Some basis of credit must be worked out, different from anything now existing. Many of the foreign countries canot maintain a gold basis and we must share in solving this problem. Above all, America must approach this task with a solid front—the farmer, the laborer, capital and government as well as industry generally must honestly, earnestly and seriously cooperate, otherwise failure is certain.

"There is no doubt in my mind that there is a famine in fats and meats in Germany, Austria and the Balkan states, and there is a very great shortage of such foods in the Allied countries.

"The situation that the Cetnral Powers were confronted with made it necessary for them to slaughter substantially all of their livestock in order to maintain their armies in fighting condition, and that their civil population might survive.

"The cows are worked in the fields, or on the roads, as well as milked, and they cannot be spared for meat. There is a great shortage of milk. This is an indication of the condition which exists largely through the Central Powers. They have not livestock enough to breed so that they may again build up their herds, even if no cattle were used for immediate food emergencies.

"This same condition exists of course, to a lesser degree in the Allied and neutral countries where because of the very high prices realized for fats and meats and the lack of cattle feeds their herds have been reduced to a minimum. It will be a long time before they can fully supply their own requirements, so their suffering neighbors will get little help from them.

"Our army of occupation is in splendid spirits, is being well fed and many American soldiers are sharing their food with the children and women. Great work has been done by the American organizations over there, and much credit is due them—especially to Mr Hoover for his untiring efforts to relieve the distress. Without this relief I am satisfied the conditions when known would have shocked the civilized world.

"Unfortunately no definite plans have been perfected for the continuation of this wonderful work, and without it or adequate plans to assist these people until they can begin to help themselves the results will be more appalling than the war itself."

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre To Hair

That beautiful even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred fold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

EDITOR'S MAIL

MR. ARMSTRONG'S REPLY.

Editor Review: I am asked questions in a letter in your paper of last evening with respect to the dog bylaw. I am always pleased to give information pertaining to city business so far as I can to anyone and at any time, but the questions your correspondent asks are for expressions of opinion, and I feel that I should not try to give any opinion as to what the City Council has done or should do.

Yours truly,
S. R. ARMSTRONG.

OMEMEE

(Special Correspondence.)

Omemee, June 5.—Nurse Mitchell returned to her home in Lindsay this week after a pleasant visit with Miss Edith Robinson.

Sir John Eaton was a visitor to Omemee on Tuesday.

Mrs. Lorne Howell and children, of Toronto, are the guests of Mrs. Isaac Fee.

A monster reception for the returned men of Emily and Omemee will take place in Coronation Hall on Monday, June 9th. Everybody welcome.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Cook, of Kwansieu, China, were the guests of Reeve and Mrs. Parsons last week. Mr. Cook occupied the pulpit in the Methodist Church a week ago Sunday, telling many interesting customs of the Chinese people and singing a well known hymn in their language. On Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Cook addressed the leaguers, after which a pleasant social evening was spent by all.

Mr. W. Rutherford, of Toronto, was a visitor to Omemee last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mahood, of Peterboro, were the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Bert Pogue, over Sunday.

Three figures which have become classics in the lighter side of war's horrors, stepped into real life in Omemee last week when that oft-heard of war film, "The Better 'Ole," was shown in Omemee for the first time. "Old Bill," he of the wonderful mustache; Alf and Bert, that trio of humorous characters in the trench, sketches of Captain Bruce Bairnsfather, British army, which have made the world laugh through its tears made the people of Omemee, who were fortunate enough to attend, laugh heartily. The affair was under the auspices of the Woman's Institute, but owing to the high prices set by the company, the attendance was small. Those who attended enjoyed the rare treat of listening to an excellent orchestra as well as viewing the pictures which were very clear.

Mr. Arthur McCrea, of Toronto, visited his mother and sisters on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Parsons and little daughter, Edna, spent the week-end with the parents of the former.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Crerar and daughter, of Bethany, accompanied by the Misses Rehill, of Peterboro, motored to Omemee last week and were the guests of the Misses Parsons.

The glad hand of welcome is extended to the many boys who have returned to us during the past week, viz., Ptes. Victor Johnson, Alf Eggleton, Walter Eggleton, Kenneth Griffin, Charlie Mellor, Harrison and Sergt. Burbell.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

The bright light of science is clearing up one mystery after another and making the way of the fishwife hard indeed. There are still some untutored souls mean and envious enough to insinuate that the reason one sees so many fat women attending the matinee is because they have nothing to do and hire maids to do it at that. But this is obviously untrue. These matinee followers are a busy lot. They use their muscles vigorously—their temporal and masseter muscles at least. And that is why they grow fat. If they would only rest those overworked masticating muscles one might occasionally see a beautiful woman who is not too fat. It is natural enough the comeliest women are most certain to grow fat as you may readily understand by referring to the figures below.

A healthy man who confuses golf and walking from his car to his desk with exercise requires not more than 3,000 calories per day to maintain his health and weight. A lumberjack in winter requires nearly 5,000 calories per day. But a matinee attendant requires 2,500 calories per day and consumes about 4,000 calories on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

It is a case of too many calories. A calory is the amount of heat energy required to raise one gram (one fourth of a teaspoonful) of water one degree centigrade (1.8 degrees Fahrenheit). All the warmth, energy or strength we get from food is measured in calories.

Now, then, our matinee girl nibbles a bar of milk chocolate or sweet chocolate or nut chocolate during the first act, assimilating about 250 calories, for 6 cents. That is equivalent to about one and one-third pints of milk. During the second act she chews gum—5 cents and nary a calory. In the third act she cames through with a dozen salted almonds—150 calories. After the show she feels thirsty and slakes her thirst with an ice cream soda—400 calories, 15 cents. This stimulates her appetite, so on the way home she invests in a quart of peanuts—but that's another story.

Yeast, and Violet Rays

"1. How shall I use yeast to neutralize acidity and as a laxative? 2. Is violet ray apparatus, as sold for home use, of any value as a cure for ailments of the blood and nerves?

1. It do not advise the use of yeast for such purposes. 2. No.

Callus on Sole of Foot

"Will you kindly print in your column a good home remedy for removing a callus from the sole of the foot? Mrs. M. M."

Paint the callus each night, following a thorough soaking in hot water, with a solution of thirty grains of salicyclic acid in half an ounce of flexible collodion. To forestall any villianous designs of the proofreader I repeat the formula: Salicyclic acid, thirty grains. Flexible collodion, half an ounce. Wear properly built and well fitted shoes and you will have neither corns nor calluses.

Ears Not Cotton Receptacles

"Have had a running ear for six months. The discharge recurs again as soon as I discontinue visiting the doctor for treatments. Would appreciate a word of advice, as it is very inconvenient for me to keep cotton on my ears night and day, in view of the nature of my work. G. A. C."

If there is involvement of the bone or of the mastoid cells the discharge will probably not cease until radical operation is done. Better not to keep cotton in the ears.

BARBERS NOT ONE ON EARLY CLOSING

DAYLIGHT SAVING CAUSE OF OBJECTIONS AND DISAPPROVAL.

It transpired at a meeting of the City's Legal Committee, last evening that Barbers Spence and McKay have withdrawn their signatures from the petition that Council pass a by-law forcing the closing of the barbers shops at seven o'clock all evenings except Saturdays and the nights before holidays; the time of closing on these excepted evenings to be 10 p. m.

These withdrawals mean that the petition lacks one of bearing the signatures of the necessary three-fourths of the business men whom the measure would affect. Ald. Gainey, however, thinks he can coax another signature to the document.

Another hitch in the proposition is, Council has no authority to enforce any by-law of this nature on any other time but standard. Hence minority objectors to the proposed bylaw could legally keep open to eight o'clock during the existing daylight saving scheme not sanctioned by parliament. This would defeat the object of the barbers in favor of the by-law, as they want the observance of daylight saving to continue.

This matter is left in abeyance for the present.

Rev. Mr. James and Mr. W. G. Stephenson are attending the synod in Toronto this week.

The death of Mrs. Curry at the venerable age of 96 years took place on Tuesday morning, the funeral to take place on Thursday afternoon.

HITCH IN BATHING HOUSE PROJECT

RESTRAINT AGAINST SPOT SELECTED AT LAKE STREET THREATENED.

Last even the Council's Bathing Committee interviewed Mrs. A. McDonald in an effort to persuade her to remove her objections to a bathing house being established at the end of Lake street, on the Little Lake. Committee pointed out that any nuisance she might anticipate from young people bathing at this point would be avoided by the bathing spot being under the supervision of a city official. Mrs. McDonald, however, could not see the matter in that light; and declined withdrawing her instructions to her solicitors to restrain should the project be proceeded with.

At a session of the Bathing Committee earlier in the evening, the Mayor pointed out that boys habitually bathe now in the lake at the rear of Mrs McDonald's residence and undoubtedly make a nuisance of themselves in more ways than one, especially so amongst the lumber on her adjoining mill property. All this, however, would be eliminated under proper supervision.

The committee will now ascertain the city's legal rights on this proposition, as the proposed bathing house would be on city property.

There is at present no other suitable bathing spot in sight, and the season is getting on.

At the meeting the Playgrounds Committee was represented by Mrs. R. H. Parsons, Mrs. W. R. Morris, Mr. J. W. Worth and Mr. A. G. Roberts.

Clown and Pantaloon.

According to a little book on symbolism which Lady Glenconner had privately printed for her friends, the harlequinade is of sacred origin: The ordeals through which the harlequin (who is the Unknown) and columbine (the Soul) pass are the tribulations of the spirits in the material phase of existence. The clown represents the world and the pantaloon the body. Possibly, many clowns and pantaloons all over the country are unaware of this.

Magpie Superstitions.

The magpie has a lot of stories connected with his career. What I am going to tell you seems like nonsense, but it is a straight fact. The "mag" of magpie was originally Marguerite or Margaret, simmering down into a nickname, just as a lot of human Margarets are affectionately called "Mag" by their friends. Of the magpie it is said that to see one is a sign of bad luck, two good luck, three death, four a wedding.—Exchange.

Ethel Barrymore At Grand Tonight

William Boyd, who plays the sportive young Duke of Burchester in R. C. Carton's comedy, "The Off Chance," in which Ethel Barrymore comes to the Grand Opera House for one performance tonight, June 5th, will be recalled as the likeable T. A. Buck, jr. with Miss Barrymore, in "Our Mrs. Chesney," two seasons ago a role awarded to him by the Charles Frohman Company, following his success with Margaret Anglin in "Beverly's Balance." Last season Mr. Boyd was the London policeman who falls in love with Cinderella in "A Kiss for Cinderella," with Maude Adams.

"THE HEART of HUMANITY"
Allen Holubar's Super Production
starring DOROTHY PHILLIPS

AT THE GRAND, FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

A play destined to live forever in the hearts of those who see it is "The Heart of Humanity," appearing at the Grand theatre, Friday and Saturday. No ordinary war play is this tremendous production conceived by the master mind of Allen Holubar. In fact, so skilfully is the war element handled that it is overshadowed completely by the charming romance which is the picture's main theme. Yet, scarcely secondary to this is the optimistic illumination it sheds on the great vital problem that touches on the duty owed by humanity to the children wrecked and orphaned by the war. The clarity of the titles is a delight, and this, coupled with the subtle handling of the plot, makes the production a masterpiece, for Allen Holubar, the director, knows the value of contrast and has used his knowledge with the highest degree of success. As Nanette, the character who depicts the glory accomplished by women in the war, Dorothy Phillips proves herself to be one of the screen's greatest players. Rarely have such superb heights been reached as she displays in her marvelous delineation of the role. The story moves from the pine forests of the Canadian North West to the fields of Flanders. Nanette, whose husband is fighting valiantly, is unable to resist the tiny voices of the destitute children across the sea that call to her through her own baby. Nanette leaves her little one with her husband's mother, to minister to the needs of the children of France. Many adventures await her and through them all she serves her high purpose, risking her own life to save her little charges when the town they are in is taken by the Germans. A Hun officer tries to force himself upon her, and Nanette, half crazed by her ordeal, is saved from a gruesome fate by her husband. After being decorated for valor she returns to her little son and the mother of her husband who has lost her four other sons. Christmas comes bringing with it peace and the return of the soldier to his loved ones. Mother Patricia's fortitude in bearing up beneath her terrible grief will be a help to other mothers, who, like her, have lost their loved ones. William Stowell makes a convincing hero of John Patric a and Margaret Mann is excellent as the beloved "Mother Patricia." The supporting cast is excellent, including as it does, Enrich Von Stroheim, villain supreme of the screen, Robert Anderson, who won fame as "M'sieu Cuckoo" in "Hearts of the World," Pat O'Malley and Walt Whitman. The story has been produced by an artist who does not make the mistake of playing down to his audiences, but rather up to the people who think, who, after all, are in the majority.

DIMITY AND DOTTED SWISS

Fabric Used for Blouses Which Give Most Pleasing Effect—Handkerchief Linens Used.

Dimity and dotted swiss blouses are made up in smartly tailored waists which button up to the chin and have long sleeves and tight-fitting cuffs. So many women like this sort of waist for morning wear and for sports that it is a delight to find it in these two such cool and fresh materials.

The organdie waist, which was brought out some seasons ago, never really caught on, though it was attractive in the rather vivid shades of blue, rose and canary. The organdie being so transparent, though so delightfully crisp, it looked particularly refreshing. Blouses made of it seemed practically two, as the smoothest fitting and most perfect of linings only underneath could be permitted.

It is the handkerchief linens which have supplanted these transparent beauties, and the linen leads all the charm of color which the crisp organdies presented. Many of the white linen waists have touches of color, as for instance in one smart model which has three stripes of color, one below the other and on each shoulder, these forming a sort of yoke. Very narrow frills finish the little yoke at the shoulders and trim the shallow, round collar and small cuffs.

Smocks for Girls.

The pretty little cotton smocks and frocks worn by Miss Eight-Year-Old are made smart with cross-stitching or something in brightly contrasting wool. Pale green cotton crepe de chine, for example, is trimmed with stitches of rose wool. All kinds of wool dresses have oriental effects done in coarse stitches on the pockets, collars or sash ends. Wool embroidery many times ornaments the frock, about the neck, as a substitute for the white collar worn formerly.

Egyptian Saw.

The saw appears to be the earliest tool in Egyptian history. It was found first in the form of a notched bronze knife, 5,000 years before the Christian era. There are no dated specimens until the seventh century before the Christian era, when the Assyrians used iron saws.

Telephone Tattle.

Thieves and beggars have a "cant" language of their own. When a burglar uses the phrase, "struck by lightning," he means that he was arrested by the police whilst engaged on his little job, through information conveyed through the telephone.

Great Value of Courage.

It is not clearly understood how valuable is the adjunct of courage in the man or woman, nor that, if accompanied by good judgment it is the most valuable of business assets.—John Brisbane Walker.

Real Moral Courage.

When you are so devoted to doing what is right that you press straight on to that and disregard what men are saying about you, there is the triumph of moral courage.—Phillips Brooks.

Optimistic Thought.

A man, said Talmage, never looks more dignified than when he takes a spectacle case from his pocket, opens it, unfolds a lens, sets it astride his nose and looks you in the eye.

BATTLING NELSON DISCUSSES THE WILLARD-DEMPSEY AFFAIR

Says That Rickard, the Promoter of the Bout, is a Big Man Who Can Make a Success Out of the Impossible.

(By Battling Nelson.)

Toledo, O., June 5. There is always peace after a storm, and Toledo ran true to form today. Jack Dempsey was going to rest for a week, but his conception of a good rest is different than of most human beings. This morning at 10 o'clock he went to the gymnasium and warmed up then finished by boxing ten rounds with his sparring partners. This afternoon he and his crew went fishing and swimming. There was no one at the gym to see him work, because the early boxing was unexpected and nobody was out that early.

Willard Keeps Busy.

The [illegible] champion was a pretty busy [illegible] today, although he did not get [illegible] working as he expected. He has not decided just where he will live or train, but expects to be well placed tomorrow.

Willard is a pretty wise champion and was in bed before 10 o'clock last night, believing in rest as one of the best factors toward good health. Regular habits account for Jess looking so young.

Bayview park, where the Willard-Dempsey battle takes place July 4, shows the arena well under way. It looks more like a permanent structure than a temporary affair, because it is built for durability as well as beauty. Toledoans are thinking of renaming it Rickard park in honor of Tex. You will never hear of Tex Rickard getting in bad, because of building inferior arenas like a lot of bum promoters have done. The greatest boxing promoters we ever had has the public's interest at heart just as much as his own. The general public knows that and has implicit confidence in anything Tex undertakes, although it may look like a bloomer at the start.

Praise for Tex Rickard.

Look at the first fight Tex Rickard promoted—the Nelson-Gans at Goldfield, Nev., on Labor day, 1906. When Rickard offered $34,000 for a purpose everybody said he was plumb crazy and would play to a big loser, but Tex came out with flying colors. Rickard made a nice piece of money and we really put Goldfield on the map and boosted the sale of stocks in that district more than $1,000,000 worth of advertising could have done.

Again Rickard startled the world when he outbid all other promoters for the Jeffries-Johnson match at Reno July 4, 1910. Rickard gave away more than $100,000 and drew nearly three times that much. As crazy as Rickard was supposed to be, he won out. His next adventure in the fight game was the Willard-Moran affair at New York city, where he offered an unheard of amount for ten rounds. The public and sport writers all over the country again said Rickard was nuts and had he been around Chicago many would have wanted to have sent him to Dunning to have his cranium examined. But he cleaned up.

Gave Moran Extra $10,000.

When Rickard of his own free will gave Moran close to $10,000 more than he had him signed for they all said Rickard was the biggest chump in the world. But Tex thought the extra money was coming to Moran and gave it to him.

No sooner had Rickard made known the purse he was giving Willard and Dempsey than he was again called crazy as a loon. And when he announced it would only be a twelve round match he was considered crazier than ever, but there are enough tickets sold already to make a nice profit on the match and is still over a month off and everybody knows Rickard has to pay big prices for everything he gets and in many cases he has to pay double, as well as having to contend with a lot of leeches. It all costs money, but Rickard never yet played a failure and I doubt if a man of his sterling qualities can lose. Honesty always triumphs and Rickard has that in abundance.

Manager Solomon's Men Won at Lindsay Yesterday by a Score of Seven to Four —Orientals and Veterans Tonight.

Peterborough won from Lindsay last night by a score of 7 to 4. Kirn pitched good steady ball, and except for the sixth innings, when Lindsay scored four runs, he had good support. Cherrett at shortstop played his usual quick, brilliant game, robbing the Lindsay boys of what looked several times like sure hits. "Cannon Ball" Scott weakened considerably towards the end of the game, as the score indicates. About eight hundred witnessed the game.

The teams were as follows:

Peterborough	Lindsay.
Cherrett, ss.	Stark, 3b.
Heenan, lf.	Hill, m.
Long, 1b.	Carew, rf.
Cavanah, 3b.	Coombs, 1b.
Collins, 2b.	McMann, ss.
Soden, c.	Garnett, 2b.
Swanston, rf	Langdon, lf.
S. Wade, m.	Logan, c.
Kirn, p.	Scott, p

The score by innings:

Peterborough	000012130—7
Lindsay	000004000—4

Game Tonight

Tonight the Orientals meet the War Veterans. If the latter win the two teams will be tied for third place but if the Orientals win they will be tied with De Laval for second place. The teams stand at present in the following order:

	W.	L.	Pct
Matt.-Blackwell	4	0	1000
De Laval	2	2	.500
Orientals	1	2	.333
G. W. V. A.	0	3	.000

8TH LINE BOYS VICTORS AGAIN

WIN OVER THE DOURO BOWLERS BY A MARGIN OF 183.

At the Water street alleys on Saturday night last the Eighth Line, Otonabee, team won from the Fourth pin margin. The total pinnage was: Eighth Line, 1998; Fourth Line, 1,815. For the Eighth Line E. Johnson was high with 440 for a total, while F. Kennedy was high for the Fourth Line with 449. The scores:

4th Line, Douro:

F. Kennedy	107	173	169	449
J. Allen	167	128	111	406
J. Sullivan	82	87	120	289

G. T. R. MAKES APPOINTMENTS

CHANGES IN STAFF THAT BECAME EFFECTIVE JUNE 1, ANNOUNCED.

Montreal, June 5.—Mr. J. E. Dalrymple, Vice-President, in charge of traffic, Grand Trunk Railway System, announces the following appointments effective June 1st:

Mr. R. W. Long, Division Freight Agent, Toronto, Vice Mr. L. Macdonald, promoted.

Mr. R. J. S. Weatherston, Division Freight Agent, Hamilton, Ont., Vice R. W. Long, transferred.

Mr R. W. Long, who becomes Division Freight Agent at Toronto, has occupied similar positions at Stratford and Hamilton. Born at Appin, Ont., he joined the Traffic Department of the Grand Trunk at Buffalo in 1889 and was appointed made Di- in 1889 and was appointed contracting freight agent at that point in 1897. He was made Division Freight Agent at Stratford in 1904 and Division Freight Agent at Hamilton in 1907.

Mr. R. J. S. Weatherston, appointed Division Freight Agent at Hamilton, entered the service of the Grand Trunk as clerk at Hamilton in 1893, was appointed soliciting freight agent at that point in 1902, and in the following year was transferred in a similar capacity to Toronto. Three years later he was made travelling freight agent at Ottawa. Returning to Hamilton in 1907 as chief clerk in the freight traffic offices there, his efficient work led to his being chosen for the position as division freight agent at Stratford. He held that post from 1911 until early in the present year when he was transferred to Ottawa as division freight agent.

Mr. E. J. Hilliard joined the Grand Trunk service in 1885, was appointed soliciting freight agent of the Grand Trunk and Great Eastern Fast Freight Line in 1895. District freight agent, Montreal, 1898, travelling freight agent in 1899, and has been commercial agent at Buffalo since 1901.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

GREER—GARRETT

At 11 o'clock on Wednesday, June 4th, in St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, the marriage was solemnized of Minnie Isabel, only daughter of R. W. Garrett, M. D., to Major G. Garnet Gree, M.C., C.A., M.C. The Bishop of Ontario and the Rev. A. Cecil Whalley Priest Vicar of the Cathedral being the officiating clergy. The bride entered the church on her father's arm, a dainty vision of loveliness, in her beautiful wedding gown of white satin with overdress of silver embroidered net, wedding veil falling softly over her fair face, from the crown of orange blossoms resting on her dark hair. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and sweet peas. Proceeding her up the aisle to the joyous wedding music peeling from the organ, came her bridesmaids, Miss Marion Kirkpatrick, Ottawa, wearing pink crepe de chine with over dress of figured Georgette crepe, tulle butterfly sash, and large black hat and Miss Eleanore Fiskin of Toronto, in a similar frock of yellow crepe de chine. They carried bouquets of mauve sweet peas. The chancel and choir stalls were made beautiful with quantities of ferns and lilac which filled the air with their fragrance, while on the high altar were marcissi and feathery fern the gift of the Cathedral Sanctuary Guild to the bride, who is one of its members. While the bridal party were in the vestry the organist, Mr. R. R. Harvey, played softly, the music changing into the glorious chords of Mendelssohn's wedding march, as the bride and groom came down the aisle followed by the bridesmaids and ushers. Major Clyde Scott acted as best man and the ushers were Major T. A. Kidd and Capt. E. B. Smythe of Kingston, Capt. H. D. Davidson, Toronto, and Lieut. Douglas Lawrie of Peterboro. After the ceremony the wedding party drove to the home of the bride's parents, on Johnston street, where Major and Mrs. Greer received the congratulations and hearty good wishes of the large number of guests. The house was gay with lilac and sweet peas. The bride's table with its charming decorations and its wedding cake, which she cut with her husband's sword, being the centre of attraction. When the wedding breakfast was over the bride slipped away to reappear in her travelling suit of light blue jersey cloth with hat to match and amid a shower of confetti Major and Mrs. Greer left on their wedding tour.

Mrs. R. N. Garrett was in a handsome gown of black lace over mauve silk, a black hat with touches of mauve and wore a corsage bouquet of roses and sweet peas.

Mrs. Greer, Peterboro, wore grey charmuese with Carrickmacross lace a large black hat, corsage bouquet of pink sweet peas.

Mrs. Irons, Chicago, cream net and lace hat to match.

Among the out-of-town guests, Major and Mrs. Medd, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Waddell, Mrs. C. C. Abbott of Peterboro, Mrs. K. F. Segsworth, Toronto, Mrs. S. F. Kirkpatrick, Ottawa, Mrs A. S. Forman, Montreal.

MOSCROP—HANN.

A very pretty but quiet wedding took place at All Saints' Church at 6 o'clock last evening when Arthur Moscrop, returned from overseas, was married to Miss Louisa Hann by the Rev. R. B. Grobb.

The bride entered the church on the arm of Mr. Wm. Gatfield, a long-time friend of the family, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Miss Flowers, organist of All Saints' Church.

The bride looked very charming in a white georgette crepe dress and wearing the usual bridal veil caught with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of carnations and lily-of-the valley. She was attended by her sister, Miss Matilda Hann, wearing white silk with overdress of net also carrying carnations. The little flower girl, Ella Gatfield, wore white silk with touches of pale pink, and carried a basket of lily-of-the-valley. Sergt. Fred Gant acted as best man.

After the ceremony the wedding party drove to their new home on George street, where a dainty supper was awaiting them.

The young couple left on the 9:19 G. T. R. train for a short honeymoon trip to Belleville, Kingston and points east, the bride travelling in a pearl grey suit with white hat and wearing a large white fur.

The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond pendant, to the bridesmaid a gold bar pin set with amethyst and pearls, and to the best man a tie pin. The bride received many useful and costly gifts, showing the high esteem in which she was held.

SLEPT FOR DAYS ON TREASURE

"GOVERNOR" ROBINSON'S NOVEL EXPERIENCE DURING THE AMERICAN CIVIL WAR.

How would you like to sleep for weeks on a box containing $60,000 in gold?

"Governor" John F. Robinson did it during the Civil War Period in the sixties. He not only slept on the money but he delivered it intact to his father in Cincinnati.

The Robinson's have been circus men for years—in fact John the First owned the first travelling show ever organized in the United States and his name and fame has been handed down for ninety-five years. This year the show is under the active management of John G. Robinson, a grandson of the founder and a son of "Governor Robinson," and will visit Peterborough on Saturday, June 7th.

"The story about father sleeping on the gold is a fact," said young Mr. Robinson recently. He often talks about it, the great world's war that has been raging bringing it to his mind.

"In the early days our show was drawn from place to place by horses and in 1862 my grandfather, not being well, elected to remain in Cincinnati and the show was sent south in charge of my father. It was not long until the outfit was in the battle zones and to father came stories of how both the Yankee and the Johnny Rebs were robbing trains and taking the legitimate toll of war.

"Father had been sending the profits home by railroad. He was afraid to send any more money for fear it would be stolen, consequently he had all the money changed into gold and carefully packed it into boxes that had contained canned goods. These boxes were then placed in a wagon and over them at night father laid his cot

"He accumulated some $60,000 before the return trip to the north was made and you can realize how relieved he was when he drove into Cincinnati and deposited the money in the bank."

The year following the close of the war the John Robinson circus went again into the southland and Robinson Senor, endeared himself to the people by giving a percentage of his daily profits for the rehabilitation of churches and school houses that had been damaged during battles. The elder residents of the south have passed this story down to their children and grand children and now, when the show goes south each fall, it is always given a cordial reception.

BUDGET TO-DAY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, June 5.—All eyes in Ottawa are turned towards the budget proposals which Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance, is expected to make in the Commons this afternoon. Outside of the inner circles of the Government, little or nothing is known of the nature of the tariff and other proposed changes which the budget speech will make public. However, it is well known that provision must be made for raising the immense sum of money necessary to carry on the Government of the country for the fiscal year. It is also a fact that the Cabinet has spent many days in reaching conclusions as to how best to impose taxation in the interests of the majority of the population.

The seating capacity of the temporary Commons Chamber in the museum was taxed to capacity, when Sir Thomas rose to speak this afternoon.

WEATHER FORECASTS.

PARIS WORKERS DECIDE TO KEEP UP FIGHT FOR DEMANDS

Deny That Bolshevists Are Behind Strike—More Troops Called Out—Metal Industries Are Still Far From Settlement—Labor Executive in Session.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 6.—The strike situation was stationary this morning. Transport workers at meetings held yesterday, pledged themselves to remain out until their demands were fully satisfied, and subway employes passed resolutions expressing contempt for "persons who have been insinuating that Bolshevism is behind the strike." The metal industries have made virtually no progress toward a settlement as yet. A meeting to consider the situation was held late last night by the Executive Committee of the General Labor Federation. The Prefect of Police, the principal officials and the commander of the staff of the military governor had a long conference. Several police measures were decided upon and fresh detachments of infantry and cavalry will be called.

WEST IS PLEASED WITH NEW TARIFF

MEMBERS SAY REDUCTION GOES AS FAR AS CONDITIONS PERMIT.

Ottawa, June 6.—How the western members would receive Sir Thomas White's budget excited the greatest interest after its announcement. They were canvassed in the corridors by the eastern members and discussed the subject among themselves. As a rule they were not inclined either to acept or condemn without more hesitation, or until they had secured information as to its reception west of the Great Lakes.

James Wilson, Saskatoon, said: "I consider the Government has gone farther to meet Western sentiment than any previous administration. I am sure the West will accept the proposals as the best possible under the existing conditions."

Dr. Cowan, Regina: "I am prepared to face my constituents on the proposed tariff. It goes farther in the interests of the west than any previous tariff."

Fred Thompson, Weyburn: "It will satisfy the thinking Western man, who realizes our financial position and the heavy burden the war has placed on the Dominion."

Dr. Blahe, Winnipeg: "The budget will be satisfactory to Winnipeg."

H. A. McKee, East Edmonton: "I am prepared to accept the present budget, providing the govrnement promise of a Cabinet Commission of investigation during the recess is carried out, and there is a further revision based on the confirmation they obtain."

Dr. Clark, the veteran member for Red Deer, did not care to express any definite opinion until he had further considered the proposals but said: "I believe I voice the general opinion when I give credit for hard work and honest intention on the part of the Finance Minister, to solve a difficult problem."

Messrs Headers of MacDonald and Mackay, Maple Creek, two prominent grain growers, were very guarded in their expressions. Most of the Western members would like to accept the budget as an advance toward their economic goal but they fear their inability to so convince their constituents, who are swayed by self-seeking political agitators. As a rule the Western members will prefer to accept the compromise to allying themselves to the Opposition as constituted.

"I fear the removal of 30 cents a ton on bituminous coal will seriously affect the prosperity of the Sydney Mines," declared J. D. Douglas, of South Cape Breton. "In previous days we shipped two million tons to the St. Lawrence. The reduction in duty places us in the same position as then, but it is doubtful if we can meet American competition as successfully now as we did five years ago."

Even Fraser, Welland, who represents an industrial and fruit-growing constituency, declared "The budget is satisfactory."

John Sexsmith, East Peterborough, a rural Ontario constituency, was pleased with the Finance Minister's proposals.

NEW BID FOR THE HUNTER ST. BRIDGE

COUNCIL MAY BE OFFERED ANOTHER PROPOSITION FROM MODIFIED PLANS.

One or the original tenders for the proposed new Hunter street bridge was that of the Sherwood Contracting Co. Toronto for a wide bridge of the original design, complete, for a lump sum of $283,300, coupled with this tender the company submitted a design of their own for a concrete bridge considerably modified from Mr. Barber's plans, being more open and lighter in appearance, but still retaining the large centre span. This design these contractors offered the city for use, with the asurance that its adoption would save considerable in actual costs.

On the Board of Works discarding all the lump sum tenders in favor of those on a cost plus basis the Sherwood people withdrew their tender and of course their plan. Today, however Mr. Clarke, represent this company, in interviewing some members of the Board of Works has made a tentative bid to build the bridge from their own design as above referredto, only of the narrow width as decidde by the council on a lump sum contract for $25,000 less than their original tender of $283,-3000 from Mr. Barber's plans. This means a lump sum bid of $258,300, for a narrow bridge.

It is understood that such a tender, or one even lower, is to be submitted by this company in the regular way.

BODY FOUND IN BERLIN COUNCIL

ROSA LUXEMBURG WAS ASSASSINATED BY MOB EARLY THIS YEAR.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berlin June 6.—The body of a woman found in the Landwehr canal on June 1 has been positively identified as that of Rosa Luxemburg ,the Radical Socialist leader, who, with Dr. Karl Liebknecht, was assassinated early in the year by a mob in this city. The fact that it was Fraulein Luxemburg's body was definitely established when her former secretary recognized a medallion found on her person and parts of the clothing. The remains will be buried by the side of Dr. Liebknecht.

CUNARD LINER IS AT HALIFAX

DOCKED THIS MORNING WITH OVER 35,000 TROOPS ON BOARD.

HIGH PRAISE FOR THE CANADIANS

MAJOR - GENERAL BURSTALL SAYS CONDUCT OF TROOPS WAS EXCELLENT.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Halifax, June 6 Major General Archibald Macdonnell of Alexandria, and Major General Burstall were among those arriving on the Mauretania today. The latter spoke glowingly of the behavior of the eleventh brigade of infantry through the voyage. He said further that the behavior of the Canadian troops in England and in the Continent since the armistice was signed was magnificent. Men had been killed at Kinmel but apart from these casualties the affair was comparatively unimportant.

Regarding the present industrial unrest in Canada, throughout the country he said he had no fears concerning the outcome. The same spirit which the Canadians had evidence during the service in France would compel a happy issue to the present situation.

REVOLVER EXPLODED IN THE POCKET OF SPECIAL GUARD.

Small Riot Caused, in Winnipeg, by Accidental Discharge of Firearm, but, no Unusual Demonstration Reported—General Strike Spreading in Vancouver.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, June 16—When one of Mayor Gray's civilian guards was cranking his Worship's auto yesterday, a revolver exploded in his pocket. Nobody was hurt but excitement was caused by the strikers who stood by, and they hauled the guard off to the station. When the Mayor secured his release there were further demonstrations but the arrival of the regular police quelled the incipient riot.

The strengthening of Winnipeg's police force by one thousand veterans as special constables caused an increase during the night in minor disturbances and personal encounters but no unusual demonstrations occured. Conciliation efforts were practically at a standstill, as the general strike today entered its fourth week.

Several more unions have joined the general strike at Vancouver, and coastwise shipping is almost completely tied up. The Canadian Pacific has begun arrangements to fill the places of the striking stewards with girls on their coastwise steamers. The stand taken by the newspapers at Vancouver in their refusal to permit the censorship of strike news by the tyrographical union was won for the newspapers today when the union receded from its action

Mayor Forbids Parades.

In a formal proclamation published this morning, Mayor Chas. F. Gray, ordered the stoppage of all parades and forbade the congregation of crowds on the city streets.

STICKNEY MOTORS LTD. BY-LAW CARRIED ON VOTE OF 578 TO 18

Five Hundred and Seventy-Eight Ballots For and Only Eighteen Against the Measure—Company Gets Fixed Assessment of $10,000 For Ten Years.

The Stickney Motors Limited bylaw carried yesterday by a huge majority. The result of the polling was 578 for the bylaw and only 18 against, leaving a plurality of 560 in favor of the proposition.

Three-fifths of the total number of votes polled were required to carry the measure, and with but 18 negative ballots cast, a mere 27 affirmative ballots would have made the bylaw safe. On this, the correct method of determining the results of yesterday's voting, the bylaw carried with 51 yeas to spare.

There were approximately 5,000 citizens qualified to vote on this bylaw yesterday, but the total number of ballots cast was 596. The public had been notified in the press that all entitled to vote for aldermen could vote on this question, but for all that many tenants were surprised to learn last evening that they had been qualified to have a say in the balloting yesterday. It is only a money bylaw which restricts voting to property owners.

WHY NOT SELECT JACKSON PARK?

TWO YEARS AGO a resident of this city offered to establish a public bathing place on the island in the river just above the C. P. R. bridge, and for a time it looked as if the much debated question would be finally settled. Then some of the owners of residences in Ashburnham contiguous to the proposed resort objected, as their homes would command a view of half nude figures disporting themselves in the river. Another objection was that the waters in that vicinity was contaminated by the sewage from the east side that empties into the Otonabee near that point. Anyway, the proposition fell through, and the advocates of a popular swimming place met with another disappointment.

The City Council committee that is now charged with the duty of establishing another public bathing place are meeting with difficulty at the outset in the selection of a site. The place which they had in mind can be acquired, if at all, only by overcoming the objections of householders in the vicinity who threaten legal acton against the city if the aldermen proceed according to their present program. Another objection is that the water of Little Lake is stagnant at the point in question and not at all suitable for the purpose in view.

The opposition of a householder to having a bathing beach established near his home is well founded. The logical location for such improvements is in a public park, and recent events have demonstrated the unsuitability of the bathing beach at Inverlea, where the current of the river, especially at high water, is filled with danger to the swimmers.

It has been suggested that a desirable location for a bathing beach can be found at Jackson Park, one of the city's most picturesque playgrounds. The proper amount of water for the purpose could be secured by draining the creek. The bottom of the creek could be paved and the depth of the water graded so as to suit the convenience and assure the safey of patrons of all ages. No resident in the vicinity could object. As a resort, Jackson Park leaves nothing to be desired except this suggested addition to its attractions. No such playground is complete without a bathing place, and boating facilities could be furnished at the same time by a small additional outlay. A caretaker could be provided, so that mothers of children who used the swimming place could be satisfied during their absence that no harm would befall them.

The unfortunate hitch that has arisen over the proposed site at the foot of Lake street is likely to delay the matter for another year unless the committee take steps to look for another site.

THE COST OF LIVING.

IN SPITE OF ANYTHING any parliamentary committee may do, the cost of living in Canada can never be materially reduced until the war-wasted countries of Europe are reconstructed and their normal producing powers restored. The only way in which the home market could be materially affected would be by placing an embargo on exports and permitting the Allied powers across the Atlantic to shift for themselves. No one would be likely to go the length of advocating such a selfish policy as this. Every effort of the administrative and business departments of Canada is being bent now to the extension of the foreign market for Canadian products. The national debt of the country today has reached the appalling figure of $220 per capita of the populaton. These obligations can be met only by increased production, and for this increase some outlet other than the home market must be found. That being the case, what becomes of the juvenile argument that instead of raising wages the logical measure is to reduce the cost of living?

VACATION FOR THE CHILDREN.

PROBABLY YOU ARE already planning for your vacation this summer, and it may be that your children are looking forward to the time when the schools will be closed for two months, and they, too, will be able to leave the city for a holiday. But not all the children in the city will be able to spend a week or two in the country. For the benefit of these the Playgrounds Association has again made an appeal to the public.

The Playgrounds Association is composed of some of the best and most public-spirited citizens, men and women, in Peterborough. For several years they have been engaged in this work on behalf of the rising generation, carrying on year after year in spite of discouragements and apathy on the part of those whose co-operation is sought.

This year the Association have reduced their appeal to a system. They ask that all those residents who are able to take a vacation donate at least fifty cents for the benefit of those who are not so fortunate. If this were done, funds ample for the needs of the Association would be available without distress to anyone.

There are, it is estimated, over one thousand children in this city who will not have a vacation unless it is provided through the efforts of the Association. During the two hot months of the year that the schools are closed they will be forced to risk life and limb by running unguarded around the streets. Even if they go to the city parks, they are on all sides confronted with the sign, "Keep off the grass," officials apparently living under the delusion that the grass, rather than the children, is entitled to a show for existence. Wherever they play their sports will not be supervised, and games, as well as studies, to achieve the best results, should be directed by an expert.

The Playgrounds Association is really an extension of the school system and is approved by the Minister of Education himself. The idea is to keep the school grounds open during the vacation for practically the same number of hours as the schools themselves are operated during ten months of the year. Children who by force of circumstance are unable to leave the city, can spend several hours of daylight in these playgrounds, where they will be just as safe as they are while attending school, where they will be practically under the same supervision. There will be at each of the grounds selected an overseer for the boys and another for the girls, and the children will be taught to play systematically and with an equal chance to participate assured to every one. The timid will be encouraged and the weak protected.

It is not the children alone who are benefited by the work of the Association. The mothers are relieved of anxiety while their offspring are so engaged during the vacation, realizing as they do that the little ones are just as safe as they are while attending school. If they are forced to play on the streets they are a constant source of worry to the parents.

Fifty cents is a small donation for so worthy an object. The amount would not be missed out of the average sum set aside for a vacation, but fifty cents will furnish at least one thousand children with a holiday and will relieve scores of mothers from hours of anxiety.

A WORD TO DEFAULTERS.

THE MILITARY POLICE never sleep, but night and day are on the job. The results of their vigilance are manifested in the frequent arrests in all parts of the country. In this district defaulters are still being run down and haled into court. In all the cases heard in this city there has been only one acquittal recorded. The defaulter, once taken, has no hope for escape.

At least some measure of leniency has been extended to defaulters who have given themselves up and offered ot pay the penalty. The police officers have used their influence on behalf of this class, and announce that the same course will be adopted in the case of all who surrender themselves.

Why, then, do not the defaulters who are still at large take the hint and avail themselves of the opportunity? They cannot hope to escape. It may be next week or next year, but one thing is certain, the military police will get them, eventually unless they leave the country. Why not end the suspense and save the public funds by surrendering? There are extenuating circumstances in many of these cases, and the police magistrate here will take such circumstances into consideration, just as he did the other day when he practically discharged a young man who at the time the call was issued was too ill to respond.

THE REAL BOLSHEVISTS.

HARRY F. ATWOOD, an American speaker and writer on industrial problems, in a recent address, said:

> "The four most dagerous groups of Bolshevists in the country are, first, a large percentage of our so-called educators. And the next most dangerous group are the men who are babbing about industrial problems from the pulpit without knowing anything about them, instead of being well grounded on the Bible. And the next most dangerous group are newspaper men; I mean a large percentage of them, who, for circulation, etc., are willing to appeal to the mob-mind, and who are very reckless about printing the truth or moulding public sentiment in the right direction, the thing for which the Press was really created; and the fourth most dangerous set, much beyond the ditry feed, long haired fellows, who try to make us think they are Bolshevists—are seventy per cent. of the men in public life who do not adhere to the Constitution and are constantly playing to popular fallacies and appealing to the mob-mind and making a class appeal."

According to this line of reasoning, based on opinion rather than on actual fact, the eminent statesmen who drafted the terms of the peace treaty and drew up the covenant of the League of Nations, which provides for a universal eight-hour law and which recognizes the right of workingmen to organize and have their unions recognised, are the arch-Bolshevists of the day.

Trade unions are not faultless and are often tyrannical, but they are, nevertheless, because of their steadying influence, a valuable asset to the industrial life of the country, and, when sanely led, a buffer against anarchy.

HIGHER STIPENDS FOR MINISTERS

CLERGYMEN AND MISSIONARIES FEEL PINCH OF HIGH COST OF LIVING.

Hamilton, June 6.—At the general assemble, the Board of Finance reports contributions of -906,099, increase $41,378, an average giving of $2.64 per communicant. The entire budget revenue was $1,006,436(a deficit of $193,564. The amount from all sources for maintenance of missionary, educational and benevolent work was $1,389,739.

"That the budget givings of congregations have increased $302,734, or more than 50 per cent. since 1911, the year of the adoption of the budget plan, is highly encouraging," says the finance report.

It is recommended by the Finance Committee that an honorarium of $500 be granted each year to the retiring moderator.

Ministerial Stipends.

The Statistics and Finance Committee, reporting -2,034,983 raised by congregations for salaries, increase $129,199, says—"Would it not be well if every congregation at its annual meeting were to read over the call if it extended to its minister, and ask if it has been true to its original promise and is now paying to his suitable maintenance as God has prospered them." Contributions average $4.90 per family and $2.73 per communicant.

The number of families reported for 1912 was 190,535, an increase of 4,872. The number of the communicants 343,453, increase 2,150. The number added on profession of faith was 14,829, a decrease of 2,563, and those added by certificate was 14,239. Those removed by certificate, death or otherwise, were 22,618, a decrease of 526. The number by death or otherwise was 12,054. The number added by certificate from other Presbyterian churches was 1,219, from other denominations, was 1,377. The number of elders reported is 11,668, an increase of only 135, and of managers 16,745, an increase of 2,218.

Foreign Missions Deficit.

At the last Assembly the Foreign Mission Board reported a deficit of $21,313; this year the deficit is $49,105.14, the difference being due to the cost of exchange, especially on money sent to China. Had sixteen Honan missionaries not been in France, supported by the Government, the deficit would have been $20,000 more.

Foreign mission estimates are $499,654, while the total receipts for 1918 were $368,731.20.

The Presbyterian Church in Canada has assumed responsibility for the evangelization and enlightenment of 15,000,000 heathen, viz: 250,000 East Indians in Trinidad and British Guiana, 3,000,000 East Indians in Central India, 1,900,000 Koreans in Choosen and Manchuria, 1,200,000 Chinese in North Formosa, 1,500,000 Chinese in Canton Province, 8,000,000 Chinese in Honan Province, 20,000 Chinese in Canada.

70 More Needed.

Trinidad, 2 evangelistic, 2 educational; British Guiana, 1, 2; Gwalior, 1; Central India, 9, 2, 2 medical; Korea, 9, 6, 3; Formosa, 4, 2, 2; South China, 3, 2, 2; Honan, 9, 2, 3; Shanghai, 1 educational.

Due to cost of living, "from every (foreign) field word has come that missionaries cannot live on their salaries. Some are falling into debt." A bonus for two years, estimated at $19,258, has been granted.

"The German type of militarism still exists in Japan alone," says a foreign mission report, which says also: "Tutored by the Germans before the war, China has been drifting, if not steering, towards militarism; a peril best averted by evangelization."

PERLEY TO RESIGN

Lloyd Harris Mentioned as His Successor.

Ottawa, June 6.—Sir George Perley is returning to Canada in July and will remain in the Dominion. He will resign as Canadian High Commissioner. Sir George Perley went to England as Acting High Commissioner shortly before the outbreak of the war at the time of the death of Lord Strathcona.

Two men are mentioned as possible successor, Huntley Drummond, the well known Montreal financier and business man, and Lloyd Harris, who has made such a notable success as chairman of the Canadian Trade Mission in England.

A new library has been opened at Madoc.

ALIEN QUESTION AT WINNIPEG

UKRANIANS CLAIM THAT THEY WERE LOYAL DURING THE WAR.

Ottawa, June 6. The alien question is evidently much to the fore in Winnipeg, where the returned soldiers feel keenly on the employment by many firms of aliens. The veterans have been notified that the citizens' committee have unanimously passed two resolutions. The first is to the effect that the Trades and Labor Council is to exhibit its records to a board of inquiry composed of veterans to ascertain how many aliens are on the rolls of the union. The second is to the effect that all employers should be urged to replace aliens by returned soldiers, and that the Trades and Labor Council place itself on record as to what action it proposes to take in respect to aliens now in the union.

Ukrainians Uneasy.

The Ukrainians of Western Canada are deeply concerned over the alien agitation in Western Canada and fear they are to be deported wholesale. Representations on the subject are being made to the Government by W. Kraemer, a Ukrainian barrister of Winnipeg and Edmonton, on behalf of his people. He claims that the Ukrainians lost more men in the war than France, and that it was after Petrograd had made peace that the Ukrainians kept up the flight and compelled Germany to maintain half a million men in Ukrainia, which helped the Allies materially at the most critical stages of the war. He claims his country was thoroughly loyal to the war. He has been assured that the four hundred thousand Ukrainians will not be deported, excepting those who were disloyal during the war.

NEWSPAPER GETS MEDAL

Milwaukee Journal Honored for Combating Hun Influence.

Hamilton, June 6.—The Joseph Pulitzer medal, awarded each year by the Columbia School of Journalism for "the most disinterested and meritorious public service rendered by any American newspaper during the year," will be bestowed upon the Milwaukee Journal for its campaign against German influence in Wisconsin.

The Pulitzer prize of $1,000 "for the American novel published during the year which shall best represent the wholesome atmoshere of American life and the highest standard of American manners and manhood," was awarded to "The Magnificent Ambersons," by Booth Tarkington.

In indorsing their selection the advisory board of the school said of the Journal:

"It was one of the first American newspapers, if not the first, to demand the recall of the charter of the National German-American Alliance after having given in its columns ample evidence of the nefarious activities of that organization. It has consistently urged that foreign language instruction be removed from the graded school curriculum and that such study be reserved for the high school. In this it has been successful. It has agitated against the Germanizing influence of the German language theatre and has urged with success that plays in German at least be kept off American boards until peace is signed."

Help Your Boy Adjust Himself to Peace

EDISON RE-CREATIONS

Suppose you'd spent the past one, two or three years in hurdling machine gun nests—or potting submarines—or swooping over the German lines in an airplane; wouldn't the old home seem a little quiet, almost dull after you'r been back a few days? Quite a problem to adjust yourself to the humdrum life of peace after gambling with death daily for many months. And that's the problem which faces your boy. You can help solve it. Give him

MR. BEATTY AND CONCILIATION

(Toronto Times)

Speaking at Nelson B.C., recently Mr. E. W. Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, told of what may be achieved in the settlement of labor disputes when the representatives of both sides get together in a conciliatory frame of mind. Last summer the railways were threatened with very serious labor troubles; wage adjustments were made and rates were raised, but the unrest did not entirely disappear. The railways, in conjunction with the government and the labor unions, adopted a course quite without precedent in this country. Their heads sat round a table, discussed methods of settlement, and in the end constituted what is known as "Railway Board of Adjustment No. 1," composed of six labor union representative and six railway executives. The board was empowered to adjust all disputes arising between the companies and their employes, and to make those adjustments binding upon the parties concerned. In the event of failure to agree an outside and independent referee with a casting vote was to be called in.

Whether or not it was because the number of this gentleman would have been 13, thirty-two main disputes were cleared up without such intervention. Any one of these disputes might have precipitated a strike, but all were determined by the board. In no case was there an absence of agreement and in no case have either the executive or the men complained that substantial justice was not done. "The reason," said Mr. Beatty, "for the extraordinary success of this tribunal, which was formed to exist during the period of the war only, but which I hope will continue long after peace has been declared is clear. It was composed of men determined to see that right was done; men who respected their colleagues on the board and themselves; men who were actuated by the spirit of adjustment In no case has the board ever forgotten its judicial attitude nor has there been any evidence of feeling on either side in the course of its deliberation. It is not for me to suggest what measures would be appropriate for industries, but I can assure you that the working of the Railway Board of Adjustment No. 1 can be looked to with great satisfaction and I should think with some advantage by all those who have to deal with existing labor conditions."

Mr. Beatty's impressive statement is worthy of all attention from capital and labor, as well as from the Dominion and Provincial Governments. An enormous boon would be bestowed upon the community if some such means as that here outlined could be put in force in every industry throughout the Dominion. The increases in wages won by railway employes under the joint conference system should dispose Labor Unions generally in favor of such a system. The Railway Board of Adjustment No. 1 has carried out in large measures the principle of the Whitley Councils in Great Britain. We may hope that the Government Commission, which is now concluding its survey of industrial conditions, will recommend the general adoption of the principle by employers and employes. The critical experience of the last few weeks must have convinced both labor and capital that some means must be found for getting together of Canadian industries are to be kept alive and lifted to normal prospecity.

LINDSAY MAN IS STATE DEPUTY

L. J. O'CONNOR ELECTED TO POSITION BY KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS.

Kingston, June 5.—Ontario State Council of Knights of Columbus, which has been in session here for the past two days, ended last night with a dinner. Port Arthur and Fort William were jointly chosen as meeting places of the next convention. Officers elected were: Mr. L. J. O'Connor of Lindsay, who for ten years was treasurer, elected as state deputy; John Boyd, Windsor, state secretary; R. J. Jeffrey, Arnprior, state treasurer; T. F. Battle, Niagara Falls, state advert, and L. Ginace of Penetanguishene, state warden.

At last night's session of the convention, the following resolution was adopted: "Resolved, to proceed with the organization and incorporation of a nation-wide corporation for social service work among the men and young men of the country."

The power to be asked would include the right to acquire land and accept gifts to carry on social service work among the men and boys of the country, membership to be open to persons of all denominations. The matter will be further taken up, and the name for the organization was suggested as Young Men's Catholic Institute.

Northern Liberal Association met at North Bay.

FARM LOANS for SOLDIERS

How Everyone Can Help

THE Government has developed a liberal and broad plan to help soldiers settle on farms. It is securing land. It is granting substantial loans. It is obtaining advantageous prices on equipment, implements, building materials and live stock. It is providing agricultural training and farming supervision.

That is as much as the Government itself can do.

But the plan needs more. It needs a community spirit of co-operation.

Already Provincial Governments, Universities, Farmers' Associations, and Veterans' Associations are giving valuable assistance. Many manufacturers and sellers of farm supplies have agreed to allow the soldier settlers special prices. Many successful farmers have willingly worked on Qualification Committees which have to pass on the applicants. Men who have had experience in lending money on farm property are serving on Advisory Loan Committees, judging land values.

But even such practical assistance is not enough. In each community farmers can be of real service to the soldier settler. They can give him advice about local conditions. They can lend him an extra horse or plough, give him a day's help at seeding or harvest time, and extend to him that friendly, neighborly, respectful spirit which he deserves.

In this way Canada is performing a double duty. It is discharging, as far as possible, the debt we owe to our soldiers; and it is adding to the country's chief industry a body of competent, willing producers.

Full information about lands and loans for soldiers will be sent on request to the Provincial Superintendent, Soldier Settlement Board, 32 Adelaide Street East, Toronto, Ont.

Making Saving Attractive

Perhaps you have never been strong on saving.

You COULD save a little, but——

If you knew you could get 4½% on every $4.00 you saved, wouldn't that tempt you?

Well, then—that is what War Savings Stamps will enable you to do.

If you find it hard to save $4.00 at a time because the quarters slip away unawares, Thrift Stamps will help you.

You can buy a Thrift Stamp for 25 cents, and when you have sixteen, you can exchange them for a War Savings Stamp, for which you will be paid back $5.00 in 1924.

By doing this you will have become an investor! And you can go on building up that investment every time you save another $4.00. The odd cents pay the accrued interest.

HORSES DYING AT INGERSOLL

EXCESSIVE HEAT IS FATAL TO EQUINES IN THAT DISTRICT.

Ingersoll, June 6 — Throughout the surrounding districts horses have been dying daily since the beginning of the present heat wave, and the list has grown until the situation is unusually alarming.

The deaths during the last eight or ten days will probably aggregate 40, and the farmers, already worried over the delay on their seeding operations, have had matters complicated by the danger to which they and their horses have been exposed on account of the almost unprecedented heat. The majority of horses that have died in this district were taken to the fertilizer factory here. On one day, soon after the beginning of the hot spell ten dead animals were received. On another day eight bodies were received, all in each case having died from the extreme heat.

Every succeeding day has added its quota to the list. Today, it was stated, five calls had been received at the factory to send out for the bodies of horses. Some farmers since the situation became so serious have hesitated to work their horses the usual number of hours.

Yesterday one large draft horse valued at probably $250 which was not taken to the field until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, dropped in the traces and was dead in a few minutes. There have been many similar cases. Among the victims have been many of the finest horses of this district.

EIGHTY KILLED IN EXPLOSION

FULL DETAILS OF GHASTLY TRAGEDY IN MINE TUNNEL YESTERDAY.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 6.—Seventy-eight workers were killed and 31 were injured at the Baltimore No. 2 tunnel of the Delaware and Hudson Company, yesterday. A car of black powder attached to a train of cars on which the men were riding to their chambers in the mine exploded. An electric motor drew the cars. The trolley wire broke and sparks ignited the powder. Men were blown everywhere, but most of the deaths were caused by fire and suffocation.

The accident occurred shortly before seven o'clock. A train of empty cars was sent to the mouth of the tunnel to take the men into the chambers. One hundred men piled into the cars, which were drawn by an electric motor. Near the end of the train was a car of black powder.

Flames Cause Greatest Loss.

When 200 feet in the tunnel, the trolley wire broke and fell. Sparks ignited the powder and instantly there was an explosion that sent the bodies of men flying in all directions. The force was so terrific that it was heard throughout the greater part of the city.

Flames caused the greater loss of life, many of the bodies being burned to a crisp. Other men who were burned and were trying to reach safety died of suffocation.

"When rescuers reached the tunnel there were dead and dying scattered everywhere. The injured were rapidly removed, sent to hospitals as quickly as ambulances could be provided and the dead were brought out and placed in tiers on the green.

Joy Turns to Despair.

Doctors and nurses were somewhat late in reaching the scene. This was because many of them were abed when the accident happened. Hospitals quickly filled and morgues were filled to overflowing.

East End last night was the scene of great gaiety. That section of the city welcomed home boys from the 311th Field Artillery. Bands were out, flags were flying, red fire burned, people laughed and shouted. Within 12 hours all was changed, many homes being made sad. Some of the sodiers had their joy turned into despair. Their fathers were among the dead.

Death List Grows.

The death list is rapidly growing. As the bodies are removed from the mine, living and dead, they were piled on the green about the mine.

Many of the injured lived but a short time. Hundreds of women, men and children, gathered about the tunnel. Shrieking and crying, they lifted the blankets from the men. They were terrified at the sight. Women fainted, men lost their nerve and children ran away in fright. The bodies of scores have been removed to the morgues. There the work of identification is being carried out with little success.

MORE MACHINES TO SAVE LABOR

MANUFACTURERS OF UNITED STATES PLAN MEETING IN NEW YORK.

New York, June 6.—All manufacturers of mechanical handling machinery and equipment and accessories in the United States are invited to attend the coalition meeting of the Material Handling Machinery Manufacturers' Association which will be held at the Hotel Astor, Wednesday, June 11, morning, afternoon and evening.

This includes, manufacturers of cranes, winches and hoists, elevators, gravity and power conveying machinery and apparatus, industrial trucks, tractors and trailers, bulk handling machinery, and all makes of equipment and accessories such as storage batteries, bearings, ropes for hoists, buckets, electric controllers and apparatus, etc.

Advertising managers of the companies manufacturing these products are also invited to hold a preliminary conference at the Hotel Astor in the evening of June 10, at 8 o'clock, at which time it is planned to form an Advertising Council of the Material Handling Machinery Manufacturers.

Among the speakers for the day meeting is James H. Collins, special writer of business articles, and [illegible] Holley, director of the bureau of commercial economics.

A general forum discussion will be conducted in the afternoon. All manufaturers will be asked to participate. The discussion will take up the subjects of ways and means for promoting a more general knowledge of the great economies which may be effected through the use of mechanical handling equipment, the tremendous value to human beings in conserving physical energy through the use of mechanical handling, the bearing which modern machinery has on the subject of foreign trade and kindred topics.

FORD MAKES HIS COUNTER CHARGES

SAYS THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE WAS PRO-GERMAN IN LEANINGS.

Mount Cemens, Mich., June 6. — Depositions from officials of the Standard Oil Co. and the International Harvester Co. were among those introduced today in the libel suit of Henry Ford against the Chicago Tribune. Editorials which the plaintiff contends show pro-Germanism on the part of the Tribune also were read by counsel.

The depositions were from Frederick David Asche, who was a director of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey at the time of publication of the alleged libelous editorials headed "Ford Is An Anarchist," and who since 1917 has been vice-president of the company; Milton M. Eames, assistant secretary of the company; Arthur F. Corwin, who was vice-president of the Penn-Mex Fuel Co. in 19'5; President Harold F. McCormick, of the Internation Harvester Co., who was vice-president of the corporation in 1916; George A. Ranney, secretary and treasurer of the company, and Mrs. Elinor M. Patterson, part owner of the Tribune.

War With Mexico.

The depositions of the officials of the two big corporations were deemed pertinent to the suit by the plaintiff in connection with his charge that the Tribune wanted war with Mexico because it would benefit the Harvester Co. in obtaining sisal from Yucatan and the Standard Oil Co. in the matter of Mexican oil. The plaintiff charged that a distant relationship between Harold F. McCormick and Colonel R. R. McCormick, one of the defendants, influenced the Tribune's policy.

Harold F. McCormick deposed that Col. R. R. McCormick was distantly related to him. He denied any influence or correction in Tribune affairs, or that he was consulted in any way as to Tribune policy.

TO RETAIN THE LUXURY TAXES

CONGRESS SHOWS NO INTENTION TO REPEAL THESE IMPOSTS.

Opposition to the repeal has become so formidable, it was learned today, that members of the House ways and means committee have decided not to press it at present. A canvas of the situation has convinced them that the repeal bill would meet defeat if called for action in the House at this time.

In view of the declarations of leaders of both parties for the repeal of the luxury taxes, it had been the expectation that the bill would go through with a rush. Former Speaker Cannon, of Illinois, was one of those who took a leading part in opposition to the appeal when the bill was up for consideration last Saturday. He contended that it was not proper to remove the tax on high price clothing when some of the taxes on cheaper commodities remain.

Th program of the ways and means committee had been to pass the luxury tax repeal bill first and then bring up bills repealing the soda water tax, fur and one or two other obnoxious sections of the revenue law. The blocking of the luxury tax repeal means that none of the others will be given consideration at present.

The belief of the leaders is that members of Congress will begin to hear from their constituents so forcibly that action will be possible later on.

PRAISES WORK OF PROGRESSIVE CLUB

MISS PECK RECEIVES LETTER OF THANKS FROM LIEUT. ARNOLDI.

Miss Peck, who has been so active in the interests of the Peterborough Progressive Club from the beginning has received the following letter from Lieut. Joan L. Arnoldi, who looks after the overseas end of the work:

38 Earl's Avenue Folkestone,
May 12, 1919

Miss Peck,
251 George Street
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Miss Peck:

A Carton has lately come in from the Peterborough Progressive Club containing hospitals supplies for Moore Barracks Hospital. They are going up to them today and I am sure they will be very glad of them and the Matron will acknowledge them to you.

The box contained 2 pyjamas, 2 bags of gauze, 1 roll of gauze, 1 ring pillow, 2 lots of wool, 4 large bandages, 49 small bandages and one parcel.

We shall be closing here within a few weeks now as the Canadians will all soon be home except for some labor units in France, and our usefulness is over. It has been a great privilege and pleasure to do our share at this end of the splendid comforts work accomplished by the Canadian women during the last four and a half years.

With kindest remembrances to you and your sisters.

Yours faithfully,

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers you, Drink lots of Water

When your kidneys and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

THEATRICAL

PICTURE WILL LIVE FOREVER

"The Heart of Humanity," to be seen at the Grand, today and Saturday, matinee and evening, limns on the gray back-ground of the last days of the conflict, a tender and appealing romance of loyal love and unswerving devotion. The whole production from beginning to end, is fraught with the spirit of those great days when an anxious world hung breathlessly upon word from the seething battle front in Flanders. It reflects the hush that fell upon civilization when the forces of humanity came to final grip with the ruthless might of autocracy, and it echoes the great cry of joy that sounded round the world when the Hun line crumbled before the Allied attack and fled backward toward the sheltering frontiers of Germany to sue for peace.

Into the midst of these stirring scenes of immeasurable portent, there makes its way the gentle romance of Nanette, an American girl reared in the northwood of Canada, and of her Canadian lover, John Patricia. Joined as war is begun, as war progresses they are separated—to meet again where the giant guns thunder their challenge on the fields of France. Thither John goes as an officer in the Royal Flying Corps and there Nanette, hearkening to the cries of the homeless and motherless children, follows in the garb of the Red Cross.

There comes the last great Hun attack—the last terrifying drive toward Paris—when Chateau Thierry became another Verdun and the might of America, thrown into the balance, stayed the enemy, halted him and finally drove him back, until his retreat became a rout and he cried aloud for peace. Graphically, all the hopes, the prayers, the fears, the faith that stirred the heart of humanity in those days of vast import are reflected in the Allen Holubar romance of the war.

In the confusion and chaos of attack and counter-attack, John and Nanette, servants of the great cause, drawn by their love, are once more brought together and the scenes shift from the fields of France back to the Canadian lands of the whispering pines where the benediction of the world peace finds them reunited in their love.

The role of Nanette is played by Dorothy Phillips. William Stowell is seen as John Patricia and others in the large cast include such well-known players as Walt Whitman, Robert Anderson, Frank Braidwood, George Hackathorn, little Gloria Joy, Margaret Mann and Lloyd Hughes.

AT THE GRAND

Last night at the Grand Ethel Barrymore delighted a large audience when she presented her latest comedy success, "The Off Chance." The piece is by R. C. Carton, who wrote "Lord and Lady Algy," and several other successes, and is one of the most delightful and amusing comedies seen at the local house this season.

The story is of the young Duke of Burchester, between whom and his wife has arisen an estrangment and a final separation is threatened. The Duke has become too friendly with a French ballet dancer who is only after what money she can get out of him.

Through the efforts of Lad Cardonnell (Miss Barrymore), who is the mother of the duchess, although divorced from her former husband and re-married more happily, a complete reconciliation is effected.

Miss Barrymore is supported by a particularly strong cast and each part was well taken. For two hours and a half the audience was held by the sparkling dialogue and some of the situations created were very amusing.

The part of Sir Geo. Ransford, the irascible father of the duchess, was portrayed by Mr. Harry Ashford, and he handled this most difficult character in a very creditable manner.

Miss Barrymore's interpretation of the part of Lady Cardonnell was all that could be desired. The audience expected somethink big and none were disappointed.

Possibly had the weather been a trifle cooler a larger audience might have greeted this splendid company, but it goes without saying that all who did avail themselves of this treat were well pleased.

Little Ben Alexander With Miss Barriscale In "Josselyn's Wife"

Little Ben Alexander, the child wonder of the screen, who made such a decided hit in "The Turn of the Road," and "Hearts of the World," does another remarkable bit of acting in "Josselyn's Wife," the Bessie Barriscale production released by Exhibitors Manual.

As Tommy Josselyn in the play, little Ben, is the innocent cause of his grandfather's death and his father's conviction for the murder of Josselyn, Sr., but in the end his explanaton of how his grandfather came to his untimely end, saves his father from a life sentence in prison, and re-unites his parents happily.

This is probably the most exacting role the little chap has ever done, but he succeeds admirably in adding a pathetc thrill to the picture. This marvellous child's powers of mimicry have a real test when he reproduces vividly for his mother, the death scene of the old man, and furnishes the clue to the murder mystery.

GAME CALLED IN SEVENTH ON ACCOUNT OF DARKNESS

Veterans and Orientals Each Scored Six Runs in Well-Played Contest—Game Tonight With Lindsay.

The game between the Orientals and the G.W. V. A. last night was called in the first half of the seventh on account of darkness and at the end of the sixth innings the two teams were a tie with six runs each. One ruling in the last half of the sixth caused so much discussion that it is being treated in a separate article.

First Innings

Orentals.—Cherrett struck out. Heenan's grounder went from Morrow to first. Anderson fumbled Collin's bounder and the latter stole second, going to third on Kirn's hit but McCarney was thrown out at first by Johnston. No runs, one hit, one error.

Veterans—S. Wade walked. Anderson singled scoring Wade and after stealing two bases was nabed at the plate by Head. Foley walked. A. Wade got a life and Foley scored. The next two struck out. Two runs one hit, one eror.

Second Innings

Murray fanned, Johnston threw Phelan out at first and Morrow did the same to Head, no runs, no hits, no errors.

Morrow lived on Cherrett's error, Hargrave walked. LeBarr fanned. Morrow was caught at the plate and S. Wade who made first on Collins' error was put out by the third baseman, after Hargrave had scored. One run, no hits, two errors.

Third Innings

Mulbern was thrown out at first by Foley, Cherrett walked, Heenan died at first, Morrow to A. Wade. Collings doubled, scoring Cherrett and Kirn was thrown out. Foloy to A. Wade. One run, one hit, no errors.

Anderson singled, made third while Foley was fanning, and came in when A. Wade filed out to McCarney. Johnston rolled out to third. One run, one hit, no errors.

Fourth Innings

McCarney's grounder went straight to A. Wade, Murray filed out to Hargrave and Phelan was thrown out at first by Foley. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Deannard filed out to Kirn. Morrow fanned. Hargrave got a life and LeBar struck out. No runs, no hits, one error

Fifth Innings

Head rolled out to first, Mulbern singled, going to second on a wild pitch, Cherrett singled and LeBarr got his man at the plate. Heenon singled, Cherrett scored and Collins went to first, on Le Barr's interference. Phelan running for Heenan, stole home. Kirn was thrown out at first by Foley. Two runs, three hits, one error

S Wade singled. Anderson went out, Collins to Phelan. Foley walked and both he and Wade made the circuit on stolen bases and wild pitchers A.-Wade fanned, Johnston walked. Deannard hit to Cherrett who caught Johnston off third. Murray making the touch out. Two runs, one hit, no errors.

Sixth Innings

McCarney walked. Murray drove him in. Phelan was thrown out at first by Deannard Head reached first on Morow's error, Murray scoring. Mulhern walked and Head came in on a wild pitch, Cherrett and Heenan fanned. Three runs, one hit, one error.

D. LeBarr fanned Morrow was declared out, batting out o fturn, and Hargrave fanned. No runs, no hits no errors.

Seventh Innings

The game was called on account of darkness in the first half. The Orientals had one man out and one on second base.

The game tonight should be an interesting one as the honor to a local team in the event of a win will be somethng more than usual. With only one quarter of the city's baseball players to draw on the Matthews-Blackwell team are in much the same position as a man who triesto box with one hand and both feet tied. The Lindsay players evidently consider it a good chance to get some practice in hostile territory. If Matthews-Blackwell teamwin, it is quite certain that even Oshawa will tremble in their shoes when they come up here on July 1. The next game for Peterborough is at Belleville, a week from tomorrow.

A monster street parade and two two shows will be given in Peterborough. The parade is scheduled to leave the grounds shortly before eleven o'clock. Performances will be given at two and eight o'clock. One hour earlier the doors will be opened for menagerieinspection. In the big main tent are three rings, two stages, an aerialenclave and a hippodrome racing track.

UMPIRE KAY WAS RIGHT IN RULING

ACCORDING TO PARALLEL CASE PASSED UPON BY BILLY EVANS.

The decision on the play in the second half of the sixth innings of the game between the Orientals and the G.W.V.A. last night was so full of technichalities that a few rulings from Spalding's baseball guide for 1919 in similar cases will be interesting. It will, it is hoped, go to prove to the fans that umpiring and scoring are not the easy snaps that some people imagine. The first is taken from Knotty Problems by Billy Evans and John B. Foster.

The batting order of a team starts off this way:—Davis, Jones and Smith. With two out in the third innings Smith bats in place of Jones, hitting for two bases. The mistake is immediately discovered and an appeal made to the umpire. What should have been his ruling and who should be the first man up in the next innings?

Answer—When Smith batted out of order the umpire should have declared out the proper batsman, Jones, which, of course, retired the side. The batting order in the next innings should be resumed in proper order, which would bring Smith up as the first batter, despite the fact that he was the last man up in the previous innings. This ruling entirely justifie Umpire Kay in his decision last night, but just to show what difference a little technical point often makes another instance will be quoted from the same authority.

On what play or plays is it necessary for the team in the field to make an appeal to the umpire for a decision?

Answer In a batting-out-of-order play it is necessary that the team in the field make an appeal that the proper batsman be declared out, before a ball is pitched to the next batter. This ruling apparently contradicts the previous one, but the slight difference is that the team in the field did not notify the umpire before a ball was delivered to the succeeding batsman.

Judging by the second ruling, Morrow's hit would have to be allowed as no protest was made before a ball was pitched to him. This means that only two men were put out in the last half of the sixth innings and if this is true then the game must be declared called at the end of the fifth innings. In that case the game goes to the G.W.V.A. by six to three.

HOT WEATHER KILLS HORSES

FIFTEEN ARE REPORTED DEAD IN THE VICINITY OF KIRKFIELD.

Fifteen horses have died in the vicinity of Kirkfield since the beginnig of the present heated spell, the veterinary who has investigated arriving at the conclusion that death in each case was the result of sunstroke. The sudden change of temperature was too much for the horses, coming as it did at a time when they were not yet accustomed to hard work after their winter holiday.

Most of the farmers these days work three and four horse teams, and it is almost invariably the case that it is the inside horses who succumb, a lack of care being the only apparent reason for this circumstance.

NEW TAXES ON BIG INCOMES

Ottawa, June 6.—The proposed new income tax is considerably greater than the present tax. The following comparative figures show:

Income	Present Tax	Proposed Tax
$ 3,000	$ 20	$ 40
4,000	60	80
5,000	100	120
6,000	140	170
8,000	266	370
10,000	392	590
20,000	1,382	1,990
30,000	2,702	3,890
50,000	5,782	9,190
75,000	11,007	19,070
100,000	17,407	31,190
200,000	50,957	93,190
500,000	195,407	303,190

The new tax is almost precisely the equal of the United States 1919 levy, the 1918 tax now being collected across the border, and which reached the peak of incime taxation having been reduced for this year. It is not, however, as great as the British income tax.

J. H. BURNHAM'S ADDRESS ON INDUSTRIAL UNREST

Drew Reply From Acting Minister of Labor as to Comparison Between Wages and Cost of Living.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P. for West Peterborough, gave a lengthy address in the House when the industrial unrest in Canada was the theme of discussion. The following is the verbation report of his speech as given in Hansard:

Mr. Speaker, perhaps I may be allowed to contribute a little something to what I consider in my humble way as the basis of this industrial unrest. I do not purpose indulging in personalties, nor in blaming any body for not having unearthed some solution to a problem that confronts the entire world, nor do I purpose discussing various theories which have been advanced from time to time as solutions of the problem. But I will go to what I consider the very root of the matter namely, the ability of the workingman to maintain himself at the present rate of wages. I firmly believe that if he had the wages which would enable him to live properly and comfortably, he would be satisfied, and if he were satisfied, you could not possibly stir him into any form of unrest.

Some few days ago I asked the Acting Minister of Labor (Mr. A. K. Maclean) if he would be kind enough to answer a question regarding this. After several days he very kindly answered the question and cut the answer into printed form which was served upon me today. It is headed: "The high cost of living and minimum wages," and it reads:

Re Mr. Burnham's Inquiry of May 23, Hansard for May 23 shows the following statement:

Mr. J. H. Burnham (Peterborough West): I would like to ask the Acting Minister of Labor (Hon. A. K. Maclean) what is the weekly budget for the average Canadian family as found by the latest report of the Department of Labor; and what is the minimum weekly wage to correspond with that weekly minimum budget?

This was the reply:

Regarding the point raised by Mr. Burnham it may be stated that the weekly family budget printed in the "Labor Gazette" is given as a typical family budget, not as a minimum family budget. The figures as printed do not vary from month to month or from year to year. The object aimed at in printing the budget is not to indicate in any way what commodities should be purchased but to facilitate an effective comparison of prices at different periods so that the relative purchasing power of money may be shown. The weekly budget printed in the "Labor Gazette" was framed by the Dominion Statistician some years ago and the foods enumerated and the quantities specified go to make up the number of calories estimated as necessary for a family of five,—husband, wife and three children; save that so far as the workman is concerned the budget is intended rather to meet the case of a man engaged in somewhat severe manual labor, the food allowance being therefore slightly larger than would be necessary if the man were engaged in clerical or other light employment. The figures printed from month to month in the "Labor Gazette" show the cost of the same quantities of the same class of commodity, the prices ranging over a number of years. The budget includes prices as to foods, fuel and rent and does not include clothing. Clothing is of course an esential part of the cost of living but the subject is one which cannot be easily reflected by statistics, the articles covering so wide a range and the conditions varying so greatly as between different families, different localities and different periods. In considering the family budget as printed in the "Labor Gazette" an addition of from twenty-five to forty per cent. must be made for clothes and miscellaneous articles.

Regarding the latter part of Mr Burnham's question re minimum weekly wage, it may be stated that just as there is no minimum budget known to the Department of Labor neither is there any weekly minimum wage known to the de-

MAY ADMIT HUNS TO NEW LEAGUE

PROVIDED THEY COMPLY WITH CONDITIONS LAID DOWN BY THE ALLIES.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, June 9.—Associated press this morning issued the following :—

Plans for easing the terms upon which Germany will be admitted to the League of Nations are under consideration by the peace conference heads. If she shows that she possesses a stable government, signs a peace treaty and loyally executes it she will be admitted according to the proposed plans.

HUNS GIVEN FIVE DAYS TO ANSWER

ALLIES WILL CONSIDER GERMAN COUNTER PROPOSALS UNTIL JUNE 12TH.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 9.—It has been decided by the allied and associated governments that the reply to the German counter proposals will not be delivered before Friday, June 12th The reply will give the Germans a period of five days in which to accept or reject the treaty.

The Council of Four spent this morning considering the various reports submitted by the Commissions which had been dealing with the feature of the answer to the German proposals.

WOMAN PILFERED FROM HOSTESS

STOLE $34 BUT WILL ESCAPE BY MAKING FULL RESTITUTION

In the police court this morning a woman who had yielded to the temptation to steal $34 from her hostess, pleaded guilty to the charge and the case was adjourned till tomorrow to give her a chance to make full restitution of the amount. $15.46 of the amount was found on her person when she was taken into custody by the police As her sister in Orillia wired that she was sending $36 and her husband, who works in Ottawa is expected to come to Peterborough today to make good the balance of the costs. Magistrate Dumble imposed no penalty. He also took into consideration the fact that she is the mother of six children and her present experience will probably be a sufficient deterrent from any similar escapade in the future.

CRIMINAL CASES READY FOR TRIAL

TWO WILL BE HEARD AT THE COUNTY COURT SESSION TOMORROW.

In the County Court tomorrow there will be two criminal cases, both against Henry Hughes of Dummer Township. The first charge is that he shot at Arnold Mason, and the second one is that he threatened to shoot Fred. Greenwood. The trouble arose over some timber, Hughes claiming that Mason and Greenwood were cutting wood on his property.

OLD WEST WARD SCHOOL MAY BE TURNED INTO A FACTORY

Board of Education Has Chance to Dispose of it to Knitting Company in Toronto—Firm Ask For Free Rent For Four Years and Option to Purchase.

After standing idle for the past four years there seems every probability that the old West Ward School building will once again be utilized in a manner which will make it a distinct asset of the city though not as an educational institution.

For some time past a Toronto Knitting Company has been corresponding with the City Council in regard to the possibility of securing the school as a building in which to install their machinery, they being anxious to locate in Peterborough.

This company, which has been carrying on business for some years in Toronto, is a most reliable firm, and in deciding to change the location of this plant, have taken into consideration the advantages offered by a smaller city which is well situated and possessed of all the necessary inducements likely to attract manufacturers.

While the members of the Board of Education have not been formally approached by representatives of the knitting company, they having corresponded with the City Council direct, City Clerk Armstrong has canvassed the members of the Board for expressions of their opinion and they all expressed themselves as favoring the project could the details of the deal be arranged to the satisfaction of the contracting parties.

A four years' term at a nominal rent or free rent with an option of purchasing the building at the end of that period is the request of the company. They, in turn, agree to make all the repairs which will be necessary before the school could be used as a knitting mill. They are prepared to pay their full share of the taxes and do not ask for a bonus of any kind from the city.

It is understood that the Board of Education are holding the West Ward School building at $3,500. Should the deal go through the plant and building would at least be assessed for $2,500 and would result in an annual revenue to the city of $100 in taxes.

Aside from the undoubted advantages which the location in Peterborough of a knitting mill would afford from the city's industrial standpoint the fact that the building has been standing idle for the past four years and contributing nothing to the municipal exchequer in the form of taxes will certainly influence the Board of Education when they consider the proposals of the company at their meeting tomorrow night and there is little doubt but that the offer of the Toronto firm will be accepted.

Built shortly after the erection of the Central School, the old West Ward School is the second oldest building of its kind in the city. It was abandoned about four years ago when the new Queen Mary School was erected and since that time it has stood untenanted.

In its day the old West Ward School was considered as most satisfactory but the greater requirements demanded by the educational development of Peterborough, made it necessary that the old building should be abandoned and it was superseded by a more modern and commodious one.

From time to time various projects for utilizing the old school have been heard at the meeting of the Board of Education. Some thought that it might be used as a technical institute or made use of in some other way, but few there were who had any idea that it might be turned into a modern manufacturing plant.

In its time the West Ward School played an important part in the educational development of Peterborough and many fond recollections of school day long past are entertained by the citizens of the city in connection with the old structure.

Associations of the pleasant days of the past are constantly being broken and it is but a sign of the times that the former school building in its picturesque setting in one of the quiet, residential districts of the city should be turned into a modern manufactory and that the hume of the wheels of industry should be heard where once the stillness was broken by the boyish shouts of school children or the droneing sound of the class at their daily lesson.

PROPOSES MEMORIAL TO THE LATE F. R. YOKOME

J. Begley Revives the Suggestion of Review Made Two Years Ago, That Name of Central Park Be Changed to Yokome Park

Over a year ago journalism and the people were called upon to suffer a great loss in the death of Mr. F. R. Yokome, editor of the Examiner. It was suggested at the time that something should be done to perpetuate his memory.

Each recurring spring will recall to the minds of many this grand old man who was such an ardent admirer of nature. No doubt, his great love of nature ofttimes helped to keep unsullied his noble character, for we all know that in the business that he followed there are many trials and temptations. He was often called a dreamer, but, to those who knew him best, he was passionately in earnest and always stood up and faced the responsibility of his actions.

As a neighbor and a friend he was all one would wish for and many will miss his wise counsel. As a public man, it can truthfully be claimed that this world would not be suffering from its own folly, as it is today, if we had more men with the culture and true democratic spirit that was so characteristic in the makeup of this grand old man.

We will not find many taking an active part in public affairs whose life will furnish as good an example as that of Mr. Yokome for our youth to follow. Let us do something to keep his memory alive, and as a suggestion I would change Central Park to "Yokome Park," for, I believe, when you do anything of this kind, you should do it well.

JOSEPH BEGLEY.

The Review made this suggestion soon after the lamented death of Mr. Yokome and greatly gives place to Mr. Begley's letter dealing with the same subject. Two years ago the Horticultural Society talked of a memorial but nothing was done and though individual members of the City Council favored The Review suggestion, there was no action taken, lack of tendering being the apparent reason.

Power To Deport Sought By Italy

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 9.—The final draft of the political clauses of the Austrian treaty it is understood is being delayed by the discussion of the Italians for a provision authorising the deportation of undesirables in the part of Austrian Tyrol to be anexed to Italy. This demand is meeting with considerable opposition.

WINNIPEG STRIKE MAY END TUESDAY

LEADERS APPEAL TO MEN TO STAY OUT UNTILL TOMORROW.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, June 9 The strike leaders sent out an appeal to all union men this morning, not to do anything about returning to work until Tuesday. The leaders intimated that the Railway Brotherhoods might do something within the next 24 hours that would have a bearing on the strike. A number of the Brotherhood executives are here for a conference. Several Winnipeg concerns affected by the strike notified the company employes this morning that their jobs would be held open untill tomorrow Advertisements for help—returned soldiers preferred, were inserted in a local newspaper.

HUNGARY MUST DROP WARFARE

ALLIES WILL TAKE EXTREME MEASURES IF WARNING IS NOT HEEDED.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 9.—Premier Clemenceau, President of the Peace Conference has telegraphed the Hungarian Government that attacks by Hungarian troops on the Czecho Slovak forces must cease, a despatch from Vienna today says. In the case of non compliance the allied and associated governments have decided to use extreme measures to constrain Hungrary to cease hostilities, the premier's message adds.

DROPPED DEAD ON PARK STREET

SUDDEN CALL CAME TO MRS. THOMAS OLDHAM LAST EVENING.

Mrs. Thos. Oldham, 247 Simcoe street, died suddenly yesterday evening while walking along Park street, near the intersection of Albert street. She had left her home only a few minutes previous with the intention of visiting some friends and was then apparentl in her usual good health, but she was suddenly seised with fainting spells.

Mrs J. H. Kimberley, 488 Bolivar street, who was passing along the street at the time noticed that something was wrong and come to her assistance, as well as Mr R. C. Braund. An ambulance was immediately telephoned for but before it had time to arrive Mrs. Oldham was dead. It was not until about an hour after tha the corpse was identified at Comstock's Undertaking Parlors to which it has been removed.

Mrs. Oldham had been a resident of Peterborough for the last thirty years coming to this city from her home at Keene which she left when she was married. Her husband, Mr. Thos. Oldham, survives her. There are no children. The deceased was about sixty years old, and was a daughter of the late Henry Nagorrow, who resided during the last few years of his life at Trenton.

Dr T N Greer, the coroner, made an investigation last night and pronounced death due to heart failure No inquest will be held The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 p.m from her late residence on Simcoe street to Little Lake Cemetery.

55,000 CANADIANS REPATRIATED IN MAY

London, June 9.—The Olympic sailed Saturday with 5,511 Canadians, including the final units of the Fourth Division The Royal George also carried 1,550, which leaves only about 70,000 for repatriation or discharge here. Nearly 55,000 troops were repatriated during May.

PREDICT IRELAND WILL SOON BE SCENE OF SERIOUS COMBAT

BRITISH PRESS ON SENATORS OF U. S.

CAUSTIC COMMENT ON INTERFERENCE WITH IRISH HOME RULE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, June 9 The London newspapers as a whole are not excited over the resolution adopted by the United States Senate asking the American peace delegates to secure a hearing before the Peace Conference for Ireland's delegates. The Daily Chronicle expresses surprise that the Americans "are so extraordinarily missinformed on the Irish question. It adds: "Truths, which are commonplace here, are entirely overlooked or unknown in America where it is not realized that the Home Rule question is not an issue between England and Ireland, but between Irishmen and Irishmen."

The Morning Post comments in stronger terms and ascribes the action of the Senate to hostility to the league. British support of which it says has stirred up intense animosity against Great Britain. It repudiates the idea that Great Britain wishes to interfere with the Monroe Doctrine and complaines of the blame cast on Great Britain for what President Wilson has done.

The paper declared that British interests are British soveriegnty have been sacrificed in an apparently futile effort to placate himself. The Post continues: "There is no country in the world but America where such a deliberate affront to a friendly power would be offered. Judged by all standards of international comity and decorum, it is indefensible."

Delegates From United States Send Another Report to President Wilson.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 9.—Guerilla warfare of a character, which usually procedes a major conflict, is now going on in Ireland, it is declared by Frank P. Walsh and Edward F. Dunne, in a supplementary report, which they have forwarded to President Wilson regarding conditions in Ireland. Messrs. Walsh and Dunne, delegates of the Irish societies in the United States, affirm in the addition to their report submited to President Wilson last week that clashes between Irish volunteers and the army forces in Ireland, in which men on both sides were killed. are of daily occurrance.

Inverlea Beach Safe For Bathers

PRECAUTIONS TAKEN SINCE THE NEAR-DROWNING ACCIDENT.

Since the near-drowning accident at Inverlea Park last week, when the young daughter of Mr and Mrs. A. G. Roberts was rescued by Dan Fitzgerald and Charlie Begley, the authorities have taken action and made the beach perfectly safe for all classes of bathers This has been done by stretching a wire netting so as to keep the patrons of the beach out of the dangerous current in the river. The brave action of the two boys will not be allowed to go unawarded. Mr. Roberts has called the matter to the attention of, not only the Royal Humane Society, but to the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission as well.

PROSPECT BRIGHT FOR WORKINGMEN

OFFICERS OF AMERICAN FEDERATION TAKE OPTIMISTIC VIEW.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Atlantic City, N. J., June 9.—Important projects for the advancement of Labor and the improvement of working conditions, as well as comprehensive outlines of what has been accomplished on Labor's behalf during the last year, are set fourth in a report of the Executive Council of the American eFderation of Labor, submitted today to the officers end delegates attending the opening session of the 39th annual convention. The advent of peace is taken by the council to hold out bright prospects for Labor.

CROP PROSPECTS IN WEST HAVE NEVER BEEN BETTER

President Beatty, of the C. P. R., is Optimistic—Believes That a Good Harvest Will Banish Industrial Unrest.

(Special to The Review.)

Winnipeg, June 9.—W. Beatty, K. C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who arrived in Winnipeg today from the West where he has been on an inspection trip, said he was optimistic in regard to the future crop in Western Canada. He says the crop prospects in the West were never better. A bumper crop will restore the peoples' confidence, that is the best cure for the present industrial unrest.

He said in an interview. "This industrial unrest is nothing more than mental trouble, due to the war. If we get a good crop and prospects were never better, then things will right themselves. Conditions in the West are such that there is nothing to prevent every man from being an optimist."

"All agree that there is something wrong with the cost of living," he said in reply to a query. "The Government should at once undertake a thorough investigation to discover how this was brought about. The investigation should be scientific. If it finds there are too many handling the products of the soil it should increase production, and thus create a greater market for soil products."

Commenting on the strike situation in Winnipeg, Mr. Beatty said no movement that has for its purpose the strangling of constituted anthority can hope to succeed in any law-abiding country such as Canada.

"The general public will not stand for it," he said referring to a sympathetic strike, and this being so, it will not get the strikers very far."

Mr. Beatty added that there was a good deal of uncertainty as to what would ultimately be done as far as the strike was concerned in Vancouver. With regard to his company's development in Alberta, the President stated that plans were at present before the Railway Board for the construction of the Empress Acme branch and also a line to Meldrum. It was expected that these would be approved at an early date when this work would be proceeded with at once. The company, he said, had also under consideration a line running north from Empress through Coronation and Whitford Lake. Mr. Beatty looks for considerable immigration from the Old Country and from the northern part of Europe. This applies particularly to agriculturists, he asserts.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

MONDAY, JUNE 9, 1919

CONCEDE TWO BLOCKS.

FOR YEARS the residents of the northwestern portion of the city have been asking for an improved street car service, a service that would do away with the necessity of making two transfers before the patrons of the line were able to reach the down-town section. Finally the company has made a concession and a new timetable will take effect on Monday.

But the concession is only two blocks long and does away with but one transfer. The Charlotte Street car instead of stopping at George Street, as at present, are to proceed along the latter thoroughfare for two whole blocks as far as Hunter Street. It has not occurred to the management, apparently, that any resident in the vicinity of Jackson Park would ever be under the necessity of going further—to Smith street, for example—or that a resident in Auburn or Ashburnham would ever care to visit Jackson Park. In either of the two cases cited the necessity for making two transfers still remains.

The company has made a concession, but one that is only limited and does not remove any but a fraction of the long-standing objections to the service.

MOTHERS AN INSPIRATION

In a sketch of Lord Northcliffe, published in the latest issue of the Saturday Evening Post, Isaac F. Murcosson says:

> If you want to get a real glimpse into the character of a man, be he famous or otherwise, find out his relations with his mother. Between Northcliffe and Sir James M. Barrie exists a peculiar kinship. It is not based entirely on mutual admiration. The historian of Thrums never did anything finer in all his writing career than the life of his mother, Margaret Ogilvy. It is perhaps the only time that a mother's biography has been written by her son.

This then accounts for the fact that in Sir James Barrie's most popular novel, "The Little Minister," in which Margaret Ogilvy is one of the characters, there are passages more sublime than any to be found outside of the Bible. But this is not the only instance of the biography of a mother written by a son or of a novel the secret of the success of which is due to the fact that the main characters in it is printed from life.

When Ralph Conner, Canada's distinguished novelist, wrote "The Man from Glengarry," he kept before him on his desk, as an inspiration the protograph of his own mother, whose superb virtues were recounted in the admirable picture Ralph Connor drew of Mrs. Murray, than whom no finer character exists in literature from the days of the Spartan mothers of old down to the present day. Great opportunities have come to some women who have made the most of them, but these are no more distinguished than are those who in a smaller sphere did good according as light was given them and the occasion arose.

None of the masters of fiction created nobler examples of womanhood that did Sir James Barri eand Ralph Connor. Ian MacLaren in his portrayal of Margaret Howe may not have written the biography of his own mother but it the true life story of some other man's mother, a woman whose memory will be held in reverential regard for all time and whose children rising up shall call her blessed.

Sir James Barrie understands human nature, he can see the good in the world around him, but not in a higher degree than does the American writer who so really turns the search light upon the finest sentiment in the Scottish novelist's work. And the glory and greatness of Scotland, like that of any other nation, is created by such mothers as Margaret Ogilvy, Mrs. Murray and Margaret Howe.

MR. HOOVER'S PEACE PROGRAM

(Chicago News)

There is probably no man living who appreciates more deeply than does Herbert C. Hoover, chief of the allied relief organization in Europe, the close connection that exists between food and employment on the one hand and world peace, internal and external, on the other. It is a fact—although Mr. Hoover naturally neglects to emphasize the personal element—that the "Hoover ships" and the Hoover trainloads of food that the relief organization has been dispatching to the starving populations of central and eastern Europe in [illegible] have been [illegible] propaganda [illegible] and [illegible] diplomatic negotiations. But for [illegible] Europe would have been plunged into an anarchy from which it would not have recovered [illegible] declared Mr. Hoover.

Not only has the United States furnished the food but [illegible] the money or extended the credits with which the food has been purchased. We have not acted in this matter from purely benevolent motives, to [illegible] nevertheless it is a striking fact that "during the [illegible] ending next July we will have supplied Europe with $2,750,000,000 worth of food and that the whole of this has been supplied by our national government, except perhaps $400,000,000."

As to the prospects it is reassuring to learn that "the world's bread budget will balance next year," although our anticipated bumper crops will be needed to produce this greatly desired result. Next year, if peace treaties are signed and civil wars are ended, Europe should be able, in Mr. Hoover's judgment, to restart its industries and resume exports, thus becoming again self supporting with moderate help in the form of "raw materials, machinery and in some instances currency reorganization and temporary food credits."

Even this moderate assistance will keep American factories busy and will give substantial prosperity to the country. American bankers and investors, as well as producers of commodities needed in European reconstruction, should study the relativly new problems of financing Europe and enabling it to fund its war debts, pay interest on them, and at the same time support its population in decent comfort. Europe, for some time to come, will have to find in America a liberal market for its securities. The welfare of our own farmers, workmen and business men demands the application of an enlightened policy in this respect.

Until Europe is self supporting again and export trade is resumed by the countries now dependent on America there is scant hope for the lowering of food prices in Canada.

THE GRIP OF MACKENZIE AND MANN

Mackenzie and Mann have waxed fat and wealthy in the service of Canada and their grip on the national throat is not yet broken. They received subsidies from the national treasury to build railways that they were never able to make pay. They borrowed public funds until the people rebelled and then the Government was [illegible] the mortgage and take over private property at a price that will entail a heavy liability for years to come.

Mackenzie and Mann have been left in possession of any property that was solvent. They have been given practical control of the streets of every municipality in Canada, their right to erect poles on such streets where they will, having been established by decree of the Privy Council.

Only the other day Parliament, by a narrow majority abrogated that right. It is almost unbelievable, but it is nevertheless a fact, that the majority of the Cabinet ministers, regardless of political affiliations, present or past, opposed interference with the vested rights of the railway builders. It is just as unbelievable but just as true that the Senate of Canada defeated the amendment. Mackenzie and Mann are still the favored of corporations just as they always have been.

Then who can wonder that there is general unrest, dissatisfaction and a lack of confidence in the Senate among the masses today?

THE VALUE OF THE SCHOOL

(New York Review)

The agency par excellence for Americanization is the public school. It is the formative years that produce the complex of ideas, ideal habitudes and traditions which make the American. Said a shrewd Roman Roman priest: "Give me the first six years of a child's life and you others can have the rest." It is, therefore, in the highest degree necessary, if the "melting pot" is to turn out a consistent and genuine product, that the public school shall be kept up to the highest possible level of excellence. But a school, like a home, is not a geographical location—a mere matter of latitude and longitude—nor yet is it the mess of inorganic matter which we fashion and pile up and call an "institution." It is an atmosphere. And, as the atmosphere of the home is generated by the guiding personalities in it, so is the atmosphere of the school generated by those who supervise and give instruction. If we want good schools, the sine qua non is good teachers. But a good teacher is a specialist or an artist comparable with the good doctor or preacher and cannot be picked up at any street corner. He must also possess character, in addition to technical equipment. He must have quality, and quality is something that must be paid for. The laborer of this order is certainly worthy of his hire. Yet the profession of teaching stands a chance of progressive impoverishment by reason of the inadequacy of its material rewards. The teachers may be willing, and generally is, to take the vow of poverty; but he will not continue always to take that penury. He can not give out the virtue that is in him if he is never free from petty and sordid harassment. If we are anxious to Americanise—and there is nothing that we should be more intent on doing, in our own interest, if for no loftier reason—we must not be blind to this vital method, must not neglect it in favor of methods of more immediate impact but of less fundamental and less comprehensive character.

ALIEN AGITATORS MUST GO

(By E. H. Worthington, of W. W. Lanahan & Co., Baltimore, Bankers, in the Baltimore Trades-Unionist.)

The foundations of our country were firmly laid by men of strength and vision. They, perhaps, builded better than they knew, for the full extent of our growth in population, material wealth and spiritual power in a century following their generation could hardly have been anticipated, but they provided the means for development for all time.

There were certain fundamental principles instituted by the founders of our country, which have been adhered to since the beginning, and one of these has been our policy of welcoming to our shore all who sought the benefits of living under our flag.

The human material which has come to us in later years has been of too different a strain to amalgamate easily with the former immigrants, and has tended to settle in colonies. Large groups of various nationalties, congregating in our big cities, speaking their own language, adhering to their native customs, have failed to appreciate the responsibilities that go hand in hand with the privileges enjoyed under our democratic form of government.

We therefore have an important decision to make: shall we allow this dilution to continue, in order to obtain labor to produce goods in competition with other countries, or can we maintain our supremacy with a limited supply of labor, making the labor-unit more effective by repealing unnecessary laws that curtail its productivity, introducing industrial methods that will secure its best effort, and using our well-recognize ingenuity to develop labor-saving machinery further.

I feel that temporarily, at least, we can take the latter course, and close the doors in immigration for a limited period, and during that period apply ourselves to the Americanization of all those now within our boundaries that have not as yet absorbed the American spirit. This is a stupendous task, but it can be accomplished, once we realize the imperative necessity of applying ourselves to the problem.

To unrest among a certain element of our foreign population is partly due to the fact that many of these people came here with exaggerated ideas as to the ease of earning a livelihood in this country. At home, in many cases, they neither enjoyed opportunities, for lucerative employment nor liberty of action; and they came here thinking that money grew on trees, that food and raiment could be had without asking, and that no restrictions whatsoever would be placed upon their actions.

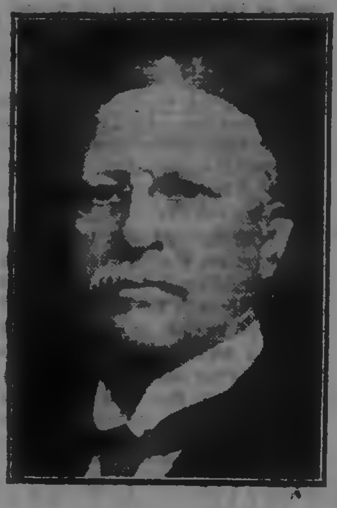
Robber-baron methods of conducting business are fast going into the discard, and a new era of industrial relationship promises to add to the material wealth of the country and to the happiness of all concerned. Great Britain of industry in the past have spent their later years in placing their accumulated wealth at the service of mankind; in the future, men of equal ability will find their happiness in exercising their talents in behalf of others, as well as for themselves, during their whole business career.

Now, at the threshold of this new era, no foreign agitators can be permitted to play upon the feelings of the ignorant in an effort to arouse their antagonism to our well-ordered institutions, which we believe to be superior to those of any country on the face of the globe, and capable of correcting, under the provisions of our Constitution, without resort to forcible methods, any evils which the body of our citizenship may consider inimical to the best interest of our country.

MAXWELL-CHALMERS IN CANADA IS HEADED BY GEORGE W. PARKS

New Chief of Big Institution Has Had Wide Business Career.

The announcement that George W. Parks has been elected President and General Manager of both the Maxwell Motor Company of Canada, Limited, and the Chalmers Motor Company of Canada, Limited, reveals what is perhaps the most significant development that has taken place this year in Canadian automobile circles. The great expansion of the business which will come under Mr. Park's direction will be along the lines of the past-formed policy of the company to be a dominant Canadian factor in Canadian business. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been invested in Canadian plants. An increasingly large percentage of both the Maxwell and Chalmers cars has been manufactured in Canada. With the election of Mr. Parks as President of the Canadian companies the policy in making the Maxwell-Chalmers organization in Canada a separate identity will be further emphasized. At the same time the Canadian Company will continue to enjoy all the advantages and facilities afforded by the nine large factories operated by the parent company in the United States.



GEORGE W. PARKS

Mr. Parks has had a broad and extensive business experience. In his younger days he gained valuable training in the sales department of a New England manufacturing concern. Later on he was junior partner and subsequently owner of a manufacturing business in Rhode Island. With drawing from this business be organised the George W. Parks company—a manufacturing concern which enjoyed splendid success until the outbreak of the world war. The "non-essential" character of this business prompted him to close down his factory and since that time he has been devoting his whole time to war work. Thus the career of Mr. Parks has included manufacturing, salesmanship, organization and management and should qualify him admirably for guiding the development of the Canadian institution with which he has become identified.

"I have faith in Canada—in its wonderful future," said Mr Parks in the first interview he gave as head of the Maxwell-Chalmers Canadian institution. "I feel that there are great possibilities for any business in Canada, especially in the automobile field. That is the big reason I have for linking up my destiny with those of the Maxwell and Chalmers cars in Canada. I hope to see this business grow to one of the outstanding industries in the Dominion, buying its supplies in Canada, financing its operations and doing its banking in Canada, marketing its vast output in Canada."

Mrs. Leander Burke, of Fuller, Hastings County, was burned to death. It is supposed she tried to light the fire with coal oil.

Mrs. Ray Mendelssohn, a member of the Social Democratic Party, was arrested in Montreal for attempting to address a street crowd.

Louie Meyers, the St. Catharines woman who was fined for having liquor was sent to the Mercer Reformatory for three months.

Fredericton, N. B., fire which threatened the whole upper portion of the town caused $10,000 damage.

Nathaniel Whitehead, an Indian, was fined $20 in London for being drunk. Florida water and beer are said to have been the cause.

Carrying His Point.

A member of Parliament called another an ass in the sacred precincts of the House, says an exchange. Unparliamentary language being forbidden, the offending gentleman had to apologize and withdraw his statement.

He didn't like doing it.

"I withdraw," he said, very stiffly; "but I maintain that the hon. member is out of order."

"How am I out of order?" asked the other man heatedly.

"Probably a veterinary surgeon could tell you," was the retort.

Not His Fault.

"That's what I tried to do, but my tailor won't let me."

Aptitude for Details.

"You know Johnson—great fellow for detail."

"He is that! He's the sort of chap who would go and get married and be able afterward to tell you whether it was Mendelssohn, Lohengrin or Tannhauser they played during the ceremony."

What He Was Afraid Of.

"Is it absolutely necessary that I speak to your father?" asked the wooer after the girl of his heart had promised to be his.

"Why, of course. He is the head of the family, you know."

"It isn't the head of the family I'm afraid of it's the foot."

MAINE SEACOAT RESORTS

"Often I Think of the Beautiful Town That is Seated by the Sea."

Portland, Maine, throned on the hills overlooking Casco Bay, the brightest gem of the Maine sea coast, is not less charming today than when Wadsworth Longfellow, American's best loved poet, went up and down its pleasant streets. The attractions of the wonderful territory surrounding Portland are manifold, there being innumerable natural beauties and cool retreats. Among these the seashore takes pride of place. Among the many favorite resorts for Canadians are Falmouth, Cumberland Foreside, Cape Elisabeth, Willard Beach Scarboro, Prouts Neck, Old Orchard, Kennebunk and York Beach. Old Orchard is recognized as the finest and safest suff bathing each in the world. CHEVROLET

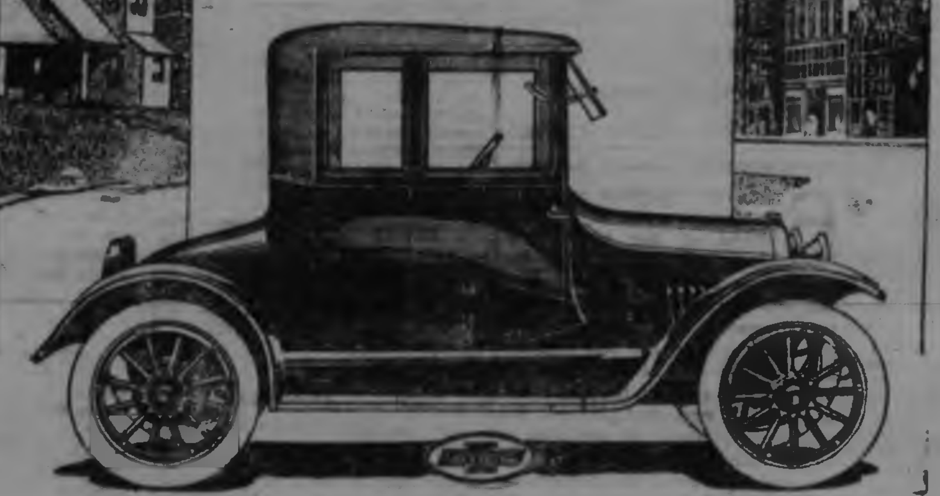
Important Annoucement To Motor Car Buyers

CHEVROLET

For Economical Transportation

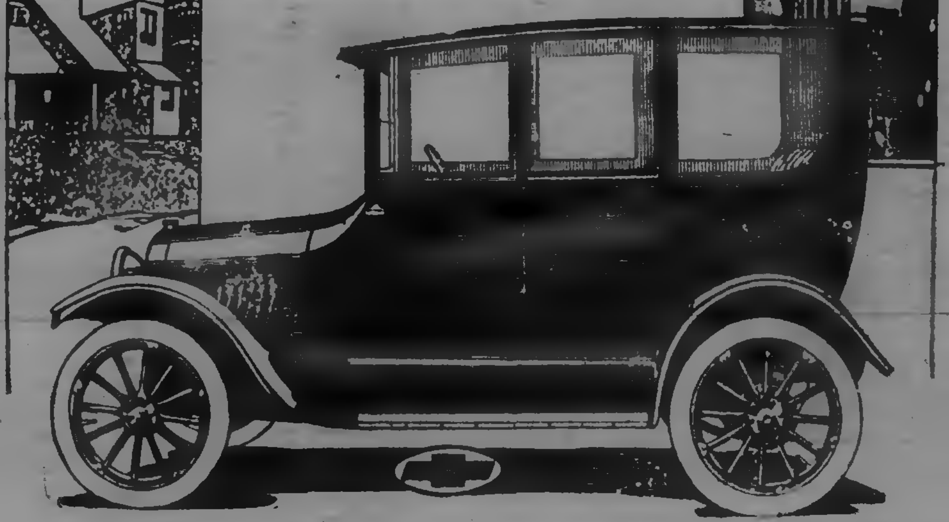
The Chevrolet "Four-Ninety" Coupe represents more than is usual even these days in motor car efficiency. Its design lends itself to every purpose for which an automobile could possibly be used. In summer as an open roadster, in winter as a closed car, it meets the innumerable needs of the business or professional man with dependable efficiency and comfort in all seasons.



CHEVROLET

For Economical Transportation

The Chevrolet Sedan is not so high in price as to be above the average means. Neither is it so low in price as to lack the appearance and appointments which contribute so much to the enjoyment and pride of possession. It is a car that leaves nothing to be desired at a price that pleases. The body completely avoids the suggestion of an "added" top imparted by so many closed cars.



CHEVROLET

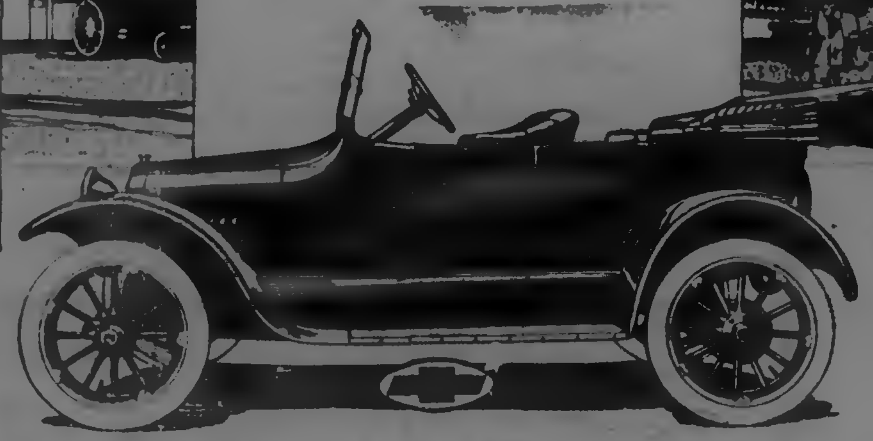
For Economical Transportation

A Chevrolet "Four-Ninety" Touring car is a profitable investment, for it yields substantial dividends in efficient service.

It is a safe investment, for the excellence of its construction protects its utility.

It is an attractive investment, for the body has a beauty and richness of finish quite unusual with cars of its price.

It is an economical investment, for its first cost is modest and its upkeep low.



CHEVROLET

For Economical Transportation

To inspect the "Four-Ninety" Roadster is to enjoy an appreciatoin of how much more your money will bring you in four-cylinder efficiency and economy.

And a demonstration of this car will satisfy you as to its wonderful power and easy-riding qualities. It will pay you to see this model and to know it better.

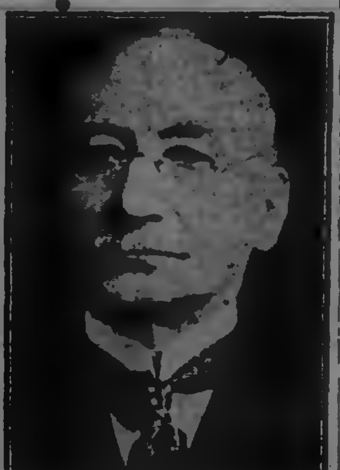
Endorses Thrift



THOMAS W. STEVENS

As president and managing director of the Empire Brass Works of London, Ont., which at Christmas last presented each of its employes with a Thrift Card containing four Thrift Stamps, Mr. Stevens has, in a tangible way, backed up the War Savings movement. Here is what he of it:—

"I heartily approve of the action of the Government in issuing Thrift Stamps on the public. I feel sure that if it is properly advertised and the manufacturers, merchants and hotelkeepers do their part, it will be a very great success and will be the means of helping to assist the finances of the country during the Reconstruction Period.

"I have made the few following suggestions, which, if posted up in the factories, might be the means of inducing the workers to give the matter their consideration and help the country along by taking their change in Thrift Stamps

"Thrift and Square Dealing —The Foundation of Success

"Buy Thrift Stamps when you are young; get the habit.

"Provide for the rainy day which may come.

"Put your small change into stamps.

"Save your money so that you can furnish a home for your wife, when you get her.

"Do not forget that life is uncertain.

"Do your best to provide for your wife and family.

"Do not leave them to the cold mercies of the world

"' All the big factories and wholesale houses in London were started by mechanics and clerks—I know them all. They were thrifty and hard workers, and they saved all their small change.

"Look after the pennies and the dollars will take care of themselves

"Save when you have the opportunity and your dollars will multiply."

"As a nation we canonly consume to the value of what we produce, and if production falls away there will be less to go around, and each will have to pay more for the things he obtains," the Chairman of Barclay's Bank, quoted by the Canadian Trade Commission.

The Rule of the Road.

In a press interview, Mr. Blain, the honorary secretary of the London Safety First Council, said:—

"The London General Omnibus Co.'s demobilized drivers are to receive special instructions. But there would be fewer accidents in London if the pedestrian rule of the pavement were altered from "Keep to the right into 'keep to the left.' This would mean that the rule of the road and of the pavement would be the same. As it is, when people step off the pavement in passing a crowded spot, they have their backs to the traffic

"Nearly 40 per cent. of the fatal street accidents are due to this departure from the logical course of things. It would be comparatively easy to alter the rule of the pavement, but to change the rule of the round would involve much money and many difficulties For instance all staircases on public vehicles would have to be reconstructed; steering wheels and drivers' seats generally readjusted; tram points altered; and British horses asked to unlearn the habit of a lifetime."

"Flu" In South Africa.

Believing that thousands of lives could have been saved during the terrible influenza epidemic in South Africa had the country been at all prepared for fighting the spread of disease, efforts are being made by the Influenza Commission in Johannesburg to perfect a "skeleton organization" which could be mobilized with great speed should the emergency recur. A Public Health bill, before Parliament in February, provided the machinery for dealing with such outbreaks and strengthened the maritime quarantine, which, it is generally thought, was not severe enough during the epidemic For the rural districts, however, always the greatest sufferers, the commission seems at a loss to prescribe "The medical equipment of the Union has been starved in the past," says the Johannesburg Times, "and reforms ought to be introduced without waiting for another calamity."

Preserved His Dignity.

'You stupid man!" exclaimed the exasperated lady, "why in the world did you get seats for 'Madame Butterfly' when I distinctly told you I wanted to hear 'Pagliacci'?" "Well, my dear," was the explanation, "I had to preserve my dignity. When I reached the ticket window I forgot how to pronounce that thing!"

Farming Without Records.

You wouldn't play a game of any kind without determining who was the winner when it was finished, would you? Farming without keeping records is the same thing, except that you are liable to wake up some morning and find that you have lost the game when you had thought you were winning Repetition.

Anyone gathering a sheaf of remarkable coincidences should include the following: Six brothers of Canso, Nova Scotia, bearing the Biblical names of Cyrus, Elias, Silas, Ananias, Zacharias and Cornelius, were working on a fish wharf when a heavy thunderstorm came up and one of them was struck by lightning. It was Ananias.—Boston Transcript.

Point She Noticed.

At a movie a young miss amused those near her with her remarks, showing her keen observation and interest in the picture. Her best remark came when an empty jinrikisha pulled by a Japanese coolie came down the street and stopped before a house. She piped up in a shrill voice: "He lost his horse."

Mr. Lloyd Harris states that if Canada would grant $100,000,000 in credit to Rumania (not necessarily Government credit) we could get all their trade for years to come.

The Disorders in Egypt

NOT much more honest nor prosperous than the demands put forth by the Sinn Feiners is the agitation going on in Egypt under the standard of Nationalism. It is a German scheme, inaugurated by Count Buelow, and carried out by the ignorant or half-educated Egyptians, the most of whom have some petty grudge against the laws of the land as administered by Great Britain. The program spread before the Egyptians by the leaders of the revolutionary movement is not unlike that prepared by Lenine and Trotsky. It calls for the repudiation of the national debt, practically, all of which is held in Great Britain or France, and for the cancelling of every other sort of indebtedness, public or private, between a native Egyptian and a foreigner. This was something like the battle cry of Arabi Pasha, whose desperate revolt was crushed at Tel-el-Kebir some thirty odd years ago. It made a strong appeal to the most ignorant and vicious of the people, for they were told that with the foreign debt repudiated they would have practically no taxes.

The cause for the outbreak at the present time appears to be the great homeward movement of troops who have been stationed in Europe for more than four years. These troops not only saw stiff fighting but were exposed to climatic conditions without home leave that were most trying. Naturally, as soon as the armistice was signed the Government made particular efforts to get the Egyptian army out of the country. In the desire to repatriate the men the authorities moved too fast, and the Nationalists seized upon the moment to begin their rising, which up to the present appears to have been composed of scattered murders and massacres. Advantage was also taken of the absence in England of Sir Reginald Wingate, British High Commissioner at Cairo, who was obliged to leave his post, temporarily at least, because of ill-health, and it seems not improbable that this condition of his health was reflected in his administration in the past few months. Otherwise the Nationalist movement would never have been permitted to make headway by so competent an administrator. His place is now taken by Gen. Allenby, and there is no doubt that the rebels will be dealt with in a manner sufficiently stern.

Writing in the New York Sun, F. Cunliffe-Owen says that the Nationalist movement in Egypt was started some forty years ago by the Khedive Ismail, a wicked, but clever and fascinating Oriental. For a long time he successfully played the game of setting one power against another, according to rules laid down at Constantinople, but when he came to the end of his tether and the European creditors of Egypt united in self-defence and imposed disagreeable conditions upon the Sultan, he resorted to Nationalism in order to embarrass them. He secretly subsidised native newspapers, which were filled with attacks upon foreigners, and caused the belief to be spread that the high taxes of the fellaheen were due exclusively to the exactions of foreign bondholders. The propoganda was carried on by the Khedive in a spirit of mischief, but it made trouble, led to rioting in the streets, the assault of Europeans, and in 1882 to the rising under Arabi Pasha. It was also encouraged by the pacifists in England, including Gladstone, who would not hear for a moment of armed intervention, which would have made Arabi's career and those of his imitators impossible.

Subsequently, under the administration of Lord Cromer, assisted by men like Kitchener, Nationalism made no headway and seemed to have practically disappeared, until Abbas II. mounted the throne. The new Khedive had been raised with strong anti-British sentiments, and resumed the practices of Ismail with regard to newspaper propaganda. To such length did he go that when Lord Cromer was resigning his post as a result of failing health he issued a public warning which foreshadowed the deposition of the Khedive. His successor Sir Eldon Gorst seemed more inclined to temporize with Abbas than control him, and the Nationalist movement steadily throve. Hatred of Britain was so marked that the British were unable to find any Egyptians friendly enough and with the necessary ability to carry on the Government, and eventually had to select Boutros Pasha, a Christian Copt as Prime Minister. The result of this appointment was that Boutros was murdered by the Nationalists, and it was with the utmost difficulty that the British could secure the punishment of his assassin.

It was about this time that Germany's hand in the movement began to appear, her agent provocateur being Max Oppenheim, of the German Embassy It is said that he would have been summarily dismissed from Egypt by Lord Kitchener except that he feared such a procedure would lead to a war with Germany, and nobody knew better than Kitchener how unprepared Britain was at that time. When the war broke out, and Abbas plainly showed his pro-Germanism, he was forced from the throne and his estates sequestred. Prince Hussein, an enlightened ruler, and a strong friend of Britain's, was made Khedive, and the suzerainty formerly owed by the Khedive to the Sultan of Turkey was abolished. In 1917 Prince Hussein died, and, as his son was considered too much of a scapegoat to occupy the throne, Prince Fouad, younger half-brother to Hussein was selected. He is amiable and loyal, but hardly the man to deal with such a menace as that constituted by the Nationalists.

THE NEWEST REPUBLIC.

Facts About Bessarabia, Once a Russian Province.

Could Bessarabia have been a racial catch basin and retained progeny of all the tribes, peoples and nationalities that have conquered or overrun her, she would be an ethnological museum of unparalleled variety says a writer dealing with the small Russian district which has just proclaimed itself a republic.

As it is her population, more than 2,000,000 before the war, included Moldavians, Albanians, Little Russians, Jews, Bulgarians, Greeks, Armenians, Tartars, Germans and Gypsies. But that list is short compared with the encyclopedic procession of Getae, Goths, Avars, Huns, Bessi (whence her name), Ugrians, Kumans and Mogols, to mention a few since the days of the original Cimmerians.

For Bessarabia, sloping southward from the westward foothills of the Carpathians, between the Dniester and Pruth, down to the Black Sea and Danube delta, lay in the normal geographical pathway of tribes pushing westward from Asia, and southward from the bleak Russian steppes toward the warmer seacoast lands. Moreover, Bessarabia is at the convergence of these two history-beaten paths, and many times a clash ensued to decide which group should pass through the "neck of the bottle" toward Europe's lands of milk and honey.

Among the most harrowing of the invasions was that of the Mongols in the fourteenth century. They came across the Volga under Batu, grandson of that Mongol Charlemagne, Jenghis Khan, and though there is no complete story of their depredations in Bessarabia, that region without doubt suffered similar atrocities to others which are recorded in harrowing detail. At Ryazan women and children were used as targets in bow-and-arrow contests, slivers of wood were driven under the nails of the men, then they were corralled in churches to watch their women being ravished and finally roasted alive, and this went on until it is said that "no eye remained open to weep for the dead." Another city, Koselsk, was renamed Mobalig, "city of woe," and Kiev was laid waste after the people had been maimed and murdered.

A picture of peaceful, pastoral Bessarabia before the renewed ravages of the world war furnishes a pleasing contrast. A delight to the few tourists who went through the region were the Moldavian homes.

A Moldavian interior was immaculate and vivid. Brightly-colored curtains and hangings were used. An inevitable decoration were rows of yellow gourds, the raising of which is one of the minor Bessarabian industries. The people are deeply religious. Each orthodox home had its altar, facing eastward, sacred bread beneath the icon, and cornstalks placed in the shape of a cross before it. Even the altars were colorful because of their draperies, candles, and many times they were laden with flowers. The Bessarabian women are sprightly, bright-eyed and pretty.

To a land where curious religions abounded, Bessarabia furnished its quota of freakish sects. The Flagellants, self-styled "People of God," Jumpers and White Doves did not prevail in Bessarabia, but the Mutes originated there. The followers of this belief kept vows of silence, while the "Non-Prayers" took literally the statement that God is to be worshipped in spirit, and therefore did away with candles, imagery and vocal petitions.

Moldavians constituted about half the inhabitants of Bessarabia. Roumania, it will be recalled, was formed by the union of Moldavia and Wallachia, hence the adjoining Bessarabia, with its large Moldavian population, long has been the "irredenta" of Roumanie.

Kishinev, capital of Moldavia, was the scene of the atrocious Jewish massacres of Easter Sunday, 1903, when nearly 50 Jews were killed, about 600 wounded and 700 homes destroyed. Reni is a small Danube river port where Prince Alexandria of Bulgaria was taken after the Russians had instigated a plot to have him kidnapped, in 1886.

Ismail, too, has a story, told in Byron's "Don Juan," the story of its siege by Souvarov—

"The greatest chief
That ever peopled hell with heroes slain,
Or plunged a province or a realm in grief."

Kilia is another river port, but its growth was checked when the commission which improved the Danube delta deepened the Salina instead of the Kilia channel.

Superstitions About Salt.

Superstitions concerning salt are among the earliest known to mankind. There is much evidence in Holy Writ for the ceremonial uses of it, and the old Mosaic law commands that every sacrifice of a meat offering shall be seasoned with it. Homer calls it divine, and many of the old Teutonic races looked on salt springs as holy and worshipped at them. The origin of this superstition seems to be that since salt cannot corrupt it should be regarded as a symbol of immortality.

A Golden House.

The golden house was the palace of Nero in ancient Rome, which occupied the valley between the Palatine and Esquiline and connected the palaces of the Caesars with the gardens of Maecenas. It was built after the great fire of 64 A.D., and was so large that it contained porticos 2,900 feet long and inclosed a lake where the coliseuem now stands. The forecourt contained a colossus of Nero 120 feet high.

Give and Take.

"My dear there's no reason why you and Jack should squabble. All that's necessary is a little more give and take between you," remarked the hostess.

"That's just it. He hardly ever gives me anything worth taking."

Is Saving Worth While?

Perhaps it doesn't seem so when you can only save a few dollars at a time and get little or no interest.

But when you can get 4½% interest on every $4.00 you save, with the Dominion of Canada as security for your savings—that is a different story.

Canada needs money for reconstruction. Canada says to every wage earner: "Lend me your odd savings as often as you can, and for every $4.00 you lend me now, I will pay you back $5.00 in 1924. The odd cents are for accrued interest.

Saving under this plan is worth while.

If you have never before been thrifty, be thrifty now. Thrift Stamps will help you to form the habit. Buy one every time you save 25 cents, and when you have sixteen, exchange them for a War Savings Stamp.

The Losses of the Guards Serve as an Illustration Of Price Paid by England

BRITAIN'S sacrifices in blood in treasure, and in the self-denial of her people will never be fully realized by the nations whose mainstay and prop she was during the course of the long-drawn-out war. Late comers in the struggle, no matter how valuable their services to the Allied cause, will never be able to grasp the magnitude of Britain's part, and, indeed, are sometimes inclined to minimize it while magnifying their own. The State of New York, for instance, is still agog over the home-coming of its own 27th Division, and still indulging, through its press and politicians, in rather remarkable claims as to the sacrifices and accomplishments of that excellent body of soldiers.

Generally speaking, an American division consists of 25,000 men, and that is the figure given by New York papers in dealing with the 27th, whose total casualties are announced as 8,227, including 58 officers and 1,288 men killed, 9 officers and 356 men died of wounds, 129 officers and 4,479 men wounded, 49 officers and 1,604 men gassed, and the balance being made up of missing men and some who died from other causes than battle. That is a heavy enough casualty list; it means mourning for many, and suffering to the end of their lives for others. But to get an understanding of its comparison with the sacrifices of British manhood it should be read together with the following figures from the London Times relative to the losses during the war of the Guards' Division, which at full strength numbers about 16,000 men:

	Killed.	Wounded.	Missing.
Grenadiers	4,639	7,176	87
Coldstreams ...	3,606	9,759	113
Scots'	2,134	4,151	695
Irish	3,257	5,739	117
Welsh	855	1,766	2
Guards' Machine-gun Regt. ...	180	1,599	1
Total	13,671	30,179	915

An aggregate of 44,765 killed, wounded, and missing, or more than one and a half times the full strength of the 27th Division, and over three times the strength of the Guards' own division. Many honors were won by the Guards—24 Victoria Crosses, 132 Distinguished Service Orders, and hundreds of lesser distinctions. But their premier honor will be that to the end they maintained their great traditions, the men who filled up their depleted ranks from time to time proving worthy of their immortal predecessors of "the originals."

His Iron Cross.

A colored veteran just back from the other side when questioned about an iron cross he was wearing explained: "Boss, it was a extra decoration. De Kaiser hisself sent it me by a special messenger what dropped daid jus' befo' he give it to me."

The Way of the Fool.

A fool is one who goes through life with his eyes open, but sees not the things his eyes were intended to see. Instead of passing to one side of trouble, he bumps into it, runs headlong into brambles and gets stuck in mire. And sometimes he walks right into the arms of fortune or happens to be Johnny on the spot when favors are being distributed. But his streaks of luck are so thin as compared with the thickness of his worries and disappointments that they seem to be hardly worth considering.

Peculiar Hawaiian Flowers.

It is known that upon many of the summits of the high mountain ridges of the Hawaiian islands, in the regions of heavy rainfall, are open bogs which support a peculiar and interesting flora. Many species form more or less hemispherical tussocks which rise above the general level of the bog. A showy lobelia with numerous large cream-colored flowers as much as three and a half inches long, peculiar violets and a sundew are found there.

No Wonder.

Mrs. Jobling—"I don't know what is the matter with this clock, but it won't go." Her husband looked at it, then oiled it, and blew in it with the bellows, but it would not go, and he went to bed. The next morning his wife said: "Henry, I know what is the matter with the clock." "Well, what?" asked her husband. "It wants winding!" she said.

Perhaps this was your boy and you gave him a scolding. But it really wasn't his fault, he wouldn't be normal if he wasn't hard on stockings.

Because we knew boys, we designed Buster Brown Stockings. Made them to stand the strenuous use of the average boy.

We knitted them from extra-long yarn made by ourselves to ensure uniform quality. Our employees have had years of special training in knitting Buster Brown quality into hosiery.

We knitted good looks as well as durability into Buster Brown Stockings. They are made to fit—to give a dressy, gentlemanly appearance. They are suitable for any occasion.

Because of all these features, Buster Brown Stockings cost less and they require less mending.

Sold everywhere. Ask your dealer for Buster Brown durable hosiery.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

The cause of epilepsy is unknown. Perhaps the periodic seizures (convulsions or lapses of consciousness) are produced by varying causes in different cases; that is, the condition called epilepsy is probably not one disease, but a characteristic of several different diseases.

In a general way one with epilepsy should follow these rules:

1.—Never indulge in any alleged remedy for epilepsy except under the personal supervision of your own physician.

2.—Strive to maintain normal bowel function by means of diet and habit rather than by the use of laxatives.

3.—Eat slowly—that is, masticate every morsel of food completely; and avoid washing down morsels of food with swallows of beverage.

4.—It is usually best for one with epileptic seizures to limit the meat in the diet to three meals a week. A growing child may require meat once a day.

5.—There is no doubt that active open air exercise every day tends to make epileptic seizures less severe and less frequent.

6.—An epileptic who uses alcohol or tobacco has practically no chance of recovery.

7.—At least three pints of water should be taken each day; cold water may be taken with meals, if desired, provided the water is not used to wash down incompletely masticated food.

8.—Every epileptic individual should do a reasonable amount of manual labor every day.

9.—There are at least a score of worthless or fraudulent "epilepsy cures" on the market, although as a matter of fact most epileptics are not mentally defective.

10.—In a general way, milk, fish, especially sea fish, vegetables, especially green vegetables, fruit and whole or undenatured cereals constitute the best diet for an epileptic.

Does Not Like Milk.

"I stopped drinking milk thirteen years ago. People tell me my blood will be poor and I will get run down if I do not drink milk. But every time I try it comes back, even if I take a little in tea or coffee. I cannot bear the smell of milk. Is there not some substitute I can use?

"MISS C. A. E."

For Lice and Nits.

"As for lice and nits I have tried almost everything. Take a fine tooth comb, dip the teeth in turpentine and comb it through the hair. The lice and nits are no more. You are welcome to publish this if you see fit.

"L. P."

Sapping Strength.

"Our little boy, aged 8, sleeps with his grandfather. There is an old theory that the elder of two persons sleeping together saps the strength of the younger. Would appreciate your advice.

"MRS. M. J. H."

It is always better to sleep one in a bed, for that insures better rest and avoids the chance of cross-infection with any illness either sleeper may happen to have. But there is nothing in the notion that the elder absorbs any strength from the younger sleeping partner.

Heart Muscle Failure.

"Can you furnish in pamphlet or book form a treatise on heart muscle failure, such as occurs in many persons at or after middle age?

"S. M. S."

Glad to send you a little monograph dealing with heart muscle failure if you will accompany your request with a S. A. E.

Dandruff.

"Will you please reprint a formula given a few weeks ago for dandruff? It contained rescorin, I remember.

"M. D."

Dissolve ten grains of resorcin and ten grains of salicylic acid in an ounce of any toilet water or of plain alcohol. Rub some of this into the scalp once a day. To defeat any ulterior motives of the proofroom, the formula is repeated:

Resorcin, ten grains.
Salicylic acid, ten grains.
Alcohol or toilet water, one ounce.

It takes a strenuous man to win a victory over himself.

YEARLY BUSINESS REPORT OF THE WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

Success of Ontario Act is a Satisfaction to Those Who Enacted the Measure as Well as to the Beneficiaries.

The report for the fourth year's operation of the Workmen's Compensation Act, which is now printed, contains much interesting information concerning industry, workmen, and accidents in the Province.

During the year $3,514,648.47 was awarded for compensation, or $11,600 a day, and $369,346.37 for medical aid, or $1,219 a day, the number of cheques issued per day being 248 for compensation and 139 for medical aid.

Payment was made for 40,930 accidents, 382 of these being death cases, 2,549 causing some degree of permanent disability, 25,446 causing only temporary disability, and 12,553 involving only medical aid.

As the disability in serious accidents often continues into and sometimes beyond the following year, complete statistics can only be given for the prior year.

These show that about 45 per cent. of the injured workmen were British subjects and 25 per cent. foreign, 6½ per cent. being Austrians, 6 per cent. Italians, 5½ per cent. Russians and 2½ per cent. citizens of the United States.

Machinery caused about 32 per cent. of all the accidents; the handling or moving of objects, 28 per cent.; and falls of the workmen, 10 per cent. The most prolific individual causes were saws which caused 892 accidents; lathes, 891; presses, 813; hoisting apparatus, 785; abrasive wheels, 781; belts, pulleys, chains and sprockets, 390, of which 7 were fatal; planers, jointers and edgers, 260; shapers, moulders and headers, 121; shafting, couplings, and set screws, 75, of which 6 were fatal. Falls from vehicles caused 260; collapse of support, 276. Hot and inflammable substances caused 1,018 accidents; falling objects caused 1,256, and runaway animals, 98.

In the present industrial conditions the existence of a law which is just and satisfactory to labor and not unduly burdensome to industry is of the highest importance, and the success of the present Ontario Act must be a great satisfaction to those responsible for its enactment, among whom the representatives of labor took a leading part.

While the amendments at the last session have put the Ontario law in the first place in regard to benefits to workmen, the rates of assessment are low compared with those of other places. The explanation is in the fact that Ontario has a collective liability state system in which the comparatively small cost of administration is mostly borne by the Province, and in the fact that the provisions and methods of administration of the Act are very simple, speedy, and inexpensive.

Statistics show that from 40 to 60 per cent. of what is paid by employers for private insurance elsewhere is consumed in expenses and profits, and less than 25 per cent. of what the employer paid under the old employers' liability system actually reached the workman or his dependants, the rest being absorbed in legal and other expenses.

Comparisons of rates of assessment are significent. The steel works rate, for instance, under the collective liability system is in Ontario $1.70, Nova Scotia $1.90, and Ohio $1.75, as compared with a rate under the private or mixed system of $3.74 in Michigan and $5.02 in New York. For mason work the rates are: Ontario, $1.50; Nova Scotia, $2; Ohio, $2.85; Michigan, $5.41, and New York, $8..74. In Michigan the benefits are little more than half what they are in Ontario.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES ATTEND SERVICES AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

I.O.F. and W.O.W. Lodges Hear Interesting Sermon by Rev. Canon Davidson—Vote of Thanks in Appreciation of Kindly Reception

Court Chemong, No. 530, of the Independent Order of Foresters and Sherwood Forest Camp, No. 50, of the Woodmen of the World held a joint parade Sunday evening to St. John's Anglican Church They met in their hall on George street and marched together to the church, the procession being headed by the Salvation Army Band, under the leadership of Bandmaster W Badley

The rector Canon Davidson read two reports from the Anglican Synod which met last week in Toronto, showing that the Anglican Church appreciated the difficulties of the present labor situation and was prepared to deal with it from a sympathetic standpoint.

In his sermon the rector called attention to the feeling of brotherliness that was the main object of all fraternal societies and expressed his belief that if the church had done its duty in this respect in the past there would have been little need, if any, of such organizations. He wished to see this brotherly feeling extended to take in many more than were at present included.

He also touched upon the social and labor unrest of the hour and stated that what was most insistently required was good fellowship. There were the after-effects of the war to consider and it was most imperative that everybody should pull together. "Antagonisms of race, religion and politics, as well as the rifts between labor and capital which were fostered by the devil should be overcome by the be overcome by the united efforts of the citizens."

A meeting was held in the George Street Hall at the conclusion of the services. Bro G. W Powell being elected chairman It was moved by Sov R. [illegible] and seconded by Bro H C Wilson, the two marshals of the parade that the united thanks of the two societies should be tendered Major Davidson for his instructive sermon, to the congregation and officers of St. John's Church for their kindly reception, to the choir, and particularly Mr T. Ward, the soloist for the excellent music

It was moved by Sov S. Sutcliffe and seconded by Fro. J. Gray that the thanks of both orders be extended to the Salvation Army Band. Both these resolutions were unanimously and heartily carried.

Sov. Andrew Graham, C. C.; Sov. Fred. Sutcliffe, Bro. J. H. Morrison and Bro. J. W. Buyers all spoke of the two Orders and the friendly rivalry that existed between them The I. O. F. has an honor roll of 25 of whom two made the supreme sacrifice overseas The W. O. W. have a similar number on their roll of whom one will never return. A very kindly reference was made to the military record of the worthy canon who was the first minister in Peterborough to leave his pastoral work for the sterner duties of war.

A vote of thanks was then tendered to the two marshals on the motion of Bro. J. W. Buyers, seconded by Sov. W. G. Fredenburg, and the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

DETROIT STREET CARS TIED UP

OVER 2,000 MOTORMEN AND CONDUCTORS ASK FOR HIGHER PAY.

Detroit, Mich., June 9. — Street car service in Detroit ended at 4 o'clock Sunday morning, and a city of a milion people has only private autos and a pitifully inadequate jitney service on the main thoroughfare as a means of transportation. But it will not be until the city's industrial army attempted to go to work that the true situation was realized.

Stream of Autos.

All day the streets were jammed with a steady stream of autos, hundreds of them operating as private "jitneys." Virtually everything on wheels from which could be coaxed a feeble chug of power, was pressed in to emergency service. How long the tie-up will last is uncertain.

PIN AND ADDRESS FOR MR. JOHNSTON

RETIRING TEACHER HONORED BY SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS AT MURRAY STREET.

Mr. Hughson Johnston, who is leaving the city this week for Winnipeg, was presented yesterday by his Sunday School class at Murray Street Church with an address and a scarf pin with a horse shoe design. The address was as follows:

Dear Teacher,—

We want to express to you today the very great loss that we feel we sustain in your removal from Peterborough to Winnipeg. You are essentially a boy's man, understanding a boy's viewpoint and sympathizing with his activities. Your sterling Christian character, combined with this quality of being a natural leader of boys, has endeared you to each and all of us. We feel that your place cannot be easily filled but what will be our loss will be Winnipeg's gain.

Please accept this tie pin as a slight token of our love and appreciation. It carries with it our hope that God will lead you to greater success and higher Christian service.

Yours most sincerely,
John Ward Arthur Jackson
Percy Dallon Jack Tewesley
Cramer Yelland Lionel Brown
Robert Breyfogle Rollo Doughty
Arnold Hardwicke Roy Lewis

Mr. Johnston made a suitable reply.

FAMOUS BAND TO BE HERE JULY 1ST

HUNTSVILLE'S MUSICAL ORGANIZATION OF 55 PIECES ONE OF THE ATTRACTIONS.

The Huntsville band, which will play here on July 1 is certainly one of the unusual attractions that the Exhibition Board are bringing in. It is controlled by Mr. C. O. Shaw, a wealthy mill-owner of Huntsville, who has made it his particular hobby to collect good musicians about him. In fact anyone who is not a musician stands very little chance of securing employment in his works. There are 55 pieces in the band altogether, which is now starting out on its second season.

The prizes offered in the horse racing events are the largest that have ever been put up in Peterborough and will undoubtedly attract the best racers from outside points. In fact one race is reserved to encourage local horsemen and six contestants will be picked out to enter in this event. The purse of this race is $200, and for the 2.30 and 2.15 classes, $400 each. Dr. J. A. Sinclair, of Cannington, has been selected to act as starting judge. He is at present in Edmonton, but expects to be back in time to officiate.

THEY ACTED in TIME

During 1917, twenty men, all hale and hearty insured their lives in the Sun Life of Canada All paid the first premium, none lived to pay the second.

They paid a total of $5078.26 and their beneficiaries received $74,212 60.

The records for 1918, owing to the ravages of the "Flu," will show the above record repeated many times, and all such acted in time.

What are YOU going to do about it? Act in time or be forever TOO LATE.

The Sun Life of Canada paid these claims willingly and promptly and will do the same for your loved ones IF YOU ACT IN TIME.

THEATRICAL

"LAUGHING" BILL HYDE TO BE AT GRAND TONIGHT

Rex Beach's Latest Story Will Be Told on the Film—Three All-Star Vaudeville Acts Also on the Bill.

Rex Beach's latest story, "Laughing Bill Hyde" and three All Star vaudeville acts will be at the Grand on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Will Rogers, the rope thrower and dispenser of sparkling wit, was engaged as feature player in Rex Beach's "Laughing Bill Hyde" because in the opinion of the author and Goldwyn executives, he is Bill Hyde in the flesh.

"I felt with regard to 'Laughing Bill Hyde,'" says Rex Beach, "that there was just one actor on earth that I wanted to see the hero of my story, and that actor is Will Rogers. I believe, as does Samuel Goldfish, that he is going to be a huge success on the screen. The role he is now playing is himself—without a change.

"I think that Rogers is the most natural and human player on the American stage today. He has the shrewdest wit and wonderful diffidence that is irresistible."

New York had seen Will Rogers in vaudeville at Hammerstein's long before he burst on the view of theatregoers as a sure-enough "find" of the stage. His real introduction to the metropolis came in a dramatic manner one night about four years ago at the Follies Bergere in Forty sixth street, now the Fulton Theatre. A revue produced by Henry B. Harris with Jesse Lasky was well under way, with Rogers on the stage, when every light in the house suddenly went out. Panic threatened for a moment but only for a moment.

From the blackness of the stage came a soothing, not unmusically-metallic voice begging everybody to keep their seats. There followed a flow of impromptu funny stories that so amused the frightened audience that it forgot everything else for half an hour and doubled up in the dark and laughed itself sick. When the lights went on Will Rogers was revealed as the man who had saved the night. Next morning the newspaper critics neglected everybody else to pay tribute to the cowboy humorist and his original brand of fun.

It is said of Will Rogers that his jokes are as fresh as hour-old eggs. In his dressing room at the "Follies" he reads the evening papers before he goes on the stage. What he finds in the news of the day is grist for his joke mill. In appearance he is a bashful, almost frightened cowboy; in fact he is one of the keenest figures on the stage.

Rogers is the inordinately proud head of a family consisting of a wife and three very excellent children—two girls and a boy. One of the girls is quite new, having made her advent at the Long Island home of Fred Stone, where Rogers and his folks are for the summer, only a few weeks ago.

Will Rogers is in his fourth season as a featured player in Ziegfeld's "Follies" and the "Midnight Frolic." and is under contract to be starred next year in a stage play.

And the most expensive vaudeville Acts ever presented in Peterboro—Smith and Troy in a "Breeze from the Philippines." Harry and Etta Conley in a comedy skit "At the old Cross Roads," and Frank Morrell, the California Boy.

RAISE PIGS PROFITABLY

Mustard Can Be Controlled by Spraying.

Spray Should Be Applied on Calm, Clear Day as Soon as First Few Mustard Plants Show Flowers.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

ANIMALS, no matter what kind, always put on weight the most cheaply when they are young and the younger they are the cheaper the gains. As a consequence of this it is essential that the man raising young stock realize this and give a reasonable amount of attention to the young animals he is expecting. A few days before farrowing the sow should be brought into the pen so that she may become accustomed to her surroundings. A close watch should be kept on her during these days in order to ward off constipation, which is the bug-bear of a great many swine breeders. Once this condition occurs very little can be done, so it is a matter of prevention rather than cure. When the animal is taken into the new quarter her feed should be sloppy and of a laxative nature, a liberal supply of roots and a small amount of linseed oil meal helping to bring about this condition. The meal ration for a brood sow may consist of equal parts ground oats and wheat middlings.

At the time of farrowing the sow should be left alone but the attendant should be keeping a watch on her to see that no trouble arises. After farrowing the sow should not be disturbed for ten to twelve hours and her first feed should be little more than a drink of water with a little middlings in it. After this the ration may be increased to full feed, taking eight to ten days to do so. When the young pigs are weaned the ration should be cut down to stop the secretion of milk and, if it is necessary, turn the sow in with the young pigs once a day for a few days.

If, when the pigs are born, they are good and strong and vigorous they should be left alone for a while and as soon as the right time arrives they should be placed to the teat to suck as soon as possible. If the pigs are vigorous and healthy, nothing special need be done for them until they are two or three weeks old, by which time they should have learned to eat a little bit by picking around their mother's trough. At this time, if it is convenient, a small trough, away from the large trough, should be provided and the youngsters should be given skim milk with a little middlings stirred into it. As the pigs grow older more middlings may be stirred into the milk.

Outdoor exercise is very important for young pigs and every means should be used to induce the young pigs to take it, but precautions must be taken to protect the youngsters from cold winds and the hot sun. If the sow is turned out with the pigs she should not be given too much range at first unless the little fellows become unduly tired as a result of travelling too far.

Boar pigs not intended for breeding purposes should be castrated before weaning to get the best results, though there is not much danger in castrating at a latter date provided care is observed in connection with the operation. Clean hands and instruments and disinfectant on the wound will overcome all danger of infection.—J. McBeath, B.S.A., O. A. College, Guelph.

Spraying With Iron Sulphate to Prevent Mustard From Seeding

Iron sulphate or copperas can be successfully used to prevent Mustard from seeding in standing grain without injury to the crop.

Preparation of Solution.—A 20 per cent. solution should be applied. This can be prepared by dissolving 80 lbs. of iron sulphat in 40 gallons of water. Iron sulphate is dissolved quite readily in cold water. The solution should be strained through a cheese cloth, as it is put into the spray pump tank. This will remove dirt and small particles that are apt to clog the nozzles.

Time to Apply.—Apply on a calm, clear day just as soon as the first few plants in the fields show flowers. It is very important to spray early. If the plants are left too long the treatment is not nearly so effective. If a heavy rain comes within 24 hours after the solution is applied, it will be necessary to spray again.

How to Apply the Solution.—An ordinary hand-pump barrel sprayer, such as is employed to spray fruit trees may be used, or a potato sprayer can be rigged up to do the work. Many of the up-to-date potato sprayers have a special broadcast attachment for spraying weeds. These are excellent for large areas, as they cover a wide strip at each round. Care must be taken to see that every mustard plant is covered with the solution in the form of a fine spray.

Iron sulphate may be obtained at any hardware store or from the Nichols Shemical Co., Toronto. In wholesale lots it is better purchased from this company, who can supply it much cheaper in large quantities than it can be purchased at local hardware stores.—Prof. J. E. Howitt, O. A. College, Guelph.

Selling Cream Pays.

Selling whole milk robs the young things on the farm—often the farmer's own children, of needed milk supply, hence many farmers are content with less ready cash secured by selling cream in order to have better and more live-stock, and consequently richer soil, which, after all, is the basis of good farming.—Prof. H. H. Dean, O. A. College, Guelph.

Wolsey's Disinfectant.

Whenever Cardinal Wolsey granted an audience to the people, or whenever he went anywhere where he was apt to have to mingle with a crowd, he carried an orange that had been especially prepared for him by removing the pulp and putting a sponge soaked with disinfectant and sweet smelling spices inside it

Mr. Henry B. Thomson, of the Canadian Trade Commission, now in London, says there is practically an unlimited market for Canadian farm produce in Great Britain alone.

If Canada could supply Great Britain with only the eggs which were formerly obtained in Russia, the prosperity of small farmers would continue for years, according to the Canadian Trade Commission's information in London.

While some men practice what they preach, the majority would be ashamed to preach half they practice.

BIG LEAGUE HAPPENINGS

VICE-PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES IS AN INCORRIGIBLE BASEBALL FAN.

Tom Marshall, vice-president of the United States, is a baseball fan, a philosopher, does not take himself or his job too seriously, and all in all is a well balanced man, whose merits will live in memory long after a lot of fakirs who appear for brief moments before the limelight, then pass, have been forgotten. The vice-president is quite a friend of Ban Johnson head of the American league, and the two men meet on common ground when they happen to fall in with each other, as real men will.

Ban Johnson always sends Tom Marshall an annual pass to the games played in Washington, but by some accident or other the pass missed connections when the regular batch was sent out. The overlight was called to Johnson's attention in some way and at once he made amends. Whereupon the vice-president of the United States sat down and wrote this letter to the president of the American league, under date of May 16;

"My faith in human nature has been very greatly revived this morning by a call from Mr. Minor as messenger from you, conveying to me a season pass to the American league ball games.

"I returned from my vacation and, not finding a pass on my desk, I said to myself: 'Even so intelligent and patriotic an organization as the American league has forgotten that there is a vice-president.' I know everyone else had forgotten it, but the iron rather entered my soul to think that you did not remember.

"Now, however, the sun is shining, and whether we shall have a league of nations or not, I am quite sure I shall get more pleasure out of the performances of the American league than I will get out of the performances of the American senate trying to organize a league of nations."

Those who set out to kid Haonk O'Day take upon themselves a man's sized job, for the veteran umpire always retains a firm grasp on his goat and usually is able to silence his critics with a few well chosen words. At one stage of a recent game the players on the Cincinnati bench began to cast aspersions on Hank's judgment on strikes and balls, but they were stopped short. Holding up the game for an instant, O'Day turned to the Reds' dugout and said, with just a tinge of sarcasm in his voice:

"If you guys can call 'em any better than I can come out here and try it. It seems to me that if your eyesight was as good as you seem to think you'd be in the game with the regular players instead of warming the bench."

Whereat silence hung like a pall over the Reds' rendezvous.

Early this season the Detroit newspapers announced that Frank Talcott, Yale's winning pitcher last year, had affixed his name to a Tiger contract and that great things were expected of him.

Talcott is now with Jack Coombs, who pilots the Philly Nationals and there's a little story in connection with the Talcott shift.

It appears that no sooner had Talcott reported to Hughey Jennings than he was ordered to groove the ball to the batters in practice. This went for a few days when Talcott kicked up a rumpus, told Jennings he could not see where he was improving his style by serving up straight fast ones to Ty Cobb, Veach & Co., and demanded either to be given a chance in a major league game or his release. Jennings gave him the release he asked for and Coombs promptly picked him up.

Time will tell whether or not Jennings pulled a "boner."

Having a short name means more or less prominence to a ball player. Kauff, Doyle, Carey, Magee and other five lettered names are pounced upon with great glee by the newspaper boys who have to write the "heads." Long names are usually relegated to the more or less flexible "hanger."

Dr. Robinson Sells Two Good Fillies

Dr. F. L. Robinson, this city, while not engaged extensively in horse-breeding is sufficiently a lover of good blood horses to always maintain a good stable of well-bred fillies and colts got from his standard registered stallion, "Fern Hall." This stallion is not only a favorite in Peterborough district, but his get is sought after by the leading horsemen in Canada, and not infrequently in the States. In fact, Dr. Robinson enjoys the distinctive reputation of having bred some of the finest horses in the Dominion.

Mr M. J. Travis, Rochester, N.Y., formerly owner of a speedy racing horse "Direct Heart," (a winner of first place at Cleveland last fall,) and who is now owner of "Jones Gentry," has recently purchased from Dr. Robinson two well bred fillies by his standard bred stallion, "Fern Hall." This stallion is by "Walnut Hall" dam by "Fereno," by "Moke."

One of the above fillies is registered "May Hall." Her dam is "Lucy Axworthy," who is also the dam of "Knight Worthy," also "Steel Arch," "Etta Todd," and other fine stock.

The other filly is registered "Mildred Hall," sired by "Fern Hall," dam "Mildred Newman," with a mark of 2.16; by "Robert King," by "May King."

After reciting "Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight," a school girl imagines she is a born elocutionist.

PETES HOLD OWN IN NEW LEAGUE

The boys from Peterborough are now up in the front rank of the race for first place in the Central Ontario Baseball League. Saturday Port Hope went to Cobourg and beat the latter by a score of 9 to 2. At the same time Oshawa on their home grounds defeated the Belleville lads by 5 to 1. The standing of the different teams now is:

	Won	Lost	P.C.
Peterborough	2	1	.667
Belleville	2	1	.667
Oshawa	2	1	.667
Port Hope	2	1	.667
Lindsay	1	2	.333
Cobourg	0	3	.000

The local players deserve the strong support of everyone interested in baseball, and all those who can get away on Saturday should make it a point to go with them to Belleville. This is the first time for these two cities to meet, and the contest will certainly be a good one no matter which team comes off with the long end of the score.

"SWEET NELL."

Sir Peter Lely's Brush Makes Her a Rogue and Enchantress.

The new roomful of portraits which the National Gallery has borrowed from its next-door neighbor, the National Portrait Gallery, is astonishing in its range, beginning, as it does, with Henry VII. and ending with Henry James. Between these two Henries are some of the most notable figures in English history, both highroad history and by-way; but no lineaments so remain in my own mind as those of Nell Gwynn in Lely's presentment of her.

The overseas soldiers who seem to be doomed to return home without seeing either the Wallace Collection or the Tate should remember that the National Gallery, even although half of it is still closed, is full of interest. As I was saying in the London Daily Express not long ago, many of the masterpieces are now on view, while this new room constitutes a condensed Valhalla that should not be missed. For it contains not only some of our best portraiture, but our best personages, too.

Lady Jane Grey is here; Henry VIII, and two of his queens: Catherine of Aragon and Anne Boleyn; Mary Queen of Scots, Sir Walter Raleigh and Sir Thomas Gresham; Queen Mary, when a princess, with some miraculously bad spelling across her picture and few indications that her fame was to be so sanguinary; Queen Elizabeth, all resplendent, as usual in her portraits, in brocade and embroidery points; near her her darling Leicester and Shakespeare. The painters of the foregoing were principally foreigners, imported for the purpose (not all of whom to-day would be free from internment) but with Cromwell English artists came in. Robert Walker painted him and Sadler painted John Bunyan. The Duke of Buckingham, Nell Gwynn and the Countess of Shrewsbury are by Lely, and the Duke of Monmouth after execution—a very beautiful head—is by Kneller. Not the least attractive picture is Wolfe, by an unknown, but an accomplished and subtle hand. Sir John Moore is by Lawrence, Nelson by Abbott, Cardinal Manning by Watts, Irving by Bastien Lepage (a fascinating work.) Finally we come to Henry James, who qualified for the National Portrait Gallery by becoming a naturalized Briton just before his death, by Mr. Sargent.

But Mistress Eleanor Gwynn (who was buried in St. Martin's Church, hard by), what of her? Sir Peter Lely's brush makes it abundantly clear that she was a rogue and an enchantress, and also that for all her orange selling at Drury Lane (or herring selling, according to Rochester) she could put on the fine authoritative lady. Boldness, mischief, generosity and love of life are all discernible in those victorious features, but one has difficulty in visualizing her in laughter, when, the chroniclers say, her eyes would almost totally disappear. It is difficult also, looking at this portrait, to reconcile Pepy's constant diminutives—"little Nelly" he so often calls her. She was, as a matter of fact, short and plump. Whether or not it was Nell Gwynn who induced Charles II to establish the Chelsea Hospital for old soldiers the historians cannot determine, but, looking at the portrait, one feels sure that even if she did not suggest it, it was just the sort of humane thing that might easily have occurred to her. Personally I side with the faction that believes her to have done so, and I hope that all the soldiers who go to see this collection will give her a specially kindly glance in consequence.—E. V. Lucas.

Turning the Joke.

Now and then we meet men who are happiest when hitting some one a hard rap over the knuckles. These are the men that rather fight up when you get a good joke on them. And have you not noticed that such men are most always in trouble because somebody has said mean things about them? How slow we are to learn that maple syrup beats vinegar all to pieces as an attraction for honey bees!

Good and Bad Effects of Tea.

The action of tea as a stimulant on the brain is well known. Tea causes a slight rise in the blood pressure, gives a fillip to the heart, causes somewhat deeper breathing and restores for a spell waning muscular power. Its chief demerit is the retarding influence that it exerts upon digestion.

Up-to-Date Objection.

Billy was the owner of a toy automobile, with which he played a great deal. One morning his mother was busy and couldn't dress him when he awakened, so she put him in his high chair and was about to place him up to the table when he said, "Oh, mamma, I don't want to be parked here."

Eugene V. Debs Will Serve Lengthy Term in Prison For War-Time Speeches

SENTENCED to ten years' imprisonment for a breach of the Espionage Act, the specific offence being a speech calculated to hinder recruiting in the United States army, Eugene V. Debs appealed to the United States Supreme Court, which has decided that the sentence was just and that Mr. Debs must spent the next ten years in jail. Debs was for many years the most prominent Socialist in the United States, if he cannot claim that honor to-day. He was the party's candidate for President, and through his lectures and writings did much to spread Marxian doctrines on this continent. He hated war, as he admitted when on trial, and believed that wars were arranged by the capitalists in order to enslave the proletariat. He contended, however, that it was the Socialist party that was on trial rather than himself, and argued that if he was justly sentenced then every Socialist in the United States ought to be sentenced, since the whole party had the same conviction on the subject of war as himself. He pleaded also the right of free speech as guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States. It must be said of Debs that he didn't put up the usual whine of the pacifist, but manfully tried to justify his actions.

EUGENE V. DEBS.

The Supreme Court disposed quickly of his contention that it was the Socialist party that was on trial, and of the plea for free speech. Mr. Justice Holmes points out that even in times of peace the right of free speech is conditional. No man can raise a false alarm of fire in a theatre resulting in panic and injury to the audience and then plead that free speech justifies him. In time of war, the safety of the country being the supreme law, the right of free speech may still further be modified in the public interest. Common sense will approve the finding of the court. Mr. Debs tried to obstruct the war, but he was no more successful in that role than as a Presidential candidate. There is no evidence to show that as a result of his speeches a single American citizen evaded his military duties. It may be that the severity of the sentence imposed on him was dictated by his prominence among Socialists, and the only feature of the case that is to be regretted is that Debs was not convicted shortly after the United States entered the war. That would have put the lid on sedition from the outset.

Tunnels and Geology.

Geologists owe much of their knowledge of the Alps to the tunnels which have been bored through these mountains to make railway routes between the northern and southern parts of Europe. There has been no more important discovery made in this way than during the construction of the Loetschberg tunnel. This was the unexpected piercing of a great coal seam in the center of a mass of much younger Triassic stone.

Fur Shades in Wool.

Fur shades in wool fabrics, which were a distinct style note of last winter, are pretty certain to continue in vogue during the coming season.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

McLAUGHLIN—NEILL

Miss Jean Neill, the daughter of Robert Neill of this city was married last Friday morning to Capt. Hugh McLaughlin. The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. George Jackson, formerly pastor of the Sherbourne Street Methodist Toronto, at Kingsbury Hall, London. The groom is the oldest son of R. J. McLaughlin of Toronto, and is a graduate of the University of Toronto, obtaining first class honors in Modern History in 1913. The news reached the bride's home this morning on receipt of a cablegram from the happy couple.

Mrs. Guise-Bagley, accompanied by Miss Guise-Bagley, has returned to the city after an extended visit to her other daughters at and near Port Arthur.

Mr. and Mrs. George Curtis have returned from Clifton Springs, N.Y., where they have been attending the Nurses' Graduation Exercises. Their daughter, Miss May Curtis, was one of the nurses who graduated.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Darrell Wainright left last evening for Bermuda where they will reside.

Mrs. H. P. Lindsay and Mrs. T. R. Bithray left this morning on the steamer for the former's cottage at McCracken's Landing.

Mrs. Robert McWhinnie and Mrs. John Booth went up this morning to the former's cottage at Burleigh.

The members of the Post Office staff have been invited up to McCracken's Landing to be the guests of Miss Maud Lindsay next Sunday. They intend to make the trip in automobiles.

Mrs. Thomas Cruickshank spent the week-end in Toronto.

Piano Recital At The Conservatorty

A very interesting and successful recital was given on Saturday afternoon at the Conservatory of Music Hall when about twenty of the pupils of Miss Dorothy Stuart appeared for the first time. The young musicians performed very creditably and the recital was a fine demonstration of Mrs. Stuart's ability as a successful teacher of the piano. The following pupils took part:

Duet—Evelyn and Dorothy Roberts.
Columbine—Monica Goodwin.
Little Fairy—Marjory Lang
Villager's Waltz—Irene Green.
Robins Lullaby—Dorothy Roberts.
Petite Waltz—Florence Bush.
Bluette Waltz—Susan Tedford.

Elfin Dance—Gwenyth Peters.
Song without words—Florence Walton.
Jolly Duchess—Marion Hill.
Sonatina, At Evening—Edna Cheverill.

DETROIT STREET

"It may be only days or it may be weeks, but we will stand firm until the detroit United and the city reach an agreement as to the rates of fare, so that they may pay us the wages we ask," declared W. D. Mahon, President of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees of America, in addressin gthe striking employees at a meeting Sunday. His words were received with a storm of cheers.

2,000 Motormen and Cons. Out.

There are 2,000 motormen and conductors out, in addition to powerhouse and other employees.

Interurban cars are operating on several lines, but none of them come beyond the city limits. Milk cars and perishable freight will continue to be handled, however, without delay.

The street car men asked 22 1-2c to 27c an hour increase, but were willin gto accept a compromise of 10c. The D. U. R. claimed it was unable to pay the increase unless allowed to raise fares to 6c straight, with 1c extra for transfers. The Common Council offered a straight 6c fare, eliminating the workingmen's tickets, but this proposal was rejected by President Brooks of the Street Railway Company on Saturday.

"JUST WHAT I NEEDED" SAYS J. A. McKEITH

"Tanlac proved to be just what I had been needing for the past five years," said Jas. A. McKeith, of 1889 Davenport Road, RWeston, near Toronto, Ont.

"Everything I would eat," he continued, "seemed to lodge right in the pit of my stomach and I suffered terribly with indigestion and I felt bloated with gas for three or four hours after every meal. I would just drag myself off to work without eating a bite of breakfast and tried all sorts of medicines without getting any better.

"I have been improving ever since I began taking Tanlac. The indigestion has about left me, and I can eat with more satisfaction than I could before in a long time. Indigestion and gas on my stomach don't bother me now at all and from the way Tanlac has fixed me up I am glad to recommend it."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. P. Warne Drug Co., Ltd. in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in [illegible] by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

BOOKS AT LIBRARY

Seventeen new volumes arrived at the Public Library Saturday and are now on its shelves. For those who are interested in deer hunting, the Romance of Newfoundland Caribou is an exceptionally fine volume. It has a large number of full-page photographs taken of caribou in their native haunts by means of flashlights.

But the one that will appeal to the largest number of readers is probably A Motor Tour Through Canada, by T. W. Wilby. If you are fortunate enough to secure it turn to the description of the successful old-timer. The author happens to be speaking of North Bay, but what he says is just as true of Peterborough. The other volumes are:

My Memory of Gladstone—Goldwin Smith.
The North Pole—R. E. Peary.
Gas, Gasoline and Oil Engines—Collins.
Tan and Teckle—Bryson.
Report of the O. M. F. of Canada, 1918.
Our Own Country—Withrow.
Electric Cooking—Lancaster.
In Dickens' London—F. H. Smith.
Wilfred Campbell's Poems.
One Kind and Another—Barry Pain.
The Earth Trembled—E. P. Roe.
Without a Home—E. P. Roe.
Success With Small Fruits—E. P. Roe.
Near to Nature's Heart—E. P. Roe.
Nature's Serial Story—E. P. Roe.

ADMISSION 10c

BIG CROWDS AT ROBINSON CIRCUS

EXCELLENT PERFORMANCES GIVEN AFTERNOON AND EVENING — PROGRAM UP TO ANNOUNCEMENT.

There was an exceptionally large crowd at the circus Saturday, both afternoon and evening, made up entirely of small boys and girls. Some of the audience were greyheaded and could recall circuses they had seen over half a century ago, but for the time being they were just grown-up small boys and girls. It is very difficult to feature any of the various performers as they presented their acts in the three rings but certainly the lady who slid down a 200 foot rope suspended by the hair of her head was a thriller. Others were drawn up fifty or sixty feet in the air, clinging to the rope with their teeth, and there, while swaying back and forth, they divested themselves of their superfluous clothing and appeared in tights. It was only a little thing but it showed the close co-operation that must exist between the various members of a circus in order to make it a success.

The elephants danced their jigs on top of tubs, expert riders careened around the rings in all sorts of positions, and, of course, the clowns were everywhere. The monkey had his own pony, which he rode just like a little man. The family of girl tumblers were highly applauded, and a young Jap walked up a slanting tight-rope and then slid down it again, but anyone who wants to follow his example had better try it on the banister first. There were all sorts of horse races; the one in which a lady, standing on the backs of two horses, won out was cheered very heartily. At the close came the wild west show with exhibitions of horsemanship and skill in lassooing.

There was a large menagerie in connection with the show, including a polar bear, hippopotamus, lions, tigers, several kinds of deer and leopards. The latter acted just like big cats and some of the youngsters were foolish enough to run the risk of putting their hands between the bars and stroking them.

Leaving the main tent you probably entered into the auxiliary tent where you saw Sultan, the king of all lions, do mortal combat with one of his keepers. There were snake-charmers as well as other kinds of charmers who held your hands gently and unravelled the mysterious thread of the future. Then there was the Eskimo doctor and th mysterious girl Zoma, whose strange cries had something both fascinating and repulsive about them.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

HELD CONCERT AT HASTINGS

MURRAY STREET CHOIR REPEATED ENTERTAINMENT GIVEN HERE.

About 45 members of the Murray Street Baptist Church Choir motored down to Hastings Friday evening and repeated the concert given in Peterborough a month ago. They were assisted by Miss Winnifred Parker, who gave a couple of readings and Mr. Frank Whitehouse, the violinist. At the conclusion of the program a very dainty lunch was served by the ladies of the I. O. D. E. of Hastings, under whose auspices the concert was given.

COAL BUYING FOR THE GOVERNMENT

J. H. BURNHAM TELLS PARLIAMENT OF INCIDENT OF LOCAL INTEREST.

When the matter of the purchase of departmental supplies was before Parliament, Mr. J. H. Burnham, in addressing the House, told the following interesting local mixture, illustrating how the present plan works out in practice:

I should like to draw the attention of the minister to a little incident which will serve as an illustration of something that has happened very frequently, very much to the detriment of the member for a constituency. Under the old system it used to be known that tenders for coal were required. Now this Bill does not apply to the whole system of tendering. Consequently, there is just as much room for inefficiency and for doing evil that there was before. There is no way under Heaven by which business can be properly done if you cannot rely on the honesty of the people doing it. Let me give an instance. Instructions were sent to a janitor to find out how much coal was required, and what the price would be. He did so, but instead of asking several people what their tenders would be, he asked only one man, and he sent that man's tender to Ottawa. It was accepted, and then the people rose up on their hind legs and said, "What sort of a member of Parliament are you to allow such work as this to go on?" I said, "I did not do it." "Oh, yes, they said, that wont' go here. You are the member for this constituency and must watch the Government in everything. You must look into this matter." So having ascertained the facts, I communicated with the Minister of Public Works, and in due time he communcated with the officer he had employed at Peterborough, one of his own officers, and found I had stated the matter correctly. I said to the Minister of Public Works, "What are you going to do about it? This man is perfectly honest. I do not think he intended to do anything wrong, but the efficiency of your system is now on trial. What are you going to do?" He replied, "I will have to fine him five dollars.' So the minister of public works finds his own agent in Peterborough for inefficiency in a transaction under this brand-new system which the member had nothing to do with, but which he will have to watch very carefully.

SEWING CLASS AT QUEEN MARY

PRIZES WERE PRESENTED BY THE HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

The Sewing Class conducted by the Home and School Association of Queen Mary School held their closing party at the school last Friday afternoon.

Prizes were presented to those doing the best work after which an impromptu program was enjoyed by all. As the weather was too hot to permit indulgence in games the party closed with an ice cream treat.

In the senior class Freda Surety was successful in winning the prize for the finest and neatest work, although Alinda White was a very close second and Wilma Dave's and Ruth Mahood's work was also worthy of special mention.

In the junior class the prize went to Verna Bell Harper, with Winnifred Caid doing almost as good work Edna Mesley and Margaret Johnson also did splendid work. The junior class members were only nine and ten years old.

partment, save that during the past year or two different provinces have enacted minimum wage laws as to some classes of labor. Wages are, as a rule, fixed for each calling and the minimum wage varies greatly as between one calling and another and as between one city and another. The family budget as printed in the "Labor Gazette" is, it may be added, much used by employers and employees in measuring the fluctuations of living and is therefore of material value in effecting wage agreements in different trades. Attached is a copy of the family budget as printed in the May, 1919, issue of the "Labor Gazette." Attached is memorandum showing food prices for Great Britain, United States and Canada, respectively, for the month of February.

The copy of the family budget attached for staple foods, fuel, light and rent, in terms of the average prices in 66 Canadian cities, shows the cost per week to be $21.34. That budget does not include anything for clothing, for which I have allowed only the moderate sum of $2 per week. It includes nothing for medicine and medical attendance, for which I have allowed $1 per week. It includes nothing for boots and shoes, for which I have allowed 50 cents per week; nothing for headwear, for which I have allowed 10 cents per week; nothing for religion, for which I have allowed the modest sum of 25 cents per week; nothing for amusements, for which I have allowed 25 cents a week; nothing for education, for which I have allowed 25 cents a week, (because although education is free in some provinces there are incidental expenses); nothing for insurance for which I have allowed 50 cents per week; making a total of $4.80 not allowed for. This added to the $21.34 makes a total of $26.14, or an average of $4.35 per day for six days in the week which the man engaged in severe toil must earn or he cannot meet this necessary budget. Even then nothing is allowed for the instruments of labor, the tools which the workman must have, and nothing is provided for old age. When we consider the wage the workingman is receiving at the present time, he is away behind this budget. The overnment has worked very hard investigating these prices, and its figures, which are given in the most candid manner, show that $4.50 per day—$5 per day including provision for old age and tools—is the minimum wage which the laboring man in Canada should receive today. But he receives nothing like that, and it naturally follows that there is very great unrest. He does not know, very few of us did, that this was what the budget amounted to; but there are the figures given by the Government, in answer to my question, after several days' delay, and they show that the workingman is away behind. He is going down lower and lower in the scale and his weekly and yearly deficit is becoming most alarming. Restlessness must follow as a matter of course. I do not think for one moment that the employer can pay more than he is paying at the present time and make things go. I do not claim that there is any inequality whatever in the scale of prices relative to each other. I am simply accounting for the unrest among the masses of the people of this country. To urge that free trade or anything of that description will remedy matters is not to argue by the book

Mr. M. Clark: Give it a trial.

Mr. Burnham. It was on trial several years ago, and the verdict was "Guilty," and free trade was thrown out. I do not purpose to try it again, because it is a well-known principle in law that when a thing has once been tried, it cannot be tried again.

I have no suggestion to make. I know the workingman says if he was getting only a dollar a day and prices were the same as when that was the current wage, he would be content. It is not that he wants fabulous wages. He simply wants to meet his obligations. Therefore, I maintain that if you can so arrange things that the workingman can live decently and meet his obligations you will allay the unrest in this country, and in no other way can you allay it.

KNOX CHURCH EXCURSION

Annual Event to be Held by Brotherhood Next Saturday.

The excursion given by the Brotherhood of Knox Church every year has been an annual event in this city, to which both old and young look forward, and the one which is planned for next Saturday afternoon, June 14th, promises to be no exception. The steamer Stoney Lake will leave the wharf at 1.30 for Hiawatha. Every person who patronizes the excursion can be assured of a good time.

"I want the Canadian people to get a vast vision of the trade opportunities in Europe. It is not trade between one firm and another, but trade between whole nations and a sister nation." That is the message of Mr. Lloyd Harris, head of the Canadian Mission in London, on his return to Canada.

WINNIPEG COUNCIL SETS ASIDE $150,000 TO PAY EXPENSES OF SPECIAL POLICE FORCE

All Constables Who Refused to Sign Anti-Strike Agreement are Discharged.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, June 10.—The re-organization of the Winnipeg police force was begun today, city having discharged late yesterday all the policemen who refused to sign an oath not to join sympathetic strikes hereafter. Meanwhile protection was being furnished by several hundred special constables recruited from the returned soldiers.

At a stormy meeting of the City Council, which lasted until midnight, $150,000 was appropriated to pay for the special police force. During the meeting Alderman Albert Leader admitted that many Union men had already returned to work. Further desertions from the ranks of the strikers were predicted today by members of the Citizens' Committee.

At Vancouver the postal workers refused unanimously to take a strike ballot in connection with the present sympathetic strike there. Today the eight-hour day of the strike found Vancouver life nearly normal, except the badly crippled condition of water front activities. Loading and discharging of deep sea carriers, however, is proceeding under handicaps.

Peace Treaty Signed By July First

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 10.—The signing of the peace treaty by Germany before July 1 and its ratification by the various parliaments before August 1 is predicted today by The Echo De Paris. It expects an answer to the German counter proposals to be handed over probably on Friday.

The course of the Germans, it thinks, will be to replace the Scheidemann Government by another, in case present Government determines not to sign the terms of the Allies finally present them.

It is understood that Premier Clemenceau has not moved from his position against any modification of the peace terms. No settlement of the Silesian question or that concerning the Polish western frontier has been reached.

Regular Unionist Loses Election

SIR EDWARD CARSON MAY RESIGN AS RESULT OF VOTE.

London, June 10.—In the Parliamentary election held Monday for the vacant seat in East Antrim, Ireland, a defeat for the regular Unionist faction, headed by Sir Edward Carson, resulted.

The victor was Mr. Hanna, Independent Unionist, who polled 8,714 votes, as against 7,549 for Mr. Moore, Unionist and 1,778 for Mr. Legg, Liberal.

The workingmen largely supported Mr. Hanna. Friends of Sir Edward Carson had announced that he would resign the leadership of the Unionist party unless Mr. Moore was elected.

In the last Parliamentary election for the Eastern Division of Antrim, Brig.-Gen. R. C. A. McCalmont, Unionist, polled 15,206 votes as compared with 861 votes for D. Dumigan, the Sinn Fein candidate. Gen. McCalmont and Mr. Dumigan were the only candidates.

DOMINION POLICE SPARED TROUBLE

ANOTHER DEFAULTER SURRENDERS AND IS RELEASED ON BAIL.

Another defaulter under the Military Service Act, heeding the advice given in the editorial columns of The Review, surrendered himself to the local authorities and appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning. He pleaded guilty to the charge but stated in extenuation of his offence that at the time his exemption was cancelled, May 10, 1918, he was not feeling very well, and that he was the only one on the farm to help his father. The latter appeared in court and with a neighbor gave bonds for $1000 that the young man would appear next Friday.

Fined For Stealing.

As no restitution had been made in the case of theft tried yesterday, Magistrate Dumble this morning imposed a fine equal to the unpaid balance of money, $18.54 without costs and gave the prisoner twenty days in which to pay and in default of payment, thirty days in jail.

CANADA'S INDUSTRIAL SYSTEM IS NOT PERFECT, PRESIDENT BULMAN DECLARES

But, Says Head of the Manufacturers' Association, the Defects Must Be Remedied by British, not by Russian Methods—Forty-Eighth Annual Meeting is Now in Session.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Toronto, June 10.—"If this country is to retain confidence in organized Labor, Trades and Labor Unions will have to denounce any of their members, who hold and preach seditious doctrines that are repugnant to the common sense of the Canadian people," said W. J. Bulman, of Winnipeg, President of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, in the course of his address at the forty-eighth annual meeting of the association, which opened here today. All parts of Canada were represented in the gathering, although the attendance from Western Provinces was smaller than usual, owing to disturbed industrial conditions west of the Great Lakes.

Tariff revision is need in the view of the association and the President advocated the appointment of a commission of seven properly qualified men, acting in an advisory capacity to Parliament, to make a thoroughly scientific investigation and recommendations for revision.

Public ownership of railways was described by Mr. Bulman as a "great experiment" and the opinion was expressed that it might be found necessary for the Government to take over the Grand Trunk Railway also. The extension of the principle of Government ownership of the Canadian Pacific, would, however, endanger the success of the whole undertaking by preventing competition, he said.

The President reminded the association that while Canada had passed through the war and part of demobilization, there was still ahead of her the trying period of readjustment from war to peace.

While the general result of negotiations between the employers and employes had been satisfactory, extreme elements, revolutionary in methods and speech had made their appearance and were hard to deal with. "The Manufacturers' Association does not take the view that Canadian industrial system is perfect," said the President, "but seeks to improve unsatisfactory conditions by the British, not the Russian way."

MET HER DEATH BY DROWNING

MISS LYDIA WALLING PERISHED IN THE LAKE AT HALIBURTON.

A sad drowning took place at Haliburton Sunday morning at 1.45 o'clock when Miss Lydia Walling, a lady of 50 years of age, while in a demented state, was drowned in Head Lake.

It appears that Miss Walling, who had been in a state of melancholia for a few days past owing to the sickness of her sister, went out in a rowboat. After a short row on the lake the lady mistook a large boom of logs in the dark for land. As she stepped on the logs the boat drifted away and the unfortunate lady fell beneath the boom.

Shortly afterwards the lady was missed and at 10 o'clock the body was recovered.

The deceased was a highly respected lady of the community, who lived with her mother and her death will be greatly regretted by the entire community.

SPIRIT OF PENSIONING SHOULD APPLY TO OLD CITY EMPLOYES

✓

The Board of Works last evening instructed the city engineer in his course of procedure in regard to the application of union wages for laborers and whom to employ.

There is to be no discrimination between union men and non-union laborers. Preference is to be given always to returned soldiers even above men employed with the city for years. The three street sweepers who struck—Smith, Pritchard, Dancey—are to be re-engaged as soon as opportunity offers. It was understood that the street sweepers—old citizens, semi-pensioners one might say—are to get 40c an hour without interference on the part of the union. It was also appreciated that pipe-layers in sewers are worth 5c an hour more than ordinary laborers, and a resolution dealing with this vexed question reads as follows:

Moved by Ald Edgar and Turner, that clause ten of the Board of Works report to last council meeting recommending union pay for city laborers, be adopted excepting in the case of street sweepers and pipe layers, the chairman of the Board of Works and the engineer to exercise their own discretion in such cases.—Carried.

Ald. Hamilton was anxious that there should be no more controversy over this wage question. Union wages are to be paid, the street sweepers—old men—it is understood to be paid 40c an hour and if pipe-layers will not work for the union wage of 45c then the city must pay more if it has to. That's all there is to it.

Ald. Crowe regretted that the city had not yet adopted the principle of pensioning off old employes, instead of giving them jobs on the streets.

Ald. Morrison—"The old men in question do not want pensions; they would rather have employment, at which to put in their time. But it costs as much to keep any of them and their families as it does other workingmen, and they should get the 45c an hour. John Adlum, for instance has a blind wife to support. Such old employes should not be forced into the poor house by inadequate wages."

STRIKE IN PARIS FLAMES AGAIN

TEST OF STRENGTH TODAY BETWEEN CONSERVATIVES AND EXTREMISTS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 11—The labor crisis which was suspended over the pentacostal holidays became acute again today. Numerous meetings were to be held today by labor organizations, including metal workers, transport workers, Paris railroad men national council of miners federation executive committee of the general leader federation and congress of registered seamen. It is expected meetings will show whether the extremists or conservatives will control the unions. The extremists are seeking to turn the strike into a political movement while the conservatives condemn such a policy as playing into the hands of the government.

70 THOUSAND ARE READY TO STRIKE

ONLY ELEVENTH HOUR CONCESSION CAN PREVENT TROUBLE AMONG TELEGRAPHERS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, June 10.—Only eleventh hour concessions by the operating companies can prevent a strike tomorrow of some 70,000 telegraph and telephone operators, S. J. Konenkamp, International President of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, said today after the receipt of additional reports from the locals in various sections of the country.

It is not expected that Canada will be directly affected by this expected strike of operators in the United States, but serious inconvenience will no doubt be caused by interruption in International telegraphic transmission.

CONTRACT FOR BRIDGE AGAIN GOES TO RUSSEL-TOWNSEND

This is Decision of City's Board of Works on a Vote of 7 to 4—Vote For Conroy Stood at Same Division—Two of Latter's Supporters Switch From a Hopeless Cause.

At exactly eight minutes to twelve last night the city's Board of Works again recommended acceptance by Council of the Russel-Townsend Company's tender for the new Hunter street bridge, with the following rules: "That the company guarantee the aldermen against personal liability by reason of the structure exceeding in cost the available sums placed at Council's disposal for this work." That is to say the contractors will see to it that no abnormal excess of their estimated cash arises.

Mr. Navin, on his last appearance before the Board, offered for the Russell-Townsend people, the foregoing guarantee, and on that understanding, Aldermen Crowe, Gainey and Garside voted in this company's favor.

The resolution that the Russell-Townsend's tender of a cost-plus fixed sum of $29,500 on an estimated cost of $228,600 be accepted was moved by Ald. Edgar and Turner, and carried on the following division:

For—Ald. Turner, Edgar, Hamilton, Garside, Crowe, Gainey and the Mayor—7.

Against—Ald. Morrison, McIntyre, Phelan, Taylor—4.

Four For Conroy.

An amendment that the contract go to Ed. Conroy on a lump sum tender of $251,639.35, moved by Ald. McIntyre and Gainey, was defeated on the following division:

For—Ald. McIntyre, Gainey, Garside and Phelan.

Against — The remainder of the Board.

On motion of Ald. Edgar and Turner, the Board will recommend that Council rescind the clause in the Board's report adopted at a special meeting, awarding the contract to the Canadian Engineering and Contracting Co.

A letter to hand from this company asked an addition sum of $10,000 to its guaranteed price for the bridge, to make good the difference in cost of labor between 40c and 60c and 45c and 67½c, for laborers and carpenters, respectively. They had figured on the former wages.

The Board considered that this additional $10,000 made the Canadian Engineering and Contracting Company's tender prohibitive.

Ald. Crowe's Position

Ald. Crowe, on the bridge question, considered himself as filling the position vacated by his predecessor, ex-Ald. Murray, and, more or less, committed to his views in this regard. "It would not be wise for me," Ald. Crowe contended, "to go further back than where ex-Ald. Murray left the bridge question, for, unfortunately, since that time that whole matter seems to have become considerably complicated. I must lean in my views to a large extent on the result of my colleague's extensive investigations and decisions. Personally, I am impressed with the Sherwood proposition; but its acceptance would involve more delay, of which there has been already too much."

In conclusion, Ald Crowe thought Counil committed to the Canadian Engineering and Contracting Company's proposition, and contended that his position called for the support of any plans which would assure letting the contract, and pushing ahead the bridge's construction.

A Steel Proposition.

Earlier in the evening Contractor Palmer, for the Hamilton Bridge Works, submitted rough plans for a steel bridge in keeping with the Bloor street viaduct, Toronto, the steel work of which his firm constructed. The piers of this bridge are of concrete.

Mr. Palmer, in defence of such a bridge, contended that a considerable percentage of concrete structural work had failed in the past, and he considered the fact that railways still adhered to steel bridges, a evidence of a preference for steel superstructures, and their lack of confidence in concrete work for bridges as a whole.

As to labor, Mr. Palmer claimed that the steel proposition would employ more skilled and a better grade of workmen and even at that from 40 to 50 per cent. of the labor required could be hired locally. The concrete work could be done by a local man; it would have to be sublet anyway, as his firm are steel builders only

As to time, he said, such a bridge as he proposed could be erected in one half the time a concrete structure would take, and steel work could be handled in weather prohibitive to handling concrete.

Mr. Palmer contended that a steel superstructure for bridges is the only absolutely sure plan to adopt, especially in regard to cost. St. Catharines city built a concrete bridge to their sorrow, the work broke more than one contractor, the city had finally to finish the structure by day labor, and now St. Catharines people say "never again is it to be concrete for us." Subsequently this city erected a second structure, but of steel.

Mr. Palmer's plans showed a double

TO MAKE SENATE ELECTIVE BODY

MAJOR MOWAT MAY GIVE NOTICE OF MOTION TO PARLIAMENT.

Ottawa, June 10.—The Senate is visibly worried over the popular disfavor that, growing from year to year, is beginning to assume alarming proportions in the country, as a result of its indifference to the welfare of the people at large when the interests of a corporation have to be defended. There are Senators in its membership who feel that the body should be greatly reformed, and that the price of its continuance must be reformed. They argue and have argued for some time among their fellows, that it is best to take the bull by the horns before it can charge. By initiating reform, itself it is sugested that more drastic measures might be headed off. The more conservative, however object that by starting a small reform a landslide might be precipitated. They have been delaying so long, however that it looks as though a Commoner will get the start of them.

Mr. Mowat Proposes Reform

Major H. M. Mowat, member for Parkdale is taking up the cudgels for the elective Senate which his uncle, Sir Oliver Mowat favored in earlier days when he was overridden by Sir John MacDonald, who succeeded in getting the Senate constituted as at present. Major Mowat will give notice of motion along these lines shortly if he can obtain the consent of the Government at this late stage in the session to set aside a time for the House of Commons to discuss the matter.

GROW PERSONAL AT CONVENTION

MANUFACTURERS HAVE LIVELY DISCUSSION OVER ARTICLE IN MAGAZINE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, June 10.—There was a lengthy debate at the Canadian Manufacturers' Association today during the discussion of the report of the Executive Committee when Col. MacLean was strongly criticized on account of an article appearing in the Financial Post alleging that the association was run by a clique and was unfriendly to farmers and labor. Sam Harris, of Toronto, declared that whoever wrote this article was a "yellow cur."

Ex-President Parsons denied that he was hostile to the churches. Whatever he said was as a Methodist to Methodists.

Colonial MacLean denied the allegation that he desired to attack the association. He was willing to work and pay to make it the strongest body in Canada outside the Dominion Parliament.

DEFAULTERS ARE BEING RUN DOWN

DOMINION POLICE ARE NEVER ASLEEP A MINUTE ON THEIR JOB.

Owing to the rumors which have been circulated by several ignorant or malicious individuals regarding the methods employed by the Dominion Police in apprehending deserters under the Military Service Act, Inspector H. F. Ward emphatically denies that any unnecessary severity is being used or tolerated by the officers of the law. In every case where a deserter voluntarily surrenders himself this fact is taken into consideration by the magistrates who try the case.

The folowing cases which were not previously reported give some idea of the work of the Dominion Police from their headquarters at 163 Simcoe street.

Angus Twomey of Downeyville was apprehended in Toronto and paid a fine of $250 and costs.

Three defaulters are being tried at Lindsay tomorrow on information laid by Inspector Ward of this city.

James J. Robertson, 22 years of age, farm hand, living in Haliburton, voluntarily surrendered himself to the Dominion Police yesterday.

Two other defaulters are C. M. McKay and J. Bowen.

In addition there is the case this morning reported elsewhere in this paper. In this case and in every other where the delinquent gives himself up of his own free will he will not be placed in custody and in case of a remand for any reason he will be allowed to be at liberty on furnishing satisfactory bail.

Special circumstances in the prisoner's home are always taken into consideration. For instance, W. Sucie of Highland Grove, was remanded from the 5th to the 17th of June to give him time to secure proper care for his seven months' old baby.

Stephen Coleman Guthrie gave himself up last night at 5 p.m., as a deserter from the Canadian army. He joined up on June 1 last year and after being in the service for two weeks he deserted, taking his full equipment with him. At the expiration of practically a year he gave himself up, dressed in civilian clothes. Inspector Ward immediately wired to the military authorities at Kingston to send up an escort and upon its arrival he will be taken down there and tried by court-martial.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

TUESDAY, JUNE 10, 1919

THE LATE F. R. YOKOME.

THE LATE F. R. Yokome for thirty-six strenuous years held the position of editor of the Examiner, a service more than any other calculated to reveal the best and the worst that is in any man if worst there be. He has been gone for over a year. Citizens of all classes political leanings and creeds united to mourn at his passing. But nothing has been done to perpetuate the memory of the man who so unselfishly and devotedly worked for the welfare of the city, or to preserve the example he left behind him as a heritage to the living.

One year ago there died in Toronto a newspaper publisher who had been identified with the life of that city for no longer a period than covered the late F. R. Yokome's career. The Toronto editor was hardly cold in his grave before the city set out to establish a memorial as a recognition of his successful services. A new school in process of construction was named in his honor as one of the highest tributes that the city could pay and as an appreciation of the loyalty he had always shown to the cause of education.

The late F. R. Yokome was, during his life just as big, just as useful, just as talented, as sincere and devoted a man in his own sphere as was the Toronto editor whose fellow citizens hastened to honor him when he passed away. If there was any contrast between the triumphs achieved by the two men, if the influence of the one was limited as compared with that of the other, the disparity was entirely a matter of environment. The standard by which men, in public or private life should be judged, is based on the opportunities that have been offered each.

During his service the Toronto man accumulated a fortune of nearly a million dollars. He did not lack for a measure of material reward as he labored. The late Mr Yokome's life may have been crowned with success but in that success financial gain certainly did not figure and as he toiled on year after year such a queston as money, if we can assume even a superficial knowledge of the man, found no place in his thoughts. With him the attainment of an ideal was his only inspiration. the sole reward which he craved.

Mr. Joseph Begley in a gracefully worded communication in the local papers yesterday revives the suggestion that the name of Central Park be changed to Yokome Park in memory of the departed journalist, one of whose outstanding characteristics was an intense love for the beauties of nature. His was a broad culture, which included a refined appreciation of everything that is good and beautiful either in nature, in human life, in the the arts, or in literature. He was, beyond all question one of the most widely read and best educated men that Peterborough has ever included in its citizenship., If the suggestion of naming a park in his memory made nearly two years ago and now revived, fails again as it did beforesimply through a lack of leadership there are other ways just as appropriate in which his memory can be perpetuated.

The city is about to build a new school. The members of the Board of Education would earn credit to themselves if they followed the example set by the educationists of Toronto and named the new institution for Peterboro's distinguished journalist instead of making it a monument for even a member of the Royal family.

ONE WAY TO GET ACTION

A CAR OWNER in the city complains of the holes in the street paving and suggests that the Council be urged to do something to repair the thoroughfares.

There is one way in which this citizen can secure prompt aldermanic action. A short time ago a hole in the sidewalk on Hunter Street was left uncared for, for week until enterprising and sarcastic citizens converted the orifice into a garden. Then the street commmissioner got busy.

Agricultural ventures when the same opportunity offers on the paved streets, may bring about the same desirable results.

EDITORS' TEMPTATIONS.

MR JOSEPH BEGLEY may have had no practical experience in Journalism but in his letter to the press yesterday he displays some knowledge of the inside workings of the profession when he speaks of the trials and temptations that beset the editorial pathway.

Trials there are beyond all question but so far as the temptations are concerned they are largely existent only in the imagination. Every editor worthy the name is really actuated by principle rather than expediency no matter what may be the popular idea to the contrary.

Every editor, too, especially those of the old school, is ready at all times to assume full responsibility for what he writes, a responsibility legal, moral and physical if need be. They do not seek to avoid moral or legal consequences or to shun bodily risks by pleading that they were constrained to express certain sentiments by a power higher up, or to urge that the necessity to earn their daily bread led them into a course which they knew to be wrong.

No such argument goes with the members of the profession. Money is generally the last thing that occupies the editorial mind. Anyway there are some men even among editors who cannot be influenced by financial or other pressure and their friends render them a doubtful service if they suggest anything of the kind in explanation of what they may regard as editorial monstrosities.

There are men in the newspaper profession who have been over thirty years in the business and who in all that time have never been obliged to eat humble pie or to bend the editorial knee before any faction or individual.

THE PRESENT UNREST.

(Lethbridge Herald)

As our society is at present constituted there is need of agitation. So long as our responsible authorities are somnolent there must be agitation. Agitation shows that we are a live and virile people. But there is the need that with agitation there should be the recogintion that wrong cannot be righted by wrong. Constitutionel methods should prevail among those who agitate. Injustice demands the weapons of justice to remove it from its place. The lesson of the war should never be lost sight of in the present economic war. We have fought to fulfil our solemn obligations in regard to what is known as a "scrap of paper." Let that ideal be never lost sight of in the present struggles.

What labor has been endeavoring to gain has been well nigh obtained in the attitude Labor has shown. The required attention has been drawn to the grievances which in very many cases Labor has been suffering. It has gained one needed sympathetic ear. In the struggle that is going on it is for Labor to see that it does not stand to lose all that it has won by pushing the battle to extremes.

Labor has established the truth, and that truth has been accepted, that Labor has the right to a living wage with a sufficiency to allow it the comforts of existence. This has now been driven home. It is a significant trend of the times that men like President Beatty of the C. P. R. accepts the truth that "the just return to every man for his hard work is in the first instance a fair living wage consistent with the cost of living and beyond that the return should be commensurate with his individual effort and efficiency. That is what we Canadians have been overlooking."

As the President of the C.P.R. has wisely said, there is much that we have been overlooking. Much that the governments who are the representatives of the people have been overlooking. The time has come for a remedy. It is much to be regretted that the remedy has had to be forced into recognition.

MUNICIPAL HOSPITALS.

In the progressive policy of the Government of Alberta that of municipal hospitals takes a leading part. In this policy the province sets a lead and has sensed a vital need. Hitherto policies in respect to health have been concentrated on that of live stock. The human element has been neglected. With the lesson of the Great War, human life and health have now been given that prominence which they should long ago have claimed. It is a credit to the Alberta Government that in legislation which embraces the physical welfare of the province it should be the pioneer.

The establishment of municipal hospitals marks a new era in the domestic policy of Alberta. It should prove a veritable boon to the people scattered, as many of them are, and away from medical aid and nursing. The forming of hospital districts, brings the prairie dwellers in a circle where medical treatment can be easily reached. It removes the handicaps placed on remote dwellers in regard to obtaining one of the vital necessities of existence.

The policy of municipal hospitals is proving to be a very popular one. It could not be otherwise. It is not only a beneficient but an economic measure. It places the best of medical treatment and scientific nursing at the disposal of those who need the same at a nominal cost.

The plan of municipal hospitals is something in the way of a subsidiary to the national health scheme for which a federal Ministry has been formed. It enlarges the scope of that body, though independent of it, and thus serves to make a national health policy something more than a name.

The health of the people is the first consideration of responsible governments. To this responsibility the Provincial Government has lived up, in what is highly progressive legislation. The Municipal Hospital scheme should be productive of the greatest good.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

ALFALFA DID YOU SAY?

(London Advertiser.)

The Quebec alfalfa crop will be abundant. Six hundred Montreal barbers are on strike.

THEIR IGNORANCE.

(Kingston Whig.)

Some Canadian newspapers see in the abolition of titles the beginning of the disruption of the British Empire. That shows they have little faith in or knowledge of, the ideals of true democracy.

STANDING FROM UNDER.

(Toronto Star.)

We hasten to remind the press of Montreal, Ottawa, Hamilton, London, and other cities that while the Toronto police put prisoners in what is called the Toronto jail they are not responsible for the escape of prisoners. The officials of the jail are provincial. The job of the Toronto police force is to put prisoners in there, and recapture them whenever they escape.

THE VICIOUS CIRCLE.

(Ottawa Journal.)

If we could get the wages in our own trade raised without having the wages in other trades raised also, wouldn't it be a jolly world to live in? As it is the increased wage we get all goes to pay the increased wages of other fellows. It's a "Waltz me around again Willie" game.

EDITOR'S MAIL

WHAT MR. BURNHAM SAID

Editor Review: The Pembroke Standard, from which you take your report, says that I said that women ought to take their rum as the soldiers had done. What I said was that if taking the rum ration, chewing gum and smoking cigarettes would make those who had to stay at home as heroic and as noble as the boys at the front, then those men and women who remained at home should follow the example. It is not for those who remained at home to set up the standard of conduct for those who went to the front, but vice versa and the sooner we realized that fact the better. It was infinitely better to take rum when necessary and to chew gum than to plaster oneself with gew-gaws and self-complacency and then tell the boys who sacrificed everything for those at home how much more they can give up.

J. H. BURNHAM.

Minister of Labor

HON. GIDEON ROBERTSON.

The position of Minister of Labor never has been and never will be a bed of roses; not even a post in which a man can lead an official life in peace. Labor and capital are always falling out, and probably will continue to do so for some time. And when these frequent differences occur, it becomes the duty of the Ministry of Labor to pour oil on the troubled waters, restore peace, and bring order out of the confusion that inevitably results from labor troubles.

The trying post is now held by a man who has had considerable experience in the labor world and whose achievements there marked him for the position, when it fell vacant last autumn. He is the Hon. Gideon Robertson, a member of the Senate of Canada, and for some time before taking charge of the Department, a member of the Cabinet without portfolio as the special representative of labor.

It is generally recognized that Senator Robertson did much to promote industrial peace throughout the Dominion during the critical years of the war. It is to be hoped that during the reconstruction period he will be equally successful. He is now the responsible head of the Department of Labor. His responsibilities are greater, but so too are his powers and his opportunities.

Some of the most serious labor disputes which he has succeeded in adjusting were those of the Nova Scotia miners and of the eight thousand men employed on the maintenance-of-way of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

He has made a study of labor conditions in Canada, and he approaches the problems in a sympathetic spirit.

MENACE TO STRAWBERRIES

Moth Found in Quebec, which is Spread by Bufferfly.

Quebec, June 9.—The Quebec Provincial Department of Agriculture reports a menace to strawberry plants in the Province, but more especially in Quebec district.

The presence of some kind of moth has been noticed in strawberry fields, and the experts of the department report, after analysis, that the plague is liabel to spread.

Butterflies propogate the damaging moth, and the Government officials counsel spreading poisoned solutions over the plants to protect them against the insects.

STOP LOOK and LISTEN before purchasing a baking powder that may possibly contain injurious ingredients. Many food scientists claim that baking powder containing alum is unsafe for use in food. The mere fact that some brands of baking powder have the words "No Alum" on the label is not sufficient proof that they are what they are represented to be. Our chemists find a good many have "No Alum" on the outside but large quantities of it inside.

WIT AND WISDOM

Counsel Now, sir, did anyone ever try to make you tell lies in connection with this case?"

Witness—Y—yes!

Counsel—Ah! Now, remember you are on your oath! Who was it?

Witness—Y—y—you!

The candidate, after tiring his audience, wound up as follows: "I want housing reform. I want land reform. I want education reform. I want ——" "Yes," shouted a bored voice from the audience "you want chloroform."

Mary—Lor' bless you, mum. If the darling turns blue, it's too cowld—if red, it's too hot!

It is well known that many barristers in the Temple have been having a bad time the last year or so.

One evening last winter a certain young barrister went across to the Inner Temple Library. He was surprised by the sudden appearance of his office boy, who was looking very excited.

"If you please, sir," he gasped, "a gentleman is waiting for you at your chambers with a brief. He can't get out, sir; I've locked him in!"

Not Quite the Same.

"Yes, that is where he made a mistake," said McLean, referring to the latest act of stupidity on the part of McFarlane.

"I don't call such an action as that a mistake," replied old Cormack, dictatorially; "I call it a blunder."

"Well, it's all the same thing," returned McLean.

"No, you are wrong there," was Cormack's reply. "There's a great deal of difference between a blunder and a mistake."

"I should like to know what it is," answered McLean, sceptically.

"Well, suppose you went to call on some friend, put an old umbrella into the stand and took away a new one when you left, that would be a mistake; but suppose you put down a new one and brought away an old one, that would be a blunder; d'ye see!"

FALLACY OF PRICE REGULATION

(New York Commercial.)

It is to be hoped that the present year will see the end of price regulation by the Government. It has never been successful and never will be. The Duke of Milan in the sixteenth century ordered the bakers not to charge more than a certain fixed sum for bread. Inasmuch as they could not sell at the price without loss, they stopped baking and the condition of the populace was worse than it was in the beginning. Economic laws have endured for all time and no Government has ever been able to repeal them. They may have arbitrarily set them aside for the time being, but in the end they had to be reckoned with. In 1916 there was great complaint because American flour was selling in France at $9 a barrel, whereas it was bringing $16 here. But the French Government paid $16 for it and with the cost of transportation charged the difference off to war expense. The war expenses were met by taxation and bond issues and although camouflaged the price was paid just the same.

The recent attempts to stablize steel prices failed because the principle was economically unsound. The theory seemed to be based on the idea that if every one agreed to pay certain prices, then such prices would represent the true value. But they wouldn't. At the most it could be only a starting point. Eventually, it not immediately, the law of supply and demand would govern and it was because of the knowledge of that fact that practical men of affairs whose money was to be expended refused to launch forth on an enterprise based on untried theories.

Efforts of cotton farmers to regulate prices through the control of supply have failed. They expected to reduce the acreage this spring by some 30 per cent. but the latest reports show a reduction of about half that, due largely to natural causes. The smaller growers in particular, after signing an agreement to reduce their acreage, immediately ignored it in the expectation of being able to take advantage of the higher prices. From present indications demand will be sufficient to absorb all the cotton this country can raise and those who curtail will be sorry they did not raise more.

Supply and demand inevitably control, but supply itself is governed by so many different things, and demand has so many ramifications, that no human mind has yet been able to devise laws that would harmonize them all on an artificial basis. All through the war this board or that board has been obliged to issue regulations and new regulations without end to meet the constantly changing conditions. Placing restrictions at a certain point has simply produced a distortion out of harmony with everything else. It is true that price regulation was necessary during the war, but then it must be remembered that the war itself was a distortion. The relationship between supply and demand must be natural. The level of the water in the reservoir depends upon the equalization of pressure throughout the system.

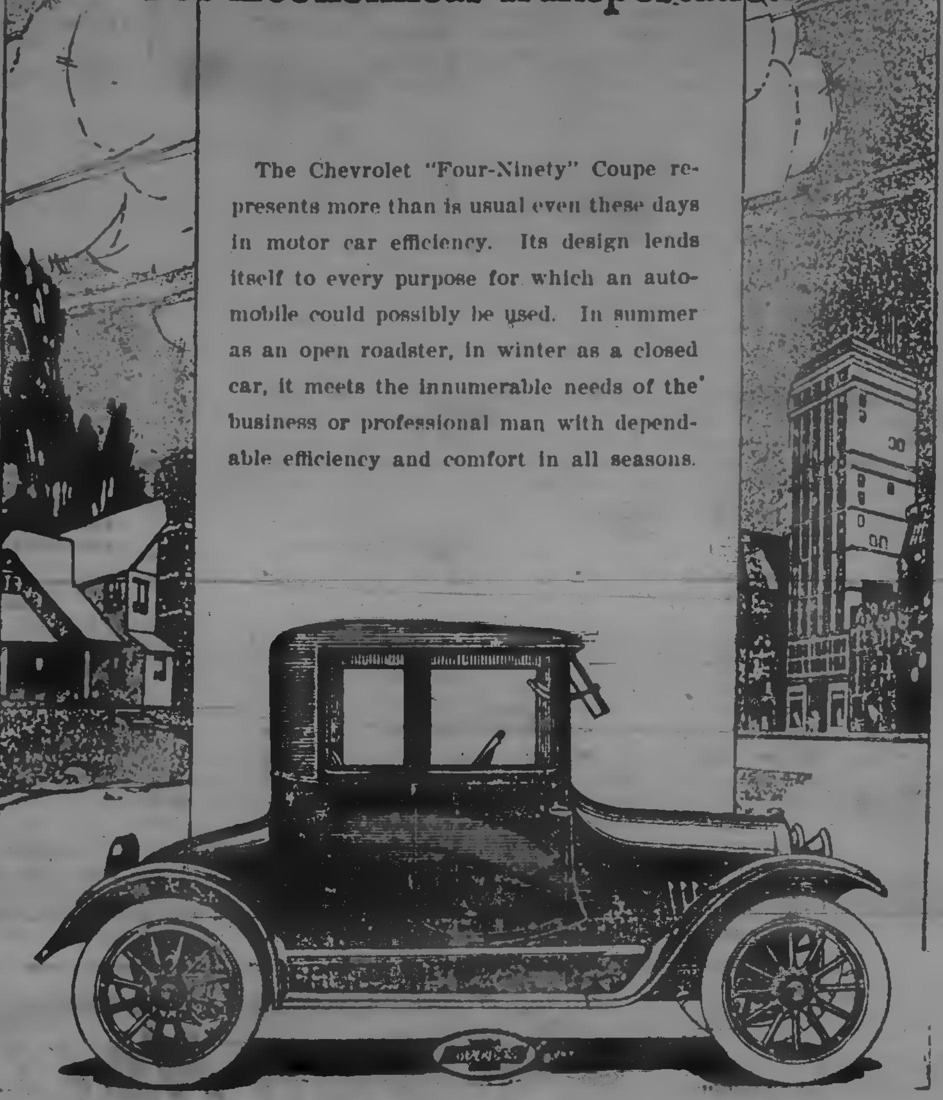
CHEVROLET

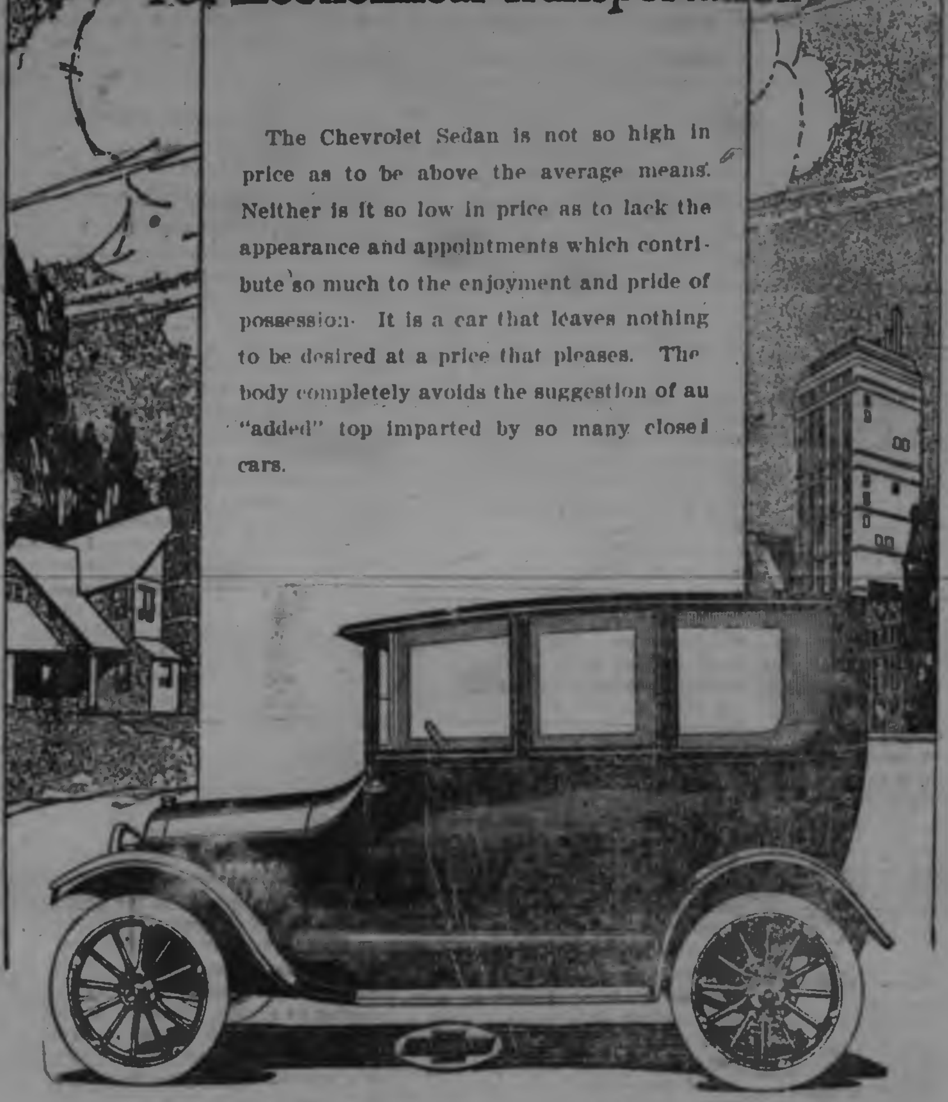
Important Annoucement To Motor Car Buyers

CHEVROLET
For Economical Transportation



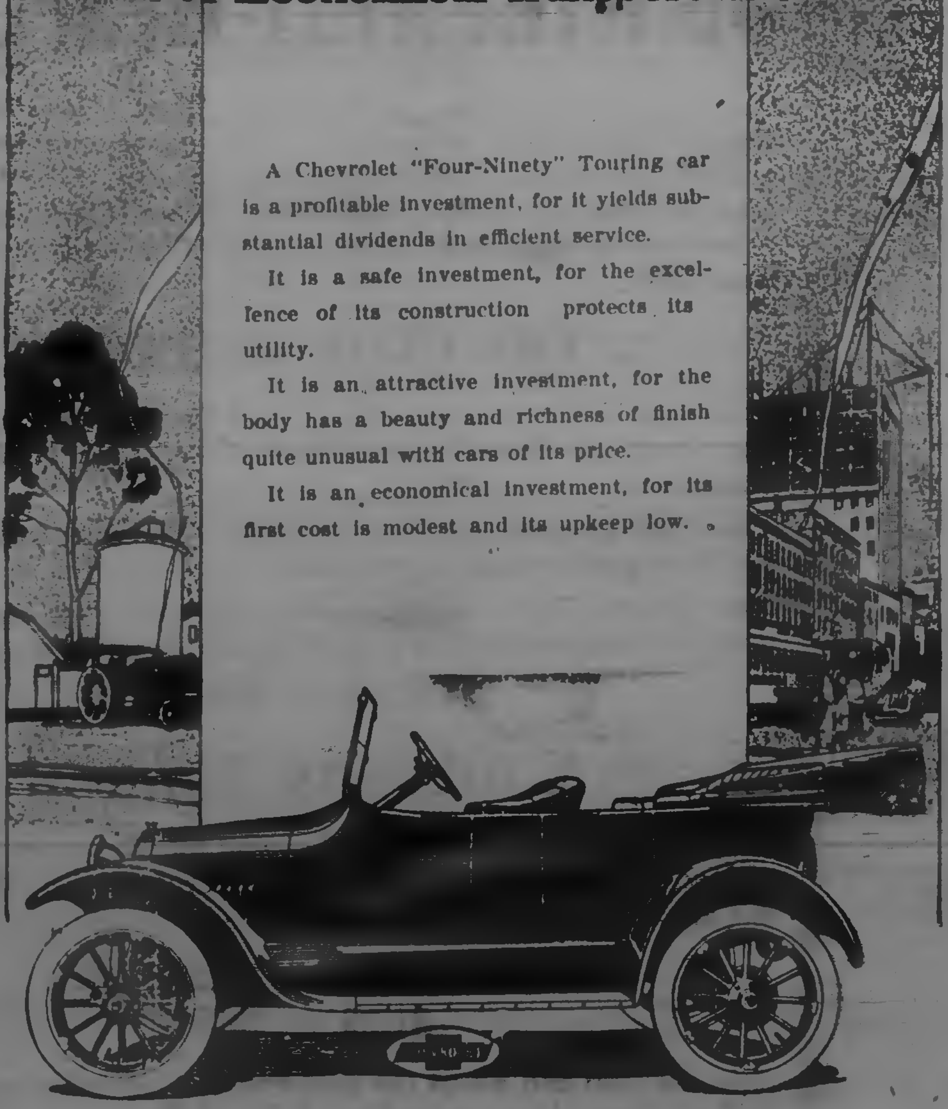
The Chevrolet "Four-Ninety" Coupe represents more than is usual even these days in motor car efficiency. Its design lends itself to every purpose for which an automobile could possibly be used. In summer as an open roadster, in winter as a closed car, it meets the innumerable needs of the business or professional man with dependable efficiency and comfort in all seasons.

CHEVROLET
For Economical Transportation



The Chevrolet Sedan is not so high in price as to be above the average means. Neither is it so low in price as to lack the appearance and appointments which contribute so much to the enjoyment and pride of possession. It is a car that leaves nothing to be desired at a price that pleases. The body completely avoids the suggestion of an "added" top imparted by so many closed cars.

CHEVROLET
For Economical Transportation



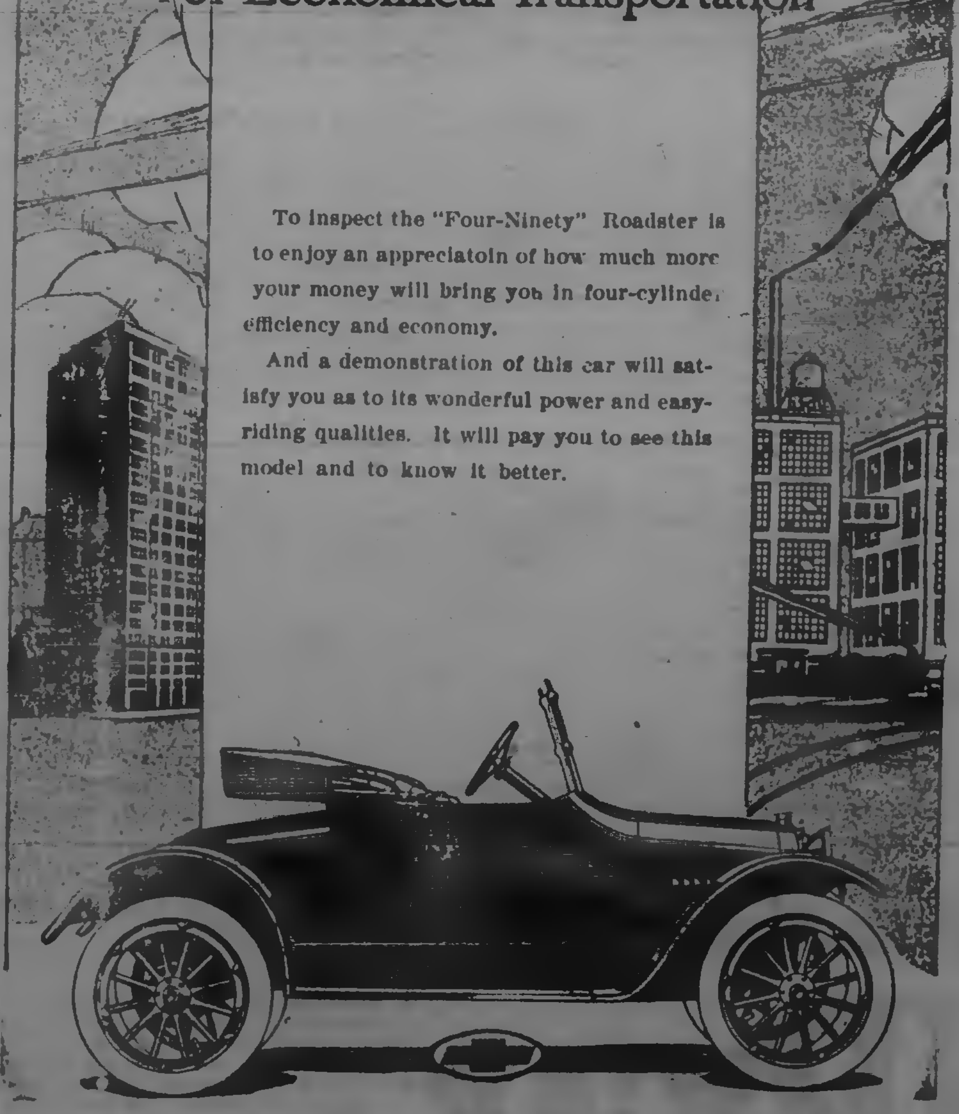
A Chevrolet "Four-Ninety" Touring car is a profitable investment, for it yields substantial dividends in efficient service.

It is a safe investment, for the excellence of its construction protects its utility.

It is an attractive investment, for the body has a beauty and richness of finish quite unusual with cars of its price.

It is an economical investment, for its first cost is modest and its upkeep low.

CHEVROLET
For Economical Transportation



To inspect the "Four-Ninety" Roadster is to enjoy an appreciatoin of how much more your money will bring you in four-cylinder efficiency and economy.

And a demonstration of this car will satisfy you as to its wonderful power and easy-riding qualities. It will pay you to see this model and to know it better.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

For quite a spell now we have studiously avoided the subject of autointoxication but several hundred inquiries from readers make it necessary to drag in the dear old subject again.

Autointoxication is an idea composed of 99.41 per cent. fancy and faint traces of fact.

That's a downright disappointing admission for a doctor to make and it will, no doubt, lay him open to grave accusations by many readers, not to mention the displeasure of colleagues who may be guilty of diagnosing autointoxication. The truth is always painful to some one. Time was when I uttered the truth without any compunction whatever, but I fear I am getting wishy-washy, because nowadays I actually hate to tell the truth without softening or toning it down some. However, candor still plays her famous role, and far be it from me to criticize her technic.

Had Prof. Metchnikoff survived there isn't doubt that he would have repudiated nearly all of the views attributed to him today by aggressive autointoxication to market. Metchn: merchants with alleged remedies for koff, for instance, never suggested that one germ or type of germ in the intestine fights or kills another germ or type of germs. He wrote rather about the influence of diet on the bacterial flora or fauna of the intestine. I say flora or fauna because I do not know whether germs are of the vegetable or the animal kingdom, and neither does any one else, so I am entitled to refer to the bugs in the bowel without any vulgarity.

Certain foods encourage the active growth and multiplication in the intestine of a type of bacteria called bacillus acidophylus, which particular type of germs renders the field unfavorable for the growth and multiplication of other types, such as the bacilluscoli communis, which are the agents of putrefactive decomposition. Among the foods which tend to keep the bacillus acidophylus predominant the sugar of milk (lactose) is perhaps the best. Ordinary milk, as well as buttermilk, contains this wholesome lactose.

The protein (casein) of milk is much less likely to undergo putrefactive decomposition in the bowel than is the protein of meat. And the proteins in such vegetables as peas, beans, peanuts and other nuts are also unlike meat protein in that they do not encourage the growth of the putrefaction bacteria in the intestine.

The sugar present in many vegetables (dextrin) favors the development of the bacillus acidophylus type about as much as milk sugar does.

Regardless of the amount of putrefaction occurring in the intestine, let it be remembered that we have precious little actual proof that any supposed poisons thereby produced are absorbed into the blood, except in cases of complete obstruction of the bowel.

Light Case of Syphilis.

"Is a light case of syphilis curable? If a person so affected immediately places himself under medical treatment, and presently shows no outward sign of the disease, is he cured? May he then marry? Would any children be likely to inherit the disease? Could it be determined by a physical examination whether such a person is cured?

M. M. S."

By persistent medical treatment, taken over a period of two years (though not necessarily constantly), practically every case of syphilis is arrested. I do not say cured. I do not know that any case of syphilis is ever absolutely cured. Outward signs are of little significance. Most cases of syphilis show no outward sign after a short course of treatment. The person may marry only when a physician considers marriage safe. Children would be almost certain to inherit the disease if marriage takes place while the person still has active syphilis, irrespective of the "outward signs." A thorough physical examination, plus several Wasserman blood tests, would show whether or not the syphilis has been arrested.

Exercises for Heart Disease.

"I understand that certain exercises have been found very beneficial for cases of heart disease in the army, and would be grateful if you can describe the exercises. I have pain in the heart region daily, which physicians declare is the result of overwork and too much smoking. I hope ultimately to rid myself of the smoking habit, but meanwhile I am anxious to try the curative exercises.

"C. C. V."

Graduated exercises adapted carefully to the individual case, are one of the best remedies for developing the reserve power of a damaged heart. There is no special exercise used in the army or elsewhere. It is up to your personal medical adviser to determine whether exercise is required, and if so how much and what kind of exercise; also it is his place to supervise this treatment throughout. Habitual smoking often produces a condition indistinguishable from angina pectoris, and from what you say, it would seem high time for you to quit fooling with tobacco.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat form uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

WINNIPEG STRIKE NOW BROKEN UP

THOSE WHO WALKED OUT ARE RETURNING TO OLD POSITIONS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, June 10.—The sympathetic strike in aid of Winnipeg iron workers, which began May 11, was considered broken today, so far as its effect upon safety, welfare and convenience of general public is concerned. It was estimated that about one-third of the men and women involved in the sympathetic walk-out have returned to work and that many others have applied for their former positions.

OBITUARY

MRS. JAMES GALVIN

The funeral of the late Mrs. James Galvin, 187 Stewart Street, will take place from her late residence tomorrow morning at 9 a.m. The funeral services will be held in St. Peter's Cathedral and the place of burial will be St. Peter's Cemetery.

Mrs. Galvin had only been ill for two weeks. She was 63 years old and leaves a grown up family of four daughters and five sons. They are Miss Bernardetta Galvin and Mrs. John Deannard of Peterborough; Mrs. H. L. Wheeler and Mrs. I. E. Winchell of Rechester; Mr. Hubert Galvin of this city; Messrs Elmer and Frank Galvin of Rochester and Messrs Roy and Keher Galvin of New York. All had arrived this afternoon to attend the funeral except Mr Keher Galvin. Mrs. Galvin's Death will be regretted not only by her own family but by the members of St. Peter's church in which she was a prominent worker.

SAMUEL NUGENT

An old and highly respected citizen of Lakefield passed away suddenly on Wednesday last, in the person ogf Mr. Samuel Nugent. Mr. Nugent had been working all day in his garden and was sitting on his veranda talking to Mrs. Nugent, when without warning he expired. Although he was 86 years of age, he seemed to be in the best of health and his death came as a surprise to all who knew him. Mr. Nugent was born in Cavan, but lived most of his life in Smith, only retiring to Lakefield some ten years ago. He is survived by his widow and four children, William, of Douro; Mrs. W. Blewett, of Smith; Mrs. Warram, of Peterboro, and Ethel, at home. Mr. Nugent was a Liberal in politics and a member of the Lakefield Methodist Church. The funeral was conducted by Major (Rev.) H. A. Frost and the deceased buried in the Lakefield cemetery.

Field Night With The Oddfellows

Peterborough and Otonabee Lodges of Oddfellows will hold a field night on Thursday evening, June 12th. Grand Master Rev. Twenty-two jewels will be presented to the veteran members of Otonabee lodge. The function will close with a banquet to the Grand Master and visiting brethren.

Violets.

There are many myths and legends connected with the violet, which has been considered the good luck flower by many nationalities. In some places English rural folk say a handful of the first violets found should be taken into the farmhouse, so good luck will be assured in the hatching of all the baby fowls of the barnyard.

His Favorite.

Brother was attending a party at which the refreshments served were ice cream and cake. The hostess saw that brother wasn't making much headway with the ice cream, so asked him if he didn't care for it. "Oh, yes," he answered. "Ice cream is all right; but turkey is my favorite."

Her Appearance.

TANLAC BREAKS WORLD'S RECORD

BOTTLES SOLD IN FOUR YEARS WOULD REACH FROM NEW YORK TO DENVER.

This is an age of big business, and although the public has become accustomed to big figures, the story of the marvellous growth and development of Tanlac forms one of the most interesting chapters of America's latter day commercial history.

Four years ago very few people had ever heard of Tanlac. Today it unquestionably has the largest sale of any medicine in the world. In the brief period of only four years time this now famous remedy has leaped from obscurity to the very pinacle of success. Its fame, in fact, has long since spread beyond the limits of the continent, and numerous inquiries regarding it are now being received from many foreign countries.

Very few people, however, fully realize what a really wonderful record Tanlac has made. Indeed, if it were not for the unquestionable facts and figures given out by the largest and best known drug firms of the country the story of its success would be hard to believe.

Up to January first, the total sales of Tanlac amounted to approximately twelve million bottles. The demand, however, is increasing, for during the first ten weeks of this year over one million bottles were sold and distributed in the United States and Canada, the exact figure being 1,306,186 in three months.

At this rate, therefore, the sales for the present year will amount to more than five million bottles. This will mean that 17,000 bottles of Tanlac will be sold during every day of the year, or 2100 bottles for every hour of the average working day.

These figures are too stupendous for the average mind to grasp, but one may visualize what twelve million bottles means by imaging them laid out in a single file end to end. Thus laid they would make a track of Tanlac from New York through Chicago, and on to Denver Colorado: or they would form a double track of Tanlac from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. Piled end on end they would tower 135 times as high as Pikes Peak or rise 13,333 times higher than the Woolworth Building in New York, the tallest building in the world.

The demand for Tanlac has become so great that its sales instead of being measured by the gross as other preparations have been, is now reckoned by the carload, and even by the train load. In proof of this it is a noteworthy fact that the leading drug jobbers everywhere now buy Tanlac almost exclusively in car load lots.

To supply the Pacific Coast trade alone requires from forty to fifty car loads per year. Jobbers of the Middle West are selling from seventy to eighty cars per year. One jobbing concern alone, the Evans-Smith Drug Company, of Kansas City, Missouri, is selling at the rate of twenty car loads of 24,000 bottles each year. In a letter dated April 19th, Ulius M. Price of that company says:—"In figuring the amount of Tanlac sold since taking this agency we find that we are now working on the thirteenth car, having sold more than a quarter of a million packages in eight months."

The well-known drug firm of Hessig-Ellis Drug Company, of Memphis, Tennessee, has sold over forty car loads since the introduction of Tanlac in that state four years ago. Mr. R. R. Ellis, President of that company, is authority for the statement that the demand for Tanlac has been greater than any other five medicine combined.

Within the past ninety days, ten carloads of Tanlac have gone to supply the demand of British Columbia Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba.

Mr. Charles McD. Hay, President of Lyman Brothers & Company, Limited, of Toronto one of the oldest and best known jobbing concerns in Canada, says: "We have handled in Ontario Province, Canada five car loads of Tanlac since October, 1918, while our total purchases have amounted to 12 cars within the past two years.

The Owl Drug Company of San Francisco, the largest retail druggists to 12 cars within the past two years" on the Pacific Coast, state that they have sold more than 180,000 bottles at retail, which surpasses the remarkable record of the Jacobs Pharmacy Company of Atlanta, who have sold approximately 80,000 bottles at retail.

Tanlac is widely advertised, it is true, but such unprecedented and rapidly growing demand could not be brought about by advertising alone. One bottle is sold in a neighborhood through advertising, but ten more bottles are sold in that community after the first bottle produces results. People are always willing to talk about their ailments, but they are more than willing to tell others of the medicine that helps them.

Tanlac is composed of the most beneficial roots and herbs known to science. The formula complies with all national and state pure food and health laws of both the United States and Canada; and absolute merit and merit alone is responsible for its phenomenal nd unprecedented success.

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

Mrs. Rebecca Wamaker, Coney Island, N. Y., convicted of killing S. Silverberg, a tenant, was sentenced to 20 years.

CONTRACT FOR

track deck with driveway each side the railway; width from curb to curb, 42 feet, with a six foot sidewalk each side; width of bridge overall 50 feet. His approximate estimate for this bridge is from $200,000 to $225,000, with considerable reduction for a narrower single-track structure.

Sherwood Proposition.

Mr. E. R. Clarke for the Sherwood Construction Co. of Toronto submitted his firm's proposition and design for a concrete bridge of more open design and lighter than the plan by Mr. Barber, but guaranteed to carry the same weight. The plan shows approaches of the same length as originally specified, but of the narrow width. This structure would embody more re-inforced steel in the centre arch than allowed by Mr. Barber—100 tons more—would have a concrete deck; thus eliminating all filling, and the company's lump sum tender is $258,000. This sum would be lessened somewhat, Mr. Clarke said, by shortening the approaches to the bridge in keeping with the modified plans on which recent tenders have been submitted. The company would pay any expenses incurred in changing the plans by the Board of Railway Commissioners, and guaranteed union wages, 45c and 7½c on an eight-hour day for laborers and carpenters, respectively.

The company's references as to their financial standing is the Royal Bank, Toronto, and for satisfactory work the C. P. R., for whom they have contracted the past 10 or 12 years.

Incidentally, Mr. Clarke remarked, he would not undertake to follow Mr. Barber's bridge as planned for less than $50,000 additional.

Ald. Edgar enquired of Mr. Clarke why his firm submitted plans furnished by James, Louden and Hertzberg, of which company Engineer Proctor, a rival of Mr. Barber's for the position of consulting engineer for Peterborough, is a member.

Mr. Clarke replied that contractors frequently submit alternate plans, and in this case his firm had done so with a view to giving this city the service required by a cheaper structure.

Ald. Edgar contended that the Sherwood people's reason for not confining their estimates to Mr. Barber's plans was obvious.

Ald. Edgar urged that the city would be quite safe in accepting the Russell-Townsend Company's estimate which gave their $29,400 margin before reaching the Sherwood tender. Had the Board's original acceptance of the Russel-Townsend proposition been adhered to, the bridge would now have been well under way, work furnished the unemployed, and local industrial unrest settled.

When Love Comes.

As long as you don't love anybody much, your character is like a garden in winter, one virtue is under a glass shade, and another is covered over with straw, and all of them are dreadfully pinched and sickly. Then love comes by and it is summer and your garden rejoices and blossoms like the rose, without your bothering about it at all.—Ellen Thorneycroft Fowler.

The Door.

Few persons realize what a modern convenience is the familiar door. No primitive peoples have, or ever did have, doors; the great temples of Egypt and of Greece had doorways, of course, but no doors. Often there were silks and tapestries hung over the doorways or doors or gates; but the door proper is absolutely an improvement, even a luxury, of modern civilization.

Disraeli on Character.

In all lives there is a crisis in the formation of character, wrote Disraeli. It comes from many causes, and from some which on the surface are apparently even trivial. But the result is the same; a sudden revelation to ourselves of our secret purposes and a recognition of our perhaps long-shadowed but now masterful convictions.

CHURCHES TO COOPERATE IN GREAT REVIVAL CAMPAIGN

Ministers and Laymen Make Further Preparations For Services to be Conducted by Evangelist Kennedy.

A conference of ministers and laymen was held yesterday in the Y.M.C.A. in reference to the arrangements for the evangelistic campaign which is to be open in Peterboro next Sunday night and continue probably for several weeks. The reports presented showed that the arrangements are in excellent condition and that the indications are that the campaign will be very successful.

The big tent, 100 feet by 60 feet, in which the meetings will be held will be erected on the lot on Hunter street just west of the Bell Telephone Office, by Wednesday night of this week. The ground has been levelled in preparation for its erection. Arrangements have been completed also for excellent lighting facilities. Seats will be provided for 1,000 people and will be in place by Friday and Saturday.

It is expected that the singing will be quite a feature of the campaign. The choirs of the different churches are to be asked to co-operate. It is hoped that arrangements can be made for the choirs in the different church to become mainly responsible in turn for the singing on certain specified nights. This would mean that each choir would need to provide the main talent once every two weeks. The ministers have given their hearty approval to this arrangement and delegations from the committee will lay the matter before the members of the different church choirs this week. Definite promises of support have already been promised from some of the choirs. The various churches will be asked to provide ushers in the same way. Some of the churches in the outlying of the city have signified their intention of closing their Wednesday night prayer meetings in order to permit their members to attend and assist in the evangelistic services. Some of the chudches in the outlying districts may not do this but instead will gather their members together in prayer for the success of the campaign. Already requests are being received by Evangelist H. D. Kennedy from people asking for prayer for certain people, not only for some living in the city but in some cases for people living in other cities as well.

A week ago a request was issued from the city pulpits that the Christian people of the city should join in reading a chapter of the Book of John each day. The chapter to be read today is the tenth chapter of John. While cottage prayer meetings are not being held the committee requests that Christians all over the city shall unite in prayer on behalf of the individuals and for the general success of the campaign. Arrangements have been made for the proper advertising of the meetings, not only in the city, but in outlying districts as well.

Evangelist Kennedy has had a wide and successful experience as an evangelist in many states of the American Union and during the past year has conducted successful meetings in several parts of Ontario. He has a remarkably wide grasp of the Scriptures and a convincing and striking manner of presenting bible truths. The meetings promise to prove interesting from the start. The first one will be held next Sunday evening at 8.15 just after the regular church services close.

McCULLOUGH TO HANG

Department of Justice Refuses to Commute Sentence

Toronto, June 10.—On Friday, the thirteenth, Frank McCullough will hang. But three sunrises are left to the doomed slayer of Acting detective Williams, unless the ultimatum delivered by the Department at Ottawa yesterday, that the law must take its course, is reversed or unless another attempt to spirit him out of the death cell at the jail should prove successful.

NOT DEAD BUT GONE BEFORE INTO THE FULLER LIFE

Ex-Moderator, of General Assembly, Says Men, Who Fell in Battle, Do not Need Our Pity.

Hamilton, June 10—St. Paul's Church was filled to capacity at the memorial service held by the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada in memory of the men of her communion who fell in the great war. Lieut.-Col. (Rev.) John Pringle, D. D., moderator of the general assembly, was in charge of the service.

Rev. W. T. Herridge, D. D., of Ottawa, moderator of the Assembly, delivered the memorial sermon. After speaking of the great service that Canada's boys had done to the world and civilization in sacrificing their lives that the highest ideals might survive, the speaker exhorted his hearers not to mourn unduly for the boys who had "gone west." He impressed on them the reality of an after life, when loved ones would be reunited and there would be no more sorrow. Those who had died in France did not want our pity. They had come into the full realization of the life after death. In letters home, written by some who had died heroically after writing them, it seemed to be evident that they had a premonition of approaching death. But in their letters they seemed unconsciously to realize that, after death, after all lethal weapons had done their worst, there was still life. They seemed to feel that death did not mean annihilation, but rather it was the door opening into life. "A wonderful spiritual discernment seems to have been given to our boys on the battlefield," said the speaker. "And their faith should not only strengthen our faith but should arouse in us a new conception of the dignity of manhood. The voice of their blood calls to us to imitate their unconquerable courage and their unthinking unselfishness. The triumph of the war must extend far from the battlefield if we are to profit by it."

Dr. Herridge also impressed on his auditors that peace was not a dull passivity that tolerated everything, but rather a glorious triumph. It would save Canada from much woe and trouble, some of which was quite close at hand and which closely resembled Bolshevism, if the lesson was learned that if the Christian spirit had disappeared as a force within the nation and it people, they could not have fought the battle or have won the victory.

In closing he asked again that the loved ones of those boys who had died so heroically and unselfishly, grieve not for the dead, as dead, but merely as having been separated from them for a time. "If death ends all, life would be a tiresome irrationality, and life cannot be irrational as long as God endures. Let us not mourn for those who have crossed the invisible boundary line. This may be the only funeral service for some of them. They don't want our pity." Canadians should instead honor them as men who had exhibited the truest and best things in manhood.

OILING THE STREETS

Program to be Carried Out When Oil is Secured.

It transpired in the Board of Works last night that 1,500 feet of roadway would require oiling to serve three houses on Brown street, of a petition for the oiling of such street were granted. To water such isolated spots would be an expensive job. As to Smith street bridge oil will be used on that when it arrives, and Brown street, much travelled by cars to the golf links, will be oiled should there be enough oil to hand for that purpose after the scheduled streets are served.

To Ald. McIntyre's suggestion that oil be stored on year for next season's used, the city engineer replied that the city has not storage facilities.

RUBE MARQUAD BREAKS HIS LEG

STAR PITCHER MAY BE OUT OF GAME FOR SEASON.

Cincinnati, June 10.—Cincinnati made a clean sweep of the series with Brooklyn by winning the fourth straight game here Monday 7 to 2. Roth made a home run in the first inning and the locals were never headed.

Marquard was badly injured in the fifth inning when he stumbled over second base, after making a two-base hit. He fell heavily to the ground and had to be carried off the field. His leg was found to be broken and he will be out of the game for several weeks, if not for the entire season.

U. S. electrical workers will strike June 16 unless Postmaster-General Burleson complies with demands submitted.

After escaping from a vicious rooster, which attacked her, Miss Roeben, 18, St. Louis, Mo., dropped dead from fright.

Mayor Gillen, Newark, in an effort to curb ice profiteers, suggests their licenses be revoked and the city go into the ice business.

Fully a million of the 11,000,000 women who are engaged in gainful occupations in the U. S. occupy managerial positions.

THE TIMAGAMI FOREST RESERVE

Every angler who knows the real thrill of landing a "big fellow" desires to enjoy the sport that the wonderful Timagami region of Ontario affords. Sportsmen who have fished all the important waters of the continent declare that the fishing in Timagami cannot be excelled. Lake Timagami with its sixteen hundred islands and three thousand miles of shore line is the home of the black bass, the brook trout and other game fish, while the innumerable smaller lakes are also well stocked. There are no hardships to be encountered in reaching Timagami. A few minutes after leaving the Grand Trunk through train from Toronto the sportsmen finds himself in the bosom of the forest, and in a labyrinth of islands, inlets and channels inviting him to go north, south, east and west. There are good outfitting facilities, and also some boarding establishments, but this great region is still absolutely unspoiled. For full particulars and information regarding this territory apply to Grand Trunk Agent or C. E. Horning, D.P.A., Toronto, Ont.

"We must go back to peace trade on a wartime scale," says the Canadian Trade Commission, "if the huge war debt is to be paid."

There must be no adverse balance of trade if Canada's prosperity is to be upheld. The Canadian Trade Commission is trying to get class and mass to understand the purport of the message.

AT THE GRAND

This week's bill at the Grand is advertised as the most expensive vaudeville and picture program ever shown in Peterboro, and if quality is any indication of price, it certainly cost some money. The vaudeville acts are splendid and are different from the usual run. The pictures, which include a feature film entitled "Laughing Bill Hyde," are well worth the price of admission alone.

Smith and Foy, a couple of colored artists, are the head-liners and their offering was a lodge-podge of harmony jokes and clever acting.

Frank Morrel has a breezy monologue and took well with the audience. His partner, while she hasn't much of a speaking part, appears to great advantage in the recognized garb of the chorus.

Harry and Etta Conley present a comedy skit entitled "At the Old Cross Road," and are very amusing the facial contortions of the male member of the team being particularly funny.

It is understood that the management of the Grand purposes keeping their house open all summer and playing vaudeville and pictures, and if the high standard already reached is maintained bumper houses should be seen at each performance.

This week's splendid program will be repeated today and tomorrow and should be seen to be appreciated.

AN IDEAL SUMMER OUTING

Algonquin Park, 200 miles north of Toronto and 170 miles west of Ottawa, is known to thousands who have enjoyed the attractions that are offered in this wonderful Government Reserve. At an altitude of 2,000 feet above sea level the air is pure and bracing. Speckled trout, salmon trout and black bass abound in the lakes and streams in this Park. The Grand Trunk operate hotels and log cabin camps in the Park. The Highland Inn on Cache Lake, Algonquin Park station, with accommodation for 150 people, opens for the reception of guests this year on June 14th, and Nominigan Camp on Smoke Lake, with accommodation for 75 people, opens on June 28th.

Indications are that there will be a large influx of summer visitors to this Park this year, and patrons are advised to communicate early and secure their accommodation for their summer outing. Handsome illustrated descriptive literature sent free on application to Grand Trunk Agent or C. E. Horning, D.P.A., Toronto, Ont.

SHOP ODDS AND ENDS

Pretty little shades of colored crepe paper, cost only 25 cents and really give a soft glow to the glaring electric bulb. They are flower-like when in use, consisting of many petals, wired through the center, and all fastened to a little clamp fastener around the base of the bulb.

Along with the revived fashion for jet comes a showing in the shops of jet spangled fans. Some of them are very effective—big net fans heavily spangled with sequins of gleaming black jet.

Small platinum watches, set with diamonds, are mounted on gray wrist ribbons. The soft gray of the ribbon forms an admirable setting for the platinum of the watch.

BEAVER TRIMMING IS USED

Cafe au lait duvetyn forms this smart winter creation. The surplice waist has a large collar of beaver and the bell sleeves are edged with the same fur. Tassels of brown silk add an effective touch.

COAT IS SHORTER

Three-Quarter Length Is Adopted for Sport Garment.

Colors Continue to Be Dull, but New Note Is Expressed in Brilliant Linings.

While the real long coats are still in favor for the coldest weather, the very latest models are said to be shorter. The first and foremost reason for this is that probably very few women wish to appear even a trifle wider at the bottom skirtline than is absolutely necessary. Another hint as to coats is the new straight line which is now suggested. Sport coats have already adopted this new form and the result is a return to the three-quarter length box coat of a few years ago.

Any real changes, however, are not due for many months, and contradicting the straight-line theory comes a persistent rumor that Alsace-Lorraine is to be the next field of operations in fashions, although it is hard to see exactly where the far from artistic costume of this province can be reconciled with the present modes.

Paris fashions have always their little fling at the passing events, but spring is a long way off, and should another country come suddenly forward and a diplomatic compliment be considered due, it would upset all previous calculations. For fashion may be as fickle as she pleases in war or peace, so there is no knowing what may happen between now and springtime in fashions, which is early in February.

To return to the subject of coats: Whatever the length or width the colors continue to be dull, if not uninteresting, and this has led to the new note expressed in brilliant linings. Two good reasons for these decidedly chic linings exist. The first is as stated, that matters were becoming a bit dull, and the second reason is that there seemed no other way to use the very beautiful silks both the American and French designers were turning out. "Ladies must live," but so must designers, and there seems to be no way out of it except to admit that our designers are true artists, and sheer admiration for their work is its own excuse for using their wares.

The plainer the suit or coat the more apt to be brilliant coloring in the lining. Slashes in the jackets and panels and tunics are further reasons for wishing to add a dash of color.

On a very original new suit with a rather short jacket both fur and lining contributed to the extremely clever air which it carried. The peplum of the jacket was straight and ungathered and a brilliant red taffeta lining made a strong contrast to the dull metal shade cloth. Even the high double rolling collar of the beaver fur was lined with the red, flashes of which also showed in the slashes of the peplum.

TRICOLETTE IS NOW TO FORE

Dress Material Wins Approval for Afternoon Frocks; Good for Wear Under Heavy Coat.

Tricolette has come very much to the fore as a dress material. A number of new afternoon frocks, on the order of a very beautiful model of black tricolette which Calot brought out last season, are being sponsored by well-known American designers, and these are particularly good for wear under a heavy coat, as they do not muss and are not so bulky as to distort the line of the outer garment. Heavy coarse jersey is also being used for frocks, and there is a new fishnet jersey which has just come from Paris and which promises to have quite a vogue. Among the novelties in the more formal silks are new metal brocades, the weaves of which are replicas of the coats of mail worn in medieval days. These are interesting and distinctively new.

England's First Typewriter.

So long ago as 1714 a patent for a typewriter was taken out in England by Henry Mill; it was called a "machine for impressing letters singly and progressively as in writing, whereby all writings may be engrossed in paper so exact as not to be distinguished from print." His machine was very clumsy, and it was not until more than a century later (1820) that anything further was attempted. Then the first American typewriter, "called a typographer," was patented by W. A. Burt.

HAPPENINGS IN BIG LEAGUES

National League.

Gabby Cravath a topping the batters with the fine mark of .450. Ivy Olson is in the van of the run getters; Ivy scored 26 thallies. Ross Young heads the swatsmiths with 49 base hits and with Carson Bigbee stole the most bases, 12.

The Heydler circuit have turned in 22 shutouts to date after six weeks of pennant batting, the Giants being the only major club not shutout this season. The Cubs were blanked five times, the Pirates four, the Braves, Reds and Cardinals three apiece, and the Phillies and Robins twice each.

Eddie Rush, the Reds great clouter, has failed to hit safe in but one of the last 21 games he played in for Pat Moran, after slamming all kinds of pitching for 11 straight games; Eddie quit to Gene Packard and George Smith on May 26, only to continue his streak hitting the very next game, which he has carried intact the last 21 contests, polled out 31 hits in 83 trials for the splendid average of .410; Jake Daubert, also of the Reds, went on a hitting spree that endured 13 straight games until June 1, when Jake quit to Babe Adams elusive shoots. Daubert punched out 16 safe ones in 50 attempts for an average of .320.

Zack Wheat is the second National leaguer to crack out five hits in one game, getting his quintet on June 1; Hy Myers got the other five.

Carson Bigbee was on the longest major hitting streak when he quit to Ray Fister on June 1. During his stretch Bigbee shot the pill safely 23 times in 59 trials for a mark of .390.

Ray Powell had hit safe in ten consecutive contests when he was stopped June 1 by Frank Woodward; he got 15 hits in 38 tries for .395.

The following players each punched out four hits in one game:—Larry Doyle, Fred Luderus, Jack Adams and Ivy Olson.

Doug Baird has scored six runs in five straight games when he quit to the Giants on June 4.

Lew McCarty had hit safely in 7 consecutive games when he was halted by Elmer Jacobs; during his streak Mac came through with 8 hits in 22 tries for .364.

Heinie Zimmerman had hit safely in 7 games for a mark of .360, when Sherrod Smith stopped him.

Red Merkle quit to Marvin Goodwin on May 30, after hitting .375 in eight consecutive contests.

American League.

Ty Cobb is the leading batsman with an average of .368. Ty also banged out the most hits, 49. George Sisler, with Buck Weaver, top the run scores each tallied 26 runs. Eddie Collins is showing the way to the base runners, with 13 steals. Herb Thormahlen and Babe Ruth are the leading hurlers, each winning four games without a loss.

During the first six weeks' playing 24 shutouts were scored; the club's shoutout fellow, the Senators and Athletics each six times; the Yankees four, the Browns, Red Sox and Tigers each twice, and only once did the Indians and White Sox feel the bristles of the whitewash brush.

Ty Cobb went on his first batting rampage of the season on May 15 and packed a terrific batting streak through ten consecutive games until May 30 when Carl Weilman of the Browns halted him. During his stretch Ty banged out 17 hits in 39 trials for a mark of .436.

George Sisler had run up the longest hitting streak of the majors when he quit to George Dauss, on May 30. During his string, which lasted 14 games, the Brownie star punched out 22 hits in 52 attempts for .423 and tallied 11 runs.

Ping Bodie on June 2 set the season's high water mark for most total bases in one day, when he slammed the A's hurlers for two singles, two doubles and two homers in eight times at bat, during the Yanks-Athletics double-header. This comes within one of Ty Cobb's best total base record for a double-header. Ty, on July 19, 1912, massacred Brown, Pennock and Houck of the Athletics for 7 hits for 15 bases.

Everett Scott of the Red Sox was enjoying his longest streak of hitting, 12 games in a row, when the wonder shortstopper ran afoul Jim Shaw of the Senators on June 2 who busted Scott's streak. It yielded 19 hits in 46 tries for .413.

The Senators, on June 2, halted two Red Sox who were on run scoring streaks. Amos Strunk tallied 9 runs in 6 games, while Babe Ruth had dashed 7 runs in 6.

Roger Peckinpaugh set a unique record by getting six bases on balls in success. As a pinch-hitter on May 31 he walked, and in his next game, June 2, Peck strolled five times.

The Senators were the first club to go 1000 times to the bat this year in their company. This they did on June 1.

The following players got four hits in one game: Duffy Lewis, Jimmy Austin, Ping Bodie, Wheeler Johnston and Joe Dugan. Two players, Frank Baker and Bobby Roth, had two big batting days, getting a quartet of hits twice each, Bob also scoring four runs in a game.

The Indians flashed the second major league triple play of the year on June 2. It was against the Browns, Joe Wood, Ray Chapman, Bill Wambsganss and Larry Gardner kindly obliging.

THE EVOLUTION OF BASEBALL

"ONE OLD CAT" WAS THE ORIGIN OF THE NATIONAL PASTIME.

Why do boys play baseball? Well, probably because it is born and bred in them from the very remote days when our ancestors lived in caves. After all there is not such a great difference between the pitcher and the batsman of the present on the one hand and a couple of hostile savages one of whom, armed with a club, is advancing towards his opponent, who has a handful of stones to fling at him. Baseball then is not a fad but a necessary expression of youthfull vitality and will endure as long as boys remain robust and sturdy.

Baseball was first known by the name of One Old Cat, and was played by three boys, a batter, pitcher and catcher. This game was in great vogue one hundred years ago in the New England States. It never gained much popularity among Englishmen, principally because the steady-methodical game of cricket suited their temperament better.

Townball was first played in 1833 when Philadelphia organized the Olympic Townball Club. In 1843 a regular baseball league was organized at New York, for which Abner Doubleday made out the set of rules. These were very crude, allowing the runners to be hit directly by members of the opposing team. There was no shortstop and no regular basemen and the number of fielders depended entirely on the number of players available. A backstop behind the catcher was also allowed.

After two years' experience the rules were revised and a great improvement made in the game. The Knickerbocker Baseball Club did a great deal towards eliminating gambling from the game with the result that today it is one of the cleanest forms of sport that we have. In 1876 professional baseball was first organized when the National League was formed, as previous to that time practically all the players depended on some other line of business for their money. It was followed in 1882 by the American league.

Eighth Line Wins From The Seventh

On Saturday evening at the Water street alleys, the 8th Line team defeated the 7th Line team of Otonabee by a 140 pin margin. W. Stark had the high total of 487. For the 8th Line, J. Porter came in for a 464 total, the high single of 189 was rolled by W. Stark. The scores:

Sporting Gossip

While the latter-day crop of baseball fans have been educated to the point where they prefer a pitchers' battle to a batting bee, there are still left many old-timers whose taste in the American pastime runs to the old-fashioned game in which hits are hard and frequent and big scores are rolled up. To this type of fan the classic game of baseball was one staked in Buffalo just a half-century ago tomorrow, June 8, 1869, when the Niagaras defeated Columbus by a score of 209 to 10. This was the largest score on record in a game between regular clubs.

In those days a baseball game was usually started right after dinner. Beginning about 1 o'clock in the afternoon, the game sometimes lasted until sundown, and even then it was not always possible to play nine innings—or "endings," as it was often called. The job of the scorekeeper was no cinch, although he didn't have to keep track of the minute details now considered essential.

Even more one-sided than the Buffalo contest, although fewer runs were scored, was a game between Chicago and Memphis in 1870, the former winning by 157 to 1. In the same year two Cleveland clubs, the Forest Citys and Atlantics, played a five inning game, called on account of darkness, which was won by the first-named club 132 to 1 in five inning the Forest Citys got 53 runs, and in another 52.

On one day in 1865 the Philadelphia Athletics defeated Williamsport in the morning 101 to 8, and in the afternoon triumphed over the Danville Alerts 162 to 11. Having made 263 runs in nine hours, the Athletics knocked off and called it a day.

With the coming of professionalism in 1869 games with such tremendous scores became less frequent, but in that year two of the fastest professional clubs in America, the Brooklyn Atlantics and the Philadelphia Athletics ran up scores of 51 and 48, with the Athletics on the short end.

The biggest score in the National League in 1876, its first year, was Chicago 30, Louisville 7. This big league mark was surpassed in 1882, when Cleveland, which put over four. The following year Chicago defeated Buffalo 31 to 7. The major league record was set up in 1897, when the Louisville Colonels fell before Chicago, 36 to 7.

New Words.

The Manchester Guardian, studying Armageddon additions to modern speech, relates how in the Napoleonic Wars the stay of a few thousands of French prisoners in England left some marks on the English language that have never been rubbed out. Some French words and phrases, if only a few, took root and lived, like the beech-mast that came with the Romans and mixed with the acorns. "Quel objet!" a French prisoner would say at sight of some scarecrow of a village idiot in his place of captivity. The villagers' ears would be tickled, and "Caleb Jay" would become the stock word for a guy or unpresentable body throughout a whole countryside—obscurity related, perhaps to "Juggins the J," as a green horn or "mug" has been called in the Cockney tongue. If such things could be done in the green leaf, what will be done in the dry? When many millions of men have lived for several years in foreign countries, as allies, invaders or prisoners, they are sure to leave something behind, and also to bring something back, in the way of language; and anything new and piquaint in speech is now diffused through a country by papers and music-hall stars as fast as bad news.

Old Plays Sold.

Lord Mostyn's Early English Plays sold at Sotheby's in London the other day, included Medwell's interlude of "Fulgeus and Lucres," about 1520, an unique play, fetching £3,400; "Enough is as good as a Feast," £2,600; "King Leir, 1605, the precursor of Shakespeare's "King Lear," £1,950; and "Gammer Gurton's Needle," 1575, £1,200.

The day's sale realised £25,704, making the full total for the two days, £40,873.

A shortage of $1,000,000 in the accounts of the Jackson, Mich., prison was found by auditors.

Shakespeare and the Hun

"SHAKESPEARE and Germany" was the subject of a paper read by Henry Arthur Jones on the occasion of the annual presentation of prizes by Princess Marie Louise to the successful members of the British Empire Shakespeare Society.

According to the account printed in the London Times:

"Mr. Jones explained at the outset that the paper was first written when the German armies were hammering at the gates of Verdun and when the German press was deriding England's claim to be the home and the inspiration of Shakespeare. They were told at that time that the poet was essentially German in his ideas and his conception of human affairs, and that if he were alive to-day he would be enthusiastically pro-German in his sympathies."

Now, the work of every dramatist reveals his attitude toward life. Mr. Jones proceeded to show that—

"of all the dominant prepossessions of Shakespeare's soul none was more magnificent or constantly operative than his uncontrolled love for England. 'Gracious England,' 'England's blessed shore'—a hundred similar phrases revealed his devotion and admiration. It was scarcely likely that the Germans would ever act 'King John' or 'Richard II' at any Shakespearian festival they might organise. Let the Germans imagine anything rather than that Shakespeare would sing their praises. If he had any affection for Germans he had a strange way of dissembling it. It is true, certainly, that Mine Host of the Garter said that Germans were honest men, but there was a very different criticism of them in 'The Merchant of Venice' and in 'Cymbeline.' They would remember Portia's reply to Nerissa when asked how she liked the young German: 'Very vilely in the morning when he is sober and most vilely in the afternoon when he is drunk; when he is best, he is a little worse than a man; and when he is worst, he is little better than a beast.' That is obviously Shakespeare's own opinion, for there was no dramatic necessity for it. He would scarcely have written it if he had any good feeling for any living German. That passage was written in the prime of his early manhood. His views obviously did not change, for when he wrote 'Cymbeline,' years afterward, he described Iachimo as 'a full-acorn'd boar, a German one.' It was only fair, however, to say that Prof. Bradley did not think the expression had any personal application, because at that time Germany was breeding boars on a very extensive scale. But this was the poet whom the Germans claimed as their own, a poet who ignored them except when he turned aside to abuse them."

The playwright pointed out that Shakespeare's attitude to France and the French was very different:

"As a matter of fact, his references to France were far more numerous than those to England. If France were to advance a claim to Shakespeare as her poet she could put forward a case superior out of all measure to that of Germany."

In the subsequent speech of Arthur Bourchier, also reported in the London Times, that gentleman stated that—

"having seen both 'Twelfth Night' and 'Henry IV' played in Germany a year before the war, he had been astonished to find both Malvolio and Falstaff made up with an extraordinary resemblance to the Kaiser. Shakespeare never wrote his works for Germany, and the Peace Conference could do worse than ban their production there for a term of years," while H. B. Irving stated his belief that one reason for the popularity of Shakespeare in Germany is that he is presented in unexpurgated form.

Lord Howard de Walden declared that nothing could be more detrimental to the encouragement of Shakespeare than the tendency to turn him into a solemn effigy before which everybody had to bow down.

Mid-Air Proposal.

The "most remarkable proposal" we know of was made at St. Louis by Charles Kruger, a trapeze performer, one of whose most sensational performances was to catch with his hands a lady who dived through the air from a great height in a desperate "leap for life." One night as he caught her in her downward flight and had her swinging in the air, he proposed to her; and before the cheers had died away he had secured her consent to be his wife.

U. S. Congress passed a resolution for a special committee of 15 to investigate war expenditures.

There is every indication, says the Canadian Trade Commission, that cost of manufacturing in Canada for a long time will not be greater than in Europe. Canada in the meanwhile could get a footing in the foreign markets.

"Canada Product" is a mark the Canadian Trade Commission intends to make the best guarantee of quality and service.

The first Rumanian order for several million dollars, placed through the Canadian Trade Commission, has been satisfactorily completed.

HARD LUCK FOR CHICKEN FARMER

POULTRY ATE DYNAMITE CAPS AND AN EXPLOSION FOLLOWS.

San Francisco, June 10.— Henry Parsons, an Alamo farmer lost a dozen pullets, the bind end of his wagon and a pair of horses when a Buff Cochin rooster exploded while on the way to market. Parsons loaded the fowls into his wagon shortly after 9 o'clock this morning. When just out of town the wagon struck a rut. There was a loud explosion in the rear. Portions of chickens and splinters of wagon were thrown a considerable distance. Parsons was burled from his seat and his team ran away, kicking loose from the wreckage after a wild flight of half a mile. Investigation disclosed that several fulminate of mercury caps, which Parsons had been using to detonate dynamite in stump-blasting operations on his farm were missing. Parsons kept the caps in a bin in the chicken yard, and it is thought that the rooster was attracted by the bright objects and had swallowed several of them.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

LORING—BURNS

Miss Florence May Burns of Toronto, a daughter of Mr. Nelson Burns, of Vancouver, was married this afternoon in St. John's Church to Mr. Frank C. Loring of Toronto. The bride was given away by Mr. R. R. Hall and the marriage was solemnized in the presence of her immediate friends and relatives by the Rev. Canon Davidson. Mr. R. J. Devey presided at the organ and the church chimes rang out merrily in honor of the event.

Mrs. John Crane arrived in the city last evening from Clifton Springs, N.Y., where she has been for many months for the benefit of her health. Mrs. Crane's many friends will be glad to see her home very much improved in health.

Mr. Kenneth Crane, who has been staying with his mother at Clifton Spring, arrived in the city last evening. Mr. Crane has just lately returned from overseas. He was with the Royal Air Force and did some splendid work in France. He will remain in the city for a few weeks before resuming his work.

Mr. John McFadden and his bride, nee, Miss Margaret Gilfoy of Calgary, are now on the way east to spent their honeymoon with friends in Toronto and Peterborough. Mr. McFadden left here about six years ago to start a gents' furnishing store in Calgary. The marriage took place yesterday.

Miss Gertrude Rush, a graduate nurse of Clifton Springs Sanitarium, New York, returned to her home, 359 Stewart Street, today for a short visit.

Mr and Mrs. Sydney Rush of Toronto are visiting friends in the city today.

Mrs. McMurrich and Miss Helen McMurrich of Toronto are the guests of Mrs. T. O. Rush.

Mr. and Mrs. George Drummond of Montreal arrived here today to attend the wedding of their son, Mr. A. Price Drummond, of Utica, New York, to Miss Helen Rush of this city. The wedding ceremonies will take place tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock in All Saints' Church.

Lieut.-Col. Bell and Mrs. Bell spent the week-end with Mrs. Bell's sisters, the Misses Denne, 723 George street. Colonel Bell has gone to Ottawa on business, but will return to the city in a few days.

Captain J. Hubert Eastwood returned to Peterborough, yesterday from service overseas. He left here with the 93rd battalion in May, 1916.

Activity in Regard To Sewage Plant

A MOVE MADE BY CITY TO SECURE SUITABLE SITE—VALUATOR TO BE APPOINTED.

The Special Sewage Disposal Committee reported last night to the Board of Works progress in regard to options on sites for the proposed sewage disposal plants.

Chairman Ald. Phelan reported that the reeves of the municipalities affected by sewage disposal into the river are satisfied that the city Council is making a move to abate the nuisance by installing a modern disposal apparatus for the treatment of sewage.

On motion of Ald. Edgar and Crowe the Special Committee was instructed to employ a valuator to value proposed sites for the sewage disposal plant, and to take whatever other steps are deemed advisable to secure desirable information on this subject for presentation to the Board of Works.

OVER 60,000 TELEGRAPH OPERATORS OUT ON STRIKE; OTHERS ARE READY TO JOIN

Nation-Wide Walkout in United States as Result of Order of Head of Union—Hours of Labor, Wages and Working Conditions the Issues.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, June 11.—A nation-wide strike of Union Commercial Telegraphers, caled by S. J. Konenkamp, International President of the Telegraphers' Union, became effective at 7 o'clock this morning (Central time). The companies, against which the strike is called, include the Western Union Telegraph Co., the Postal Telegraph Co., the American Telegraph and Telephone Co., and a number of small telegraph companies in various parts of the country. Union officials estimated that sixty thousand telegraphers would leave their keys during the day and that on June 16 more than one hundred thousand electrical workers would go on strike. While the officials of the telegraph companies asserted that no such number of employes were involved.

Issues in the strike include the right to organize and bargain collectively, wages and working conditions.

Make Light of Strike.

Washington, June 11.—Officials of the Western Union and the Postal Telegraph Companies and the Commercial Telegraphers' Union made widely divergent claims today as to the effect here of the orders of S. J. Konenkamp, Union head, calling a nation-wide strike of wire employes. At Western Union headquarters it was said the force was hundred per cent. normal, while Postal officials declared less than ten per cent. of their force was out.

Situation in New York

New York, June 11.—Only 166 persons, including 121 operators, out of at total of forty thousand employed by the western union throughout the country were absent from duty at noon today. The president announced in a statement The complete failure of the strike called by commercial telegraphers is announced.

On the other hand representatives of the Telegraphers Unions declared at noon that the strikers would number sixty thousand by nightfall including many thousands in the western union office.

BOARD OF EDUCATION GRANT INCREASES TO ALL TEACHERS

Maximum Salary of $1,900 to the Principals of Schools up to 10 Rooms—$50 Year Extra for Each Room Over Ten to Limit of 15—Other Teachers Graded Proportionately—More Pay For Janitors.

Collegiate Institue and Public School teachers were granted an increase in their salaries last evening as per the following schedule:

Collegiate Institute.

	Minimum	Maximum	Yearly Increase
Principal	$2500 00	$3000 00	$100 00
Specialists who are honor graduates and in charge of a department	1800 00	2200 00	100 00
Assistants not in charge of a department	1500 00	1800 00	100 00

Public Schools.

	Minimum	Maximum	Yearly Increases
Inspector	$2500 00	$3000 00	$100 00
Principals of schools up to 10 rooms	1500 00	1900 00	100 00
Principals of schools with over 10 rooms	(An additional $50.00 per occupied class room to limit of 15 rooms)
Male vice-principals, holders of 1st-class certificates	1200 00	1500 00	75 00
Male vice-principals, holders of 2nd-class certificates	1100 00	1400 00	75 00
Lady assistant teachers holding 1st-class certificates and male assistants holding 2nd-class certificates	775 00	1000 00	75 00
Lady assistant teachers holding 2nd-class certificates	700 00	1000 00	75 00
Kindergarten directress	(Same as holders of 2nd-class cer.)
Kindergarten assistants half-day classes	(Fixed salary $500.00)
School nurse	775 00	1000 00	75 00
Manual Training instructor	700 00	1000 00	50 00
Household Science instructor (half time)	600 00	750 00	50 00
Household Science instructor (full time))	800 00	1100 00	75 00
Art instructor	600 00	750 00	50 00
Music instructor	600 00	750 00	50 00

The above amendment to the salary schedule to go into effect January 1, 1920, but no teacher to receive in September, 1919, less than the new minimum salary. The increase of salary in January, 1920 will be according to new schedule less increase of September 1919. Next regular increase September, 1920, and thereafter annually on the 1st of September.

Trustee G. O. Cameron, chairman of the committee on appointments, submitted the committee's report recommending the above salaries, which the Board as a whole adopted.

Increases for Janitors.

Trustee A. A. Fowler in expressing unqualified sympathy with the salary increase granted teachers, remarked that janitors should receive similar treatment. He contended that the accepted principle of increases in salaries being needed by reason of the high cost of living applies equally to the school janitors as to teachers.

Trustee Fowler, therefore, moved, seconded by Trustee J. W. Worth, that school janitors get salary consideration that really represents an increase from $95 to $105 a year per occupied room up to eight rooms, and in addition $60 per year for each occupied room above eight rooms. Carried.

Trustee Cameron readily concurred in the above resolution on the ground that, with the janitors' war bonuses expiring at the end of 1919, it would not be fair to expect them to start the year 1920 on a reduced salary.

J. H. Burnham M. P. Asks Question

(Special to The Review.)

Ottawa, June 11.—J. H. Burnham, M.P., has put the following questions on the order paper:

Asking if laborers on the Trent Canal at Peterborough are receiving 29½c per hour, while the district rate is 45c?

If returned soldiers are in some cases paid less for the same work on the canal than others?

If the positions in the outside civil service amounted aHMHMH civil service announced as open remain unattended to so long as to be useless to soldier applicants?

FRANCE REFUSES CONSENT TO ADMISSION OF GERMANS TO LEAGUE OF NATIONS

That is For Present, but May Change Later—Repatriation Process is Workable Arrangement—Germany Cannot Hope For Return of Colonies.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, June 11.—The Associated Press this morning issued the following:

Although agreement is still lacking on the important features of the Allied reply to the German counter proposals, it was officially expressed after the meeting of the Council of Four in Paris on Tuesday that decision woud be reached in a comparatively short time. It is indicated elsewhere, however, that there may still be considerable delay before the treaty is again submitted to the enemy delegation. France is standing out against the immediate admission of Germany into the League of Nations. It is because of Germany's "arrogant attitude" that France is resisting such action at present, it is said. France would not oppose admission of Germany at a later date.

Reparation Sum Not Fixed.

Paris, June 11.—The reparations portion of the reply which has been completed and has reached the printer does not fix the total sum which Germany must pay. The text of the treaty itself is not changed, but the reply contains assurances to Germany regarding the method of reparation process explaining that it is a workable arrangement.

No Chances For Germany.

Paris, June 11.—The reply to the German counter proposal, agreed upon by the Peace Conference heads, refuses the German request for a mandate for the former German colonies, it was learned today. A lengthy memorandum gives reason for refusal and explains the operations of the League of Nations on colonial matters.

GRAND JURY FOR MEMORIAL FOR THE MARTYRED HEROES

Concur in Suggestion Made by Judge Huycke in His Address Yesterday—Public Institutions Reported Satisfactory.

The grand jury of the County Court of Peterboro made the following report to His Honor Judge Huycke this afternoon:

It is a matter of great satisfaction in this time of general unrest that this country is so comparatively free from crime of a serious nature. The war now happily coming to an end has and will necessitate a large amount of readjustment and will require sane judgment and earnest consideration on the part of those having to do with affairs of government. In support of this, the highest ideals of citizenship will be called into play to support the hands of our legislators.

Your grand jury would compliment the county authorities on the excellent appointments of the present court house. Every provision seems to have been made for the expeditious end adequate carrying on of the duties for which the building is used, and your grand jury esteem it a privilege to subscribe to the good judgment end taste with which the county authorities have carried out their work.

Your grand jury were particularly attentive and interested in your Honor's remarks regarding the erecting or bringing into being of some suitable memorial to perpetuate the memory and deeds of those who fought nobly in the cause of liberty. We do not feel able to even suggest what the memorial should be, but that such should be instituted we heartily agree, and would submit that the matter be carefully considered by some regularly constituted composite body, that the desire of the citizens of both city and county might be carried out with satisfaction and in agreement with the wishes of the people.

Your grand jury have visited the various institutions coming within their purview.

We wish to express our approval at the excellent condition in which the county gaol is found. The various sections were found to be clean, sanitary and comfortable and the welfare of the inmates being well considered.

Nicholls Hospital, St. Joseph's Hospital, the Isolation Hospital, the Children's Shelter and the Protestant Home were visited, and we wish to pay a tribute to the excellent work being accomplished in all these institutions. Every attempt is apparently being made by those in charge to carry on their work with fidelity and zeal, and these institutions are a credit to our county.

The House of Refuge at Lakefield was visited and everything found in good condition. Some minor repairs were noted as necessary, but these will doubtless have the attention of the Council in their annual visit.

Respectfully submitted,
GEO. HARRISON,
Foreman.

Judge Huycke's Reply.

In reply, Judge Huycke congratulated the jury on the speed, coupled with ability, shown by them in the discharge of their duties. He noted with approval their remarks on the general state of unrest prevailing throughout the country and the care that should be taken in dealing with

LEG SMASHED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

MR. McMARTIN'S BUGGY AND MAX SLOANE'S CAR IN COLLISION.

Mr. McMartin, of Smith street, near the Curtis brickyards, had his leg badly smashed, besides suffering internal injuries, when the horse and buggy he was driving was struck by an automobile in charge of Max R. Sloane, 518 Chamberlain street. The accident occurred last night about 8 p.m., at the corner of Murray and Water streets. The automobile, which was going west along Murray street, struck the horse and rig just as it was turning off Murray street to go north on Water street.

Max Sloane was not driving the car at the time of the accident, but was training a young lady friend who wished to learn how to handle an auto. When the collision occurred Mr. Sloane promptly stopped his car, picked up Mr. McMartin and his wife, who was also badly shaken up as a result of the accident and conveyed them to the residence of Dr. C. H. Amys. Acting upon his advice Mr. McMartin was later removed to Nicholls Hospital in order that an x-ray examination could be made of the injured limb.

SPECIAL OFFICER BEATEN BY MOB AT WINNIPEG MAY NOT RECOVER

Victim Was Sergt. Coppins Who Won the Victoria Cross While in Military Service Overseas.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, June 11.— Steps were taken today by Mayor Grey to prevent a repitition of the clash of last night when a crowd of strikers pulled Sgt Frederick Coppins, V.C., special constable, from his horse and beat him so severely that he is not expected to recover. Additional special constables were sworn in to take the place of the policemen who were discharrged because they refused to sign the oath not to go out on a sympathetic strike, and the Mayor said he believed that sufficient mounted constables were now in the service of the city to prevent any further disorders of a serious character. Further—desertions from their ranks were admitted today by the strike leaders and it was announced that an attempt would be made tomorrow to run the street cars which have been out of service for three weeks.

MUST PROTECT WATER SUPPLY

DISTRICT HEALTH OFFICER CLINTON'S OFFICIAL VISIT TO STONEY LAKE.

The Stoney Lake Cottagers' Association complain that some cottage owners at that resort are contaminating the waters of the lake and notice of this effect was sent to District Health Officer Clinton at Belleville. Dr. Clinton arrived in this city Monday and went out to Stoney Lake to investigate. He found the complaints well founded and the offenders were notified of the consequences of violating the law in this regard. If this fails of effect the matter will be taken up by the health inspectors of the townships interested.

Dr. Clinton says that the contamination referred to will effect the water supply of this city but only to a limited extent. It is, however, a constant source of danger to Stoney Lake resorters.

VAGRANTS TOLD TO LEAVE CITY

ORDERED SUPPER IN CAFE AND THEN AVOIDED THE CASHIER.

Charlotte street pedestrians were treated to a novel sight last night when three vagrants, Arthur Fleming John Northcotte and Stephen Buckley, were chased along the street by the irate owner of the City Cafe at 176 Charlotte street. They had gone into the cafe and ordered their supper and then had started in on an extra course.

The waiter had his suspicions and was not very far away when the two made their dash for the door. They were promptly arrested and in Police Court this morning they were discharged, with orders to leave the city immediately.

The men were connected with the circus here on Saturday, and had been left behind in Toronto. Evidently thinking that they might find out where the circus had gone to by coming here they travelled to this city, as uninvited guests of the C.P.R. Just how they will make the trip from here to Montreal, where the circus is now playing is a pretty serious problem for the trio of free lunch artists.

CATTLE CASE IN COUNTY COURT

BURLEIGH RANCHING COMPANY ASKS $600 DAMAGES FROM MICHAEL LEAHY.

Corn-shock is the very latest form of disease that veterinary surgeons have to contend with. According to Dr. Wm. Rogers this disease would certainly have stricken the cattle on the premises of Mr. O'Reilly if they had been shown any ensilage on Mar. 27, of this year. Dr. Rogers was the first witness called this morning in the case of the Burleigh Ranching Co. vs. Michael Leahy for $600 damages on account of the death of four cattle and the deterioration in value of nine others entrusted to his care.

Mr. Millidge, a Douro farmer, would not admit that cattle fed only on straw and water would necessarily die. He claimed that some of his own herd were in just as poor a condition as the cattle in question.

Michael Leahy, the defendant, explained in detail the tender care that the Burleigh Ranching Company's herd had received from him from the time that they were left at his farm on Friday, March 14. The two young boys who brought them had to return home dinnerless, and the cattle received a measured quantity of ensilage and some straw and water twice a day. After feeding them that night and the following morning he left them to come to Peterborough.

On Sunday and again on Monday he phoned to Mr. O'Reilly, asking him to look after the cattle and Tuesday he went out himself. When he sold the farm to Roger Maloney he arranged with him to look after the cattle for $3 a month, the same as he was receiving. At the conclusion of his evidence the court adjourned for lunch.

RAILWAY MEN TALK STRIKE

SHOPMAN THREATEN TO WALK OUT WEDSESDAY MORNING NEXT WEEK.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Montreal, June 11—No more sessions of the railway war board are being held in connection with the demands of the railway shopmen of Division No Four. All railway shopmen throughout Canada have received notice that unless they are otherwise instructed before Tuesday evening next week that the morning shifts are not to be at work on Wednesday morning of next week.

HIGH COST OF PRIVATE CARS

SIR SAM HUGHES' PALACE ON WHEELS COST OVER $50,000.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, June 11.—Expenditures by the government on private cars, particularly Sir Sam Hughes' private car "Roleen" were probed by the public accounts committee this morning. Col. Winter stated that the car was formerly a pulman and was purchased in Chicago for $9,752 in 1912. Repairs to the extent of $1500 were then made and after the car had been psed for five years further repairs, costing $27,843 were made.

Experts on the Railway Commission staff said at the time that the charges were not excessive. The car was practically rebuilt. It was pointed out that private cars built to carry royalties had cost only $8 thousand dollars but they were built before the war.

True Bills Against Dummer Farmer

True bills were found by the Grand Jury in both cases which came before it. In the first case Henry Hughes of Dummer was charged with intimidation, accompanied by violence against Frederick Greenwood, while he was cutting timber on March 18, 1919. The second case was against the same man, who was charged with shooting with intent to maim, disfigure or disable, Arnold Meson on March 25, 1919.

Vulgar Display Cause Of Unrest

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Hamilton, June 11.—That a selfish and vulgar display of wealth at a time when all our resources are required to meet the needs of the world was one of the chief causes of the social unrest and industrial discontent in Canada at the present time, was the text of a resolution submitted to the Presbyterian General Assembly today by the committee appointed to report on that subject. Thomas Stewart of Halifax was appointed convenor of statistics and joint clerk of the assembly in place of the late Rev. Dr. Somerville.

The assembly endorsed the movement to hold Thanksgiving Day in Canada on the same date as that of the United States.

BERT ESSON IS ALLOWED TO GO

WAS ILL WHEN ORDERED TO REPORT FOR MILITARY DUTY.

Bert Esson was formally acquitted of the charge of being a defaulter under the military service act. In his case medical evidence proved that he was unable to join up when ordered to do so and although a conviction might have been made on the technical point that he did not report for duty when his health was recovered Magistrate Dumble felt that it would not be in the interests of justice to do so. In December, last year, when his doctor considered him fit to join the army the armistice had been signed and the military authorities at Kingston were busy with demobolization.

Big Four May Deal With Proposals

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 11.— There is some discussion in general conference circles whether the Plenary session will be called to consider the reply to German counter proposals or whether the Big Four will send it directly to Versailles without reference to other nations. No indication of the procedure to be adopted is permitted to come from the Council of Four. While the treaty text is unchanged the reply reads into it constructions, definitions and explanations of certain clauses which in the belief of some elements of the conference, become virtually a part of the treaty itself.

MINIMUM WAGES.

EVEN MINISTERS have their unions and set their own wages, and with members of the cloth strikes are never necessary, the justice of their claims being generally recognized. Anyway, the payment of the ministerial compensation rests largely with the clergymen themselves.

The General Assembly now in session at Hamilton has increased the minimum salary of the Presbyterian ministers from $1000 to $1500 a year, a free manse included. Any congregation that is unequal to the financial strain will continue to be assisted from a special fund of the church. Surely the laborer, no matter in what field he operates, is worthy of his hire. Every man is entitled to a fair living for himself and family. Probably if the modern minister, like the disciples of old, were endowed with the power to work miracles, to turn bread into stones, they would not concern themselves with such material things as mere money. The cost of living would not worry them.

Every class of workers, laborers, ministers and other professional men, invariably set a minimum wage. Outside of the Peterborough City Council the idea seems to meet with no serious opposition. Any other arrangement would be simply a makeshift. Setting the minimum wage does not interfere with the survival of the fittest. It gives the commonplace workman a chance to make good, while it does not hold back those who possess exceptional qualifications for their calling.

The minimum wage for the members of the Ontario Legislature is $1400 a year. That of the members of the Dominion Parliament is $2500 with an agitation for an increase already started.

If the local aldermen were allowed compensation for their services, and if that compensation were set by themselves, how about it in that case? Would they be likely to agree to a maximum salary of say $500 a year to be paid only to those distinguished in debate or in committee work, the men who say and do the least to be paid according to a scale sliding downwards?

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF ALDERMEN.

SHYLOCK STANDS READY with his scales and his knife prepared to exact his pound of flesh. Everything has been provided except a surgeon to bind up the wounds of the victim.

In other words, the aldermen have been threatened with legal proceedings if in the performance of their public duty they exceed by even a narrow margin the amount of money appropriated for any particular object. If this principle is carried out to the limit in municipal councils and other legislative bodies higher up, half the public men in the country would be reduced to penury and the other half despoiled of a percentage of their worldly goods.

The local aldermen serve the city free of charge, except for an occasional trip to outside cities, still being engaged in the public's business. It is just as natural for an alderman to err in judgment or in a calculation as it is for a man in private life to err in estimates having to do with his own business concern. No man, not even an alderman, can forsee and provide for every possible contingency. To err in judgment and in estimates is human, to penalize the public men who make such slips may not lack legal sanction but the spirit that demands the pound of flesh is scarcely divine.

Aldermen cannot be criticized if they move with unwonted caution with the chances of poverty hanging over them as a result of their public services, and if such threats are perpetuated there will be increased difficulty encountered in inducing responsible citizens to accept public place.

If the principle of penalizing public men is carried out with impartiality, what is to be the end? What of the members of Parliament, for example, who set out to put up a home for the Dominion legislators at an estimated cost of $5,000,0000, who have already exceeded that amount by about fifty per cent., and even at that the work is still far from completion?

THE ALIEN EXTREMISTS.

PRESIDENT BULMAN of the Manufacturers' Association in his annual address said that the Labor unions of the country must purge their organizations of the extremists if the workingmen are to retain the confidence of the public.

Mr. Bulman has probably never attended a meeting of a Labor union in his life. All he knows of their proceedings is what he reads in newspapers that feature not what the sane and conservative members but what the extremists say. Mr Bulman does not, apparently, know that Labor unions are doing more to hold these extremists in check than is any other agency in the country, the authorities themselves included. If the entire legal machinery in Canada cannot repress the seditious alien agitator, how can the Labor unions be expected to do so?

Who is responsible for the presence in Canada of these extremists? Certainly not Organized Labor, which opposed their importation from the start. The aliens were brought here regardless of previous conditions of servitude, by immigration agents who were intent chiefly on securing the $5 per capita bonus paid for every man they dumped upon the Canadian shores. The Government that is responsible for bringing these strangers here should now charge itself either with their repression or their deportation, instead of leaving that task to their unwilling associates who are the direct and immediate sufferers by the presence and activities of the extremists.

VETERANS AS PEACEMAKERS.

THE VETERANS in Winnipeg were the chief factor in preserving law and order in that city during the general strike. In taking this stand they justified the record made in Europe, where they distinguished themselves in the work of putting down lawlessness. Unlike the Government, they made no threates, but simply stood fast between the people and the danger that threatened them. They simply wrote another chapter into their record.

It is deeds, not words, that count. Throttling free speech and gagging the press will accomplish little. The present Union Government will go down in history not without a measure of distinction. For example, it will always be remembered of it that it was the only administration Canada has ever had that found it necessary to safeguard itself by decreeing, by order-in-Council, that it was unlawful for public or press to criticize its official acts.

THE BOY SCOUT CALLS.

(New York Commercial.)

OF ALL THE CAMPAIGNS to promote the welfare of Americans, perhaps the most unique, yet as worthy of commendation as any, was started throughout the country yesterday to enlist 1,000,000 associate members of the Boy Scouts of America to round up sufficient dollars to carry on their work—a work which extends to the whole of humanity—and enroll more of the youth of the nation in the army, which has grown to a membership of 450,000. Appeals were spread from the pulpits, the screens of movies, by mass meetings and through the press for substantial aid in extending the work of this admirable organization through wider fields.

The Boy Scout is training to be the master mind and the physical giant of the future. He not only walks in the "straight and narrow path" himself, but directs others to it, those who never heard of it or were not keen to learn about it. The Boy Scout movement has proved its great value in more ways than one and its expansion is but the natural tendency of anything that has a useful purpose as its aim—and its aim is to develop the boy mentally, physically and morally—the foundation of a nation.

The Boy Scout has proved his worth. He has accomplished things where others have failed. Collecting $300,000,000 worth of subscriptions to Liberty Bonds is one of his achievements, and this work in most instances was not undertaken until the people had been well canvassed. They struck a new appeal and they won.

The Boy Scouts are in a drive for adult associates—men who can take up the directing, training and financing of their work. They need a general, a captain or a Sergeant York as much as any army, and it is to older, matured heads that they look for their instruction, guidance and support. To demonstrate one path toward which the Boy Scout trail leads, there will be a vast parade on Fifth Avenue Wednesday in which every health-giving, recreation-giving athletic sport will be shown in which the Ty Cobbs and the little Ty Cobbs will march shoulder to shoulder and stride for stride, with a Matty as their leader.

The Boy Scout needs you. Let us all be boys again, inscribe our names to their membership roll and dig into our pockets to sustain their wonderful cause. The fruits surely will be a citizenshop of men strong in mind, body and principles, and there will be no room remaining for any other kinds of peoples. Enroll and give.

Some Hymns "Pitiable Doggeral"

How a learned Congregationalist of the last century would have translated the 23rd Psalm was instanced by Sir John D. McClure, chairman of the Congregational Union in his address to the annual assembly at the City Temple, in London, England.

The fourth and fifth verses would have run somewhat as follows:

"Unquestionably, though I perambulate the glen of the umbrages of the sepulchral dormitories, I will not be perturbed by appalling catastrophes; for Thou art present. Thy Wand and Thy Crook insinuate delectation.

"Thou spreadest a table before me, in the midst of inimical scrutations; Thou perfumest my locks with odoriferous unguents, my chalice exuberates."

They would say that such a translation was an impious caricature, added Sir John, yet he had heard, and even read, prayers and sermons whose language differed but little from what he had quoted.

Hymn to a Valse Tune

Sir John was discussing the contribution which art makes to worship and on the question of music he had a good deal of criticism to offer.

He deplored the introduction from America of a host of tunes of what was called the "Sankey type," few of which even reach the standard of respectable mediocrity, and many of which are hopelessly vulgar.

The character of much is the mid-Victorian art, in both music and other branches, was too often content to achieve the merely pretty, or even the merely tawdry, instead of striving after the sublime and beautiful.

Pitiable Doggerel

"The time is coming," he said, "and it cannot come too soon, when a Christian congregation will be ashamed to offer to God such pitiable doggerel as 'Fight the Good Fight;' nor will this sense of what is seemly—to take no higher ground—permit them to sing their evening hymn of thanksgiving to a valse tune, which is but a vulgarized version of 'Jessie, the flower of Dunblane.' "

The sermon had become as it were, the golden calf of the denomination. Their assemblies for worship were too often looked upon as mere public meetings, and their church as the lecture room of popular speakers.

"Our great need at this present is to recover the true conception of public worship as regards its nature, its privileges, and its obligations."

PHONE RATES IN CHICAGO

INCREASES ALL ROUND HAVE BEEN SANCTIONED BY THE FEDERAL AUTHORITIES.

New telephone rates, effective June 16 abolishing all unlimited service and changing the rates in all other classes, were anonunced by the Chicago Telephone Company, with, it asserts, the aproval of the postmaster general. Corporation Counsel Ettelson says he believes the turning back of the telephone properties by the federal government forestalls any increases in Chicago without the permission of the City Council. It is expected that the city will fight the proposed increases unless it can be conclusively shown that such action will not interfere with orders of the federal government.

Backed by Burleson, Claim

President Sunny calls attention to the order of Postmaster-General Burleson announcing the turning over of the telephone and telegraph properties except so far as the finances and new rates are concerned, and says the new Chicago rates are concerned, and says the new Chicago rates are ordered by the potsmaster-general to be put into effect as soon as possible.

The changes affect principally business phones and flat rates residence phones. There are 270,000 four party line nickel phones, which are affected to the extent that the guaranty is increased from 5 to 6½ cents a day. In other words, subscribers will be required to pay for forty messages a month instead of thirty.

The substance of the order is that all flat rates in Chicago are abolished and measured rates substituted. About 10 per cent of the instruments are now on a flat rate basis, create about 35 per cent of the calls and produce only 13 per cent of the revenue the company says.

New Telephone Rates Ordered

Single party business line and 80 messages for $4 a month.

The next 20 messages, 5 cents each.

The next 100 messages 4 cents each.

The next 100 messages 3 cents each.

All messages over 300, 2½ cents each.

This rate is the same as before, except that excess messages cost from ½ cent to 1 cent more.

Private branch exchange switchboards, which heretofore have been furnished free, are charged for at a moderate price.

Residence service on a single party line will cost $3.75 a month for seventy five messages. The next fifty messages will be charged for at 4 cents each. The next fifty at 3 cents and messages beyond 175 at 2½ each.

Two party residence service will cost $2.75 a month for fifty-five messages and excess messages 4 cents each.

Nickel Phone Guarantee Up

There are about 270,000 of the four party line "nickel a day" telephones. Even in prewar times, the company asserts, this service was furnished at a loss variously estimated at from $3 to $6 per telephone per annum. There will be no increase in the charge for calls, but the subscriber is required to guarantee 6½ cents a day instead of 5.

In the suburban division and in the larger exchanges the single line business telephone rate is increased from $4 to $5 per month; the two party rate from $3 to $4; the single line residence rate is not changed, but the $3 party rate is increased from $2 to $2.50 and the four party from $1.50 to $2.

Tells of Losses

President Sunny says that the company had a deficit of $127,800 in January last, $172,800 in February $242,900 in March and $168,240 in April. In the nine months it has been operated by the government the deficit has amounted to about $1,850,000. Wages of $15.000 employes have been increased several times. He etsimates that the changes in service will eliminate about 80,000,000 calls a year, which he says will greatly relieve the operators and improve the service. Under the old system, he says, certain classes of subscribers were discriminated against.

"If the new rates produce more revenue than is estimated they will be lowered," said Mr. Sunny. "If they do not bring in enough revenue it will of course be necessary to make another change."

Ruination in View

A man, whose cranium resembled a billiard ball, read the advertisement of "Dr. Bogus' Wonderful Lotion. Warranted to make the hair grow thick and curly on the baldest heads." In order to test the veracity of this announcement he went to the advertiser, and, purchasing a bottle of the liquid, enquired:

"Is it a fact that by applying your lotion to my head, I shall see my hair grow?"

"No doubt?" answered the advertiser.

So, seating himself in front of a looking-glass, hairless man began to smother his head with the stuff, and said, full of confidence:

"I will wait and see the result."

"What!" screamed the doctor. "wait in my shop, why, my lease is up in ten months."

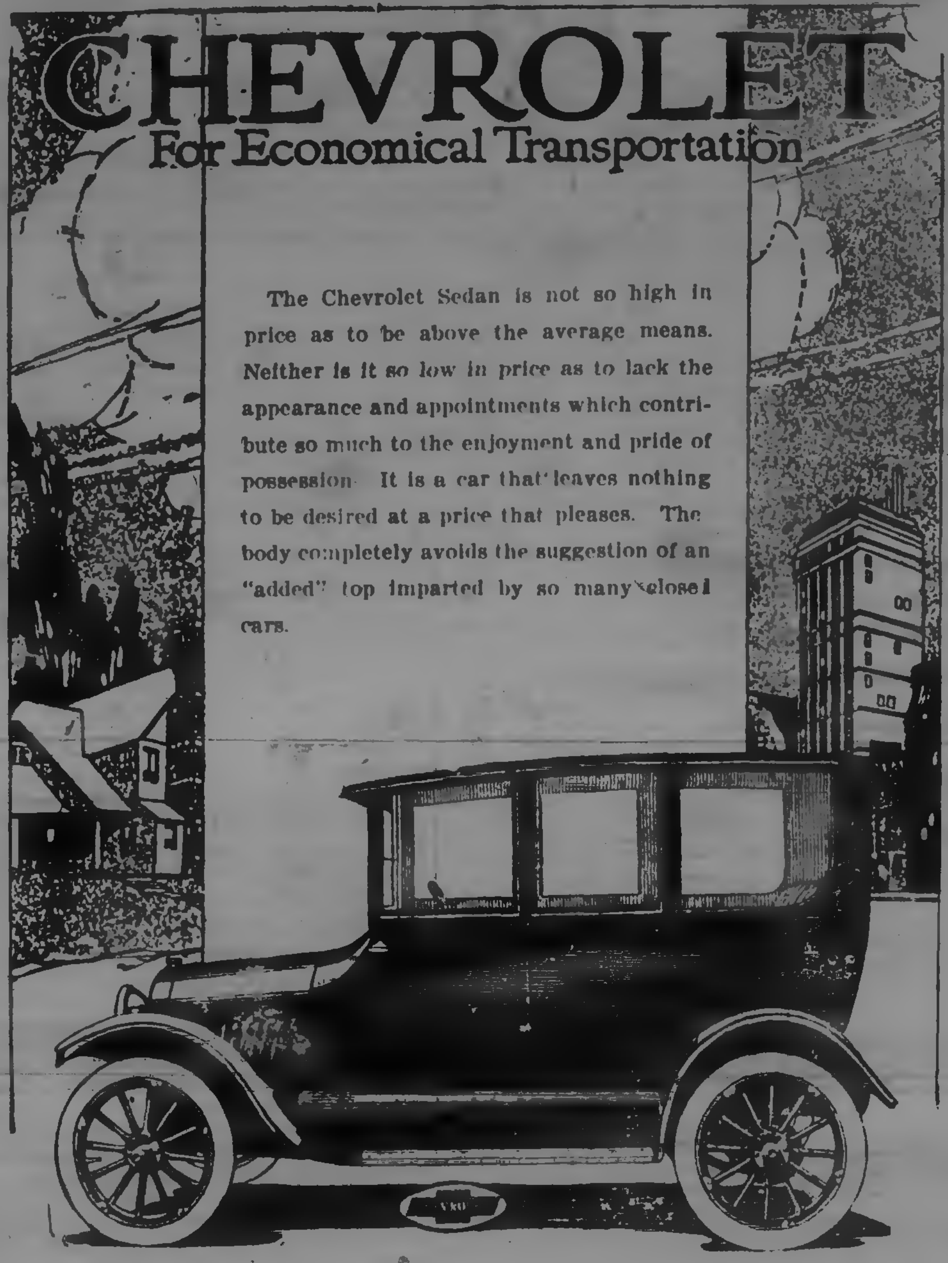
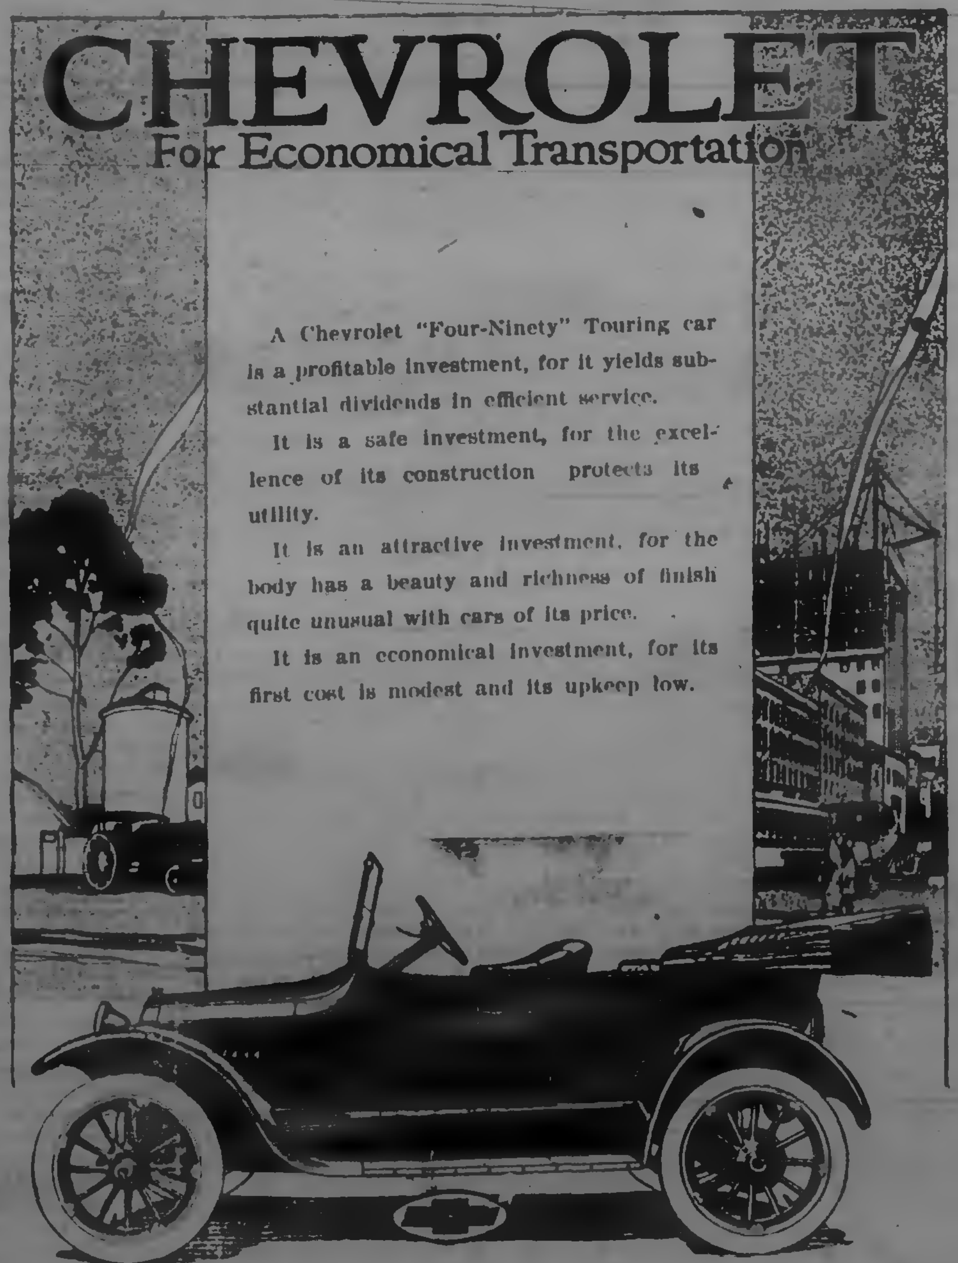
The Chevrolet "Four-Ninety" Coupe represents more than is usual even these days in motor car efficiency. Its design lends itself to every purpose for which an automobile could possibly be used. In summer as an open roadster, in winter as a closed car, it meets the innumerable needs of the business or professional man with dependable efficiency and comfort in all seasons.



CHEVROLET

For Economical Transportation

The Chevrolet Sedan is not so high in price as to be above the average means. Neither is it so low in price as to lack the appearance and appointments which contribute so much to the enjoyment and pride of possession. It is a car that leaves nothing to be desired at a price that pleases. The body completely avoids the suggestion of an "added" top imparted by so many closed cars.



CHEVROLET

For Economical Transportation

A Chevrolet "Four-Ninety" Touring car is a profitable investment, for it yields substantial dividends in efficient service.

It is a safe investment, for the excellence of its construction protects its utility.

It is an attractive investment, for the body has a beauty and richness of finish quite unusual with cars of its price.

It is an economical investment, for its first cost is modest and its upkeep low.

District Health Officer Clinton Explained Statute to Members of Board of Health at Last Night's Meeting.

At the meeting of the Board of Health last night, at which Chairman Buller, Mayor Duncan and Messrs. Morgan and Murty were present, the matter of compelling citizens to connect their residences, when equipped with the water service, with city sewers was taken up. District Health Officer Clinton, of Belleville, who was at the meeting gave the Board an explanation of the statute in dealing with this problem. The law must be obeyed. If the sanitary inspector finds any violations he is expected to report to the medical health officer who will serve the delinquent with a written notice. If this notice is unheeded the sanitary inspector is supposed to bring the matter into the Police Court, the city solicitor to prosecute.

Sanitary Inspector Stapleton last night explained the difficulties in the enforcement of the law. In some cases compulsion looked like a hardship. Sometimes the residence is not worth the expense, often a man paying for his home is unable to stand a new obligation. If the house is occupied by a tenant the rent is invariable raised after an improvement is made.

The city, however, has power under the statute to make all such connections and to charge it against the property, the amount to be collected in a period not exceeding five years. There will be no further leniency shown. The sanitary inspector was instructed to see that the law in this regard is carried out.

Veneral Diseases.

The case of Dr. Wood, who wants compensation for treating a returned soldier suffering from a veneral disease, was revived by another letter from the doctor but as he sent no bill no definite action was taken. Chairman Buller expressed the opinion that all such matters should be dealt with by the health officer. If the latter's compensation is not sufficient to enable him to take on new duties then Mr. Buller believes that the salary should be increased. Anyway, Dr. Wood is paid by the Government to look after returned soldiers medically.

Miss Morgan, former matron of the Isolation Hospital, who went overseas, has returned to Canada. She will be notified that she may have her former position again if she cares to accept it. Dr. McPherson, health officer before he went overseas, will also be reinstated if he so desires when he returns to private practice.

It was decided to ask for prices on two 12-inch oscillating electric fans for use in the Isolation Hospital, the necessity for which was made apparent during the recent heated spell. The usual statistics were received and the monthly accounts passed. A number of requests for sewers will be referred to the City Council.

CONDITIONS ON ONTARIO FARMS

The following is a summary of reports made by agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

The quick germination of seed and the tremendous growth of vegetation have been remarkable during the past week or ten days.

Recent heavy rains have much relieved the baked conditions of clay soils, but a considerable acreage of heavy land is likely to remain more or less unworkable for spring crops. Owing to the lateness of the sowing season a good deal of buckwheat and millet and some peas and oats for pasture will be put in. A larger area of corn is also being planted, and the seed is said to have sprouted well.

Sugar beets and mangels have started nicely, and turnips are now being sown.

Fall wheat is beginning to head out. The straw promises to be a good length.

Clover is also making generous growth and will be ready for cutting about the end of the month. Alfalfa will get the first general cut next week.

Fruits of all kinds are likely to yield well. Early strawberries will get their first picking this week. Halton reports that growers will be getting 19 cents a basket upwards.

Cattle are doing well on the grass, but prices for beef have declined, and sales are consequently slow. Dairy cattle, however, are in strong demand at from $100 to $200, according to herd or individual performance. The milk flow has increased with pasture, and cheese is now being boarded at from 30¼c to 31½c lb. for the better makes.

Hogs continue to demand good prices, quotations furnished by representatives ranging from $21.25 to $22 a cwt.

Working horses have suffered greatly from the intense heat of the last two weeks. Many animals were prostrated, some of which died, the largest number of fatalities being reported from Lennox and Addington, Frontenac, and Leeds and Grenville.

Sheep have done well this season. Elgin reports that more wool than usual is being sent to Guelph.

Fodder supplies will be sufficient for present need, although hay is very scarce and dear.

York reports that farmers' sons and others returning from overseas are helping out the situation to some extent.

Tractors are increasing in popularity. The Lennox and Addington representative reports that twelve were sold in Napanee during the last week, and claims that there will be one hundred in operation in that county before the end of the present year.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Trustee E. G. Patterson could not agree altogether with Trustee Fowler's views in classing janitors with teachers, who are, he said, in a professional class. He thought the question of increased salaries for janitors should be left in abeyance until the end of the year, as no one can foresee the condition of the labor market six months hence. Labor may be cheaper in the fall than now.

Salaries Not Excessive.

Trustee J. A. McKone, in talking to the increase in salaries granted, said a maximum of $1,900 to principals, with $50 per room extra for each class room over ten, could not be taken as excessive. When Toronto principals are getting a maximum of $2,800, and the latter have an assistant.

The report on these salaries originally read that principals receive $50 a year for each additional room above ten class room, without any limit. But Trustee Patterson drew attention to the fact that as the new school in the west ward would contain 20 rooms, whoever was principal if entitled to the maximum schedule, would receive a salary of $2,800, which would not be far in excess of the salaries of other principals and might prove a source of discontent among principals generally.

Chairman Roland Denne corrected Mr. Patterson with the information that the new school will contain 18 rooms, but 15 of which would be used for several years. The schedule allowed for a possible maximum salary of $2,300.

Finally, the committee's report in this connection was amended to read as published above that principals receive $50 extra for each class room over 10 with a limit of 15 rooms to which this schedule shall apply.

There will be but three schools affected by the $50 per extra room consideration.

Case Is Settled Without Hearing

The case of Howden v. Hunt was settled by mutual arrangement. The defendant, Herbert Hunt has agreed to pay Wm. G. Howden, $287.50 in full settlement of the claim and costs. If it is not paid within fifteen days judgment will be entered in accordance with the above agreement. The action arose over the sale of a stallion by Herbert Hunt to Wm. Howden on the understanding that it was a properly registered thoroughbred. The defendent denied misrepresentation.

COUNCIL TO GRADE VILLAGE STREETS

NORWOOD'S THOROUGHFARES WILL BE IMPROVED BY MODERN METHODS.

Norwood, June 11.—The Norwood Council have decided to lay out a considerable amount of money on street improvement this year. Since the commencement of the war large sums were required for patriotic and war purposes thus curtailing largely the amount available for village purposes, the result being that the streets have become badly in need of repair. At the meeting of the Council last Wednesday it was decided to purchase a one team road grader which has since been ordered and with this machine it is expected a large portion of the street improvement can be done.

In addition to this the Council has rented from the Township of Asphodel the stone crusher which is being placed in the hill gravel pit and the work of crushing and gravelling those streets most in need of repair will be commenced this week. Mr. Thos. Burkell has been appointed Commissioner to oversee the work and we anticipate a marked improvement in the streets of our village.

Weekly Half Holiday

The merchants of Norwood have decided to close their places of business at 12.30 every Wednesday during the months of June, July and August. Wednesday of this week will be the first half holiday.

Farmers' Candidates

The United Farmers of East Peterboro held a convention in Norwood on Thursday afternoon of last week to select a candidate to contest the riding in the next Provincial Election. A large number were present the Town Hall being filled at the meeting in the afternoon. Five candidates were nominated and in the last ballot Mr. Ernie McDonald of Cottesloe, the secretary of the organization was chosen as the standard bearer of the U.F.O.

Cricketers Organize

The cricketers of Norwood have organized for the year 1919. Almost every evening the lovers of the game assemble at the Fair Grounds for practice. They expect they will soon be issuing challenges to outside teams for friendly matches and hope to see some good sport this season.

Personals

Mrs. John Weir has purchased from Mr. W. T. Carberry, the Hastings stage and takes over the business at once.

Mr. Carberry goes to Belleville to manage the cheese box factory there for Mr. H. G. Buck.

The Cheese Box Factory here is running on daylight saving time, and all the rest of the village is behind them.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Moore of Keene were in the village on Sunday calling on friends.

Miss Ellen Beavis of Peterboro is visiting her sister, Mrs. E. J. Laing, Peterborough Street.

Mr. Frank Hindren of Winnipeg who has veen visiting at the home of Mrs. L. Hindren received a telegram saying that her mother was dangerously ill left for his home in Winnipeg on Thursday last. Frank had just returned from overseas having spent four long years of faithful service for his country.

Miss Muriel Searight and Mrs. Howard Searight of Montreal are visiting in Peterborough.

Mr. Karl Irwin accompanied by Mr. Arthur Bogart spent Sunday at the parsonage, the home of Rev and Mrs. Irwin.

Miss Vera Finley and Alethea Duffield are spending a few days at Clarina.

Mr. Stanley Laing and Mr. Cecil Watson spent June 3rd in Belleville.

Miss Olive Drain of Clarina was in town one day last week, the guest of Miss Beatrice Lennox.

Mrs. N. Beavis and Mrs. L. W. Hess of Hastings called on friends in Norwood on Saturday last.

ALBION KNITTING CO. LEASES OLD WEST WARD SCHOOL BLDG

Board of Education Endorsed Tentative Agreement Last Nigh

Trustee A. A. Fowler, chairman o the Schools Property Committee, su mitted to the Board of Education la evening the following report, wh speaks for itself:

Gentlemen,—

Your Property Committee beg t report that as authorized your Committee advertised for tenders for the fuel required for the ensuing year and have awarded the contract to Messrs. H. B. Taylor & Son.

Your committee recommend tha the Board lease to R. P. Parker o the Albion Knitting Company, the old West Ward School property (not including the house and lot adjoining) for the term of four years free of rent other than taxes, the leasees to make all necessary repairs and alterations at their own expense and to have the option of purchasing, at any time during the currency of the lease, for the sum of $3,000.00, the building to be used for the purpose of manufacturing knitted goods. All repairs and improvements to be made under the supervision of the Property Committee and to become the property of the Board at the expiration of the lease.

Your committee ask that they be authorized to make the necessary repairs at the various schools during the summer vacation.

This report was adopted as read, and means the location here of a new industry with bright expansion prospects. Peterborough has room for many such modest industries, and should reach out after them.

DRINK A GLASS OF REAL HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST.

Says we will both look and feel clean, sweet and fresh and avoid illness.

Sanitary science has of late made rapid strides with results that are of untold blessing to humanity. The latest application of its untiring research is the recommendation that it is necessary to attend to internal sanitation of the drainage system of the human body as it is to the drains of the house.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should each morning before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the phosphated hot water is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatic stiffness; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

PRINTERS STILL SAFE AND SANE

CONFERENCE AT OTTAWA OPPOSED TO ONE UNION AND BOLSHEVISM.

Peterborough Typographical Union No. 248 was represented at the eighth annual convention of the Ontario and Quebec Typographical Conference, which was held in Ottawa on Monday and Tuesday of this week. The local delegates were President A. J. Bolwell and Recorder C. E. Smalley, who returned this morning greatly impressed with the spirit of enthusiasm which prevailed throughout the sessions. They look forward to a year of progress in the work of this conference, and prospects are bright for 1919 being the banner year in its history. All the delegates were most optimistic. Also they are loud in their praises of the efforts put forth by the members of the Ottawa Union to make their stay in the Capital one long to be remembered. At the close of the convention the reception and entertainment committee of Ottawa Local, Messrs. F. and H. Lee and Sheppard, were each presented with a token of appreciation by the visitors.

President—James Cunningham, of Toronto.

Vice-President—A. J. Bolwell.

Secretary-Treasurer—H. S. Bentley, London.

The convention, which held its first session Monday morning, was welcomed to the city by the Mayor and other civic representatives, after which addresses were delivered by the newspaper proprietors and a representative of the commercial printing establishments of the city, on behalf of the employing printers of Ottawa. James J. Hoban, 2nd vice-president of the International Typographical Union, was in attendance on behalf of that great organization, and delivered several instructive and entertaining addresses during the sessions, also installing the new officers, the last official act of the convention. Mr. H. C. Hocken, M.P., of Toronto, spoke briefly to the delegates Tuesday morning in reminiscent vein, recalling old times when he himself carried a card.

The Conference went on record as unalterably opposed to the One Big Union idea, I.W.W.ism and bolshevism. These disturbing and disintegrating movements of the present are given no place in the policy of the International Typographical Union. Organization work will be given a prominent place during the coming year. Local unions were recommended to seriously consider the apprenticeship question. A resolution by the Peterborough delegation was concurred in, with a view to having a uniform scale for the jurisdiction of the conference, and to bring about uniformity in the expiration of local agreements between the unions and the employing printers.

A resolution recommending that every effort be put forth to secure as early as possible the forty-four-hour working week, brought in by the London delegates, also was concurred in.

Secretary-Treasurer Bellamy of the Western Canada Conference, was in attendance as fraternal delegate from that body, which covers the territory from Port Arthur to the Pacific Coast. The interchange of views between the East and the West was a feature of the convention, and cannot be otherwise than of great assistance to both sections of the country both in the interests of the employers and employes.

H. B. Archer of London presided. Hamilton was chosen as the place of meeting for 1920, the convention dates being Monday and Tuesday, June 14 and 15.

ROLO MERCENA, FAMOUS HOLSTEIN IS SOLD FOR $26,000 IN PHILADELPHIA

Cow That Broke World's Record For Butter Fat Was Owned by J. B. Hanmer a 'Young Man at Norwich Who Realized a Fortune on His Investment.

Since the following article was put in type it has been learned that the famous cow was sold for the sum of $26,000. Mr. Hanmer, the young owner, took Rolo Mercena and her calf to Philadelphia and offered them for sale at the National sale of the American Holstein-Fresian Association. Rolo Mercena De Kol went to Coldstream Farms, Lexington, Kentucky, for the above sum, while her four-months-old calf, at her side, went to the same buyers for $1,000.

Three or four years ago Mr. Hanmer's father bought for his son two cows, giving $100 for them. The $26,000 Rolo Mercena is the first calf of one of these animals.

(Timothy Spray in Toronto Globe.)

A typical Holstein community lies around the village of Norwich in the county of Oxford, which for some years has been famous as the premier dairy county of Canada. As far back as 1864—and that is a long way in Canadian history—a creamery or cheese factory, the first in Canada, was erected and operated in the village of Norwich. The start then given to community breeding and dairying has never been lost, and today this small, purely agricultural town of 1,200 people is the hub of what is probably the finest bit of dairy country in the Dominion of Canada. The name of the little town was sent broadcast across the breeding world when Mr. John McKee brought out a world's champion Ayrshire, the famous "Jean Armour," founder of a wonderful producing family. Not satisfied with one world championship, Norwich a fe wweks ago claimed another, when Mr. 'Beryl Hanmer's Rolo Mercena DeKol a Holstein this time—broke several world's records in an extraordinary performance that is at present the talk of breeders the world over.

Five Cows on a Year's Test.

A visit to a just a few of the farms laying near the village will astound the observer in its revelation of the general combination of quality and quantity that Oxford county affords in Holsteins. In a recent trip the writer called on several breeders and everywhere found the same alertness the same efficiency and the same zeal that have gone to produce the championships which Oxford already boasts, and which she claims are but the forerunners of many such victories. On the farm of Mr. A. E. Cornwall were found 38 head of Holsteins, all purebred, and with no fewer than five cows performing in the one-year test Of these, one, Countess Mercena Beulah, gave in her first 100 days' test, milk vained at $309. Her yield for 130 days was 12391.15 pounds, with a best-day yield of 11.1 pounds. Her butter yield for 30 days was shown as 134.51 pounds.

Every cow on the farm is judged by the standards of the scales and the Babcock tester, and only those merit are retained for breeding purposes. The same judgment is applied on the farm of Mr. Ernest Hanmer, uncle of the young owner of the new champion, whose property just on the outskirts of Norwich is one of the most up-to-date farms to be found in the Province.

"The Only One in the World."

Mr. Ernest Hanmer is the possessor of a three-months-old calf that yet may make a mark in the dairy world. This youngster traces direct to the dums of the two champion Holstein cows of all time—Rolo Mercena DeKol (51 pounds) and Segis Fayne Johanna (20 pounds)—and is the only calf in the world that does so. Among the thirty-five pure-bred Holsteins on the Hanmer farm he holds a high place, not only because of his matchless pride of ancestry but also because of his possibilities for the future.

Local Pioneers in Breeding.

Across the concessions, but not far from Mr. Hanmer's, is the huge farm of Rettie Brothers. The Retties, as everyone who lives anywhere near Norwich hurries to inform one, stand very near the top of the list of the names of men who have made the Holstein breed what it is in Canada. Starting many years ago, with practically no capital. but with the rare asset of an old-country breeding training, Rettie Bros. laid sure and deep the foundations for their future—and they have more than come into their own. The huge farm now stretches for miles, literally, along one of the roads divergent from Norwich, and on it are to be found some of the prize specimens of the Canadian Holstein. "It was the sale, some fifteen or twenty years ago, of three cattle by Mr. Rettie that really drew the attention of scores of farmers to the merits of pure-breeding," a neighbor of these breeders said to the writer. "That was in the early days, and the price, I think, was $6,000. Anyway, the community owes more to the Retties than it can ever repay."

Use of Pure-bred Sires.

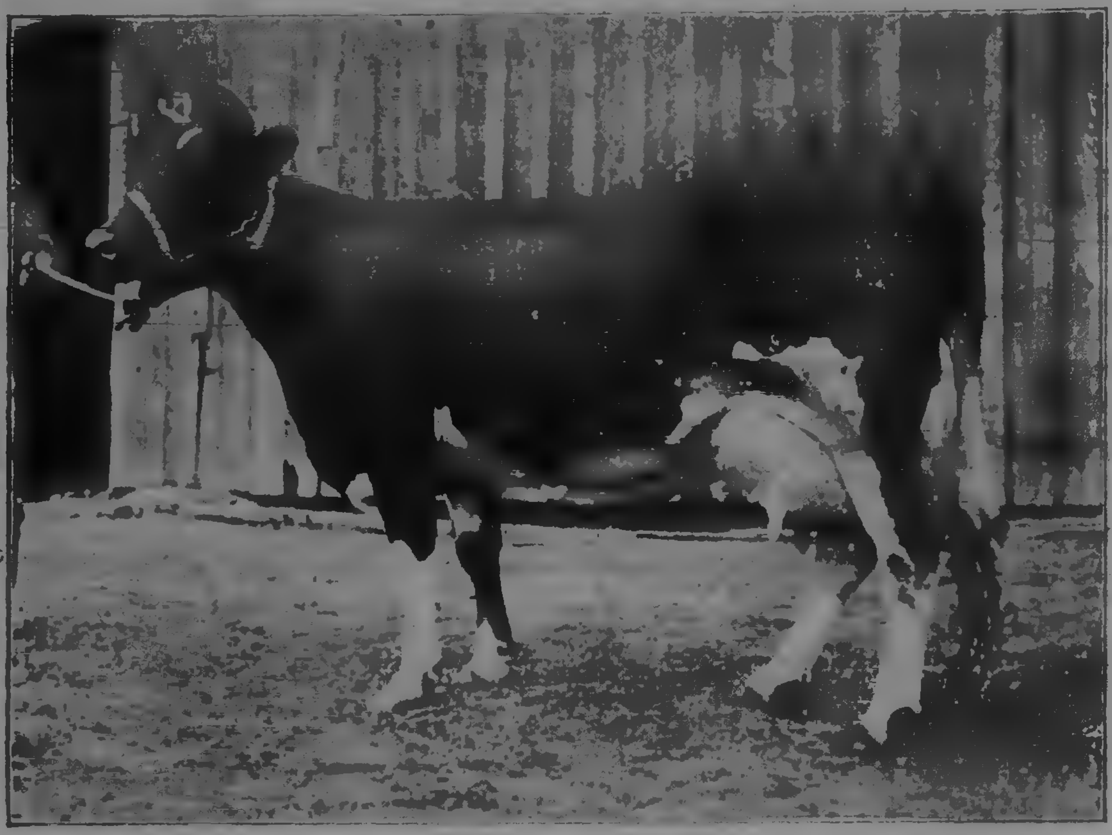
The influence of the herd-sire in these days of breeding toward efficiency cannot be over estimated, and among the pure-breeders of the Norwich vicinity, great attention is being paid to the production of Canadian pure-bred sires that will top the breeding lists of the continents.

Practically all the sires in the district covered on a recent occasion, are pure-bred, and all those found on the farms actually visited, were so A particularly fine specimen of the Holstein male was that seen at the stables of Mr. A. E. Hulet, 4th Vice-President of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada, a two-year-old bull of exceptional character and conformation that should have a big influence on the future record of stock bearing the Hulet strain. A promising youngster of one year, Elmcrest Teake Netherland, was seen at "Lowlands," the farm of Mr. Chas. N. Hilliker of Burgessville, who is the owner of a herd possessing some animals of unusual merit.

A Young Man's Venture.

The story of young Hanmer's venture is told by Mr. F. E. Ellis in Farm and Dairy as follows:

Truth is oftentimes stranger than fiction and the romance of business is something more wonderful than the product of an author's imagination. Hear this story of an Oxford county farm. One year ago last month J. B. Hanmer, of Norwich took over his father's farm. At the dispersion sale of Hanmer, Senior, the boy, for he was only 22 years old, invested a few hundred dollars in some of his father's best cows. On his start as a farmer he found himself with a hundred acres of sandy loam soil, hardly a fair equipment of buildings, and, like most young men just starting in, a heavy load of debt. But he had his cows and with these he had entire confidence in the future For several years he had been studying Holstein history. Feeding problems were his chief interest. The first spring he tested with fair success. This winter and spring he has tested again and made a record for successful official test work that has probably never before been equalled on any farm in Canada and perhaps in America. In the past four months the young farmer in his very early twenties has made, with a small herd of registered Holsteins, four new world's records and six Canadian records. The seven head he has tested,—two junior two-year-olds, three senior three-year-olds and two mature cows—have an average production as a result of his work of 30.81 lbs. of butter in seven days. His greatest achievement is the developing of the world's record 50 pound cow and now holder of all world's records for butterfat production from one day to 30. As a result of this remarkable testing, J. B. Hanmer now finds himself known the continent over in Holstein circles, and with cattle that, in the sales ring, will realize him enough to buy alf a dozen good one hundred acre farms. Surely this is one of the romances of the breeding business! Did anyone ever jump with more startling rapidity from obscurity to fame and from comparative poverty to riches, in the farm sense of the word at least. And yet, when I visited young Hanmer on his farm last week I found him the same unassuming young chap that I had just met at Toronto fair the year before, pleased with his success but not spoiled by the deserved congratulations and attention that are his lot nowadays.



ROLO MARCENA DEKAL, world's champion for seven and thirty days. Record for 7 days, 738.7 lbs. milk, 41.54 lbs. butter fat (5'.93 lbs. butter); records for 30 days, 2,920.5 lbs milk, 160.27 lbs. butter fat. J. H. Hanmer, Norwich, Ont, owner and breeder.

The Cow and Her Records.

We went out to the barn to see the cow, Rolo Mercena DeKol. In a box stall in a quiet corner of the cow barn we found the most valuable cow in the world. I had been pleased with her records as was every other Canadian live stock man. I was just as pleased with the cow. As an individual she is excellent. The illustration herewith speaks for her The new champion is not a large cow; just a fair size. But she has quality written in large type all over her; a beautiful feminine head, true dairy conformation coming more closely to the legal wedge type than any other world's champion of my acquaintance; a hide that handles like a glove and a perfect udder. She had been taken out to be photographed in the cold, raw weather of the previous Saturday and had contracted a cold so I did not see her at her best. But even as she was she looked the kind of a cow to do good things in the right hands. In some ways she reminded us of a previous world's champion Canadian cow but in the yearly division, Countess DeKol, G. A. Brethen's great three-year-old. Here are the records that make Rolo Mercena DeKol several times a world's champion:

Best day	8.57 lbs. butter
Seven days	51.93 lbs. butter
Thirty days	200.34 lbs. butter
Sixty days	337.49 lbs. butter

The first three records are for all ages, all breeds. The sixty day production leads the world in the mature class, but is exceeded by that of Ormsby Jane Segis Aaggie with 36' lbs. of fat in the four-year-old division. His cow was tested again as a mature cow and although she raised her seven day record from 44 lbs. of butter to 46.33 she did not stand the pace for sixty days as well as sh ehad done in her four-year-old form. The nearest proproduction to that of Rolo Mercena DeKol in the 60 days division is Fairview Kormdyke Mata with 185,37 lbs. of butter, leaving the Canadian cow a lead of 15 lbs. The cow whom she supersedes in the seven day division is Segis Fayne Johanna with 50. 8 lbs. of butter, her one day production being 7.75. This record, too, was made in a scientifcally constructed test barn with every aid to production that money could purchase, while Rolo Mercena DeKol made her record in an ordinary farm box stall and attended by a young farmer who, for weeks at a time, had no regular help with his farm work and, through illness and lack of help in the house, did the house work as well during a part of the test. Another remarkable feature is that the Canadian cow started at 28½ lbs. of butter for her first seven day and gained steadily making her greatest record in the last week of her test three months after calving. Such a persistent increase in production is a tribute to both the producing ability and constitution of the cow and the skill of her feeder.

In milk production Rolo Mercena DeKol has gone high, but not sensationally so. In her best day she made 125.8 lbs. of milk and during her 51.93 pound test her best daily production was 114 lbs. In 30 days she made 2,920.5 lbs. of milk and in sixty days 5,795.1 lbs. It was a combination of high milk production and a high test that made her great records. The previous year, without any special attention, she produced 17,127 lbs. of milk in11 months.

TORONTO MAN IS GIVEN CONTRACT

N. A. KEARNS'S PLANS FOR VILLAGE HALL ACCEPTED BY LAKEFIELD.

(Special to The Review.)

Lakefield, June 11.—Mr. N. A. Kearns, architect of Toronto, one of those who submitted plans for the new Memorial Village Hall for Lakefield has had his plans accepted over all competition and work on the new building, to replace the one recently destroyed by fire, will begin at once.

The structure as planned will contain an assembly hall with a seating capacity for 400 people. This hall has a large stage together with commodious dressing rooms for the accommodation of threatrical performers. There is to be a large council chamber and an office for the village clerk with a fire proof vault. Adjacent to the court room where offenders will be tried will be cells built along the most modern lines.

The fire hall is to be built so that a complete up-to-date equipment may be housed in it. There is to be a well lighted library, complete with stock room, and a club room as well. This building when completed, both as to outside appearance and inside arrangement, will be a credit to Lakefield. It will cost $16,000.

Mr. Kearns, the architect, is one of the leading members of this profession in Toronto, and is a well-known writer on problems dealing with architectural art.

SAY THE BY-LAW IS VIOLATED

FIREMEN COMPLAIN THAT DOWN TOWN CITIZENS IGNORE BUILDING RESTRICTIONS.

A strong protest is being made by the firemen against the erection of buildings, within the city fire limits that do not comply with the city's fire bylaws. This constitutes, not only an additional risk to everyone living anywhere near the offending parties, but is as well a very probable source of danger to the firemen. Section 8 of bylaw No. 612 says:

"No covered galley or verandah constructed with timber or other combustible material shall be erected in connection with any house unless the same shall be wholly covered with some incombustible material as set forth for covering roofs of buildings."

The fire limits extend from Brock to Charlotte streets and from Aylmer to Water streets. In every case both sides of the street are within the limits.

A CONSULTING ENGINEER FOR WEST WARD SCHOOL BUILDING

Melvern F. Thomas Appointed to Plan and Supervise Heating, Plumbing, Electric Wiring and Ventilating—Routine Business of Board of Education.

The Board of Education met in regular monthly session last night

There were present Chairman Roland Denne presiding; and Trustees J. W. Worth, E. G. Patterson, G. O. Cameron, J. B. McGrath, J. A. McKone, A. A. Fowler, J. M. Greene.

Consulting Engineer

Chairman E. G. Patterson submitted the report of the Building Committee as follows:

Gentlemen:—Your Building Committee beg to report and recommend as follows:

1st—That Mr. Melvern F. Thomas. Consulting Engineer of Toronto be engaged as Engineer on the heating, ventilating and plumbing and electric and fixtures for electric power circuits.

2nd—That the agreement with Mr. Thomas, appended hereto, be approved by the Board and forwarded for his signature and that the Chairman and Secretary be authorized to execute the same on behalf of the Board.

3—That Mr. Walter R. L. Blackwell, architect, be paid the sum of $300 on account services rendered, under his agreement with this board.

This report was adopted by the Board.

Consulting Engineer Thomas is to be paid for his services a sum equivalent to five per cent of the cost of the work supervised by him, and one-half that fee in case the work is not proceeded with after he has prepared the plans and specifications.

Teachers Apply

Five applications for positions on the public school teaching staff went to the Committee on Appointments.

Miss Moffatt applied for the appointment as household science instructor. This was referred to the same committee.

New Association

The St. Catharines School Board invited the Peterborough Board of Education to send delegates to a meeting of School Boards of Ontario to be held in St. Kits, on June 25th, at 1.30 p.m Object, to form an Urban Trustee's Association.

This communication was received and no action taken.

Truancy

Truant officer Miller reported 34 cases of school absentees dealt with by him the past month. Eleven parents giving but petty excuses.

Inspector's Report

Inspector A. H. Leake reported on his inspection, of the household science and manual training departments of the schools. These reports were on the whole complimentary to both teachers and pupils, but recommended improvements in equipment to which the Board will give heed.

BIG DOUBLE BILL AT THE GRAND LAST HALF OF WEEK

The Scarlet Shadow Will Be the Attraction Thursday, Friday and Saturday With Matinee Each Day.

"The Scarlet Shadow."

Scenario by Harvey F. Thaw.

Directed by Robert Z. Leonard.

The cast:

Elena Evans............Mae Murray
Aunt Alvira Evans....Martha Mattox
Harvey Presby........Frank Elliott
Van Presby, his nephew
Ralph Graves
Edith Presby, Van's mother
Clarissa Selwynne
Joseph Fleming.......Williard Louis
The Gardner........J. Edwin Brown

Avira Evans, a puritanical spinster, made a prisoner of her niece, Elena. The girl was not allowed to leave the hedged-in garden because she declared Elena's mother had been wayward and wicked, and she was constantly looking for the same "scarlet strain" to show itself in Elena.

Elena was seen by young Van Presby, a college student, who persuaded her to steal out for a night at the movies. On returning, Elena was unable to climb back through the window. Van crawled up to her room to help her.

Aunt Alvira discovered them. She declared the "scarlet strain" had showed itself and that unless Van would marry Elena she should go out into the street. In the morning Aunt Alvira marched them down town for a hasty marriage.

They met Van's Uncle Harvey, whom Van's mother, Edith Presby wanted for her second husband. Harvey stopped the marriage.

Alvira put Elena out of the house. Harvey and Van took the girl to the city and gave her a home with Van's mother. When Harvey showed an interest in Elena, Edith took a jealous dislike to her.

She took advantage of Harvey's temporary absence to bring Elena in contact with Joseph Fleming, an unrefined millionaire. Then she told the girl she was a burden upon her and Harvey, and on account of the "scarlet strain" she better seize the first opportunity to marry. Elena finally accepts Fleming.

Edith arranged a dinner to announce Elena's engagement, hoping to have her tied to Fleming before Harvey got back. Harvey, however, heard of it and rushed back to town. Revolting at the thought of marrying Fleming, Elena created a scene at the dinner by flinging his ring in his face, then ran to her room.

Van, in the drunken condition, followed, Elena and taunting her with her mother's "scarlet strain," tried to make love to her. She knocked Van over, threw some things into a bag, rushed out and ran into the arms of Harvey who had just arrived. He tried to explain that he was not a party to the marriage—that he loved her and hoped to marry her.

The old family gardner arrived and through him they learned that the only "scarlet strain" in Elena's mother was her marrying a second time, which Aunt Alvira condemned as "immoral." So all ended happily.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

HYPERHEPATOSIS

Please don't turn away mad, friends. The title of this talk is purely fictitious. There is no such disease. It is all imaginary. But just listen and learn how reasonable an imaginary ailment can be when served with a good dash of the sauce of plausibility.

It is necessary for you to know, first, that the liver is the largest organ in the body hence the easiest to find with the aid of any good almanac. In a live subject or a dead one you just can't miss it; dig in anywhere below the ribs and grab. If the subject is a live one he will wince. S'nuff. Everything explained the sallow complexion, liver spots, grouchy disposition, coated tongue, bad taste 'n'everything. (Remember, this is all nonsense: in reality the liver has nothing to do with such symptoms; more probably the poor thing doesn't make sufficient use of the lungs.) The subject willingly pleads guilty to the charge of having a torpid, lazy or "disordered" liver, as the almanacs call it, playing safe. Call a man or woman lazy and you court trouble, but call his or her liver lazy and you gain popularity and confidence.

Mr. Wisehelmer, however, views things from a novel angle. Wisehelmer is fond of novelty; anything interests and appeals to him, only so it is different, unusual, out of the beaten path. Mr. Wisehelmer called the other day to "doctor" with me; that is, he intended to attach himself as a sort of temporary partner in diagnosis and therapeutics, and Wisehelmer usually prefers to let the doctor play the role of silent partner. So I listened while he explained his liver was overactive.

Here was an original conception. One is familiar enough with overactive hearts, nervous systems, and other functionally excited inards, but an overactive liver is really unique. Hyperhepatosis, by golly!

Yes, Wisehelmer had arrived at his diagnosis in the most logical way. He had investigated his family history and discovered that all his ancestors and relatives had been troubled more or less with one or another organ functioning excessively. Thus, grandfather had died of brain fever; grandma had the asthma; father ate too much and had the gout; mother had palpitation; one brother had always a running nose and Wisehelmer himself was farsighted; then, to clinch matters, a half sister had fourteen children. Therefore, Wisehelmer concluded that the bitter taste in his mouth came from an overactive liver. Did I consider calomel or May apple the more effective, or would a course of, oh, say twists of the left ear be the proper treatment.

I suggested excision of one lobe of the liver. If that seemed heroic, Wisehelmer might find great relief by working his stomach less and his molars more. "You eat like a porker you know. Masticate your food, eat less, exercise a reasonable amount every day, and forget your family history." He looked hurt. He took his hat, great offense, a receipt for $10 and his departure.

Blood and Iron

"Would you recommend Blaud iron pills as a blood tonic? The reason I ask is because I want to take something to make me stronger.

"A.K."

No, I have never observed any apparent benefit from taking iron pills. If there is insufficient iron in the blood, the best way to supply the deficiency is in the diet. All fresh greens and green vegetables are rich in the most available kind of organic iron, namely, chlorophyl, which is chemically identical with hemoglobin, the red coloring matter of the blood corpuscles. The amount of iron in the blood, however, has nothing in particular in common with your strength.

RAIN STOPPED LAST NIGHT'S GAME IN THE FOURTH INNING

Orientals Had Lead of 8 to 3 Over the De Lavals When Time Was Called—Petes Play Bellevilie at Latter City Saturday.

It was certainly a case of tough luck at Riverside Park last night in the game between De Laval and the Orientals. Rain fell in such quantities during the latter part of the fourth innings that Umpire McCabe called time with the score 8 to 3 in favor of the Orientals, and though the sun blinked sarcastically from time to time in the western sky, the little drops of rain kept following each other down. The result was that the game had to be cancelled and will be played again some time later. According to the rules it should be played on Friday, but as Peterborough meets Belleville on Saturday and the Orientals already have a game for Thursday, other arrangements will have to be made and will be announced in due time

The first three innings were good, snappy ball, but the fourth was very slow. For players that live beside a river and a canal with a small lake practically in the centre of the city, rain seems to have a surprisingly demoralizing effect.

First Innings.

Orientals—Neary muffed Cherrett's fly and he went to third. Heenan flied out to Legon. Phelan singled, scoring Cherrett, but was nabbed stealing second. Collins and McCarney singled, coming in on Clancy's double. Kirn struck out. Three runs, four hits, one error.

De Laval—Dugan flied out to Collins. Burgoine struck out, and Collins assisted Phelan in putting Barrie out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second Innings.

Murray was hit by Prest; Nicholson's fly went to Barrie; Cherrett bunted safely; Heenan struck out, and Phelan was thrown out at first. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Rose, Cavanah and Neary all banged the ball, and the credit for catching the flies goes to Cherrett, Phelan and McCarney. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Third Innings.

Collins, McCarney and Clancy flied out in succession to Legon, Burgoine and Neary. No runs, no hits and no errors.

Legon started with a double; Fitzgerald fanned. Prest went out at first, Legon scoring on Murray's error. Dugan hit to Cherrett with the inevitable result. One run, one hit, one error.

Fourth Innings.

Kirn walked, Murray singled and Nicholson planned for a sacrifice but made first. Singles by Cherrett and Heenan drove three runs in. Phelan sacrificed. Cherrett stole home and Heenan came in on Dugan's misplay. Collins walked. McCarney was out at first, and Clancy flied to Cavanah. Five runs, three hits, three errors.

Burgoine was hit by pitcher, and Legon took his place on first. Cherrett missed a chance to get him at second, but got Barrie's fly. Rose lived on a fielder's choice, and he and scored on a wild pitch and a passed ball. Cavanah's foul tip went to the catcher. Neary walked, and Legon was thrown out at first. Two runs, no hits, one error.

GOVERNMENT SELECTS REFEREE FOR WILLARD-DEMPSEY BATTLE

Tex. Rickard Leaves Matter to Army, Navy and Civilian Board to Control Boxing—Philadelphia Newspaper Man Chosen.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Philadelphia, June 11.—The selection of Wm. Rocop, sporting editor of the Philadelphia Public Leader, as referee for the heavyweight championship fight between Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey in Toledo on July 4th, was announced early today by Major A. J. Drexel Biddle. Major Biddle, as president of the Army, Navy and Civilian Board of Boxing Control, was requested by Tex Rickard, promoter of the fight, to name the referee.

Himself a fight promoter and former amateur boxing champion, Mr. Rocap has for many years been a close follower of both professional and amateur boxing. He has refereed a number of important matches, the most recent one being between Kid Williams and Pete Hermann in New Orleans. He is president of the National Athletic Club of thi scity. 8T8 letic Club of this city.

The approval of Tex Rickard's action in requesting the Army, Navy and Civilian Board of Boxing Control to select the referee was voiced by the sporting authorities and others interested in the Independence Day match. All agreed that Rickard, the promoter of the contest, had made a move to place boxing on higher plane than it ever enjoyed before.

Sporting Gossip

A punch to the jaw has won more heavyweight championship battles than any other variety of blow. When Jim Jeffries took the crown from the bald pate of Bob Fitzsimmons in the eleventh round at Coney Island, just twenty years ago today, it was a right swing to the jaw that turned the trick. Ruby Robert had won the title from Corbett with awful punches to the jaw and stomach followed by a right to the heart and a left to the solar plexus. Corbett dropped John L. Sullivan for the count with a succession of stiff punches to the jaw and face. The Old Roman acquired the title by knocking out Paddy Ryan with a terrible right swing to the jaw. Jem Mace won most of his battles with punches to the jaw, face and neck. Tom Sayers won the championship from Perry, the Tipton Slasher, with blows to the jaw. Tom King nearly killed John C. Hennan with punches to the face and jaw.

Jack Johnson won a majority of his bouts with a right uppercut to the chin, but he depended upon punches to the stomach to wear his opponent down. Indeed, that has been the favorite of all heavyweights. Merciless battering of the body is the preliminary to the knockout punch to the jaw in most championship battles.

The story of the Fitz-Jeffries bout of twenty years ago illustrates this point. The account by rounds contains such items as these: "Jeff landed on stomach," "Jeff put right to body," "Jeff landed on stomach." Then in the final inning, Jeff landed two stiff ones to the stomach, and Fitz, groggy, left his jaw unprotected against the terrible right swing that sent him down and out.

Kid McCoy, one of the cleverest fighters in ring history, depended on his famous "corkscrew" blow for the jaw to win his knockouts, but it was his liver punch that wore his opponents down. McCoy's liver punch was one of the most dangerous ever invented, although it was the more spectacular corkscrew that got the applause.

What is Indurated Fibreware?
EDDY'S Indurated Fibreware is wood without any of the drawbacks which are commonly associated with wooden household utensils. It is made in one piece without joints or hoops, it will not splinter, will not fall to pieces if dropped, and is impervious to taints and odors. And with all those qualities it has all the lightness and the resiliency of wood.
Eddy's Indurated Fibreware
Washtubs, Pails, Butter Tubs, etc.
are made from wood-pulp, ground so as to preserve the long fibres intact. It is moulded to the required shape, in a single piece, under tremendous hydraulic pressure. This welds the fibres into a homogeneous mass, stronger in texture than the original wood itself.
The moulds are then dipped in oil, put into huge ovens, and baked for hours with intense heat. This produces a hard, glazed surface, which is impenetrable to liquids, and which effectively wards off every outside taint.
The next time you buy a washtub, a milk pail, a household pail or butter tub, ask for Eddy's Indurated Fibreware. You will find it much easier to lift, much easier to keep clean, and much more economical than the ordinary wooden or metal container.

RUSSELL-TOWNSEND CO. ARE SATISFIED

TO ACCEPT CONTRACT FOR BRIDGE WITH RIDER ATTACHED.

Many citizens are anxious to know whether or not the Russel-Townsend Company will agree to the rider attached to the acceptance of their tender for the new bridge by the Board of Works. This rider provides that the contractors shall guarantee Council against personal liability by reason of the bridge costing more to construct than the city is authorized to spend.

All doubt on this subject is removed by the report the city clerk brings back from Toronto. When in the Queen City yesterday he acquainted the Russell-Townsend firm with the latest move by the Board of Works in this connetion, and drew attention to the rider attached. Mr. Armstrong saw two members of the firm and both expressed their satisfaction with the resolution accepting their tender, and assured the city clerk that the "guarantee rider" was quite satisfactory to them.

57TH CHAPTER'S GARDEN PARTY

The 57th Chapter, I. O. D. E., gave a garden party yesterday afternoon and evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Eastwood, George St. The spacious grounds were very tastefully decorated with flags and lanterns, and the many booths scattered over the lawn gave the place a very festive air.

Mrs. Gordon Hall took the tickets at the gate. The cake and ice cream booth was in charge of Mrs. Mason and Mrs. Cotterill, and lemonade, iced tea and other cool drinks were served by Mrs. Amos and Mrs. Clegg. At the candy booth Miss M. Rush and Mrs. Gillespie were in charge. Mrs. Comstock and Mrs. R. Neill directed the sale of flowers, while the fishpond was presided over by Mrs. Turner, Mrs. Sharp and Mrs. Walker. Dr. Lillian Walker was a very convincing fortune teller and was established in a neat little tent at one corner of the grounds. Under the shade trees of the east lawn a large number enjoyed a game of bridge, which was in charge of Mrs. Widdifield. Mrs J. H. Eastwood was the convenor of the whole affair and she and her committees deserve great credit for the splendid manner in which everything was arranged.

In the afternoon the weather was perfect, and a splendid crowd gathered to enjoy themselves and to taste the good things at the various booths. The ladies looked forward to a splendid evening, but, alas! who can depend on such a changeable force as the weather? About 7 o'clock the rain began to come down, and it rained steadily until almost 9. By the time it had cleared off people had made their plans for spending their evening, and it was a very small number who found their way through the gate.

The 57th Band, led by Mr. Gliddon, arrived on the grounds in good time in spite of the weather, and furnished a good program all evening. Had it not rained the evening would have been a great success as the ladies had everything perfectly arranged, and it is hoped that when this organization gives another fete, the weather will be more favorable.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

DRUMMOND—RUSH

Miss Helen Dagman, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Rush, 357 Stewart street, was united in marriage this morning with Mr. Arthur Price Drummond, of Utica, New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Drummond Montreal. The ceremony was performed at All Saints Church at 11 a.m. by the rector, Rev. R. B. Grobb.

Miss Gertude E. Rush, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid while the groom was supported by his brother, Mr George E. A. Drummond. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Sidney Rush, of Toronto. The ushers were Mr. John Brightman and Mr. Herbert Rush.

Mrs. Flowers, organist of the church, played the wedding march and Mr. George Chandler sang "Oh Promise Me."

The bride's costume was sand colored with navy trimmings and hat to match. The bridesmaid wore a rose colored costume with slate blue trimmings. The bride wore a corsage bouquet of sweetheart roses and lillies-of-the-valley and the bridesmaid one of ophelia roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Drummond, who received many beautiful and useful gifts, left on the 11.59 train for Montreal. From that city they will motor to New York City, thence to Utica where they will reside.

HENDRY—STEWART

The marriage of Luella, daughter of Mrs. J. Stewart of Cavan Township, near Fraserville, and Mr. Thomas Hendry of Peterboro was solemnized at her mother's home, at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, June 10th and was witnessed by thirty of their immediate relatives who had come from Hastings, Oshawa, Millbrook and Peterborough for the occasion. The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. M. W. Leigh, B. A. of Fraserville and the bride's sister, Edna, played the wedding march.

The bride, who was given away by her brother, Richard was becomingly attired in a gown of white crepe de chine with ornamentation in gold and carried a bouquet of white carnations. She was assisted by her sister Florence who wore a charming pink gown and the groom was assisted by his brother, Robert.

After the ceremony and congratulations a most appetising supper was served in the dining room fittingly decorated in pink and white. Many useful and beautiful presents were left for the happy couple as souvenirs and expressions of good will. After a few hours spent in music and singing Mr. and Mrs. Hendry motored to Peterborough where they will reside.

Mr. Danny Simons, the well-known vaudeville artist, is visiting friends in the city and is stopping at his home, 211 Rubidge street. Mr. Simons has just completed a tour of the Southern States with the Lowes circuit. Everybody is glad to see Danny home again.

Mrs Edgar Burnham, Weller St., and Miss Burnham, Millbrook, are in Whitby attending the graduating exercises, Miss Pearl Burnham being one of the graduates of the Ontario Ladies' College.

BIG CONTRACTS FOR LOCAL MEN

R. SHEEHY AND SONS AND JOHN CARROLL GET OUTSIDE PAVING.

R. Sheehy & Sons have been awarded a big contract for concrete street paving at Brantford. Mr. Sheey and Mr. John Carroll have also secured the contract for concrete street paving in Woodstock.

Both are large undertakings and the success of the local contractors in securing the work speaks well for their reputation and their enterprise. Mr. Sheehy especially has put the name of Peterborough all over the map of the Province by his building and other operations.

The work has been already started in Woodstock, and the Brantford paving will begin immediately.

COURT OF REVISION DID NOT MEET

ONLY ONE MEMBER, MR. W. F. JOHNSTON, WAS PRESENT—MEETS TONIGHT.

A sitting of the Court of Revision did not materialize last evening, as advertised, but one member of the court, W. F. Johnston being present. The absent members were Bernard R. Morrow and James Finnie and Mr. Johnston adjourned the sitting till tonight at 7.30.

There are but a few insignificant appeals on the docket.

each manifestation of this social disorder. The best way in his opinion to deal with it was to rely on the sound, common-sense of each individual in the community. He also expressed his approval of the hearty manner in which they had adopted his views concerning the erection of suitable memorials for the fallen heroes. There was no doubt that when public sentiment was once stirred up on this subject that something tangible and worthy of the citizens of Peterborough and its vicinity would soon be done.

ALLIES MAY RESUME WAR ON HUNS

Money Expended On Private Cars

FIXTURES THAT BROUGHT COST OF "ROLEEN" TO OVER $40,000.

Ottawa, June 12.—Although the "Cornwall" and "York," private cars built for the use of the Governor-General, only cost, jointly, $35,000 when built in 1906, Liberal members of the Public Accounts Committee elicited from witnesses that for the private car "Roleen," owned by the Department of Militia and Defence, $9,800 was paid through Mr. D. B. Hanna, President of the Canadian Northern, in Chicago in 1913, $1,200 for repairs shortly afterwards, and 727,843.46 in 1916 with the war on and the Government preaching economy from the very housetops.

The committee scanned interestedly the various items in the Grand Trunk's bill for doing the repairs. One item was for fifteen per cent profit on all material employed, and another for ten per cent. on all labor engaged in the work. So that the Minister might know how fast he travelled there was $364.51 for a speed recorder, $1,211 for 8,732 feet of mahogany, $212 for a Wilton carpet, $212 for green leather upholstering, $112 for nickel basins, $120 for brass beds, and, very important, a couple of hundred for a goodly amount of felt to deaden the sound.

The chief questioners who kept persistently after Col. C. F. Winters, Assistant to the Adjutant-General, and Mr. W. V. Cope, Controller of the Department of Railways and Canals, were Mr. Jacobs of Montreal and Mr. Duncan Ross of Middlesex. Under an inquisition with regard to who paid for provisions consumed on trips in the ten private cars used by Ministers Mr. Cope stated that it was quite correct, as stated in a recent return of the Government, that these were arranged for and paid for by the Minister requisitioning the car. He admitted, however, that each Minister would charge this up against his own department for travelling expenses.

"This second-hand car," commented Mr. Ross, "has cost the Government approximately $40,000. No wonder unrest and dissatisfaction grow daily in the face of spectacles such as this."

HUNGARIAN GOVERNMENT DEFIES ORDER OF ALLIES

Reply of Foreign Minister, Who Was Told to Cease Hostilities or Take the Consequences, Causes Uneasiness in Peace Conference Circles—British Said to be Fighting at Petrograd

Paris, June 12.—While the text of the reply of Bela Kun, Foreign Minister of the Hungarian Soviet Government to the Telegram from M. Clemenceau, President of the Peace Conference, demanding that he cease hostilities against the Czecho-Slovaks or suffer the consequences, has not been published in Paris, it is apparently unsatisfactory. Official denial is made of Bela Kun's statement that he had been invited to the Peace Conference.

Military reverses suffered by Admiral Kolchak's troops south eastern Russia have caused some uneasiness in Conference circles. The strengthening of the Belshovik holding Moscow, of the interruption of the advance of Esthonians against Petrograd is also a source of uneasiness.

The Bolshevik peril, which was apparently on the decline a few weeks ago is again commanding the attention of the delegates here. No effort is being made to conceal the menace that the Hungarian Bolshevik offer to Poland as well as to Czecho-Slovakia.

Part of the British troops which recently arrived at Murmansk are participating in operations against Petrograd according to reports from Archangel. They are now near Petrogavodsk.

Bolshevism and the discussion of the position of Bela Kun, foreign minister of the Hungarian Soviet government figure prominently in the deliberations of both the Council of Four and the Council of Foreign Ministers today.

The Turkish Peace Delegation which reached Toulon yesterday arrived here this morning to get Turkish peace terms. There was no official reception.

It is stated today that the allied reply to the German counter proposals will be ready by Saturday night, and that it has been definitely decided on that five days only will be allowed the Germans to come to a decision about signing the treaty, which will not be further modified.

JAMES SIMPSON REFUSED TO VOTE ON PROHIBITION

But Three Canadian Delegates Were in Favor of Beer and Wine

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, June 12.—Three out of four Canadian delegates to the American Federation of Labor convention at Atlantic City voted with the majority of the United States delegates in favor of beer and wine licenses as against total prohibition, according to a special despatch to The Toronto Star. Kingston, Ottawa and Montreal represented respectively by Messrs. Noble, Draper and Franco, all voted for wine and beer. The Toronto delegate, James Simpson, who is a prominent prohibitionist did not record his vote. He explained that he considered it an issue relating solely to the action of the United States Congress, and if he had cast his vote it would have been for prohibition which was contrary to the stand of the Toronto Trades and Labor Council which he represented.

ALLIED GENERALS TALK OF RENEWING WAR ON ENEMY

Two Conferences Held Yesterday With French Premier—Little Hope That German Delegates Will Sign Treaty of Peace.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Marshal Foch and General Weygand had two conferences yesterday with Premier Clemenceau at which they discussed the immediate resumption of hostilities and a concerted advance by the Allies, says Marcel Hutin in the Echo de Paris. The general opinion is, the writer adds, that Count von Brockdorff Rantzau has committed himself too far to be able to sign the treaty. It is also believed that the Scheidemann ministry will be swept away to make room for a ministry of moderate independent socialists who will be disposed to accept allied conditions about July 1.

BRIDGE QUESTION AGAIN TONIGHT

BOARD OF WORKS EXPECTS WRITTEN ACCEPTANCE OF CONSTRUCTION CONTRACT.

The city's Board of Works will meet tonight and again take up the proposed high-level bridge question. It is expected that a written acceptance by the Russell-Townsend Co. of the bridge contract will be to hand, in which event no time will be lost in expediting contract details and arranging for an early start on the work—unless the customary hitch again arises.

MANUFACTURERS ARE BEST FRIEND LABOR EVER HAD

So Says Ex-President Bulman—R. P. Howard, of Montreal, New Head of C.M.A.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, June 12.—R. P. Howard of Montreal was today unanimously elected president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. W. J. Bulman, the retiring president, urged that Canadians should understand that the Canadian Manufacturers' Association was not selfish and not an enemy of Labor, but, on the other hand, one of the best friends the workers of Canada had. In Western Canada, agitators with half-baked economic ideals were influencing the country, and the sooner the Government places them where they belong the better for Canada.

Many resolutions were carried, including one endorsing the creation of a Canadian merchant marine, and against legislation that would place Canadian industries at a disadvantage in international competition.

Another resolution was in favor of legislation which would restore the tractor business to Canada and in favor of Imperial preference.

Another for the punishment of aliens, and another against the acquirement by the Government of any more railroads, were also adopted.

Dairymen Oppose Higher Milk Rate

AN INCREASE IS INEVITABLE IF NEW TARIFF TAKES EFFECT.

Ottawa, June 12.—There is danger of an increase in the prices of milk if the new tariff increasing the charge for the carriage of milk in baggage cars goes into effect, according to dairymen.

An application on behalf of the National Dairy Council and the Toronto board of trade for the suspension of various tariffs which would increase carriage rates on milk was heard by the Railway Commission, with Sir Henry Drayton in the chair.

The present rate is 15 cents per forty miles per can. The proposed increase will make the rate 17 cents for ten miles and two cents per can for every additional ten miles. Mr. T. Marshall, representing the Toronto board of trade, Mr. John Bingham, Ottawa Dairy Company, representing the Ottawa board of trade, and R. D. Hughes of the Farmers' Dairy, Toronto, spoke against the increase. Judgment was reserved.

Unveil Portrait Sir Oliver Mowat

WILL BE PRESENTED TO HIM FROM CONSTITUENTS IN OXFORD COUNTY.

Woodstock, June 12. — A notable event of the Historical Society's annual meeting, which opens here on June 16, will be the unveiling of the portrait of Sir Oliver Mowat Tuesday afternoon at the Court House. This portrait was presented to Sir Oliver many years ago by his followers in the House, and now his family is presenting it to the County of Oxford. Sir John M. Gibson, for many years a colleague of Sir Oliver, is expected to be the speaker of the occasion. Lieut.-Col. Mowat Biggar, eldest grandson of the renowned leader, who has recently returned from Paris, where he was one of the English secretaries of the Peace Conference, will unveil the portrait.

AGENTS WORK THE LOCAL FARMER

FORM OF LOTTERY RUN IN CONNECTION WITH ENLARGED PHOTOGRAPHS.

A young man in Toronto answered an advertisement for help wanted, and was engaged by a concern calling itself the Chicago Portrait Company. With others, he was sent out to Peterborough County to canvass the farmers for orders for enlarging photographs. The agents worked in the vicinity of Lakefield, but the young man in question quit after the first day, having become convinced that the business was not exactly on the square.

The scheme seems to have been in the nature of a lottery. The prospective customer drew a slip from an envelope, and the price he was required to pay for the enlargement of a photograph depended upon whether he drew a blank or a coupon. The price to some unlucky patrons ran as high as $30.

Farmers of Peterborough as well as residents of the city are warned against the operations of these oily agents.

Stick To Post To Save The Peopl

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Weimar, June 12.—"We are still in office and we will stick, because it is our duty to save the German people," Gustavo Noske, minister of defence, declared at a meeting today of the Majority Socialist party.

BRANTFORD MEMBER EAGER FOR A GENERAL ELECTION

W. F. Cockshutt, High Priest of Protection, Says the Battle Will Be Fought on Trade Question and He Accepts the Issue—Mr. Calder Will Stay With the Present Unionist Government

Ottawa, June 12.—A thick smoke screen was thrown out during the debate on the budget by W. F. Cockshutt of Brantford. The "high priest of protection" almost frothed at the mouth in developing his attack on the Budget. He shouted at the top of his voice his violent denunciation of Sir Thomas White for "selling out" to the Western free traders, and came out boldly for a general election.

"I, for one, am ready for a showdown," he exclaimed, "and in my judgment we should go to the country. (Opposition applause.) I am glad to see my hon. friends shouting 'hooray' for the fray. It is coming. It is going to be on the question of free trade or protection, and I am ready to put on my armor." He condemned Sir Thomas White, Sir Robert Borden and Hon. Dr. Reid for departing from the protection policy upon which they were elected in 1911, adding that he had no confidence in White's proposed Tariff Commission.

Back to Party Lines.

"What are they going to hunt for? If they are hunting for heresy, I say, 'Every man to your tents, O Israel.'" (Roars of laughter.) He declared all were lining up along the old party lines, and a general election in the near future was inevitable. Speaking with fervor he amused the House for over an hour, and even grain growers applauded vigorously when he sat down.

Mr. Calder States Position.

The Minister of Immigration, whose speech was inclined to be sarcastic in spots, made the thrust at the Opposition that they were not elected to amend the Tariff Bill, but to oppose conscription. Going on, he said: "The time has arrived when we must decide whether the existing Administration must make way for some other. We must decide whether the Government is to be allowed to 'carry on.' The tariff proposals now are merely tentative or temporary, and I am not committing myself to these principles at all. If I desired to do the popular thing I would follow the course of the member for Marquette (Mr. Crerar) and make a hero of myself. (Applause and laughter.) I don't intend to do so, because I do not think it is right. (Applause.) Threats have been held over my head as to what would happen to me if I didn't stand for tariff reduction, but I turned a deaf ear to them and I intend to stay with my task until demobilization is completed and the soldiers are returned."

If Crisis, Government to Resign.

If a crisis was precipitated by the defection of the Liberal Unionists the Prime Minister would resign and the Governor-General might call upon Mr. D. D. McKenzie, the acting Leader of the Opposition, to form a Government. (Cries of "Oh, Oh," from Tory members.) Was that what the Budget critics wanted? (Appause.) Some were thinking of nomination meetings which were shortly to take place. What Canada needed was men who would forget themselves for the time being and do what was right in the interests of the country.

BROKER OPERATCRS TO JOIN STRIKE

OVER THREE THOUSAND READY TO QUIT IN NEW YORK.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, June 2.—In face of statements by officials of the Commercial Telegraph companies that the nation wide strike of the operators had failed S. J. Konenkamp, International President of the Commercial Telegrapher's Union announced that assurance had been given that the New York broker operators, some 3500 strong, would join the strike.

COMMUNISTS TO RULE AUSTRIA

SITUATION IN THAT COUNTRY CONSIDERED GRAVE IN LONDON CIRCLES.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, June 12.—The Communist Government will be proclaimed in Austria on Sunday with the promise of success, according to information in Government circles here. It is known that about forty per cent. of the Austrian army is Bolshevik. Austrian Communists are expected to align themselves quickly with the Hungarian Communists, whose recent military successes are considered to have strengthened them. The Austrian-Hungarian situation is viewed here as decidedly serious.

CHINAMAN HAS BOUGHT AIRPLANE

WILL USE MACHINE IN OVERSEEING LAUNDRIES AND RESTAURANTS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, Ont., June 12.—Harry Chew, Chinese, proprietor of the Paris Cafe, is buying an aeroplane. His Oriental heart has been won by the great air game. Stories of fierce battles among the clouds so aroused his spirit of adventure that he twice tried to get into the air force. Having failed in this, he will now satisfy his desire for the altitudes in the less dangerous pursuits of peace.

But it is not all personal glory or adventure. Chew has business foresight, and none denies his initiative. He has restaurants in Galt and Guelph as well as in Paris, and thinks the business might be better with personal supervision. So one of these days a Celestial will arrive from the sky in Guelph or Galt—and the menu will be better. He is negotiating with F. G. Ericson, Toronto, for a machine.

But why should he retain the name Chew now? Let him make it Hop Wing or Wing Hop.

CRITICISM OF MILITARY OFFICERS IS NOT FAIR

Sergt.-Major Gamey, Home From Overseas, Relates Some of His Most Exciting Experiences at the Front.

There was no music, no fan-fare, no demonstration of any kind whatever when one of Peterborough's returned veterans, Sergt.-Major J. C. Gamey, alighted from the train last Monday evening.

This seeming lack of recognition was due to the fact that Sergt.-Major Gamey's arrival was altogether unexpected, even the members of his family being unaware of his coming. Sergt.-Major Gamey went over with the 247th (Peterborough) Battalion and has been in the thick of some of the most momentous battles of the war. In September last he was the recipient of a Military Medal as a recognition of the unselfish heroism of the service he rendered. One can easily understand why it is that these men who have lived under the black shadow for so long should dislike any reference to the realities of the life they have lived through and Sergeant Gamey is no exception to the rule. As is generally the case, those who have endured most speak least of it. However, this veteran narrates a few of his remarkable experiences.

One of the most gratifying scenes in the big drama of the war took place after the battle of Cambrai last October at the commencement of the big advance toward Valenciennes and Mons. While chasing Fritz across the country the Allies passed through villages which the enemy had taken at the beginning of the war. The demonstration on the part of the inhabitants of those places was pathetic, and the sad part of it is that with a large number the continued oppression has robbed them of reason and they will never come back to normal existence.

Sergeant Gamey was with the 54th Kootenay Battalion which was tendered an official reception at Denain on October 22 last. Owing to the presence of the Prince of Wales the event took the form of a royal reception, despite the fact that Denain was under shell fire all the time.

Speaking of the critical attitude assumed by a large number of Canadians towards the actions of certain military leaders, Sergeant Gamey holds that any form of criticism is unfair. Persons who have not been actually on the spot have no idea of the maze of difficult circumstances attending every one of those so-called blunders.

THE FARMER'S TAXES.

IT IS TO BE EITHER direct or indirect taxation, because the government of the country cannot be carried on without revenue. Which of these systems does the farmer prefer?

The farmer buys a binder or some other of the more costly agricultural implements, say once in ten years. With care they will last even longer than this. Even if the tariff increases the cost a trifle, which is by no means a certainty, a small tax imposed once in ten years is a light burden compared with a direct tax levied with annual regularity.

UNION GOVERNMENT TOTTERING.

>
> "The proposals of the Finance Minister are unsatisfactory. They offer no curb against extravagance. They utterly fail to take any adequate steps to relieve the present high cost of living. They give no definite promise of tariff revision downwards.
>
> "That to relieve the present situation the tariff should be so framed as to free the food of the people and the machinery used in the development of the natural resources of Canada, together with the raw materials entering into the manufacture thereof;
>
> "To take off, or substantially reduce, as speedily as may be expedient and just to all interested, the duties upon all other necessaries of life;
>
> "Also, the reciprocal offer of trade with the United States should be accepted, and a general downward revision of the tariff undertaken forthwith in conformity with the principle herein enunciated."

The above is the text of the amendment to the budget moved in Parliament by A. R. McMaster and seconded by Dr. J. R. Molloy, each of whom represents a Quebec constituency. The amendment, which is now being debated in the House, is likely to carry, and its adoption will amount to a vote of want of confidence in the Government. That being the case, the end of the Union Government is in sight. Canada is not far from a general Federal election with the party alignment of former years.

The coming election will be one fought with the tariff as the issue. The East will be arrayed against the West, and the Maritime Provinces, British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec are almost certain to be found in a defensive alliance to save themselves from utter financial ruin.

The two Liberals from Quebec who have sponsored the amendment which is likely to accomplish the overthrow of the Government have no doubt decided upon their present course with the primary object of hastening the end, of bringing matters to a head. Their amendment amounts to an endorsation of the Reciprocity Pact of 1911, which proved so disastrous to their party. There has been during the past seven years no revulsion of public sentiment sufficient to warrant such action. The people of Canada, with the possible exception of the three prairie provinces, are no more in favor of reciprocity today than they were in 1911. This clamor for free trade exists only in a limited section of the Dominion, and even in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta the demand is not unanimous. The cities of the West are as set in their opposition to this suicidal policy as are any of the urban centres of Ontario. Even the farmers on the prairies are not in accord on the trade question. It is the extremists whose views are featured in the party press, which seeks to give the impression that there is a unanimous demand for the removal of all trade restrictions.

The farmer who confines all his energies to the raising of wheat, whose market is in Europe, may prosper, regardless of tariff, but the cities of the West will never progress, no industries will be developed, unless the tariff is maintained. The up-to-date farmer who can see far enough ahead to realize that the one-crop system of agriculture will eventually impoverish the most fertile soil on earth, knows that mixed farming is the land owner's one hope for permanent prosperity. Mixed farming can be carried on with profit only when there is a home market. There can be no home market unless there are prosperous cities, and the latter is an impossibility without manufactories that are protected by the tariff. The same fiscal policy that built up Ontario [illegible] to the prosperity of the West.

In the event of an election, with the tariff as an issue, no one doubts for a moment the result in Ontario. Eight years ago this province elected only thirteen—ominous number—champions of the Reciprocity Pact, and the sentiment of the people remains practically unchanged, in spite of all these movements to organise fly-by-night parties and factions. It will be every man to his tent when the call goes out for an election, and the temporary structures that have been in process of building for the past several months will be deserted for the old strongholds.

Quebec, as a matter of self-protection, with all issues save the tariff forced into the background, will be lined up with Ontario. Free trade would render the timber of British Columbia, the province's one asset, of little value. The Maritime Provinces are usually so evenly divided as to be no factor in a contest. The three wheat-growing provinces will carry the free trade standard alone, with division even in the ranks of the electors of that section.

Union Government was elected for a specific purpose. That purpose was accomplished, and to that extent the administrative experiment was justified. But the end in sight having been attained, the mission of Unionism was completed. Disintegration was sure to show itself once the war was over and the Liberal-Unionists were freed from their obligations to confine themselves to the immediate task in hand and abstain from all partisan manoeuvring. There can be nothing stable in a Government that contains an element intent on making mischief in the household, an element whose chief aim is to overthrow the party that is really in control. The discordant faction in the present administration has been at work ever since the armistice was signed. The partisan hand has been shown.

COMPLAIN OF THE LAWYERS.

FARMERS WHO ARE forced to attend the present session of the County Court, either as jurors or witnesses, are naturally anxious to be at home in this one of the busiest seasons of the year on the farm. They are public spirited enough to render the State a service cheerfully, but they do object to unnecessary delay.

These farmers complain that the lawyers engaged in the various cases appear to have no idea of the value of time, but consume hour after hour in arguing points and disputing questions that to the uninitiated at least appear trivial. Even the judicial patience, too, is taxed and only yesterday Judge Huycke is reported as making a sarcastic allusion to the time devoted to a certain case that threatened to extend itself to an indefinite length.

Owing to the lateness of the season the farmer is behind with his work, and the question of food production is still entitled to be regarded as the paramount issue.

WHERE HOME RULE SUCCEEDED.

THE MAN WHO OWNS his own home will naturally take more pride in his surroundings than does the man who rents his domicile from another. The building of the owner is assured of better care. Improvements are made from time to time, and every member of the family is likely to participate in this proprietory interest.

Nations and races are like individuals. The gift of self-determination is prized by all alike. The man who can have a say in the making and unmaking of his government is a better citizen than the serf who has nothing to do with the shaping of his own destiny.

Cuba, while a vassal of Spain, was the victim of foreign spoliation. The island was bled white of its resources by the alien owners. A native was a slave without even the safeguard of property rights which protected the negro when in bondage in the Southern States. A beneficent neighboring power freed Cuba from Spanish domination and granted the island its independence instead of holding it as a vassal. The result of this experiment has been most gratifying and should stand out as an object lesson to the world, especially to those nations that have such problems on their hands.

Cuba is now the richest country in the world. Its trade expansion has eclipsed anything on the records, and this vast development has been accomplished in the short space of two decades, that, too, in spite of the contention heard at the beginning that the natives of that country were not equal to the task of self-government. Races and individuals are never able to display the best that is in them if the opportunity to do so is denied them. What Cuba has done could beyond all question be accomplished by other races now warring among themselves and with other powers over their destiny.

THE MENANCE OF THE ALIENS

(New York Times)

While the bomb explosions are the immediate cause of the measures introduced into the Senate last week prohibiting immigration for 5 years, imposing severer restrictions upon aliens, excluding alien anarchists, and so on, the general temper of the country has for some years been turning away from the old, generous, careless or too hopeful view of growth by immigration. Our hospitality has been abused so often, the mass of unassimilated and perhaps of unassimilable foreign populations is so great, that the sentimental notion of America as "the asylum of the oppressed" has disappeared in the alarmed instinct of self preservation.

When millions of the strangers within our gates remain ignorant of our language, get from foreign-language newspapers and periodicals their news and opinions, news often misleading and opinions in many cases stirring the reader to revolution; when in twenty or thirty tongues these foreign colonies are incited to treason, and the overthrow of the Government, of the economic and social system, is preached to them as a duty and necessity, how can Americans help feeling that immigration should be restricted or stopped until the Americanization of those already here has made more progress? Of the second generation good hope is entertained, though that may be vitiated in part by the influences of the imported gospel of hate.

It is true that many aliens are going back to Europe. That the country has owed much to alien labor, and that a prohibition of immigration for a time might produce a scarcity of labor; but no economic or financial consideration has any standing in comparison with the imperative patriotic need of guarding against the enemies of order and the emissaries of destruction. In spite of precautions, these revolutionaries get in. The experience of Canada seems to show that the uttermost care cannot exclude them. If that be the case, it will be necessary to shut the gates. There are all too many Bolsheviki and bourgeoi-exterminators here now. We have our little Europes and Asias to make American, if it can be done; to be made harmless, anyway. These alien communities isolated, sullen, or hostile, fed on falsehoods, are a danger that the United States canont afford to neglect or minimize. Until much progress in the work of assimiliation has been done, measures of exclusion will have strong support.

Of the natural good-will of these people it would be vain to doubt; but so long as their minds cannot be reached by Americans, so long as in their various languages the agents of revolution, the workers for proletarian autocracy, are the directors of their opinions so long must they be inaccessible to Americanism, and potential or actual perils to the State.

Screened by a false theory of freedom of speech and of the press, a considerable part of the foreign language press is poisoning the minds of these foreigners, lying foully about the United States, urging the overturn of its institutions. "Let us openly fight for what we want," says Forward. "The Russian workmen have got rid of the bourgeoise," the Ukranians here are told by their New York organ, "and we will get rid of them tomorrow." Multitudes of the ignorant, shut out from American life, are played upon, excited by these voices in their own language. Americanize them, but don't interfere with the liberty of the press, cry of the Americans most sympathetic to the anarchic doctrines. Freedom to destroy freedom, the Constitution invoked to shelter its bitterest foes. While the revolutionists are free to sway their foreign subjects, how much chance is there of Americanizing them?

Where Home Rule Has Succeeded

(New York Commercial)

The story of Cuba's progress since it gained its freedom, in 1898, reads like a romance and must make the heart of every American glow with a feeling of pride and satisfaction as he recalls the generous and unselfish part played by the United States in guaranteeing the independence of the Island and, since, in helping it develop its wonderful resources.

In the old days under Spanish rule Cuba's industry was, as every one knows, stagnant: its factories were idle; many thousands of the natives were regularly on the verge of starvation, and the island was well on the easy road to bankruptcy. What a contrast today! In 1917 Cuba did a combined export and import business of $555,063,453, or a per capita of $223, compared with $88 a person in the United States.

It is the custom for people in all lands to marvel at the progress of Japan, but its foreign trade of $1,500,000,000 or $25 per capita, compares very unfavorably with Cuba, which, in proportion to population, is the richest country in the world. Many people will be surprised to hear that the island is the greatest market for its size in the New World and that it has made in two decades the progress ordinarily gained in a century. Living appears to be very high on the island, at least 25 per cent higher than in the United States but the Cubans are not apparently greatly worried over the outlook, as they are reported to be buying every thing in sight and their prosperity is greatly on the increase.

Under the reciprocity treaty of 1902 duties on agricultural and manufactured products in trade both ways between the United States and Cuba are reduced from 20 to 40 per cent. This affects Cuba's exports of sugar, but it gives the United States an advantage over other countries of 25 per cent on machinery ships, fish and pottery; 30 per cent on butter, chemical products, glass and fibre products and 40 per cent on all manufactures of cotton.

One would be justified in assuming such liberal tariff concessions would enable the United States to practically monopolize the trade of Cuba but other nations appear to control about $20,000,000 worth of the island's business. This state of affairs is attributable to the failure of the American manufacturers to pay careful attention to the requirements of the Cuban importer, whose knowledge of the demands of Cuban trade always guides the European exporter. Obviously, if American exporters desire to increase their trade with and strengthen their position in the island they will have to improve their methods or they will find themselves in the rear when the great exporting nations of Europe are in the harness of trade once again.

NORTH DUMMER

North Dummer, June 12.—On Thursday afternoon a meeting of the members of the Warsaw and Union Auxiliaries was held at the home of Mrs. Richard Batten.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. (Rev.) D. R. Clare, president of Warsaw W. M. S. After the prayer and scripture lesson business was continued and [illegible] followed by the roll [illegible] the newly organized [illegible] auxiliary was asked to give [illegible] Town which resulted in [illegible] useful information being given of work done in the different missionary fields.

Several musical selections and readings added much to the interest and pleasure of all present.

The meeting was dismissed by the pastor, Rev. D.R. Clare. The collection amounted to $4.70.

The hostess then invited the 40 guests present to the dining room for refreshments, which consisted of tea, sandwiches cake and ice cream.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Northey and Master Clifford of Young's Point and Clara Payne motored to Dartford recently to visit Mr. and Mrs. Warren Atkinson.

OPPOSE DAYLIGHT SAVING.

A. F. of L. in Conventions Favors Repeal of Measure.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 12.—A resolution protesting against repeal by Congress of the daylight saving law was defeated at Tuesday's session of the annual conference of the A. F. of L.

WEEPING ECZEMA SOON RELIEVED

A Perfect Treatment For This Distressing Complaint

WASING, ONT.

"I had an attack of Weeping Eczema; so bad that my clothes would be wet through at times.

For four months, I suffered terribly. I could get no relief until I tried 'Fruit-a-tives and 'Sootha Salva. The first treatment gave me relief.

Altogether, I have used three boxes of 'Sootha Salva' and two of 'Fruit-a-tives', and am entirely well"
G. W. HALL.

Both these sterling remedies are sold by dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

"Fruit-a-tives" is also put up in a trial size which sells for 25c.

WIT AND WISDOM

Judge: "So you claim that the defendant hit you with malice aforethought?"

Complainant (suspiciously): "It's no good tryin' to make me contradict myself, guv'nor. I said he hit me with a hammer, and that I stick to through thick and thin."

"There's only one good thing about that young puppy that came to see you last night," said the irascible father, "and that is he's healthy."

"I'm surprised to hear you admit that much," replied the dutiful daughter.

"I wouldn't except for the fact that last night I heard you say, 'Oh George, how cold your nose is!'"

Top o' the Morning.

Smell of the woods in the morning;
The sun shines gold through the trees,
And the heavens are filled with music
From the lips of the wide-eyed breeze.

A swim in the laughing lake?
Be quick! There is breakfast to follow.
And there still is the fire to make.

I'm in! What a splash! Are you ready?
Who, who would lie lazy asleep
When all of the wide world is calling
With the lure of the lake blue and deep?

So come, that's the stuff, all together,
Swim, swim with a stroke true and straight
To the boat and the first back, the winner—
Great ginger! But swimming is great!

The first back the first one to breakfast!
....
Then the trail once again and the fun—
The day lies alluring before us,
And the morning is only begun!

FEMININE LOGIC

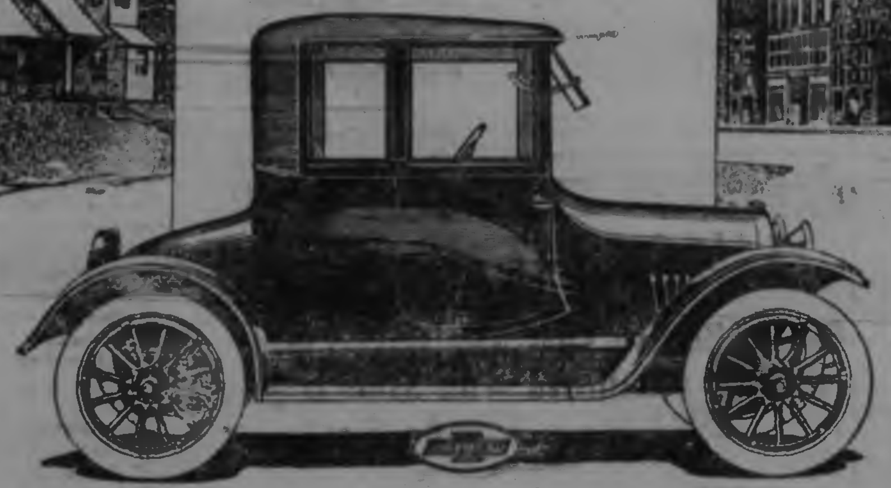
CHEVROLET

Important Annoucement To Motor Car Buyers

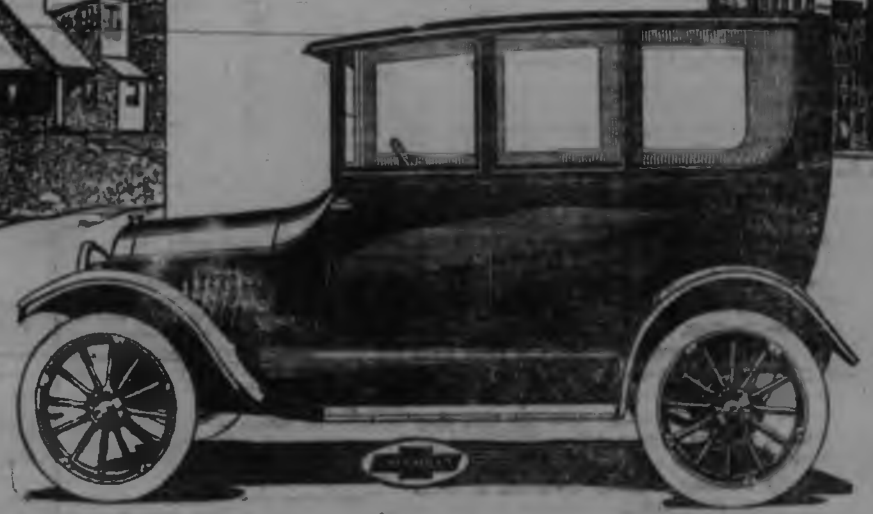
CHEVROLET
For Economical Transportation

The Chevrolet "Four-Ninety" Coupe represents more than is usual even these days in motor car efficiency. Its design lends itself to every purpose for which an automobile could possibly be used. In summer as an open roadster, in winter as a closed car, it meets the innumerable needs of the business or professional man with dependable efficiency and comfort in all seasons.



CHEVROLET
For Economical Transportation

The Chevrolet Sedan is not so high in price as to be above the average means. Neither is it so low in price as to lack the appearance and appointments which contribute so much to the enjoyment and pride of possession. It is a car that leaves nothing to be desired at a price that pleases. The body completely avoids the suggestion of an "added" top imparted by so many closed cars.



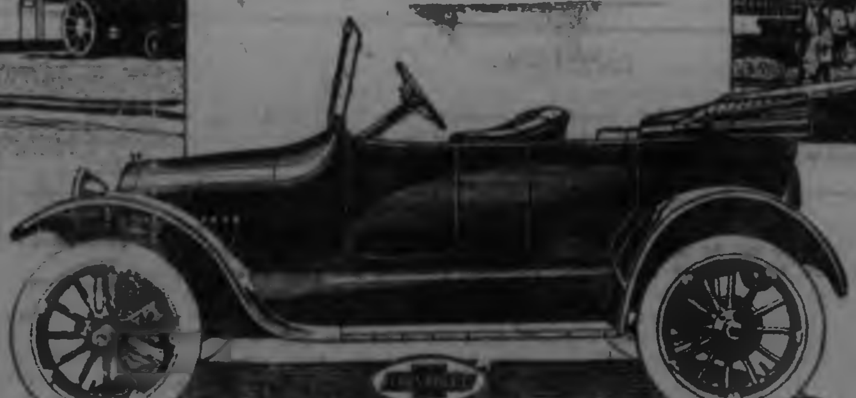
CHEVROLET
For Economical Transportation

A Chevrolet "Four-Ninety" Touring car is a profitable investment, for it yields substantial dividends in efficient service.

It is a safe investment, for the excellence of its construction protects its utility.

It is an attractive investment, for the body has a beauty and richness of finish quite unusual with cars of its price.

It is an economical investment, for its first cost is modest and its upkeep low.



CHEVROLET
For Economical Transportation

To inspect the "Four-Ninety" Roadster is to enjoy an appreciatoin of how much more your money will bring you in four-cylinde efficiency and economy.

And a demonstration of this car will satisfy you as to its wonderful power and easy-riding qualities. It will pay you to see this model and to know it better.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

Stoop shoulders, round back, uneven shoulders, narrow chest, relaxed or slouchy attitude, as the condition is variously known, may signify a spinal curvature, and for this reason every child or youth so afflicted should be examined by a physician who examines patients carefully, that is, stripped to the waist.

Mothers who do not appreciate the importance of trifles are likely to permit growing daughters to wear narrow, high heeled shoes, which impose upon them an attitude or posture like that of a tired flat footed person. Spring heels are the hygienic and sensible, that is, intelligent, equipment for girls' shoes, at least until the girls are through going to school. But if rouge, powder and corsets are essential to a schoolgirl's welfare, let her have the French heels and make a thorough job of it. Her future is not bright anyway.

Round shoulders are never outgrown. Unless proper physical training is applied early and faithfully the condition is sure to become fixed and the victim permanently deformed. Rarely is any mechanical support advisable; never, in fact, without competent medical supervision. The unwise application of braces often converts a curable fault into an incurable deformity.

Correct standing posture must be constantly practiced by the patient. This means feet parallel, four inches apart, toeing straight ahead, not outward; chest held up, shoulders drawn outward, backward and downward; chin drawn in as though to make a double chin, and crown of head, not forehead, striving to touch the ceiling above; back of neck pressed against collar button.

Every hour by the clock the hands should be clasped behind, as for a rider to mount, then the thumbs turned forward, downward and under and backward without releasing finger clasp. This forcibly draws the shoulders outward, downward and backward and enables the chest to expand. Hold the posture for one minute, breathing slowly and deeply. Stand before a mirror naked while doing this stunt, and observe the abdomen and chest, and endeavor to attain a similar posture all the time.

Stand erect, slowly inhale while raising arms high at the sides, then, retaining the air in chest, bend forward with knees stiff and try to touch fingers or palms to floor in front of feet; repeat this move ten to thirty times night and morning.

Lie prone on the floor, with the heels anchored under a dresser or bed rail. Clasp hands behind the neck. Slowly inhale and raise head and shoulders as high as possible from the floor; then slowly exhale and assume the prone again. Repeat this two or three times night and morning at first, and gradually increase from week to weak.

Soldiers Are a Romantic Lot.

"Returning soldiers tell me that they were fed saltpeter in the army."

Well, they were not—but veterans are a romantic lot and you must discount many of the yarns they tell when they get back home.

Baby's Nighty.

"Pease advise me how to clothe baby at bedtime. She is teething yet, and I am afraid to make changes. Also, what she may have to eat besides her imperial granum made with condensed milk while she is teething.

"MRS. H."

Assuming the baby is eight months old, undress her at 5 p.m., bathe her, powder her, rub her back awhile and let her kick and play, then put on her soft muslin or flannel nighty, long enough to draw with drawstring to cover in the feet, and tuck her in bed for the night. She will probably continue "teething"—whatever that may be—until she gets suitable food. Can't you find fresh milk? Rickets, anaemia, and all sorts of troubles are in store for your baby unless you begin proper feeding right now.

Moles on the Face.

"Please tell me if there is any way of getting rid of moles on the face.

M. F."

There are several ways. Go to a physician who specializes in diseases of the skin—your family doctor can recommend a good one. Depending on the character of the mole, the electric needle, carbon dioxide snow, cautery or scalpel may be used.

H. B. P. and Pale Faces

"Kindly inform me whether high blood pressure is analogous with high steam pressure in a boiler. Can a pale faced person have a high blood pressure or is it only full blooded or florid complexioned persons that have it?

J. H. A."

Yes, it is comparable with high steam pressure. The appearance of the face gives no clew to the height of the blood pressure. Perhaps most persons with excessive blood pressure show some pallor.

McKim's Directory Shows Many Changes In Publishing Field

The Canadian Newspaper Directory for 1918, just issued by the publishers, A. McKim, Limited, advertising agency, of Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and London, England, indicates great activity in the publishing field during the past year.

While the number of daily papers published in 1918 diminishes from 135 to 126, due mainly to the effect of the high cost of newsprint, the total number of Canadian publications increased from 1,490 to 1,552. Fifty-five new weeklies have arisen during the past year.

Altogether, the situation warrants optimism of the soundest nature, reflecting, as it does, the heathy condition prevailing generally from East to West of the Dominion.

Whoever examines the pages of the McKim Directory with the care they deserve cannot fail to be impressed with the great labor involved in gleaning so many thousands of items of information. Not only is the entire field of Canadian publication covered, but the Directory is a complete gazetteer of every town and city in Canada and Newfoundland where a publication is issued. One may turn to it for information as to population, county seats, railways and waterways, telegraph, express and banking facilities.

Especially with the new conditions arising daily—reconstruction, expansion, development—this book in its familiar green and red covers must earn its place on every office desk and in every business library.

NEW TANLAC PLANT IS NOW COMPLETED

MAGNIFICIENT NEW LABORATORY HAS DAILY CAPACITY OF 3,000 BOTTLES.

What is said to be one of the largest pharmaceutical laboratories in the United States has been completed at Dayton, Ohio, for the manufacture of Tanlac, the well-known medicine, which according to recent reports is now having the largest sale of any medicine of its kind in the world.

The erection of the new plant was made necessary by the rapid growth of the business as the older plant was found to be wholly inadequate to supply the ever-increasing demand which at the recent rate of sale will amount to more than five million bottles for the present year alone.

By the erection of this plant the manufacturers of Tanlac are giving to the world just one more evidence of the remarkable growth and expansion of their busines, and of their absolute confidence of its future.

This announcement will be read with interest not only by the many thousands of Tanlac agents scattered throughout every state of the Union and throughout Canada, but to the millions who have used it beneficially as well.

The new building occupies 60,000 square feet of floor space. It is six stories in height, practically fire-proof throughout, and is of striking architectural design. It also has private railway facilities.

This beautiful new structure now stands in striking contrast beside the older building where Tanlac was first made.

Visitors to the laboratories are strongly impressed with the extremely modern character of the equipment. Everything is provided and splendidly arranged to promote systematic and rapid production. The very latest machinery and devices known to invention and pharmaceutical science was here used.

The interior throughout is finished in spotless white, and all of the large force of employees wear white uniforms, which they are required to change daily. The main offices on the first floor are all finished in Carson marble and mahogany.

The entire process of manufacture is conducted under absolutely sanitary conditions. Even the bottles made expressly to contain Tanlac are washed and sterilized electrically by the ultra violet ray process. They are then filled by automatic machinery and the finished product is therefore never touched by human hands.

When Tanlac was introduced into Canada history repeated itself, and the demand which had been created in the United States was quickly duplicated in the Dominion Provinces. As a result, it was recently found necessary to establish another Tanlac laboratory at Windsor, Canada, which is on a somewhat smaller scale than the plant at Dayton, but is no less modernly equipped.

These new facilities give a daily capacity of 36,000 bottles, but as Tanlac is rapidly being introducted into foreign countries it is probably only a question of a few years before ever large facilities will become necessary.

While the manufacturers are necessarily working for capacity production, it is fundamental rule of the Tanlac laboratories that the quality of the medicine shall never be sacrificed to secure quantity output.

Uniform quality is guaranteed by a series of careful inspections by expert chemists, from the time the roots, herbs, and barks are received in their rough state from all parts of the globe until their medicinal properties have been extracted by the most approved processes. The finished medicine is then bottled, labelled and shipped out to the tens of thousands of druggists throughout the United States and Canada, to supply a demand never before epualled for this or any other medicine.

The executive sales offices are located in Atlanta, Georgia, and cover almost an entire floor of the Fourth National Bank Building of that city.

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

HANGMAN ELLIS MAKING READY

FOR EXECUTION OF FRANK McCULLOUGH IN TORONTO TOMORROW.

Toronto, June 12.—"He is more cheerful than he has been for some time," said Chief Turnkey Addy in reference to Frank McCullough, the condemned murderer who will be hanged early on Friday morning in the death chamber of the Toronto jail. "When I went to see him he seemed brighter than ever. He is not worrying over his fate at all."

Mr. Addy stated that McCullough was sleeping and eating just the same as he always did.

"He never moved from the time he laid down last night until he woke up this morning," he said.

Hangman Ellis has arrived in the city and went to the office of Sheriff Fred Mowat in the City Hall, where they held a long conversation.

Ellis, according to the jail authorities visited the institution during the morning. It was stated that he had not made a test of the gallows but it is more than likely that it will be done today. Ellis will weigh McCullough and then duplicate his exact weight with a bag of sand and test the hemp rope and see that the traptrap is in good working order, so that there will be no danger of a hitch when the time for the execution comes.

PETWORTH DAM BLOWN UP

Contention Made That It Has Inconvenienced Farmers.

ALD. EDGAR MADE THE FIRST MOVE

HIS SUGGESTION OF THREE YEARS AGO INCORPORATED IN STATUTE.

Ald. Edgar, when a member of the Council away back in 1916, introduced a resolution to compel all residents to make connections with city sewers wherever these were available. His proposition was to have the Utilities Commission do the work, and in case the owners were unable to pay the cost at once, to have the Commission extend the term of payment over a period of ten years if so desired, and to collect the different instalments quarterly with the water rates. The expense of making the connection was to be charged against the property at actual cost with interest on the various instalments.

The Council decided to apply to the next session of the Legislature for a special Act containing these provisions. Then the election came on, and Ald. Edgar, at that time a candidate in the South Ward, was defeated, one of the contributing causes being this very proposition. Workers against him went among the voters and told them that Ald. Edgar proposed to put a mortgage upon every home in the ward that had no sewer connection.

After the election the Council abandoned the idea of a private bill. The Legislature, however, has since that time enacted such a general statute, the time limit being set at five instead of ten years. That was the legislation that District Health Officer Clinton explained to the members of the Board of Health Tuesday night and which the Board now proposes to enforce.

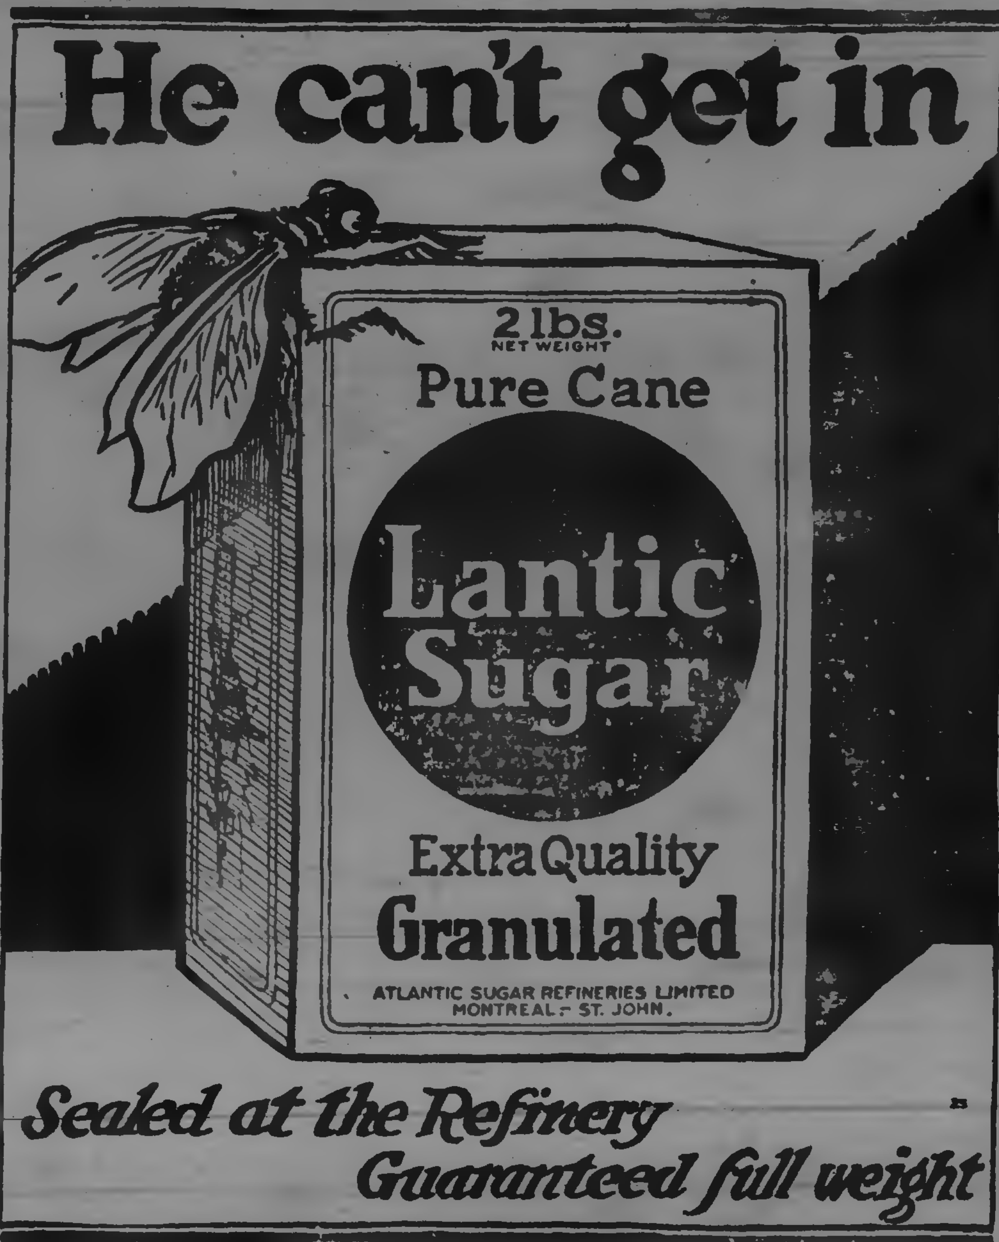
London Free From Floods.

London, owing to its wise embankment schemes, is free from the peril of floods, which annually menace Paris. But it was not always so. Stow tells many woeful tales of floods, when "men did row wherries in the midst of Westminster hall" and great numbers of folk were drowned. The historian also notes, however, that the floods had minor compensations, since after such tides one could "take haddocks by your hand as they float aloft on the waves."

Useful Substitute.

Not least novel of substitutes is the use of iron in place of wool for filtering air for compressors and for cooling electrical apparatus. The new filter is provided with long and crooked passages, in which dust particles are held up by the sharp turns and simple friction along the straighter portions of the route. The air is quite free from moisture. Little pressure is necessary, and the cleaning seems to be quite effective.

The Bank of Montreal's new building at Woodstock will cost about $40,000.



PRESIDENT BEATTY OF C.P.R. TALKS ON STATE OWNERSHIP

Cannot Believe That Any Government Can Operate a Railroad With Same Degree of Efficiency as Private Owners.

(Special to the Review)

Fort William, June 12.—Speaking before 140 of Fort William's most prominent business men today at the Canadian Club luncheon at the Avenue hotel, President E. W. Beatty K.C., of the Canadian Pacific Railway dwelt at length upon the government ownership of railways. He said that he needed no apology for speaking on a matter which was engrossing the serious attention of all thinking Canadians—what is to be the ultimate end of Canadian railways and under what method of Administration are they to be managed. The officers of the C. P. R. were entitled to have some knowledge and more views on the subject, as the system possessed 13,770 miles in Canada, of which 850 were west of the Great Lakes.

Much to Recommend

Mr. Beatty said that Government ownership of railways had much to recommend it, in theory and the Government and the people generally should withhold their final judgment till it has been determined whether Government management is feasible or even possible. They had recently had the benefit of the results of experiments in Great Britain and the United States. The American systems broke down when put to the test, both physically and financially. The deficits are enormous and the efficacy and character were lessened to an alarming degree. As a result of that experience he thought it was safe to say that the last vestige of desire for Government operation of those utilities has departed from this majority of the American people.

Mr. Beatty stated that it might be said his own views were prejudiced and they were prejudiced to the extent that they were the result of eighteen years intimate association with the workings of one railway company, and an appreciation from inside factors that contributed to its efficacy and success.

It had now reached an efficiency in all ranks which he hoped it would now be easier to maintain but it couldn't have been developed and maintained without the enterprise, loyalty, initiative and esprit de corps of the officers and men of the company. There was something which gave rise to that spirit which came from within the organization and he would need to be assured that the spirit would be provoked before he would cast a vote for a permanent policy of government ownership and operation. It was not possible in his opinion, to divorce the responsibility for operation from those upon whom rested the responsibility for the results. In theory it might seem reasonable but in practice he was convinced it would be found impossible to persuade those who voted the money for those enterprises to exclude themselves entirely from the administration of the properties for which they supplied the money.

Crux of the Question

The crux of the whole thing lay with the ability of the government to carry on enterprises such as that with the same competency and efficiency as private owners. He was not attempting to persuade his hearers to his views that they were not unalterable but he had not yet found anyone who could produce evidence of the success of a government operated system in former days, or in other countries where similar conditions prevailed.

Before they adopted a similar policy which would saddle them with the principles of public ownership and operation of their systems, they should, he thought, be very sure of their ground. Last summer the railways of the country were threatened with very serious labor troubles. Wage adjustments were made and rates raised but the individual difficulties due to unrest did not thereby disappear. The railways, in conjunction with the government and labor unions adopted a course without precedent in the history of Canada.

Their heads sat around a table, discussed the best method to adopt, and in the end constituted what was known as "the Railway Board of adjustment No. 1," composed of six representatives of the labor unions and six railway executives. Thirty-two main disputes, in some cases involving half a dozen minor differences, each one of which might have precipitated a strike, had been determined by the board, and in no case had there been an absence of agreement and in no case had either the executives or the men complained that substantial justice was not done.

Mr. Beatty said they were all aware of the high scale of wages now exsiting in this country, and of the prevailing unrest. As representing a company whose operating expenses had increased by $34,000,000 in the short period of two years, He had had some experience of the manner in which those rapidly increasing costs affected large enterprises. They were all disposed to attribute those things to the high cost of living but, few, if any of them, knew what was responsible for it, or what its ingredients were.

The recent announcement of the investigation by the government was undoubtedly the first step to be taken, because if those costs were improper they should know where the unfairness rested, if they were otherwise they must take means to ensure their ability to meet those higher standards of living.

Mr. Beatty closed an interesting address by saying that conventions will be held this summer in the west for the purpose of developing the natural resources of the three western provinces, and of establishing of industries there in order that they might be more self-contained.

His last words were :"In dealing with this question, gentlemen, please remember that your prosperity is the railways prosperity and that their interests are always your interests."

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful drak shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

PRINCE TO FLY IN CANADA

Will Take Part in the New Aerial During Exhibition.

The circus is already practically organized, and its complement of personnel is composed of such well-known famous "aces" as Barker, Bishop and McKeever.

Vancouver postal workers refused by a unanimous vote to take a strike balot.

If somebody offered to give you a $5 bill for $4 would you hesitate?

Well—

That is what the Government of Canada is offering you to-day. WAR SAVINGS STAMPS can be bought now for $4.00 apiece. Every month you keep them they are worth more, and in 1924—not so very far away—Canada will pay you $5.00 for every stamp you hold.

But, you say, I find it hard to hold on to my money till I have $4.00. There are so many things to spend my money on. It's a quarter here and a quarter there—till before I know it all my spare cash is gone.

Well—when you have a spare quarter or two buy a Thrift Stamp! Sixteen Thrift Stamps equal one War Savings Stamp. Or, better still, tell your employer to buy so many Thrift Stamps for you each week and put them in your envelope. Then there will be no bother about it.

You could easily spare five per cent. of your wages each week to build up a profitable investment and will never miss nor regret it.

In June W.S.S. Cost $4.00

Music in the Home

THE SOLDIER ENDORSES GOOD MUSIC

The man who best knows what music meant to the soldier is the soldier himself. He can tell what a cheering, inspiring, invigorating influence music was and he can give some idea of how morale was maintained through music whether in the dug-out, the rest billet, the hospital or the training camp. For the soldier there was no substitute and as he comes back to civilian life he is in the same need of the encouragement and stimulus that music gives. A returned hero in discussing this subject said, "Every night there was something in the way of entertainment going on and many times more than one "show" was held the same evening in the same hut, making a continuous performance from about 6.45 until nearly 10 o'clock. At one performance the first event was a wrestling contest followed by a classical concert by a pianist, a vocalist and a troupe of Hawaiian musicians giving everything from ragtime to some of the more popular and familiar classics. The soldier is quick to express his approval and although he is courteous to the less favored performers, there is no difficulty whatever in discovering his favorites and let it be chronicled that the most applause was given to the musicians who appeared in the concert of higher grade music.

SUMMER MUSIC LESSONS

Little does the crowd realize what an enormous strain is the daily routine of the earlier grade teacher, intently watching and listening to correct blunders and waylay pitfalls. If parents were mindful of these facts they would surely be more assiduous in keeping their children to the schedule of practice. Only by so doing can the little ones best help themselves and at the same time help the teacher.

The long summer vacation for the children is near at hand, and, as many teachers will undoubtedly, continue their work through this spell, parents would be well advised to engage their children for the summer term. It will not prove a hardship and will fit in nicely as there will not be other studies to hamper them. An hour or so in a well aired room away from the rays of the hot sun would certainly not be harmful.

By-the-way, teachers would find some relaxation by visiting the homes of their pupils to give lessons, and accordingly, have a fair opportunity of demonstrating the fact to some sceptical parents who are too often inclined to condemn the teacher for the vagaries of the delinquent pupil. Those of you teachers who are obliged to "carry on" through the summer might benefit yourselves as a visiting teacher and, if necessary, regain the lost confidence of the parents—it's worth having; you know how they can make or mar the doctor!

It would not be amiss to here suggest that the summer home be equipped with the instrument under study. The violin and smaller instruments are easily transported but such is not the case with the piano. Those owning their own summer homes would do well to install a piano—even an old square or organ; many are to be had in god condition. The vocal pupil can of course continue practices at the summer home with the assistane of the phonograph and records and without which no summer is complete anyway.

KEEPING BAND INSTRUMENTS CLEAN

More wind instruments are ruined by negligence as to cleanliness than by actual wear. Accumulation of dirt on the exterior and the deposit of saliva in the interior greatly impairs the usefulness of brass instruments by making them difficult to operate, hard to blow, and by throwing them out of tune. Saliva contains actively destructive properties and if allowed to remain in an instrument will eat its vital parts away with astonishing rapidity.

Young bandsmen should be taught to give their instrument a thorough cleaning as often as once a week at least. Brass instruments will blow more freely if rinsed out with clean luke warm water before commencing the daily practice. Also, the instrument will be more sanitary and wear longer. However, if the instrument has been neglected for some time and has become clogged with dirt and saliva a small quantity of soda or borax should be dissolved in the water and allowed to remain in the instrument for a short time, after which it should be rinsed several times until the interior is clean.

THE NEED FOR BETTER PROGRAMS.

Nothing else soothes tired nerves, calms mother's fears, relieves father's cares, sister's loneliness and brother's anxiety, as music does. And it is to be hoped that our artists recognize now more than ever the necessity for better programs, better conditions, better accompanists, even better gowns and betterment in all the factors which contribute to the success of a performance. First, because such improvement will be necessary to rouse audiences fagged by war-time cares, and secondly, because only performances so improved are at all likely to secure for an artist the evidences of appreciation needed to make for a successful evening.

The late Thomas Jefferson was a good singer and an expert violinist. He spent much time in playing to his wife's accompaniments.

The march is distinctive of military music. Formerly it was merely an air played in quick time. Now there are four kinds of military marches - slow, quick, double-quick and funeral.

DON'T

be in too much of a hurry to scold your boy or girl if they are at the foot of the class. Like as not their eyes need attention, and with proper glasses he'll be at the top. Dr. Fowler makes a specialty of the care of children's eyes, and his service may be the means of giving your boy his real fitting for his life work, or helping your girl grow into a helpful, gracious woman.

THAT SAME MISTAKE.

What teacher has not at some time heard a pupil say: Oh, I always make that same mistake, don't I? It seems to be a perennial, never failing, ever recurring remark. like passing the time of day or commenting on the weather,' but it should be greeted with a deal less patience. It is always delivered with a cheerful confidingness as if it were a pleasant little joke which the teacher should enjoy as much as the pupil does; and saddest of all, it is a refrain which is carolled forth not alone by the careless but often by the good thoughtful one.

"I always make that same mistake" is the outward and visible expression of an inward and lamentable lack of care, a proof that the pupil "plays through" his study piece without any particular goal in view, and without an earnest endeavor to make each playing better than the last. Wrong notes and painful fumblings soon vanish before slow painstaking practice.

Concentrate earnestly on the right performance, not on the fact that you have previously made a mistake. If a note is F sharp and you have wrongly played F, do not think "here is where I always play F and it's wrong," but "here is where I must play F sharp, and that's right."

MUSICAL BARBER SHOPS.

Down in New England there is a departmental store which specializes in selling children's needs. One of the features is a children's barber shop And to interest the kiddies during the ordeal of having their hair cut, as well as to make it cheery for the adults accompanying them, the management of the store provides phonograph music. The idea is a novel one, yet why should it be? The principle is a sound one.

Knowledge that it has been tried out will make men everywhere clamor for the same service. The pulling of a razor or a daub of lather which makes its way into a man's mouth while he is telling the barber he wouldn't vote for Brown for love or money; would not be half as upsetting were the air filled with the sweet arias from Aida, Traviata, Pagiacci and Il Troavtore.

The men who would profit most by the music in the barber shop are those who are always doomed to wait. How slowly the time creeps by. It seems as if every man in the chairs is getting a hair-cut, shave, shampoo, massage, singe, and all the other ninety-five modern frills. Could the poor waiting customers but have a few good waltz or two-step tunes the time would just dance by.

Probably the only man who would suffer would be the big fellow who always insists on smoking a cigar during the tonsorial operation. Should he forget himself in the rapture of a high soprano's doing the Swiss Echo Song, he might come to find that the soothing weed had gone by the regular route to his digestive organs, where, if still lighted, it might cause serious complications. But the great majority of barber shop frequenters should not have music withheld from them for the sake of the paltry minority.

MUSICAL BRIEFS.

Wherever they are held, musical festivals have a great value in the life of a community

The range of the violin is three and one-fifth octaves.

The metal of which orchestral bells are made is an alloy of tin and copper.

The study of music appreciation in the schools is for all the children—talented, average, and even the unmusical.

The size and the shape of the lips play a very important part in flute playing. In fact, it is the lips that give life to the flute tone.

What we thought would take years and possibly decades to bring about in the way of a general realization of the need of music in life was suddenly made obvious even to the most casual observer in three or four years of war.

KILLED BY LIGHTING

Ten Head of Cattle Destroyed in Fenelon Township.

Ten head of cattle, belonging to Messrs. Richie, Wallocotte and Sinclair, were killed by lightning during the recent electrical storm. One of the animals was a valuable thoroughbred. The tree under which they were standing at the time was badly splintered by the bolt. These gentlemen own a large ranch in Fenelon Township where the loss occurred.

Campaign is Closed

The opening services of Pontypool Methodist Church came to a successful close on Monday night, when every objective was reached. Large crowds enjoyed the vigorous and inspiring sermons of Rev. William Higgs, his evening discourse on the "Body of Christ" being a remarkably appropriate program of church life and activities and worthy of the occasion.

Monday night will be the memorable occasion as it gave us a treat in the program provided by Mr. James Dyer of Toronto, son of the worthy ex-principal of Albert College, but more so because of the finish of the whirlwind campaign. After Capt. Andrews had commended the workers on the result achieved in building so fine a church the pastor brought out the clock with $450 still on the principal and about $600 for interest to cover church furniture, shed and during the three years period of the scheme. There was still a task ahead ahead but the young people took up the challenge and before long, after repeated cheers, Pte. J. Kirkley just back from overseas had the honor of carrying the clock past the $8000 by his subscription The clock did not stop there but before the finish came $8590 was in sight which completes the scheme No wonder the concert ended in the Doxology and prayer.

The trustees are: J. W. Glenney, W H Hooper, Wm. Ridge, John Aldread, Robert Biggs and T E. Cairns. The pastor, Rev. A W McLauchlin, B.A., has accepted an invitation to remain another year.

HASTINGS

(Special Correspondence.)

Gave Themselves Up To The Police

TWO DEFAULTERS AT LINDSAY ESCAPE WITH THE MINIMUM FINE.

Three defaulters under the Military Service Act were tried yesterday at Lindsay by Magistrate Moore on information laid by Inspector H. F. Ward. Clayton McKay, of Peterson's Corners, who surrendered himself to the Dominion Police at Haliburton, received the minimum sentence of $250 and costs. James G. Robertson, of Haliburton, received the same sentence as in each case the magistrate took into consideration the fact that they had voluntarily surrendered themselves. Crown Attorney T. H. Stinson conducted the prosecution and Mr. O'Connor appeared for the defendants.

The case of James A. Bowen was laid over until Tuesday, June 17, as it would appear from the man's present condition that he should never have been passed as medically fit. Medical evidence was submitted at the trial to prove that it was impossible for him to report when ordered to do so.

NONSENSE, SAYS GUTHRIE.

Solicitor-General Denies Rumor of Going to Exchequer Court.

Ottawa, June 12.—"I never heard of it," said Hugh Guthrie, Solicitor-General, in regard to a report that he was leaving for England to attend the Privy Council for the Government, and that on his return he would be appointed judge of the Exchequer. "I am not going to England, and the first I ever heard of my going to the Exchequer Court was when I read it in the press. It is all nonsense."

FREIGHTS MAY SEND MILK UP.

Ottawa, June 12.—There is danger of an increase in the price of milk if the new tariff increasing the charge for the carriage of milk in baggage cars goes into effect, according to dairymen.

Owing to the concert which was being held in the Town Hall on Friday evening, the council meeting was withdrawn.

Mr. Alex. Fleming of Trenton spent Sunday at his home here.

A little daughter has come to brighten the hearts and the home of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Doughty.

Mr. and Mrs. John Thomson are removing their household effects from their apartments over the Union Bank to their new residence on Front street which was recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Buck.

Mr. Tom Hall of Peterborough is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hill.

Dr .and Mrs. Hess took a trip to Smithfield on Sunday and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. (Rev.) Anderson.

Mrs. W. Fleming has been visiting in Trenton.

LATEST IN FARM FENCES

Posts of Wood, Iron or Cement Can Be Used.

Important Factors to Be Considered Are Cost, Durability and Service —How to Lengthen Life of Fence With Undue Costs.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

BLESSED is the farmer who, conscious in the security of his fences, can leave home on a day's business, or retire to rest at night, without anxiety as to possible depredation committed by straying cattle, or his own stock, to corn, roots, or grain, during his absence or rest. Brush, stump, and stone fences—relics of bygone days —can still be seen here and there, but are rapidly disappearing, and are being replaced with modern up-to-date woven wire fences that are built, not with the idea of the smallest possible initial cost, but with forethought for the future, remembering that quality and material as well as the design and construction of post fences are elements that determine its life and service.

The prime factors in a fence are fair cost, durability and service. The annual up-keep of fences is considerable, and to the farmer a material that will do away with the expense of repairing, replacing, painting, or other form of maintenance, should strongly appeal to him as representing true economy, almost regardless of first cost. The opportunity for economy is found, first, in using the kind of posts which, taking into account both cost and durability are cheapest in the long run. In setting a post which will have comparatively short life, he loses not only through having to buy new posts, but also because of the additional labor involved in removing the old and setting the new one. There is, however, great difference in the lasting properties of different woods. The average life of a fence constructed of wood posts cannot be safely figured as greater than 8 or 9 years. For length of service cedar and white oak outlast all other woods. By treating the posts with creosote, coal tar or charing them, the cost of up-keep might be materially lessened.

That the end or corner posts bear all the strain, and are the foundation of the fence, is common knowledge to every experienced fence builder. They must, be well anchored, rigid and strong, and so constructed that they can be depended upon to give proper service at all times, and under all conditions. The foundation carries the strain and must, therefore, be absolutely solid and permanent, so as not to permit the fence to sag.

The setting of wood posts in cement as commonly practiced is not conducive to the longevity of the post, because a water-tight union between the post and the concrete is not secured, and ultimately decay sets in. By far the most effective way is shown in diagram (Fig. 1). The post is first notched as shown in sketch, and the concrete worked well into the notch. This sheds the water trickling down the post, and cannot possibly get between the post and concrete, and the life of the post is considerably lengthened. A post concreted in this way, and kept painted, is practically immune from decay.

However, every locality differs in the material used for fence posts—wood, steel and cement are all used. The supply of farm timber available, or the prices and condition of the local market for the other commodities determines largely the fence post used. One of the most important factor in the construction of steel posts is the anchorage. The end and corner posts and their braces should be set in concrete whenever possible, as in that way best results and maximum efficiency and service will be secured (Fig. 2).

A steel post cannot possibly give complete satisfaction, no matter how lasting the material itself may be, if it is not strong enough to withstand the use to which the average fence [illegible]. It must be capable of resisting and sustaining shocks without bending or breaking.

Concrete fence posts properly reenforced and made from suitable materials, carefully selected and proportioned, should last indefinitely, and are, therefore, a good investment. Considerable variety of surface finish and ornament, limited only by the skill of the individual worker, can be given to the concrete corner, gate, and line posts (Fig. 3.)

Large heavy wires not lighter than No. 9 in woven wire fence are much more durable than finer wire, and a lasting improvement for the farm. Hinged joints in the stays make the most substantial union, so that under pressure, the stays forced out of alignment will spring back when released. Triple tension curves in the wire fabric will not be pulled out by the stretching process, and will allow for sufficient contraction and expansion. Sound and rigid posts and proper stretching of woven wire fence are the first considerations in fence building. Regardless of the type of posts, or the height or make of a wire, the farm which is fenced stock-tight is a valuable and money making farm in any section of the country.—Prof. John Evans, O. A. College, Guelph.

Cultivation and Drainage Pays.

Loosening up a soil by cultivation increases the pore space, and with loams, mucks and clays this increases their power to absorb and retain water while at the same time allowing more free air space. Drainage also makes a soil more porous, thereby producing the same results. Coarse sands retain less water when loose than when compact.

THEATRICAL

DOUBLE FEATURE BILL AT GRAND

Mr. Blackwell assumes the role of the healthy invalid, who is over-fed, petted to excess, and who really believes he is sick. He had never been allowed to participate in strenuous exercises while in college, but once he violated the parental rule. Unfortunately his mother and father arrived on the athletic field just as the two football teams were stepping from various portions of his body. Mother fell into a dead faint and father was astounded.

Little Bobby Briggs, as he is known, is only six feet tall, weighs about 175 pounds, graduated college with honors, and is continually surrounded by a trained nurse, a physician and a valet. He continues to parry with his attendants until the love of a girl arouses him to real strenuous things and he throws off the mantle of weakness. He starts to whip athletic trainers and pretty soon becomes a veritable strong man. But all this cost his father a million dollars through a little blackmail scheme which was devised by Bobby's sweetheart. When father found out, then it was all right, as he said it was worth a cold million to see little Bobby well and strong as any man.

An added feature is Mae Murray in "The Scarlet Shadow."

Avoid the appearance of evil as the evil itself.

This is the message Mae Murray wants to drive home to young girls in "The Scarlet Shadow," her newest Universal special production.

She is seen as Elna Evans, continually cloistered from the world by a maiden aunt, who maintained that because of an alleged "scarlet strain" in the life of the girl's mother, Elna was not able to meet the temptations of the world.

Elna sneaks out of her bedroom one night to go to a movie show with a romantic college boy. They have a "perfectly splendid" time, winding up with chocolate ice cream sodas at the village drug store.

Then Elna has a hard time getting back into her room. The lad crawls in and helps her over the ledge. Then enters Auntie, who jumps at conclusions and thinks the worst, finding a man in Elna's room. The long-looked-for "scarlet strain" has cropped out, she thinks.

After trying to force the collegian to marry Elna, the aunt turns her out in the streets, and the whole course of the girl's life is changed.

Thus Elna, blameless and innocent, is made to suffer because of circumstantial evidence and the appearance of evil.

Robert Z. Leonard, who has made all of Mae Murray's previous successes, directed "The Scarlet Shadow." In the supporting cast are such notables as Frank Elliott, Ralph Graves, Clarissa Selwynne, Willard Louis, Martha Mattox and J. Edwin Brown.

WEEK END BILL AT THE EMPIRE

"THE LAMB AND THE LION," ONE OF THE FINEST OF FILMS.

Here are some of the things you will see in "The Lamb and the Lion", that will be shown at the Empire theatre Friday and Saturday:

Billie Rhode as a boy burglar in seven league boots.

Billie Rhodes as a flapper feeding her educated pig from a baby's bottle.

A girl and a pig on horseback.

A sensational climax to a fashionable wedding.

Stones for Rosaries.

The rosaries sold at Kandahar are extensively manufactured from soft, crystallized silicate of magnesia. This is quarried from a hill about thirty miles northwest of the city, where soapstone and antimony are also obtained in considerable abundance. The stone varies in color from a light yellow to a bluish white, and is generally opaque.

Apache Custom.

In order to ascertain the time of day, the Apache Indians used a gourd on which the stars of heaven were marked. As the constellation rose the Indian could tell the hour by referring to the gourd, and by turning the gourd round he could tell the order in which the constellations might be expected to appear.

Potash-Producing Weed.

It is believed that the ash of bracken contains 40 to 50 per cent of soluble potash. In parts of Australia, where the weed grows abundantly, it has been found that a yield of 400 pounds of potash can be obtained per acre. The potassium occurs chiefly as sulphate and chloride.

A kerosene stove explosion resulted in the burning to the ground of the Woodstock Fishing Club house.

Wood's Phosphodine.
The Great English Remedy. Tones and invigorates the whole nervous system, makes new Blood in old Veins. Cures Nervous Debility, Mental and Brain Worry, Despondency, Loss of Energy, Palpitation of the Heart, Failing Memory. Price $1 per box, six for $5. One will please, six will cure. Sold by all druggists or mailed in plain pkg. on receipt of price. New pamphlet mailed free. THE WOOD MEDICINE CO., TORONTO, ONT.

Hanging Pictures.

It is easy to make mistakes in the hanging of pictures. Observing the following as a guide, you will make fewer mistakes in this respect. First, a plain paper for the room is almost imperative. This will give you an opportunity to use all the pictures, no matter what they are. Soft grays and terra cotta tones are best for background. Avoid figured and highly-colored papers as these prevent the picture from standing out. Be careful not to tilt the pictures too much. Hang them almost flat.

Light and Dark of Moon.

Popularly, the moon is called new when, after passing the sun, she first becomes visible as a thin crescent. Some persons say the light of the moon is from this time until the moon is full. Others say that the light of the moon is during the few days when the moon appears to be full. The dark of the moon is also thought by some to extend from the full moon until no moon is visible. Popularly, however, the moon is dark during the few days of invisibility when near conjunction with the sun.

HOW WILLARD AND DEMPSEY SPEND SUNDAYS IN CAMP

Over One Thousand Autos Were Parked at Training Camp—Each Fighter Has Hosts of Visitors.

(By Battling Nelson.)

Toledo, O., June 10.—Sunday was surely a big day at Camp Willard and Camp Dempsey. The weather was ideal and really nothing was going on in Toledo that had a ghost of a show to outdraw the training quarters. It looked as if there were 1,000 autos parked at Willard's quarters, which I visited first to watch him go through his afternoon's training. Willard perspired quite freely by using the pulleys a few minutes, then he boxed three rounds with Jack Hemple. For about a minute the boxing was rather speedy but after that Hemple slowed up. Willard handles all his sparring partners without an effort and really should have more husky men.

Roy Archer, Willard's business representative, came back from New York, where he went to get some husky boxing material for Jess to work with. They should be here soon to give the champion some good fast work.

Sergt. Walter Monahan got the next mauling for three rounds of fast work and, believe me, he got it for fair, although the big fellow has to pull his punches for fear of being without sparring partners. Soldier Stanton, a middleweight, was also booked for three rounds, but he lasted less than half a minute. The soldier started after Willard as the Yanks went after the Huns, but did not fare nearly as well as he did over on the Marne. Willard almost paralyzed him with his right, which followed a left jab and hook. The punch Willard hit him was just a sort of an overhand clout on the neck. In all my career as an athlete I never saw a punch which acted as Willard's smash did on the soldier's neck. It sort of paralyzed him all over. His legs stiffened out and his body became rigid, then he started to fall over, when Willard grabbed him. Immediately the champion's seconds rushed in, pouring a bucket of water over the soldier, which revived him. He was led out of the ring still dazed.

The champion pulled a new one yesterday when he was doing his shadow boxing. One of his friends said, "Jess what do you call that?"

The good natured champion said: "This is what you call the Toledo waltz. They won't stand for that in Kansas."

Jack a Hard Worker.

When Dempsey finished boxing he got out a heavy leather bag full of waste. The waste does not knot up and get hard like the ordinary sand bag. He slugged at that apparatus for one full round never letting up an instant, which was equal to ten rounds of boxing.

The week's rest did Dempsey a lot of good, and he sure gave the crowd a run for its money. He finished about an hour's work by wrestling around with Big Bill Tate, showing how strong he was, never taking a deep breath.

Saturday was a day of disappointment for both Champion Jess and his young challenger, Jack. It was still more of a disappointment to at east 5,000 fans who turned out to see the boxers in their training although the boxers and everyone interested in Toledo Athletic club along with 5,000 Toledoans were sore over the rain, the farmers in the surrounding country were tickled to death. The rain stopped the boxers from doing their training but at the same time it had the same effect on the crop that a heavy rain would on mushrooms so everyone was benefited by the layoff the boxers took. Both boxers had to be satisfied with only road work. Champion Willard and al his trainers were all dressed in their gymnasium clothes. The crowd would not leave until the champion motored away in his Cadillac.

Jess Genial to Lad.

John Clark, a prosperous business man of Toledo, was one of the spectators with his little boy Fred, 8 years old. Mr. Clark called me over and said:

"I would give anything to have my son shake hands with Willard."

I took Fred by the hand and walked in to Willard's dressing room with him and presented him to the champion. Big, good-natured Jess greeted the boy warmly, giving him a warm hand shake, and the little fellow's chest swelled with pride. Willard stood alongside the boy, who just reached a little above the champion's knee. "Do you think you could lick the champion?" I said to the boy. "Maybe, when I grow larger and older I can. Now he is too big for me," he answered.

When I brought Fred out to his father to bid them good-by, Mr. Clark shook hands and wanted to give me a $10 bill, exclaiming:

"That was worth $1,000 to me to have my boy shake hands with the champion of the world."

It pleased him more than ever when I told him how warmly the champion greeted him. Naturally I refused to accept the money, but it just goes to show how honored and pleased some people feel to be able to say they have shaken hands with a boxing champion.

When I told Willard about the $10 he said:

"Why didn't you take it and cut me in, fifty-fifty?"

Of course, Jess was only joking.

Baseball Games In Church League

In the Church Baseball League two games were played last night at Nicholl's oval. All Saints won from St. John's by a score of 10 to 6, Hopkins and Rootes being the batteries for the winners and Green and Devey for the losers. H. Copp was the umpire.

St. Luke's and St. James' batted eight innings for a tie, scoring 10 each. The game was finally called by the umpire, D. Loomis, on account of darkness. It was played at Central Park.

At Central Park tonight George St. and St. Paul's clash, and All Saints' play Knox at the King Edward Park.

MR. HUGHES' GUN WAS NOT LOADED

JURY FINDS HE DID NOT INTIMIDATE MAN AS CHARGED.

In the case of the Crown v. Henry Hughes, charged with intimidation of Fred Greenwood, the jury after about five minutes deliberation, brought in a verdict of not guilty.

The trouble arose over a misunderstanding regarding the sale of a swamp by Henry Hughes to C. Fillon. The latter had cut part of the timber and when he sent Fred Greenwood to complete the job, on March 18, this year he was ordered to quit by Henry Hughes. At the same time H. Hughes carried with him a gun which he claimed was not loaded.

Henry Hughes, who admitted that he took the gun with him when he went down to the swamp to frighten Fred Greenwood away said that it was not loaded but that if he had had any cartridges to put in the gun it would have been loaded. He also informed the court that he had procured some cartridges within the last few days and that the gun was now loaded and ready for action.

C. Fillon claimed that the whole of the swamp was included in the bargain and that he paid Henry Hughes $54 to cover the price of the swamp and a bill for boarding Fred Greenwood. The latter corroborated his evidence. His Honor Judge Huycke, in his charge to the jury, took exception to the large amount of irrelevant matter that had been brought up in the case. Whether the prisoner is young or old, cultured or ignorant, good or bad should not influence the jury in their decision. The only thing you have to consider is wether the prisoner really intimidated Greenwood or not. Hughes had no right to take the gun down with him to the swamp to frighten Greenwood, no matter whether the gun was loaded or not."

Mr Joseph Wearing defended Mr Hughes.

CONTRADICT COMMISSION

Brantford Clothiers Deny that Their Profits are Excessive

Brantford, June 12. Local merchants thoroughly resent the statements made in the report of the Cost of Living Commission to the Ottawa Government to the effect that the excessive profits of the retailer are largely responsible for the present hgh prices of textiles and staple articles of clothing They say this is absolutely untrue.

FEW PEOPLE PAY INCOME TAXES

ONLY 31,310 CANADIANS WERE RICH ENOUGH TO BE REACHED.

Ottawa, June 12.—Canadians are poorer—or else the incomes of te country are more evenly distributed —than most people believe, if the 31,310 people shown in a statement tabled in the House of Commons yesterday as having paid their assessment under the 1917 Income War Tax Act up to April 30, 1919, are all that should have paid. The total amount paid by these 31,310 people was . . 6,445,349.58, and 23,907 comparatively low salaried men among the comfortably fixed classes with yearly incomes under $6000 provided $1,028,747.76 of this amount. Of men with incomes reported as being being between $6,000 and $10,000 annually, 4,497 gave the treasury $860,912.33. They were easily beaten by the 2,055 men in the higher category of incomes ranging between $10,000 and $20,000, who gave a total of $1,158,107.74. Only 461 men with incomes between $20,000 and $30,000 gave any money, but their contribution produced $700,216,08. In the next category of incomes, from $30,000 to $50,000, it appeared that 241 men had more than the last class to give, a total of $821,659.84 being combed from them. Farther, up in the scale of fortune's favorites 125 men, with incomes ranging from $50,000 to $100,000, provided $881,153.59 toward the expenses of government. Getting to the highest category of those who paid, one discovers that 24 people in Canada had incomes exceeding $100,000 a year, and rightly enough they gave $994,552.23. This statement doe snot include corporations.

SAYS THE SCOTCH ARE AGITATORS

DELEGATE TO GENERAL ASSEMBLY SEES DANGER IN DEPORTING RESIDENTS.

Hamilton, June 12.—Social unrest was the theme of a trenchant debate in the Presbyterian General Assembly yesterday when a comprehensive resolution was presented by the Social Service Committee.

Several members attacked the resolution, complaining that nothing had been said about profiteering. It was also stated that too much blame for the country's unrest was being placed on the shoulders of Labor and not enough on Capital. One speaker deplored any move to deport agitators, adding that such deportations would remove the "cream of the Scotch" from Canada.

Benjamin C. Shepherd, a former resident of Brockville, died in California.

It is estimated that the Nippissing Mine, Cobalt, produced $347,751 during the month of May.

QUIET AT WINNIPEG TODAY — NEW POLICE CHIEF TAKES CHARGE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, June 12.—H. E. Barker, chairman of the Railway Brotherhoods Mediation Board, which has been trying for three weeks to adjust the differences between the Metal Trades work sand their employers, formally announced this morning that attempts at conciliation have failed. This forenoon the city was calm. Acting Chief of Police Chris. Newton was appointed last night to take the place of Donald MacPherson, who was dismissed. He started actively on his re-organization of the police force.

Y.M.C.A. HONOR ROLL

As a complete list of Y. M. C. A. members who enlisted is not available, the Association is asking the citizens to send in the names of those of their household who were members at the time of enlistment or who had transferred their membership to a branch of the Y.M.C.A. in another city. The blank is provided in order to secure information required. A prompt response is requested as it is desired to have the Honor Roll installed as soon as possible.

It is also suggested that friends of members who enlisted fill in a number of blanks. Duplicates will be eliminated, and a complete list should be the result.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

BRYCE—McBRIDE

A quiet but pretty wedding took place in St. Thomas Church, Millbrook, on Wednesday, June 11, 1919, at 5.30 p.m., when Miss May Bryce, daughter of Mr. James Bryce, of Hartford, Conn., became the wife of Corp. Jos. Augustus Gough McBride, son of Mr. and Mrs. John McBride, of Millbrook. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. (Capt.) C. R. Spencer, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. The bride, who is very excellent young lady, was dressed in white muslin, trimmed with Georgette crepe, and wore a veil with orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of American beauty roses. Corporal Frank Tingey was groomsman and Miss Theo McBride was bridesmaid.

A sumptuous wedding dejeuner was served at the home of the groom's parents. The happy couple will spend their honeymoon at Hastings, Warkworth and other points East.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful presents, the groom's present to the bride being a gold wrist watch, to the groosman a gold stick pin set with pearls and to the bridesmaid a brooch set with pearls and amethysts. Upon their return the bride and groom will reside in Millbrook.

WIDDIS—POWELL

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Jeffrey Widdis, King street east, Millbrook, on Wednesday, June 11, when her daughter, Miss Agnes Jane, was united in marriage to Mr. James E. Powel, of Clarke Township, the Rev. W. H. Higgs officiating, only the immediate friends of the contracting parties being present. The bride and groom stood under an arch of ferns and bridal wreath while the minister spoke the words that made them one. The bride was prettily attired in her wedding dress of white silk trimmed with silk chiffon and sequins ,wearing a veil with orange blossoms and carrying a bouquet of white snow-bals. Her travelling dress was of navy blue serge with hat to match. The wedding march was played by Miss Mary Widdis.

The bride received many beautiful presents, among them being a lovely chain and pendant from the groom and a kitchen shower from her S. S. class.

At the close of the ceremony a dainty wedding dejeuner was served and the happy couple left for their future home followed by the good wishes of all.

HUNTER—PALLISTER

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hunter, Fallis Line, on Wednesday, June 11, 1919, at 2 p.m., when their daughter, Miss Jessie, was united in marriage to Mr. Harry Pallister, C.P.R. agent, at Baxter, Rev. Canon Allen, M.A. officiating, while the bride and groom stood under an arch of evergreens, which had been arranged in the parlor. The bride was given away by her father and wore a wedding gown of white satin trimmed with Georgette crepe and bridal veil and carried a bouquet of white carnations. Her travelling suit was of blue saille silk with a Mary Pickford hat. Her sister, Miss Jean Hunter, who was maid of honor, was attired in pink voile, and carried pink carnations. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Allen.

The dining room was beautifully decorated with red, white and blue forming a star, and the tables were also artistically decorated. At the close of the ceremony a dainty wedding supper was served, and the happy couple left on the 4.25 C.P.R. train for a honeymoon trip to Rochester, Minnesota and Chicago, followed by the good wishes of a host of friends and showers of confetti.

OLIVER—SISSON

A very pretty wedding took place at St. John's Church, Ida, on Monday, June 2, 1919, when Miss Margaret Kathleen, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Sisson, of Cavan, was united in marriage to Mr. Norman W. Oliver, of Toronto.

The ceremony was conducted at 3.30 p.m. by Rev. Canon Allen in the presence of about thirty guests. Lohengrin's wedding march was played by Mrs. Allen. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in her wedding gown of white satin trimmed with orange blossoms and pearls, and carrying a beautiful bouquet of Killarney roses. Little Miss Johnston, of Peterboro, was flower girl, while Master Harold Johnston was ring-bearer. The bride and groom were unattended.

The bride's going-away dress was of brown gabardine with hat to match. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous wedding supper was served, and a most pleasant hour enjoyed, after which the happy young couple left on a honeymoon trip through the Muskoka Lakes. They will reside in Toronto.

The bride is one of Cavan's most highly respected young ladies and the groom is very popular with all his acquaintances. He was wounded about a year ago while on active service in France.

The many friends of Miss Clara Gryington will regret to learn that she is seriously ill after an operation.

The Union Bank of Canada which opened a branch in Warsaw this spring have now their fixtures installed which lend a very neat appearance to the office. The residents of Warsaw and surrounding district after having been without the convenience of banking service for the past few years heartily appreciate the action of the Union Bank in establishing a branch here and it is hoped that the people of this vicinity will give the bank their undivided support. The bank not only pays special attention to the savings accounts of farmers and resident of this district but is prepared to transact a general banking business and give every service that a progressive bank can render.

The probable establishment of a branch in Paris, France emphasizes the aggressive developments of the Union Bank of recent months.

Since the signing of the armistice the Union Bank of Canada has opened some fifty new branches throughout Canada coupled with this impressive expansion development is going on abroad, following out the announced policy of the directors to build up an institution of an international character which will provide a financial highway for Canadian trade with foreign customers. The formation of the bank union foreign banking corporation has also resulted in the opening of branches at New York, San Francisco, Seattle and Yokahama, Japan and extensions may possibly be made in China.

ANOTHER HITCH IN HUNTER STREET BRIDGE QUESTION

Resolution Awarding Contract to Russell-Townsend Co. is Illegal—Rider Protecting Members of Council Against Liability 'Equal to a Bribe, and, is Quite Illegal—Another Proposition Now—Bridge May Be Started Before Snow Flies! With Luck!

With a little patience on the part of the public and a measure of good luck for our city aldermen, there may be a chance of some definite action in regard to letting the new Hunter street high-level bridge before snow flies.

Three times now has the Board of Works recommended acceptance of a tender, first to the Russell-Townsend Co., then to the Canadian Engineer[illegible] Contracting Co. and again to the Russell-Townsend Co.—and last night saw another proposition on the table, one from the Leonard Construction Co., which is to be considered next week. After the aldermen have got through with the Leonard Construction Co., according to the history of this seemingly perplexing question, it will be about time to turn again to Ed. Conroy's tender, unless the Council abandons the matter for this year altogether.

In any event, it will indeed be a miracle if the Russell-Townsend Co. get the contract after all ,for the following reason:

The second resolution by the Board of Works recommending the acceptance of this company's tender contained this rider: "Providing the contractors guarantee the members of the Council against personal liability by reason of the cost of the bridge exceeding Council's appropriation for the bridge."

From reports, it seems that this resolution was acceptable to the Russell-Townsend people, but when the Board of Works met last evening a bolt from the blue fell in the shape of City Solicitor Widdifield's notification that such a rider was null and void of any virtue whatever and world make the contract entirely illegal.

This proved a disagreeable surprise to more than one alderman who voted for the Russell-Townsend tender in consideration of said rider being attached to the contract, and with the withdrawal of their support, all hope of this company getting the work must be abandoned. Both the Mayor and Ald. Gainey last night announced their opposition to the acceptance of this company's tender without the "guarantee" rider, and it is safe to say that Ad. Crewe, who is in Orillia, will follow suit. This will reduce Council's division of seven in favor of Russell-Townsend to a minority of four.

As They Were!

The proposed bridge proceedings—with an emphasis on the "proposed"—opened last evening with a communication from Mr. Robert Stuart of the Quaker Oats, dated Chicago, June 11, stating that the Leonard Construction Co. would be willing to take up the question of building the Hunter street bridge, and that Mr. Hadsall, a member of that company, would be pleased to meet the Council next Thursday or Friday evening, or at an earlier date if convenient, with a view to submitting a proposition by which the bridge could be constructed at a cost within the appropriation at the city's disposal.

The city solicitor here threw his bomb containing the advice that the rider above referred to would have the same legal effect as had every member of Council accepted a bribe from the Russell-Townsend Co and would render any contract containing such a string void and illegal.

Ald. Edgar and Garside here moved that the objectionable guarantee against liability rider be eliminated from the resolution passed at last meeting, and this carried.

Ald. Hamilton and Turner then moved that Mr. Robert Stuart be notified that the bridge contract had been awarded to another company who are considering the proposition, and that Council will advise him as soon as a definite decision has been reached.

A Huge Joke.

Ad. Phelan here remarked that if there is any further delay, the bridge question will develop into a huge joke.

Ad. Gainey: "I won't vote for any contractor who does not give a guarantee."

The Mayor: "I will not vote for the Russell-Townsend people under present condition—with the personal guarantee rider eliminated."

Quite Preposterous.

Ald. Edgar cuttingly remarked that the Board's actions are quite preposterous and positively ridiculous. "We sit here night after night discussing this question; first awarding the contract to this contractor and then to

RAILWAY MEN SEND THEIR ULTIMATUM TO OFFICIALS

Engineers, Firemen and Trainmen Threaten to Strike Unless Discharged Policemen in Winnipeg Are Reinstated—Board is Vainly Striving to Bring About a Settlement.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Officials of the Winnipeg switchmen's and trainmen's local announced this afternoon that they had voted to go on strike at six o'clock tonight. This believed the action of the trainmen will seriously cripple the freight service to and from Winnipeg and may handicap passenger transportation.

Winnipeg, June 13.—It is stated that at a meeting of the Locomotive Engineers and Firemen of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways, it was decided to give ultimatum to the City Council that unless the old police force is reinstated they will go out on sympathetic strike.

The Switchmen, Too.

It was stated positively by members of the Switchmen's and Trainmen's Unions at noon today that the switchmen and trainmen had definitely decided to join the general sympathetic strike tonight at eight o'clock.

Montreal, June 13.—The Railway War Board sent a communication to the union delegates, then in session, asking that negotiations be reopened. It asked that negotiations, at least, be carried on during the remaining days of this week and the first of next week before the ultimatum goes into effect next Wednesday.

The officials of the union at one o'clock today answered the communication of the morning stating that they had decided to retain their former position, that unless the Railway War Board was willing to talk wages, that negotiations could not be reopened.

Another Conference.

Winnipeg, June 13.—A meeting of the city council and officials of the Railway Brotherhoods to discuss phases of the strike situation affecting both sides will be held in the city hall late today. An important announcement may follow.

Negotiations Fail.

Montreal, June 13.—Negotiations undertaken this morning by the Canadian Railway War Board with representatives here of Division No. 4 of the Railways of America, to make an attempt to prevent thirty thousand men striking on Wednesday for higher pay, have failed.

GENERAL STRIKE CALLED IN BERLIN

CITIZENS' COUNCIL IN SECRET SESSION SO DECIDE, PAPER SAYS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berlin, June 13.—A secret session of the Citizens' Council of greater Berlin, held on Wednesday, declared in favor of a citizens' strike, according to the Independent Socialist newspaper, Diefreiheit. The attendance included a number of leading manufacturers, merchants and professional men and Col. Reinhardt, the Prussian Minister of War.

Overseas Flight Is Postponed

(Canadian Press Despatch)

St. John's, Nfld., June 13. — The start of the Vickers Vimy machine on an attempted transatlantic flight, expected this afternoon, may be postponed until tomorrow, the mechanics having discovered while overhauling the machine this morning that the axle of the wheels had been sprung in landing last night. The damaged part must be replaced.

The Handley-Page machine, which made a successful trial flight over the water today, is expected to hop off on Sunday. Favorable weather conditions are predicted for that day

Council Of Four Revising Treaty

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 13.—The Council of Four today devoted both of its sessions to a revision of the text of the treaty. When the forenoon session ended the council had sent to the revision commission eighteen reports. Among those remaining to be passed are several dealing with important subjects.

BRITISH HOLD OUT FOR TERMS

PROPOSALS REGARDING REPARATION ARE NOT FAVORED BY THEIR COLLEAGUES.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 13.—The British representatives have made an eleventh-hour attempt to re-open the question of reparations. They have submitted proposals introducing into the functions of the permanent reparations commission the principle of control of raw materials, etc., furnished Germany, enabling the commission to control Germany's economic development during the period it operates.

The British effort has not met with a sympathetic reception by the reparations commission ,to which it was referred. It seem improbable that the proposals will be accepted but they constitute one of the causes of the delay of the reply to the Germans which it was rumored today probably would not be presented until Monday.

SOUTH VICTORIA FARMERS MEET AT RESIDENCE OF CANDIDATE

Home of Mr. F. G. Sandy, Near Omemee, Scene of Pleasant Function Last Night —Mr. H. B. Cowan Explains the Platform of New Party.

(By a Staff Correspondent)

Omemee, June 13—The farmers of South Victoria will run a candidate for the Legislature at the next election against Mr. John Carew, of Lindsay, the present member The nomination has already been made and the choice was unanimous for Mr F. G. Sandy who lives on a farm a short distance from this village, a farm which, as to cultivation and all appointments, is a bright example of up-to-date agricultural methods. Mr. Sandy is County President of the farmers organization He is a man of pleasing personality, a good speaker, popular with his neighbors and as a representative in the legislature would be a credit to any riding in Ontario His enthusiastic supporters pledge themselves to stand behind him, to the end.

Mr and Mrs. Sandy opened their beautiful home to friends and neighbors last night and over one hundred invited guests, from all sections of the riding and the adjacent district asembled, coming in horse vehicle, in autos and by trains from a distance, some of them of over thirty miles. The object of the gathering was to hear the Farmer's platform explained; the speaker chosen for the exening being Mr H. B. Cowan, of Farm and Dairy, a competent authority, seeing that Mr. Cowan was a member of the committee that drew up the new confession of political faith. The guests of the evening, assembled in the spacious lawn which was suitably decorated with flags and welcome signs and the gracious host and hostess admirably devoted themselves to making their guests feel perfectly at home.

About 8 o'clock Mr. Sandy called the gathering to order and delivered a brief address of welcome. He then asked Mr. John Brock, vice-president of the county organization to preside and Mr Brock discharged the duties of chairman to the satisfaction of everybody

Mr. Cowan's Address

Mr. Cowan spoke for an hour, the audience following him with the closest attention, and frequently applauding his remarks. Neither in anything said by Mr. Cowan or by any of the speakers who followed him was there any evidence of a spirit of animosity. The faults and failings, real or imaginary of the old time political parties, were not emphasized. The new party has no grievance or quarrel with labor or the people of the city. All that the farmers ask for is representation in Legislature and Parliament to give effect to enactments that concern their welfare.

Mr. Cowan dwelt on the cost of living which has trebled in the past five years, on the problem of rural depopulation and of the unemployed men vainly looking for work while there is a scarcity of help on the farms and production suffers as a result. Some of the remedies suggested, Mr. Cowan said, are even worse than the disease. For example, organized labor proposes a 44-hour week and this has a tendency to lure more men from the farm to the cities.

The new farmers platform contains certain provisions for the principles of the initiative and the referendum, both of which the speaker fully explained.

Dealing with the tariff was the main part of the address of the evening. Mr. Cowan contends that protection has lessened production by freezing out the small concerns in the country and centralizing industry in the hands of the few who are able to regulate the output and so hold up prices. Mr. Cowan argues that under the protective policy inaugurated in 1879 there are fewer industries today than there were at the date referred to and that the production is less. Hence the excessive cost of living.

Mr. Cowan claims that the tariff tax goes into the pockets of the manufacturer rather then into the people's treasury. If the custom duties are removed one means of reasing revenue proposed by the Farmer's platform is to impose a tax of one mill on every dollar of land value or, sufficient to secure a state income of eighteen million dollars The income and inheritance tax can be made sources of revenue to a greater extent than at present

Interesting Program

Other speakers who followed Mr Cowan, all of them declaring their unfailing alegience to the new party were Mrs. F. Webster, who is a pleasing and fluent talker, showing a

TO BE REPORTED ON BY CITY ENGINEER PARSONS.

Ald. Edgar drew the Board of Works' attention last night to a danger spot at the corner of Charlotte and George streets, north-west corner. The curve of the street railway at this point does not leave room for a motor and street car to pass in safety. On Ald. Edgar and McIntye's motion the city engineer was instructed to report on the advisability of cutting two feet off the sidewalk at this corner.

Ald. Turner drew attention to another danger spot north side of Charlotte street, between Park and Downie. Citizens complain of lack of room for a street car and other vehicles to pass at this spot. This went to the engineer to report.

CASE SETTLED OUT OF COURT

ARTHUR STENSON AND JOSEPH FONTAINE REACH AN AMICIABLE AGREEMENT.

The case of Arthur Stenson v. Jos Fontaine was settled before it came up before the court by the defendant agreeing to pay $150 full settlement of the claim, which amounted in all to $151.90. As this was the only jury case that had not come up for hearing the jurymen, who were not engaged in the case of Edgar Burnham v. Hilda Ackerman, were allowed to go home at a quarter to five last night. Moore and Wearing represented Stenson and Gordon and O'Brien were for Fontaine.

TELEGRAPH MEN OFFER TERMS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, June 13.—The first steps towards a settlement of the nation-wide strike of commercial telegraphers were taken today when officials of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America submitted to the Postal Telegraph Company the conditions upon which an agreement could be based. The conditions, in effect, provide that the strike would be called off so far as the Postal is concerned, if that company will agree to a wage adjustment immediately after the full control has peen given the company fy the administration.

FRANK M'CULLOUGH WALKED TO THE GALLOWS SMILING

Execution Took Place This Morning—Doomed Man Prayed for Himself and Pastor—Riotous Crowds Surrounded Jail Since Midnight.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, June 13.—Frank McCullough, the Otsego, N. Y., County farm lad, was hanged at the jail this morning for the murder of Detective Williams. A demonstration of sympathisers and curious people continued all night outside the jail where the execution took place, between midnight and 2 a.m. the crowds were quite [illegible]. Reserves of mounted and foot police were called out, for it was feared that an attempt might be made to rescue the condemned man. In the rush that followed the arrival of the police one mounted constable was knocked from his horse with a brick. Several arrests were made.

Went to Death Smiling

The execution took place at 7.57 a.m. and the jail officials state that McCullough went to his death with a smile on his face, calmly praying for himself and for the chaplain, Rev. Bertram Nelles, who attended him during his incarceration.

Frank McCullough, whose real name according to his statement two days ago was Ward Fey Swart, was born in Otsego County, near Coopertown, New York.

On November 19, last while being arrested in a livery stable he shot and killed acting Detective Frank Williams. A sentence of death to take place of May 2nd was pronounced, January 23, by Mr. Justice Rose. The condemned man ,however, escaped from jail, April 15, and a stay of execution was made by the Governor General until Monday. McCullough was recaptured in Toronto near the scene of the murder, on May 18.

Interest in the case has been widespread and scores of petitions were made to have the sentence commuted to penal servitude for life.

Vera De Lavelle, McCullough's sweetheart, convicted of assisting him to escape, herself escaped from the same jail recently and is still at large

AUTO COLLISION CASE IS AIRED IN COUNTY COURT

Edgar Burnham is Suing Mrs Charles Ackerman For Damage to His Car—Hearing Still in Progress.

The case of Edgar Burnham vs. Mrs. Chas. Ackerman began yesterday evening in the County Court The plaintiff is suing for $1000 and $10 a day rental on account of damages sustained by his automobile in a collision on June 11, 1918. G. N. Gordon appeared for the plaintiff, and S. T. Medd for the defendant.

Colonel Mills, who lives at the corner of Hunter and Park streets, where the accident occurred, examined the injured car immediately after it had been hit. The front wheels were badly bent, and one of the rear wheels had been forced upon the sidewalk.

Alexander Kay, who lives at 420 Donegal Street, near the scene of the accident heard the crash and went over to the corner immediately He saw the plaintiff's car partly on the sidewalk and Mrs. Ackerman's car was backing away His evidence was supported by Nigel Phelan who was with him on the verandah at the time.

Harold Wilbur, 15 years old, was standing at the corner at the time and saw the two autos come together. Mrs Ackerman, he said, was going west on Hunter street and appeared to be a little on the south side. She tried to turn the corner to avoid hitting the other car which was going south on Park Street but couldn't succeed, with the result that her car struck Mr Burnham's car. He could not say whether Mrs. Ackerman sounded her auto horn or not.

Herbert Bradbury, also 15 years old ,said that he saw the two automobiles approaching eachother and noticed that Mrs. Ackerman tried to turn south on Park Street and then put on the brakes just before the collision took place. An attempt was made to straighten the front wheels of Burnham's car and then it was towed away.

Waltr Peters, the official weather expert for Peterborough, stated that there was no rain on the 11th of June 1918. On the 12th of June, there was a rainfall of one-third inch, at 9 p.m.

"What do you call dampness?" enquired defendant's counsel.

"A few drops of which I would take no record."

"Is it possible that there might be a shower which was not marked in your book?"

"Yes, it is quite possible.

Dr. Matthew Morrison was then called by Mr. Gordon.

"What did you first observe concerning the accident?" enquired the plaintiff's council.

"I saw Mrs. Ackerman backing her car away from Mr. Burnham's car which was partly on the sidewalk."

Mr S. R. Armstrong was the next witness called by the plaintiff's counsel He submitted the city's by-laws which govern the street traffic.

"What was the position of the Burnham car when you saw it" enquired Mr. Gordon.

"It was smashed up against the pavement but was still standing.

"What did Mrs. Acnerman do after the accident?"

"She drove to Mrs Knight's and then turned around."

"Did Mrs. Ackerman sound the horn?"

"No, I didn't hear it."

There was considerable altercation between the opposing counsel, Mr. Gordon claiming that the defence counsel was trying to intimidate his witness, and Mr. Medd made some remarks in an undertone to which Mr. Gordon objected.

J. J. Duffus swore that he had offered Mr Burnham $55 for the wrecked car but would not swear, on cross examination by Mr. Medd, that this was the value of the car

"Were you told not to allow any of the defendan't agents to inspect the car in your garage?"

"No."

"What does the $55 refer to?"

"It refers to the damaged parts only."

"What was the damage to the body?"

"The body was dinged and the doors bent"

"Could these dinges have been taken out"

"Partly"

"Would you contradict expert machinists who say that it could be fixed entirely?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"Because I have never seen it done."

"Did you tell Mr. Burnham that a new body was necessary?"

"Yes, if he wanted it in as good shape as at first.

"Are you aware that this same car was in a wreck with a street car the day before?"

"Yes, I had heard something of it."

"How much of the body was dam-

SURVIVAL OF THE MIGHTY

Mr. H. B. Cowan, who is a recognized authority on economic questions, stated in an address to the farmers of South Victoria, last night, that since the inauguration of Protection over forty years, ago, the tendency has been toward a centralization of business enterprises. The big concerns are taking over the smaller enterprises and in this Mr. Cowan discerns monopoly.

Beyond all question, Mr. Cowan is right but to what extent can the tariff be held responsible for these conditions? The same prevail in free trade England. They are noted too, in industries that enjoy no measure of protection whatever, the newspaper business for example. At frequent intervals there are records of the fact that papers in various centres have amalgamated, the invariable argument used being the claim that all such union of forces makes for increased efficiency.

TAXES ON THE LAND

Do the farmers of Canada ever pause to consider what this theory of raising taxes by imposts on the land will mean if carried out to its logical conclusion? Every farmer would in time really become a tenant of the State, the taxes on his holdings amounting to a yearly rental. It may be necessary to devise new methods of raising revenue but the land tax theorists have not really solved the problem. The farmers of Ontario had a taste of direct tax during the war when a levy of one mill on the dollar was exacted. The removal of that tax was welcomed. One mill on the dollar placed on the value of the farm lands of Canada, would it is estimated produce a yearly revenue of $18,000,000, which, after all would be only a drop in the bucket since the enormous war debt has been incurred. The land tax would be increased year after year beyond a doubt just as has been done with the income and other special taxes. Eventually the freeholders among the farmers would find themselves in the position of tenants and the actual tenants would have the rent raised on them to such a figure that they would be unable to carry on.

VICTOR HUGO'S PROPHECY

Victor Hugo, the illustrious French poet, took a great interest in the political life of France.

The armistice conditions imposed upon Germany by Marshal Foch, including the occupation by the Allies of the entire left shore of the Rhine and the four bridgehead cities—Treves, Mayence, Cologne and Coblenz—recall the speech made by Victor Hugo on March 1, 1871 before the National Assembly a speech full of prophetic vision. He said:

"From now on there will be in Europe two dangerous nations the one because victorious, the other because vanquished.

"Of these two nations, one the victorious Germany, will gain an empire, accompanied by servitude, a military yoke, the brutishness of the barrack; military discipline to the very soul, a parliament tempered by incarceration of the speakers.

"That nation, the victorious nation, will have an emperor or military manufacture, as well as by 'divine' right, the Byzantine Caesar combined with the Germanic Caesar. The sabre will be her sceptre free speech will be muzzled, free thought strangled, conscience, on its knees; there will be no free tribune, no free press. There will be darkness.

"The other, the vanquished nation will have the light.

"Oh, the hour will strike, and we feel prodigious revenge approaching. Already we hear the great steps of our triumphant future marching in history. From to-morrow France will have but one thought to gather herself together, to repose in the fearful reverie of despair regain her forces, regenerate, become again the great France, the France of '92, the France of the idea and the France of the sword!

"And one day, suddenly, she will rise again; she will be formidable. And with one big leap she will retake Lorraine, retake Alsace. Is this all? No. No! She will seize—hear—me—she will seize Treves, Mayence, Cologne Coblenz."

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

(London Free Press)

The Middlesex County Council has progressed in [illegible] the barbarian practice of killing criminals to the extent of advocating the use of the electric chair [illegible] of the gallows. We use the word "progressed" [illegible] doubt, for while the chair may seem more [illegible] is really as diabolical a contraption as ever [illegible] and trapdoor. The real progress which the Council indicates is a repulsion toward the whole thing. [illegible] courage to give full effect to its conviction.

Oddly enough, this idea of taking human life as punishment for crimes committed is more strongly emphasized in North America than in Europe. One would have thought that in this free and abundant atmosphere we would have had greater regard for life than is the case, say, in Austria, where the populace is crowded and a fit breeding ground for criminality. The fact is that every year more men are put to death in the United States than in all the other Christian countries combined. In one year just previous to the war 128 men were executed in the United States. England ranked second with 27. France third with 12. Austria put two to death.

Thirty of the thirty two death penalty nations use decapitation, a method of death which is so mercifully quick that the eye is unable to follow it. That it works absolutely without pain was attested by an experiment conducted in Algiers in 1853 by M. Bonnafont. The heads of two Arab victims were caught as they fell, the necks swiftly dipped into pulverized gypsum to stanch the blood and after scarifications had been quickly made with a lancet upon the cheeks the names of the two Arabs were shouted into their ears with a trumpet, but "the countenance relapsed into a fixed immobility coldly expressionless and impassive in death."

Thirty-five of the forty-six American states employ the gallows, which it has been proved prolongs the victim's death agonies to an average of 11.15 minutes. The figure is from the records of Dr. Alonzo Calkins who in 1873 made public these figures, based on 65 hangings.

Deaths by strangulations, 58. per cent.
Severe contortions, 23; moderate 14; feeble 18; chest heavings, 8.
Broken neck: Evident, 6; partial, 4; doubtful, 7.
Average fall, 7¾ feet.
Cord broke at eight hangings.

Even the Turkish bowstring and the Spanish garotte and more humane than gallows, urged Dr. Calkins. In the history of the gallows are scores of cases in which the victims, cut down after six or seven minutes have been restored to life.

The death penalty has been abolished in the following countries:

Italy, abolished in 1889.
Portugal, abolished in 1867.
Switzerland, no executions since 1879.
Holland, abolished in 1870.
Tuscany, abolished in 1859.
Roumania abolished in 1864.
Belgium, no executions since 1863.
Venezuela.
Eucador.
Costa Rica.
Eleven states of the German Empire.
Michigan, Maine, Rhode Island, Kansas, and Wisconsin.

Perhaps some day people in Canada will take a similar view of capital punishment and will abolish it.

A LIBERAL'S DOUBT

(Brantford Expositor, Liberal-Unionist)

A pretty fair illustration of what free trade in agricultural implements would mean to this city was afforded last evening at the luncheon tendered by the Brantford Rotary Club to Mr. Lloyd Harris. One of the guests present was the representative of an Illinois firm manufacturing a certain line of agricultural implements. When he was called upon to speak this gentleman stated that the house he was connected with had long been contemplating locating in Canada and now had Brantford in view, but their coming here depended on the tariff. In other words, it depended on whether Sir Thomas White gave the Canadian Market sufficient protection to make it desirable for American makers of agricultural implements to locate here. The incident is significant. Free trade, or its equivalent, in agricultural implements may mean that the Canadian farmer will save a few dollars in the purchase of his implements, but it will certainly mean that goods which we can make in Brantford and other Canadian manufacturing centres will be made in the United States, that there will be less employment for our workmen and a lessened home market for our farmers. It may be possible to build up a great country in such a manner, but the Expositor doubts it.

KINGSTON BOY LOSES HIS LIFE

DROWNED IN ETOBICOKE WHILE VISITING FRIENDS NEAR TORONTO.

Toronto, June 12. — Taking a plunge just before retiring for the night, Frederick Henderson of Kingston, a seventeen year-old lad, visiting his brother in Etobicoke township, stepped off a leddge in the Etobicoke creek into ten feet of water and was drowned. The lad had gone out alone, and it was not until he was missed from the house that a search was made and his clothes discovered on the bank.

Young Henderson was unable to swim, but the place he had chosen for his plunge had every appearance of being shallow. A few feet out, however, the water deepened suddenly.

The body was taken from the water yesterday.

TO-DAY'S STORY

Among the many distinguishing traits of Charles Dickens was his inability to prepare manuscripts which could be read with any accuracy of pleasure by the unfortunate compositors assigned to "set" them. James Howard, a former compositor in the printing house which published Dickens' "Edwin Drood," found occasion recently to make some remarks on the subject.

"His writing was just impossible," says Mr. Howard. "We did the best we could with the manuscript that came along. We used to hold long discussions as to the meaning of some mark on his copy and often we could not decipher it and had to make a guess. The proofs were sent to him and he used to tear them to shreds. When the corrected proofs came back they were in a worse state than his original copy. Dickens had corrected them beyond recognition. It was obvious that he could not read his own writing for the changes he made were nothing like the original.

"Dickens used to write some very sarcastic comments on our work, but fortunately we were not always able to decipher even those."

CLEANLINESS IS HEALTH

By the use of Gillett's Lye, house cleaning is made a pleasure instead of a drudgery. It softens the water and cleans thoroughly whether the dirt is visible or invisible. Destroys all bacteria and infectious germs, removes obstructions from drain pipes, closets, sinks, etc. Refrigerators are made delightfully fresh and clean by using one teaspoonful of Gillett's Lye dissolved in two gallons of water.

BOY SCOUTS ACROSS THE BORDER

A small, dirty, ragged boy, very tired but with an independent and defiant air, walked into the headquarters of Chicago's Boys' Brotherhood Republic at 839 South Ashland boulevard one night about four years ago. Under one arm he carried a small bundle—his clothes, he said.

"Say," he demanded, "I want a place to sleep and something to eat. What do you say? Can you fix me up, or are you gonna kick me out?"

Then followed such a tale of adventure and hardship and trouble as would have made even the celebrated and hardened Capt. Kidd shudder.

"I'm an orphan, an' I'm glad of it. I'm tough, and I know it. Haven't got any friends and don't want any.

"I've been ridin' freight trains and beggin' food at back doors and I don't care who knows it." The boy lighted a cigarette "butt" with a borrowed match and went on.

Bobby Gets "Fixed Up."

"My mother and father died when I was a kid (from his appearance he could not have been more than 13 then) and I've been bumming around the country ever since. I'm broke now and you birds gotta' fix me up. If you don't you're a bunch of cheap skates."

Jack Robbins, supervisor of the Boys' Brotherhood Republic, which is a municipality complete in boydom, gave the boy a room, the price of breakfast, and some clean clothes. The boy accepted the favors sullenly. He thanked Robbins, but his thanks were a matter of routine and evidently not real gratitude.

The republic's city fathers met to decide what ought to be done about the boy. He was such a braggart and so self-satisfied that they decided something must be done right away to "wake him up." A committee was named to investigate the various stories the boy told.

Result:

The boy, whose name is Robert Brown, more generally known as Bobby, is now living with his parents in Chicago. The orphan story was a fabrication. He has a splendid job, earning close to $25. a week; never smokes or swears, and above all is one of three candidates for mayor of Main City, Boys' Brotherhood Republic, with a splendid chance of being elected on June 14. This position in the republic is a particularly enviable one in that the road to eligibility is extremely long, hard and narrow.

Here's How it Happened.

How did it happen?

It was soon learned that Bobby had run away from his home in Louisville to "see the world and make a fortune." His parents were found by the republic. They moved to Chicago and took Bobby under their wing. But the change for the better was effected long before his parents arrived. Continued association with boys who observed strict discipline and who invariably frowned on Bobby's smoking and swearing and other petty faults finally had its effect and Bobby began to improve.

There was no preaching to Bobby. There was no recognized rules to abide by. It was a sort of unwritten law that the boys lived up to and the influence won Bobby over.

Too Strong Opponents.

Bobby has as his opposing candidates for mayor two boys who like himself have done a lot of work for the republic. Former Councilman Jack Dwork is probably his chief opponent. Dwork is a happy, hard working little chap and has a whole lot of friends in the municipality working hard for him.

Then there is Manford Haskell, who as one of a committee of two, went to New York last year to interview Gov. Whitman about commuting the death sentence of Paul Chapman, youthful murderer to life imprisonment. It is generally conceded that the Boys' Brotherhood Republic was in a strong measure responsible for Chapman's sentence being changed.

But Bobby Brown has the distinction of being the first candidate and only candidate for mayor of Main City whose first connection with the Repubic was in the role of "the worst boy."

WIT AND WISDOM

A Soft Answer.

"See here, John!"

"Stone broke. Landlord in the house. Wire me money."

Mr. J. answered.

"Am short myself. Will soon send cheque. A thousand kisses."

Exasperated she wires back.

"Don't bother about money. Gave landlord one of the kisses. He was more than satisfied.

"What! The customers paid for it, Isaac?"

"Yes, Aaron. I put a leedle box on my counter 'for the blind.' And they paid for it."

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

A girl 12 years old has a bright red mark extending from her eye to her ear, which mark was present at birth, her mother states. And just lately another blotch has come near the first mark which adds to the unhappiness of the little girl. What this recent blotch may be is impossible to suggest.

What causes birthmarks? Well, the un romantic truth is that the notion of "marking" is 100 per cent myth.

The wonderful part of it is that so many of us are born without a blemish that nature makes so few mistakes.

There are various remedies available for birthmarks or blemishes of various kinds. Among them are the electric needle in medical or surgical hands, carbon dioxide snow applied by a physician, X-ray treatment and some times surgical treatment.

The special mode of treatment must be determined by the requirements of each individual case. The most difficult birthmarks to eradicate are the port wine stains, but when these are perceptibly elevated above the skin level they are more successfully treated. In nearly every case the appearance may be greatly improved by proper treatment.

Freedom From Hay Fever

"Will you please mention a few places where one might reasonably expect to have freedom from hay fever? J. H."

The American Hay Fever Association (Dr. William Scheppegrell, New Orleans, president) suggests the following places where more or less immunity may be had: Silver Plume, Col.; Covington and Abita Springs, La; Mackinac Island, Mich; Duluth Minn.; the Adirondacks, New York; Eagle's Nest, N.C.; Poconco Mountains, Pennsylvania; Two Rivers, Wis; Alberta, Canada; Muskoka Lake Region, Canada; Moorehead Lake, Maine; Bethlehem, in the White Mountains, N.H.; Albuquerque and Sulphur Springs, N.M.; Roan Mountain, Tennessee; the Green Mountain, Vermont; the Cascade Range, Washington.

Legs

"I would like to know how to reduce the size of my legs. One leg is 16½ inches around the heaviest part of the calf, and the other is 15 inches. I weigh 120 pounds and my body is otherwise slim.

"MISS R. A. I."

The calf of the leg measures 14½ inches in the ideal woman. Wear vertical stripes if you wish to camouflage your perfect calves.

Not to be Repeated

"I recently called in a physician to attend my wife for a severe cold. He wrote a prescription and when I had the prescription filled I found that the bottle was marked "Cannot be refilled without order from physician," or words to that effect. As more than one meaning might be taken from that, and not wishing to do the doctor an injustice I would like to know why such instructions are on the bottle. S. H. G."

A good physician usually prescribes for present conditions, and does not intend the present prescription to be indiscriminately or indefinitely used without his sanction. Hence the non-repeat order.

Summer Resorters At Chemong

The popular resort, Chemong, fast putting on its summer appearance. Many of the cottagers have pruned up for the summer season. There are some new cottages going up. Among them Mr. Geo Kingdon has built a handsome cottage near Mr. A. E. Dixon's and Mr. W. J. Hancock is building near the pavillion. Among those who have opened their cottages for the season are Rev. and Mrs. Gay, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Wolff Buffalo; Mrs. Victor Tully, Mr. and Mrs. Eccles, Give, Penn.; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Burnham, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pattie, Montreal; Dr. and Mrs. McClelland, Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Warner, Mr. and Mrs. James Long and Harvey Long.

Dr. Morgan has purchased the Judge Hayes cottage and is fitting up the grounds which are among the prettiest on the lake. Mr. H. E. Hodene has taken Prof. Ball's cottage for the season and expects to move in shortly. Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hopwood have opened up their beautiful cottage on the island for the season. The I.O.D.E. regular weekly will be held this Friday evening and a very large crowd of the younger people is expected as this dance is the popular weekly event of the season.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally If You Eat Meat Regularly

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

MINIMUM FINE FOR DEFAULTER

YOUNG MAN WHO GAVE HIMSELF UP GETS OFF LIGHTLY.

A young farm hand who appeared this morning before Magistrate Dumble on the charge of bein a defaulter under the Military Service Act, received the minimum fine allowed under the act, $250 and costs. This is the first time that the minimum fine has been imposed in Peterborouh, the magistrate apparently taking the view that as he had voluntarily surrendered himself to the authorities this would be a sufficient punishment. Inspector Harry F. Ward corroborated the prisoner's evidence that he had caused no trouble to the authorities, but had voluntarily given himself up. Mr. O'Brien appeared for the defence and the prosecution was conducted by Crown Attorney Hatton. Five other men who surrendered themselves at Lindsay and adjacent centres within the last ten days have all received the minimum fine as a consequence.

"We will make sure that no defaulter who ignores our warnings to give himself up will stay on his farm," stated Inspector Ward this morning. "An extra gang of five or six men will be placed on the job, and they will give no defaulter much chance to settle in any place. Steps have been taken to have the inspection at the border tightened up, as a result of letters sent by myself and other inspectors, and there is little hope of any young man getting across in the future unchallenged by the special police at the boundary."

BATHING HOUSE VEXED QUESTION

The City's Special Bathing Committee finds it a somewhat difficult task to locate a suitable bathing house site.

The only real acceptable site to all concerned is at the foot of Lake street, but Mrs. A. McDonald objects on the nuisance plea and threatens restraining proceedings.

Chairman Ald. McIntyre of the Bathing Committee, introduced this question into the Board of Works meeting last night, at which all the aldermen, excepting Ald. Crowe, were present and asked for advice. He reported that the alternative site at the foot of Maria street, across the river, one hundred yards north of the C.P.R. bridge, is objected to by the Playgrounds Association as being too distant from south city. It had been proposed were this site approved, to run a rustic bridge from the end of this street to an island in the river.

Other sites advanced were opposite Simcoe street, across the river, access thereto being secured by way of the Quaker Oats [illegible] raceway; and the end of Dale avenue, where a rustic bridge could connect the main shore with one of the city's islands north of the C. P. R. bridge.

The Playgrounds Association still advocate the end of Lake street proposition as the best for all concerned, and His Worship contended that Mrs. McDonald would have to prove the bathing house, were it erected there, a nuisance before securing an order for its removal.

Ald. McIntyre here said he would again search the south end for a suitable site before reaching a conclusive report for his committee and the Playgrounds Association.

The Old Home Singers

Everybody loves the songs of Olden Times, and the Old Home Singers have devoted their energies to the rendition of these in a manner that is most fascinating. No item has been neglected to make the setting the very best. They render their songs in old-time costumes. Their voices blend to perfection. Their entire programme is strong and animated, and they will charm all who hear them with the beauty of their performances. No better Company could have been chosen for the opening day of Chautauqua than "The Old Home Singers."

To Make Kingston A Natural Harbor

Kingston, June 12.—Chief Engineer Chapleau of the Department of Public Works, Ottawa, and C. D. Howe, elevator engineer of Port Arthur, are to meet in Kingston and go over the harbor with a view to selecting points best suited for the erection of Government grain elevators in connection with the proposal for making Kingston a national harbor and equipping it as a foot-of-the-lakes terminal for the grain trans-shipping trade when the new Welland Canal is completed. Public Works engineers have completed their plans for proposed deepening of the harbor so as to provide for a 22-foot channel.

Next Monday Mr. Chapleau and Mr Howe are to have a conference with engineers of the G.T.R., C.P.R. and C.N.R. regarding track plans. The recommendation of this board of five engineers will then be made to the Department of Public Works, and if it is adopted the harbor work will proceed at once.

Nicaragua has asked the U.S. to land troops to prevent invasion of that country by Costa Rica. State Department is investigating.

another firm, and now we are as we were, and ready to discuss still another proposition."

The Mayor: "The Leonard Construction Co. should be given a chance to submit their proposition."

Ald. Edgar: "Those people have had an open chance the last six months."

Ald. Phelan concurred in this view, and he and the Mayor measured swords on the question of re-opening the proposition to other tenderers after the contract had been practically let.

His Worship: "Mr. Stuart has spent millions in this town and the Leonard Construction Co., with which he is associated, should be given consideration. Were this firm to get the contract, who knows but what Mr. Stuart would help us out financially in regard to the bridge."

Phelan: "We've given him every consideration. We are building a $300,000 bridge by which the Quaker Oats will be benefited, and Mr. Stuart has not yet offered this city any consideration."

The Mayor: "It's worth while waiting on the Leonard Construction Co. a few days. I'm not going to run my neck into a noose by which I shall lose what little I have by voting for a doubtful contract."

Will Meet Mr. Hadsall.

On motion of Ald. Hamilton and the Mayor, Mr. Stuart will be notified that the Board will be pleased to meet Mr. Hadsall and hear his proposition, Thursday or Friday, next week, or earlier if convenient.

Will Rest a Few Days.

The Mayor mvoed, seconded by Ald. Turner, that the Russell-Townsend Co. be informed that the provision in the Board's former resolution regarding protection of members of the Council is illegal, and that that matter will rest for a few days. Carried.

Ald. Hamilton and His Worship moved that Ald. Edgar's resolution to strike out the protection of aldermen guarantee rider be rescinded, and that the resolution awarding the contract to the Russell-Townsend Company stand as it was, with the rider embodied. Carried.

Ald. Hamilton, in support of this motion, contended that when informing the contractors of the illegality of the resolution awarding them the contract, the resolution should remain intact, without any elimination whatever.

It should be noticed that the resolution awarding the contract to the Russell-Townsend people, with the objectionable rider attached, still remains in the Board's minutes, awaiting goodness knows what!

MISS TOMPKINS ASKS FOR RECRUITS FOR THE FARMS

Girls and Young Women Will Be Paid Minimum Wage of $9 a Week and Can Earn Nearly Double That Amount.

Yesterday afternoon at the Y.W.C.A. the girls of the High School and senior girls of the Public School were addressed by Miss Tompkins, district secretary of the Ontario Government Public Employment Bureau. Miss Tompkins, with the assistance of films, outlined conditions in the fruit districts of Niagra, Winona, Grimsby, Bronte, Clarksons and Jordan Harbor. The crops in those places are promising and the need of pickers is urgent. Many of the Y.W.C.A. camps are situated directly on the lake and none at any great distance from the water so that the location is ideal for a few weeks' recreation were it nothing more. Swimming and acquatic sports are encouraged, and the "Y" makes special provision for activities suited to the camp, consequently the community life is very pleasant.

With regard to wages, a minimum wage of -9 per week will be paid each girl. This, however, depends on the manner in which each picker adapts herself to the work and if the weather conditions are favorable she has an opportunity of earning as high as $15 or -16 per week. Any girl who wishes time off loses the rate per hour of that time. Each girl begins work at 7 in the morning and quits at 5 in the afternoon. The Y.W.C.A. will furnish good substantial meals for the very moderate sum of $4.50 per week.

The strawberry season will begin on June 20th with raspberries on July 20th, and other small fruits following.

Miss Tompkins explained that those of the girls who could spare only a few weeks would have a healthful holiday, while those who could spare more time would have a substantial sum at the end of the season.

FIELD NIGHT FOR ODDFELLOWS

It was field night last evening for the members of the Otonabee and Peterborough Lodges of Oddfellows and the occasion will long be remembered as one of the most successful functions of the kind ever held in this city.

A committee, consisting of D.D.G.M., J. S. Londreville, A. A. Fowler, T. C. Elliot, Col. J. W. Walker and W. E. Corrie, went to the G. T. R. station at 5:35 to welcome Grand Master Rev Walter Cox, who arrived from Toronto. After a trip around the city in Mr. Fowler's car, during which the visiting official was shown the various points of interest, the party dined together at the Empress Hotel.

Proceeding to the lodge room, they met a large audience, which included the members of Millbrook Lodge No. 308, the members of which conferred the military degree upon eight candidates.

After this ceremony, N. G. of Peterborough Lodge, H. Carter, placed the lodge in the hands of D.D.G.M. Londreville, who announced the names of the veteran members, those in good standing for the past twenty-five years, who were presented with veterans' jewels by Grand Master Cox. The veterans were as follows: Bros. J. W. Miller, S. R. Armstrong, D. Yarnold, H. W. Morgan, J. T. C. Laing, J. T. Tucker, W. B. Bletcher, F. E. Derrick, H. W. Watts, F. Pakenham, J. McCabe, R. J. Huffman, F. W. Parks, F. D. Mackay, R. M. Armstrong, C. C. Brown, J. Edgecumbe, W. E. Wesley, Hugh Regan, E. B. Clegg, W. J. Squires, G. B. VanBlaricom.

After the presentation, Grand Master Cox delivered an address on The Centennial Endowment.

A banquet followed, and after the end of the tempting bill-of-fare had been reached, D.D.G.M. Londreville proposed the health of the King. This was responded to by the singing of the National Anthem. The other toasts were as follows:

"Returned Men," proposed by Rev. F. E. Mallott and responded to by Capt. Morrison.

"The Grand Lodge," proposed by D.D.G.M. Londreville and responded to by G. M. Cox.

"The Veteran Members," proposed by Ward Patterson and responded to by S. R. Armstorng.

"The Visiting Brethren," proposed by Col. J. W. Miller and responded to by N.G. Arthur Vance, of Millbrook Lodge.

The proceedings came to a close at an early nour in the morning by the singing of the National Anthem.

Three Review Editors.

Three of the veteran Oddfellows who received jewels last night as a symbol of their long and honorable membership, S. R. Armstrong, F. D. Mackay, and G. B. VanBlaricom, were in the order named editors of The Review. Messrs. Armstrong and Mackay have reformed, but Mr. VanBlaricom, according to latest reports, is still pursuing the same reckless career, being at present on the editorial staff of Maclean's Magazine in Toronto.

FLURRY IN WAR SAVING STAMPS

BUDGET SPEECH IN PARLIAMENT HAS INCREASED DEMAND FOR THEM.

(Toronto Star.)

Quite a considerable flurry is reported in the sales of War Saving Stamps and Bonds, during the last few days. This is evidently directly attributable to the bringing down of Sir Thomas White's budget and the last rise in Victory Bonds.

Of untaxable bonds these are by far the best security on the market, and pay a slightly greater interest than 1923 maturity Victory Bonds, bought at the prevailing market.

The general bond buying public are unquestionably beginning to realize that this security with its earning power on a par or slightly greater than other Government bonds, is as desirable in every way, as any other bond which the public has been asked to support. The highest efficiency possible has been developed in the buying and redeeming facilities. For instance—a buyer for a $50 bond presented himself at the W.S.S. wicket in the General Post-office, and within three minutes and thirty seconds he was possessor of a fully registered W. S. S. certificate. This same buyer, if he wished, would be able to have this bond redeemed in slightly less time. It is therefore quite safe to say that no other security on the market can present anything like the same ease of negotiation.

The National War Savings Committee, through their local or Central Ontario headquarters at 43 Victoria st., are at the disposal of the public for all information pertaining to War Savings stamps and certificates.

Police in civilian clothes are guarding New York public buildings and prominent persons against new bomb outrages.

TELL THE WORLD THIS WOMAN SAYS

That Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made Me a Well Woman.

Los Angeles, Cal.—"I suffered with female troubles for years, was sick most of the time, was not able to do my own housework, and I could not get help from doctors. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the newspapers, and took six bottles, and am a well woman. You can use my name to tell the world the good your medicine has done me as I shall praise it always."—Mrs. A. L. DeVine, 647 St. Paul Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif.

Women who suffer from any form of weakness, as indicated by displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, backache, headaches, nervousness or "the blues," should do as Mrs. DeVine did, and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a thorough trial.

For over forty years this famous remedy, which contains the curative strengthening properties of good old fashioned roots and herbs, has been correcting just such ailments. If you have mysterious complications write for advice to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

HENRY HUGHES PROVED ALIBI ON SECOND SHOOTING CHARGE

Mr. Joseph Wearing, His Attorney, Secures Acquittal of Defendant in Both Cases Against Him.

Henry Hughes was yesterday afternoon acquitted by the jury on the charge of shooting at Arnold Mason on March 25, 1919.

Were the marks on a small fruit basket which was produced in court caused by shot or sharp twigs? This was the question put to Clifford Felion by Mr. Jos. Wearing, the counsel for the defence in the case of the Crown vs. Henry Hughes, who was on trial on the charge of shooting at Arnold Mason with intent to maim, disable or disfigure him. The witness admitted that the marks might have been made by twigs as well as by shots.

Mrs. Vina Storm, who was called on by County Crown Attorney Hatton, swore that while she was going to Hughes' house she heard two or three shots, and shortly after she arrived Henry Hughes came in with a gun. Mrs. Hughes swore that on March 25 her husband was ill in bed and was unable to go out for several days afterwards, and that the visit of Mrs. Storm took place about two weeks before March 25.

Fred. Greenwood swore 'that on March 18 Hughes had told him to quit cutting wood and said that if Clifford Felion came to cut wood he would get his medicine.

A second basket was produced by the defence and Isaac Puffer told the court that it showed the effect of one charge of shot fired at 30 feet. This basket was very badly riddled whereas the first basket, which was carried by Arnold Mason on the night of March 25, was only scored in a couple of places. Isaac Puffer also told about his examination of the gun owned by Henry Hughes. He found it in a very rusty condition on May 29, and judging from appearancer he would say that it had not been fired for several months.

Henry Hughes was the last one to be examined. He swore that he was unable to leave the house on March 25 or for several days afterwards on account of sickness.

His Honor, Judge Huycke ,in his charge to the jury, said: "I want you to remember that this is not a civil action. It would have been much better if the parties had brought their differences before a law court for settlement. Lynch law may be right at times, but do every time they are right they are probably wrong a great number of times. It is not a matter to be lightly considered, for if such things are not kept down no man's life would be safe. Pleasant or unpleasant you must do your duty. Sometimes jurors for fear of revenge regard it as expedient to acquit rather than convict.

'The chief evidence is that of Mason. If you believe his evidence you must convict the prisoner. In regarding evidence you must look at the motive. The question is, 'Has Mason any motive for giving such evidence against the prisoner.' If there is no motive, and I can see no motive nor has any motive been suggested, then you must accept his evidence. It is not material whether the shot went through the basket or missed it altogether. The community must be taught that disputes of this kind must be settled in proper courts or it is very doubtful what this country will come to.

"The young man, Greenwood, said that Felion was to come himself and he would get his medicine. This must be considered, as an evidence of ill-will. For the defence an alibi is urged, and the condition of the gun was mentioned. There is no evidence to show just when the gun was last fired. There is the evidence of the defendant and that of Mrs. Storm who could not swear who fired the shots that she heard one evening. With regard to the defendant he is now on trial on a serious charge and is an interested party, and it is your duty to decide whether he and his wife are telling the truth. I am going to ask you to give this case your serious consideration and not pass your verdict lightly."

After being out for nearly an hour and a half the jury brought back their verdict of not guilty. On the application of Mr. Wearing, the counsel for the accused, Henry Hughes was allowed to go by Judge Huycke, who first pointed out to him in forceful language that the result of similar actions by him would mean immediate imprisonment.

The members of the jury were: Allen M. Payne, H Archambault, Alex. Millage, R. C. McQuaig, Andrew Knox, G. W. Robinson, Bert Cunningham, William Adams, W. A. Nelson, D. H. Curtis, Jos. H. Bennett and C. Plunkett.

Y.M.C.A. HONOR ROLL

As a complete list of Y. M. C. A. members who enlisted is not available, the Association is asking the citizens to send in the names of those of their household who were members at the time of enlistment or who had transferred their membership to a branch of the Y.M.C.A. in another city. The blank is provided in order to secure information required. A prompt response is requested as it is desired to have the Honor Roll installed as soon as possible.

It is also suggested that friends of members who enlisted fill in a number of blanks. Duplicates will be eliminated, and a complete list should be the result.

PREPARING FOR DECORATION DAY

ROADS IN LITTLE LAKE CEMETERY TO BE OILED.

Mr. E. H. D. Hall, for the Little Lake Cemetery Co., asked the Board of works last evening for the privilege of purchasing at cost from the city a load of road oil with which to oil the roads in the Little Lake Cemetery, the company also to pay the cost of laying on the oil.

Mr. Hall pointed out that it is the intention to use this oil as soon as possible before Decoration Day, June 22nd, when thousands of citizens will visit the cemetery.

On motion of Ald. Hamilton and Turner this request was granted.

AUTO COLLISION

"I don't know."

"What did the injury consist of "

"They wouldn't shut properly "

"Did Mr. Burnham tell you to put a new door and body on the car?"

"Quite likely."

Could you have fixed it as good as it was before without putting in new parts?"

"No."

"Are you positive that damage was due to second accident?"

"Pretty Sure."

Constable Boyd was the next witness. He noticed a sixty foot burn on the pavement at the scene of the accident. It went straight up Hunter street. There had been a slight shower just before the accident occurred.

"What did Mr. Burnham say about it?" enquired defendant's counsel.

"He said to leave it there."

"Did he say anything else "

"He said he wanted a new car."

"Was any remark made by plaintiff as to who had right of way?"

I don't remember.

William R. Macintosh was then called.

"Did you go to Mrs. Ackerman's ar to get a report?" enquired Mr. Gordon

"Yes, I told her she was on the wrong side of the street."

"Did you ask her about the accident?"

"Yes, she said she didn't see the other car in time?"

Mr. Medd then cross-examined him.

"Are you sure that the lady was Mrs. Ackerman "

"Yes."

"Is there any thing to show from the skid whether she was going to turn or not?"

"If she was goin to turn south she would have hugged the other corner."

Police Sergeant Blade was called and the defence took exception to the witness being questioned concerning the breaking of the city by-law. He stated that it was almost impossible to steer a car if the front radius rods were broken. According to his evidence, Mr. Burnham had the right of way. A car on which both brakes are not working is no more out of order than hundreds than run up and down George street every day. He thought that Mrs. Ackerman should have used all her power to avoid an accident.

"I have had a great deal of evidence recently that proved that witnesses were wrong in estimating the speed of cars,"remarked the Judge in a dispute between the counsel concerning the speed of the plaintiff's car. Sergeant Blade further estimated that a car travelling twelve miles an hour would stop within 12 feet, even on a wet pavement.

If Mrs. Ackerman's car had been travelling fast what would have happened to the Ford car?"

"I don't think it would have been there "

On re-examination by Mr. Jordon he said that if Mrs. Ackerman had kept on the proper side of Hunter street it was not likely that the accident would have occurred.

William Duffus stated that Mr. Burnham left the car in the Duffus Garage with orders to make whatever repairs he thought were necessary. He admitted that he had received orders from Mr. Burnham to not permit any outsider to examine the car without the order of the judge. Two fenders, a running board and one metal shield were put on the car after the first accident.

"Could the car have been put in as good a condition as it was before the second accident?"

"No, I don't think so."

Just before the court adjourned for lunch the counsel for the plaintiff announced that the claim was reduced by one dollar, as it appeared that there was a charge for straightening an exle as well as one for a new one The time that would be lost in considering the legality of the item will be worth more than one greenback.

wonderfud grasp of the political situation of the day and who urged the women of the riding to use the franchise; Mr. John Mitchel, Mr. Robert Reid, Mr. M. J Clancey, Mr. Harry Lamb and Mr. W. H. Kennedy. The two last mentioned are rated as manufacturers, Mr. Lamb being in the tannery business in Omemee and Mr. Kennedy the owner of a sawmill in the same village. Both expressed themselves in accord with the new movement and Mr. Lamb as good as promised to vote for Mr. Sandy.

An excellent musical program was furnished by local talent to piano accompaniment. There was a solo by Mr Isaac Lucas, a solo by Miss Rena Curtis, a duet by Miss L. E. Parsons and Mrs. Corrill, a solo by Miss Laidly and a solo by Miss Webster, daughter of the talented lady speaker of the evening.

Dainty refreshments were served and after Mr. Sandy had thanked the audience for their attendance the gathering broke up at a late hour with the singing of the National Anthem. "For he's a jolly good fellow," and cheers for the candidate.

TO RETAIN THE CITY'S RIGHTS

BUILDINGS IN MANY CASES ARE ENCROACHING ON CITY STREETS.

Mr. E. H. D. Hall, late solicitor, drew the city's Board of Works's attention last evening to the fact that many buildings are encroaching on the streets and suggested action being taken to prevent such property reverting to citizens under squatter's rights.

On motion of Ald. Edgar the Legal Committee was instructed to investigate all cases of people using the ends of streets or other portions of city property, where leases have expired or where no leases exist; and to have leases an dagreements drawn up and signed so as the city's rights to such properties may be retained. The city engineer to furnish the committee the necessary information on this subject.

THEATRICAL

DOUBLE FEATURE BILL AT GRAND

Mr. Blackwell assumes the role of the healthy invalid, who is over-fed, petted to excess, and who really believes he is sick. He had never been allowed to participate in strenuous exercises while in college, but once he violated the parental rule. Unfortunately his mother and father arrived on the athletic field just as the two football teams were stepping from various portions of his body. Mother fell into a dead faint and father was astounded.

Little Bobby Briggs, as he is known, is only six feet tall, weighs about 175 pounds, graduated college with honors, and is continually surrounded by a trained nurse, a physician and a valet. He continues to parry with his attendants until the love of a girl arouses him to real strenuous things and he throws off the mantle of weakness. He starts to whip athletic trainers and pretty soon becomes a veritable strong man. But all this cost his father a million dollars through a little blackmail scheme which was devised by Bobby's sweetheart. When father found out, then it was all right, as he said it was worth a cold million to see little Bobby well and strong as any man.

An added feature is Mae Murray in "The Scarlet Shadow."

Avoid the appearance of evil as the evil itself.

This is the message Mae Murray wants to drive home to young girls in "The Scarlet Shadow," her newest Universal special production.

She is seen as Elna Evans, continually cloistered from the world by a maiden aunt, who maintained that because of an alleged "scarlet strain" in the life of the girl's mother, Elna

Elna sneaks out of her bedroom one night to go to a movie show with a romantic college boy. They have a "perfectly splendid time, winding up with chocolate ice cream sodas at the villaged rug store.

Then Elna has a hard time getting back into her room. The lad crawls in and helps her over the ledge. Then enters Auntie, who jumps at conclusions and thinks the worst, finding a man in Elna's room. The long-looked-for "scarlet strain" has cropped out, she thinks.

After trying to force the collegian to marry Elna, the aunt turns her out in the streets and the whole course of the girl's life is changed.

Thus Elna, blameless and innocent is made to suffer because of circumstantial evidence and the appearance of evil.

Robert Z. Leonard, who has made all of Mae Murray's previous successes, directed "The Scarlet Shadow." In the supporting cast are such notables as Frank Elliott, Ralph Graves, Clarissa Selwynne, Willard Louis, Martha Mattox and J. Edwin Brown.

Sergt. Frank J. Williams, a discharged Canadian soldier, fell unconscious in the street at Pittston, Pa. He had been gassed.

Washington learns Gen. Aguilar, son-in-law of President Carranza, will succeed incumbent as Mexican Ambassador to this country.

PREPARE PLANS FOR ST. PAVING

THIS WORK MAY BE DONE BY DAY LABOR UNDER ENGINEER'S SUPERVISION.

Last evening the city engineer was authorized by the Board of Works to prepare plans and specifications for concrete paving King street, from George to Water, and up Water to Charlotte street, and to invite tenders for the work, the engineer himself also to submit an estimate as to what the work would cost by day labor under his supervision.

As this King street pavement is to be laid, storm drainage will be provided here, and the Wm. Hamilton Co. will be permitted to connect one of their water conductors from the factory with this surface drainage system.

PETES TO PLAY IN BELLEVILLE

GO TO THAT CITY TOMORROW FOR THEIR FIRST GAME.

The Peterborough baseball team go down to Belleville tomorrow morning for their first game with the boys of that city. Manager Jake Solomon requests all members of the team to be on hand at the G.T.R. station not later than 8.10 a.m. Kirm and Swanston will be the local batteries. The game will be called at 2.30, enabling the players and rooters to return from Belleville on the 5.45 p.m.

In City League.

In the City League the next game is on Monday night when the Orientals play the De Lavals. This is the game which was called Tuesday at the end of the fourth innings on account of rain. Manager Solomon intends to give Mulhern, the speed wizard another change against the De Lavals in this game.

There was a mutiny among the marines at Toulon who demand demobilization. They imprisoned their chiefs and turned guns on the city.

The chairman of Railways Brotherhood still hopes to bring about settlement of the strike in Winnipeg. No street cars have been started.

Sporting Gossip

One of the New York scribes said Bob Shawkey, who pitched a not hit game against the White Sox, never had been accused of trickery in pitching. This is not true to fact. Gleason's men contended almost every pitch of Shawkey's was illegal because he blackened the ball.

Babe Ruth has shown great improvement at bat since the early days of the season. He is swatting around the .280 mark and threatens to make trouble for White Sox pitchers, even Cicotte.

The weather man is no friend of the New York Yankees. They have had only three decent days at the Polo grounds this year. The Giants have copped all the choice days, it seems. Col. Huston was expecting a record attendance for the game with the White Sox and his Yanks last Sunday. It was the worst day Gleason has seen in the east.

Eastern writers still insist the White Sox need more pitchers besides Cicotte, Faber and Williams. Yet any other team in the league could use Dick Kerr, the midget southpaw.

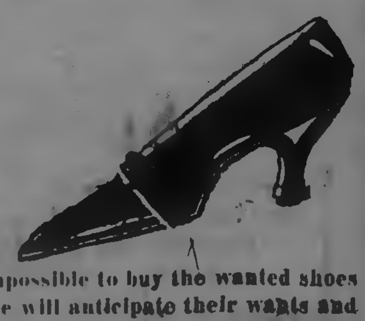
Baseball fans in Washington, hard hit over the showing of the Senators, are murmuring against Griffith and demanding a new manager. As Griff owns about half of the club, he should worry.

They said Eddie Collins had slowed up. He seems to have slowed down much like Cicotte. Eddie has purlointed thirteen sacks this season, is fielding phenomenally and hitting acceptably.

The Vickers' Vimy biplane will probably start this afternoon between three and four o'clock on the overseas trip from Newfoundland.

Columbus Circle is the busiest part of New York City. Forty thousand vehicles pass there in 12 hours.

Meta Trades Department of the A.F. of L. rejected a resolution asking for pardon for Eugene V. Debs.



A SHOE TIP

This isn't a joke about a toe cap or something like that. It's a straight fact that we pass on to our customers. Conditions in the shoe trade were never so bad as they are today. It is not so much the advancing prices, but it is getting impossible to buy the wanted shoes at any price. Wise people will anticipate their wants and secure their immediate and future needs in footwear at once. Many expect to buy shoes before Dominion Day. We advise them not to wait, as sizes may become scarce and they cannot get what they want.

We have exceptionally good bargains in all kinds of holiday and summer shoes, light weight Oxfords and Pumps, in kid or canvas; also all kinds of Tennis Shoes.

POLISH TROOPS HAVE RIGHT TO PASS THROUGH GERMANY

General Foch Warns the Hun Government Tha There Must Be No Interference With This Movement—Germans Say This is Violation of Armistice.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Coblenz, June 14.—An ultimatium demanding the immediate continuation of the movement of Polish troops across Germany has been sent to the German Government by Marshall Foch, according to despatches received here from Spa.

Orders were issued at Berlin several days ago to hold up Polish troop trains. One was held at Coblenz, another at Treves, two at Emia and eight in the interior of Germany. The transfer of Polish troops from France to Poland began about six weeks ago and was due to be complete on June 17. One Berlin despatch received on Friday night stated that Mathias Erzerberger, chairman of the German Armistice Commission, at Spa, had written General Dupont, chief of the French mission in Berlin, declaring Poland intended to distribute two divisions of General Haller's troops along the frontier. It was said that Erzerberger had protested that this was opposed to the terms of the armistice and that unless Poland abandoned her purpose Germany would be compelled to suspend the movement of the Polish army across Germany.

TRAINS AT WINNIPEG ARE RUNNING TODAY AS USUAL

Some Firemen Failed to Show up but Thei' Places Were Filled by Emergency Men

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, June 13—Although the City Council ignored the threat made by the radical element of engineers, firemen's and trainmen's union to join in general at six o'clock last night if an understanding were not give to reinstate the city police the Council's action had no serious consequences for the railway companies. A crew could not be obtained for the Winnipeg train but with the exception of the failure of this train to run to the union depot the railway services were carried out as usual.

Several firemen failed to report for duty on some of the Canadian Pacific Railway trains but their places were filled by men who had been brought up for any such emergency and the trains for east and west got away on schedule time. At the Canadian Pacific Railway Depot it was reported that no attempt at picketing had been made. The emergency men were available to take the place of the few firemen who did not turn up and there was nothing like a crippling of the service. The full effect of the strike will not, however, be known until this afternoon, it was stated in well informed circles. Railroad men believe a majority of the men who had voted to quit work had changed their minds in view of the determined stand taken by high officials of the railway Brotherhoods.

TURKEY'S TURN WILL COME NEXT

WILL HEAR PEACE TERMS WHEN GERMANY'S CASE IS SETTLED.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 14. — The Council of Five continued the work of editing the revised peace treaty this morning at the same time enabling Baron M. A. Kino, the Japanese representative to acquaint himself with the document. The work is nearly completed and it is believed the treaty will go to the Revision Committee late tonight. It is said that it will be printed and ready for delivery to the Germans on Monday or Tuesday. It is the present plan of the Council to renew the consideration of the Austrian terms on Monday. Representatives of Turkey will be received on Tuesday.

CAR TURNED TURTLE.

Young Men Met With Accident on Wey To Chemong.

Four local young men had a bad scare last night when their automobile turned over as they were attempting to pass another car on the road to Chemong. The accident occurred about two miles out of the city and was due to a pile of fresh gravel, which gave the wheel an extra turn as they attempted to pass the other car, and car and occupants were thrown into the ditch. The auto is badly wrecked, but none of the occupants was injured.

STRIKES DELAY SHIPS.

C. M. Bosworth Says Labor Is Chief Problem of Shipping.

Montreal, June 14— Mr. C. M. Bosworth, chairman of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services, who has been over in England for some weeks, returned on the Melita.

"The chief problem connected with shipping on the other side," he said, "is that of labor The strikes are constantly holding up ships and I have just received a cable saying that two of our ships are detained owing to this cause."

NO PERMIT AFTER BUILDING STARTS

No application for a building permit within the city fire limits can be considered by the city engineer's department once the work of building has been commenced" stated Mr R. H. Parsons, the city engineer, today "I have an application in my basket at the present moment for a permit for a building which is already under construction within the fire limit but it will have to go before the next meeting of the City Council."

The Council may either order the building to be removed, as it is a frame structure, or it may take the view that it is right on the edge of the fire limits, within a stone's throw of some old wooden sheds and order that it be covered with a fire-proof paint of some sort and grant a special permit.

Fire Chief Grange is not very enthusiastic over the idea of allowing illegal buildings to receive the sanction of the law, along with a coat of fire-proof paint. In his experience he has not found it to be of much practical value when a fire breaks out. Two other alternatives, one of bricking the building and the other of covering it with galvanised iron sheting would be better.

Fort William policemen have been granted a 10 per cent. increase

NEW FIRM TO BE ORGANIZED TO BUILD HUNTER ST. BRIDGE

Three Practical Bridge Builders of This City to Form Company and Will Tender For the Work—Have Confidence of Union Labor

Wearied beyond the power of patience to endure the delay in letting the contract for the building of the Hunter street bridge, three local contractors have decided to organize a company and will either tender for the work or agree to stand by a local tender that is already in. The members of the proposed new firm all are practical bridge builders. They are, besides, on good terms with labor. One member of the proposed firm was paying 40 and 60 cents an hour for laborers and carpenters twenty years or more ago when that sum represented double the amount if paid today. The new company, the names of the members of which are not given until the organization is completed, will be backed by one of the strongest financial institutions in the city.

Peterborough for Peterborough.

Patriotism has been the cardinal virtue ever since the war began and for many a day to come it will be the mainspring of our action. Self preservation is the first law of nature we are told, and at bottom it is from this law that patriotism springs.

As a nation, we are in favor of Canada for the Canadians and this principle is very aptly applied by a correspondent in another column in which he says, "Peterborough for the Men of Peterborough."

There is no reason on earth why the spirit of local patriotism should not prevail in the placing of the Hunter street bridge contract. Why should it be necessary to get an outside firm to do this work? We do not want even a Toronto firm carrying away profits from here; but as our correspondent points out there is now a Chicago firm after the job. Charity begins at home, as well as patriotism, and we must consider the men who have to pay for the bridge.

In a city of the size of Peterborough it certainly ought to be possible to find a citizen or combination of citizens that could handle this little job to advantage. In the present state of labor unrest, it would be a great achievement for the city to get this contract placed locally with a contractor that has the confidence of the labor organizations; and we are convinced the best way for the Council to secure the whole-hearted support of the entire community is for them to give perference, if possible, to any and every local effort that may be placed before them rather than to a foreign competitor.

BRITISH STAND BY THE LEAGUE

MEETING IN LONDON LAST NIGHT WAS ATTENDED BY THOUSANDS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London June 14.—Campaign to popularize the League of Nations was launched last night by the British League of Nations union Albert Hall was packed with a crowd which was estimated at more than seven thousand persons. Viscount Grey, who received a great ovation when he entered, presided. The principal address was made by Lord Cecil Robert, other speakers being John Robert Clines, former food controller, Dr. Alexander Irving, the Bishop of Canterbury, and Dr. John Clifford. All the speakers dwelt on the necessity for united and zealous popular support to make the league reality and success.

OPERATORS ARE STILL ON STRIKE

RAILROAD TELEGRAPHERS REFUSE TO HANDLE MESSAGES OF OTHER COMPANIES.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, June 14.—The Commercial Telegraphers strike, now on its fourth day, was given valuable assistance according to union officials, through the order, effective today, to railroad telegraphers throughout the contry, to decline to handle messages from the Western Union and Postal Companies. The officials of the Telegraph Companies said the refsal of the railroad operators to handle comercial messages would not interfere materially with wire traffic, as only a small part of their business was handled at the railroad offices.

PROTECT EX-KAISER

Money Sent by League to Cultivate Dutch Press.

Berlin, June 14.—Letters exchanged between officials of the league for the protection of William II., one of which refers to a remittance of 20,000 marks to Holland for the purpose of "cultivating" the Dutch press, are printed by The Socialist Vorwaerts. This sum, this newspaper remarks, is not a considerable one in view of the present state of valuations, but it fears the league must spend considerably more than this on its propaganda, "in view of the determination of the Entente to have the ex-Emperor surrendered."

SPECIAL TRAINS TO TOLEDO FIGHT

THOUSANDS OF VISITORS EXPECTED TO SEE WILLARD-DEMPSEY BOUT

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toledo, Ohio, June 14.—No less than three hundred special trains will be run to Toledo for the heavy weight contest between Jack Dempsey and Jess Willard, on the fourth of July, Tex Richard, promoter of the contest said today. With the contest three weeks away Rickard said hat 147 special trains already have been booked and that he expects at least 150 more. These specials include only the trains considerable distances in United States and Canada. Besides the railroads most of the Lake Steamships Co. are planning to run special boats here and anchor in Maumee Bay.

JURORS SIT IN SHIRT SLEEVES

HOT WEATHER BREEDS DEMOCRACY AT THE COUNTY COURT SESSION.

The case of Burnham vs. Ackerman was still in progress at noon today. All the witnesses have been examined, and S. T. Medd, the defendant's counsel, had just nicely started on his address to the jury.

These twelve good men and true have been on the job since Thursday afternoon, and have not only the heat to contend with but also the memory of the other lucky jurors who were dismissed Thursday. By special permission of the court, the majority have doffed their coats and are chasing the legal intricacies of the case with as much comfort as they can possibly obtain. Their names ere: John McColl, Robt. Walker, R. Ferguson, W. B. Duncan, J. McFarland, David Rose, Chas. Walter, Alex. Tait, Percy Price, W. E. Mackleroid, Robt. Cohen and Thos. O'Brien.

PROTECT FRONTIERS.

Orlando Returns to Discuss Military Precautions.

Paris, June 14.—Premier Orlando of Italy left for home intending to confer with the Parliamentary leaders in secret relative to the work of the Peace Conference and to settle certain urgent questions, notably those concerning military precautions, contemplated on the northern frontier. Gen Diez, commander of the Italian armies, accompanied Premier Orlando, and will be in personal control on the frontier.

ADJOURN HOUSE BY JULY FIRST

SO DECIDED AT CONFERENCE BTWEEN PREMIER AND OPPOSITION LEADER.

Ottawa, June 14.—According to present plans the session will close by Dominion Day. Sir Robert Borden had a conference with D. D. McKenzie, Opposition leader, and it was agreed to start morning sittings next Tuesday and Saturday sittings a week from tomorrow. With morning and Saturday sittings work is fairly gobbled up and there seems no reason why Parliament should not wind up by the end of the month. Outside of possible labor legislation, the result of the recommendations of the Mathers Commission there will be no more important measures introduced.

The Highways Bill is certain to be dropped. A deputation representing the Good Roads Association of Ontario waited on Hon. Dr. Reid and other Ministers, but did not meet much comfort. The Ministers told them that they favored the measure, but the opposition was so strong within the Government ranks that it was almost useless to press the bill. The opposition is largely from the Maritime Province and Western members. The far easterners are afraid of the bill because they claim the Eastern Provincial Governments would only use it as a political club. The Westerners are opposed to it because they want branch railways, not highways. The chief support comes from Ontario and Quebec

And Engineer Hilliard Pery Suffers a Broken Leg.

Mr. Hilliard Perry, a G. T. R. engineer, had his leg broken in an accident near Gamebridge yesterday. He was in charge of an extra coming down from Midland, when, owing to a spread rail, his engine left the tracks.

Engineer Perry was taken to the Ross Memorial Hospital at Lindsay, in which town he had been stationed for about a month. The auxiliary was sent to clear up the wreckage.

Joe Tallion of Cobalt pleaded guilty to stealing rum destined for the British navy.

FRENCH SAILORS RAISE AND THEN HAUL DOWN RED FLAG

Mutiny in Black Sea Fleet, is Stamped Out by Intrepid Commander Whose Courage Aroused Admiration of His Crew—Affair Discussed by French Deputies.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 14—During the debate in the Chamber of Deputies on the alleged mutiny of the seamen of France in the Black Sea fleet Marcel Cachin, Socialist Deputy, said in discussing Russian affairs that Admiral Kolchak's army might be compared to forces which operated against the French revolution and he expressed astonishment that the Allies should recognize Kolchak "Just at the time when he is being beaten."

George Laygues, MinisterofMarine followed Cachin, with a review of the incidents attending the disorder of the Black Sea fleet. He said the French squadron had been sent into the Black Sea, in carrying out the armistice terms with Turkey. Referring to the trouble on the battleship Jean Bart, he said that after there had been manifestations of impatience, the effervescence was comunicated to other ships and the Red flag hoisted. The officers of all vessels, he said, refused to parley with the men until the red flag was hauled down. The comander of Jean Bart, who was arrested by his men, said, according to the Minister: "Boys, look out, you are in a state of rebellion. I will haul down that red flag or you shall strike me down at your feet."

The commandant's desire was not only satisfied, said Leygues, but the sailors themselves tore up the red flag and handed him the shreds, saying, "Keep them in acknowledgment of our wish to become orderly again."

PREPARING THE LISTS FOR VOTE ON THE REFERENDUM

This Work Will Begin in Larger Cities of Ontario Within Next Two Weeks.

Enumeration of electors for the forthcoming referendum on the temperance question will begin in the larger cities of the Province within the next two weeks. The Attorney-General, Hon. I. B. Lucas, has called a conference of the Toronto members of the Legislature at the Parliament Buildings to discuss and perfect arrangements for commencing the enumeration in Toronto next week. It is likely that the enumerators for the Toronto ridings will be appointed early in the week.

It is expected that similar steps will be taken in a number of the larger cities of the province at an early date, in Hamilton, London and Ottawa. This step is taken because thousands of people in the cities are out of town during the months of July and August, when it would be impossible to complete the lists. The same necessity does not exist in the rural centres or in the smaller urban centres.

Were the enumeration to be left till September, it would be impossible to hold the referendum till, possibly, November; and, as has been indicated from time to time, it is the intention of the Government to hold the referendum early in October. Moreover, the Exhibition season in September would make it difficult to carry out a satisfactory enumeration.

The Soldiers' Vote.

While all soldiers have not yet returned from overseas, provision has been made in the Election Act for adding their names to the lists whether they are here or not. In the case of any soldier whose name has been unintentionally omitted from the lists, provision will be made to add it at the proper time. All young men over eighteen years of age who have served in His Majesty's forces will be allowed to vote.

It is altogether likely that the lists to be used for the referendum vote will also be used at the next provincial election. Provision was made in Section 8 of the Act that such lists as were compiled for the taking of a vote on any question might be used at an election if brought on within one year of the date of such vote. While it is practically certain that another session of the Legislature will be held before a provincial election, it has been stated by the Attorney-General that such an election would be held within a year. Hence it is that the lists to be prepared for the referendum will be in readiness when the Legislature is dissolved and another provincial campaign on.

PRESIDENT OF CHINA QUITS

BUT RESIGNATION NOT LIKELY TO BE ACCEPTED BY PARLIAMENT.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Pekin, June 14.—In consequence of the difficulties created by the popular movement against the pro-Japanese members of the government, the cabinet has resigned, and President Su Shih Chang has also intimated his intention to relinquish office.

It is anticipated that Parliament will decline to accept the president's resignation. This would amount virtually to a vote of confidence in the chief executive, which is needed to strengthen his hands in his fight against militarism. Strikes throughout the country continue. Railway traffic is being impeded and the situation in China is awkward.

PRINCE IS COMING

No Official Advices as to Postponement of Trip.

Ottawa, June 14.—So far as official advices are concerned, there is no intimation that the proposed visit to Canada of the Prince of Wales is likely to be postponed. Arrangements for the visit are in progress. The Prince is expected to arrive about the middle of August.

Pension Increase Of Twenty Per Cent

Ottawa, June 14.—The pensions commitee has prepared an unanimous report which will be presented to Parliament in a few days. A bill will be introduced based on the report when approved by the House.

The committee recommends a 20 per cent. bonus in all pensions on account of the high cost of living.

The report proposes an increase to married pensioners for life from $8 to $15 per month.

The helpless allowance is increased from $350 to $450 per year.

All Canadian and British reservists in the British Army are to be given the different between Canadian and British pensions. All widows of allied reservists will receive the Canadian pension. This does not include allied soldiers. There are also many other ameliorating proposals.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

SATURDAY, JUNE 14, 1919

THE NEED OF A REVIVAL.

ON THE EVE of the opening of the Honeywell campaign in this city last September, The Review published an editorial calling attention to the need of a revival in Peterborough. Now that Evangelist H. D. Kennedy begins special union services in the big tent on Hunter street tomorrow night, the editorial is just as appropriate and is here reproduced:

Some righteous-over-much residents of this city, men who attend worship regularly and pay their pew rent and other church dues promptly, question the necessity of an evangelistic campaign in Peterborough. They point to the excellency of the ministers of all denominations, the high moral status of the city as shown by the sparse records of crime, and argue that bringing a revivalist here for a special effort is in the nature of a shipment of coal to Newcastle. But it is not hard to show that the necessity for such special services really exists and that conditions are, after all, not so satisfactory as the objectors appear to believe.

The church edifices in Peterborough are numerous and ample as to accommodation among all the denominations. It is only on rare occasions that any of them are filled to capacity. If church attendance is a Christian duty, then there are several thousand derelicts in this particular in our own city. If everybody attended church, the present places of worship would be unequal to housing at least ten thousand of the citizens. To get these within sound of the gospel message is one of the problems of the day, a problem which the projected campaign is expected to solve, in a measure at least. The dry bones with which the local valley is filled stand in need of a shaking up by a master hand. Evangelist Honeywell is the man to begin the rattling process.

The movement starts under favorable auspices. Nothing but good can come out of such a unity of effort on the part of the various denominations. There is to be one Christian church in this city for the month of October at least, and that is the realization of the hope of all true followers of the Nazarene. All strife and selfish struggles for individual success are to be abandoned for a time. Peterborough's citizens will worship together as if there was nothing under the sun like sectarian rivalry.

There is always in every community a certain class whom it seems impossible to induce to even enter the portals o fa church, not to speak of becoming regular attendants. Yet these are the very people who will be caught in the wave of the democracy of true religion and who will flock to a public and undenominational building to hear a revivalist who acknowledges no creed except that which he gleans from the life records and teachings of the greatest Preacher the world has ever seen.

The harvest in this city is ripe for the sickle, and the laborers, even if they be few, are united and in deadly earnest. The local spiritual field contains as many varieties of soil as the one in which the sower of the parable scattered the seed. The evangelist and his assistants will not lack opportunities for real service. May strength be given them in their labors.

WHY ELECT THE SENATE?

MAJOR MOWAT has a bill in Parliament providing for the election of the members of the Canadian Senate. What is the idea?

The members of the Senate have hitherto been appointed on the theory that in this way their independence can be assured and that they would be able to give an unbiased verdict on every question that comes before them. There has been no doubt as to their independance on occasion. The venerable members of the Uppr House have frequently jumped with all feet upon public opinion and nullified legislation that was adopted by the responsible members of Parliament with the sentiment of the country behind them.

An elected Senate would defeat the very object that advocates of a second House have in view. A body so constituted would simply be an annex to Parliament. Electing a Senate would really mean so many additional members of Parliament. Canada has no use for a Senate. Ontario has only one legislative chamber, and this province makes out tolerably well. This country does not need an Upper House, a feeble imitation of the British system, any more than Ontario requires such an adjunct to its legislative machinery or a wagon would be improved by the addition of a fifth wheel. The Senate is supposed to be the power that holds the Commons in line, but the people of the country can be entrusted with that duty. Any time the members of the Upper Chamber have been at variance with the Commons they have gone contrary to the sentiments of the majority of the electors as well

WHAT CANADA HAS TO STAND BY.

THE PRINCIPLES adopted by all the nations as to Labor in the Peace Conference at Paris, and included in the peace treaty as presented to the Germans, were considered of such importance as to justify their being read by Premier Borden in the House. They are as follows:

The high contracting parties, recognizing that the well-being, physical, moral and intellectual, of industrial wage earners is of supreme international importance, have framed in order to further this great end the permanent machinery provided for in Section 1 and associated with that of the League of Nations.

They recognize that differences of climate, habits and customs, of economic opportunity and industrial tradition, make strict uniformity in the conditions of labor difficult of immediate attainment. But, holding as they do that Labor should not be regarded merely as an article of commerce, they think there are methods and principles for regulating labor conditions which all industrial communities should endeavor to apply so far as their special circumstances will permit.

Among these methods and principles, the following seem to the high contracting parties to be of special and urgent importance:

First. The guiding principle above enunciated that Labor should not be regarded merely as a commodity or article of commerce.

Second. The right of association for all lawful purposes, by the employed as well as by the employers.

Third. The payment to the employes of a wage adequate to maintain a reasonable standard of life as this is understood in their time and country.

Fourth. The adoption of an eight-hour day or a forty-eight-hour week as the standard to be aimed at where it has not already been attained.

Fifth. The adoption of a weekly rest of at least twenty-four hours, which should include Sunday, wherever practicable.

Sixth. The abolition of child labor and the imposition of such limitations on the labor of young persons as shall permit the continuation of their education and assure their proper physical development.

Seventh. The principle that men and women should receive equal remuneration for work of equal value.

Eighth. The standard set by law in each country with respect to the conditions of labor should have due regard to the equitable economic treatment of all workers lawfully resident therein.

Ninth. Each State should make provision for a system of inspection, in which women should take part, in order to ensure the enforcement of the laws and regulations for the protection of the employed.

Without claiming that these methods are either complete or final, the high contracting parties are of opinion that they are well fitted to guide the policy of the League of Nations; and that, if adopted by the industrial communities who are members of the League, and safeguarded in practice by an adequate system of inspection, they will confer lasting benefits upon the wage earners of the world.

This is the Charter of Labor endorsed by the nations of the world and which even the defeated nations will have to accept. This charter will have to be lived up to in the moral obligations it enforces, both by the employers and the employed. That obligation must be insisted on by the governments of the day.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Irving Fisher, professor of political economy in Yale University says:

> "The fundamental practical question confronting business men is whether the general level of prices is going to fall. In my opinion it is not going to fall much, if at all. We are on a permanently higher price level, and the sooner the business men of the country take this view and adjust themselves to it the sooner will they save themselves and the nation from the misfortune which will come if we persist in our present false hope.
>
> Business should face the facts. To talk reverently of 1913-1914 prices is to speak a dead language today. The buyers of the country, since the armistice, have made an unexampled attack upon prices through their waiting attitude, and yet price recessions have been insignificant. The reason is that we are on a new high-price level, which will be found a stubborn reality. Business men are going to find out that the clever man is not the man who waits, but the one who finds out the new price facts and acts accordingly."

WIT AND WISDOM

War News.

To Mudville war news comes slowly. All the talk is still of the German retreat. The news of the armistice will not arrive till the week after next. Hence the following:

"How do you reckon them soldiers kept their dugouts from cavin' in?" asked the oldest inhabitant.

"Why," said the landlord of the Pink Pig, "I certainly am surpised at your ignorance o' military affairs! They cemented 'em with this here trench mortar."

Doubtful—But He Was Playing Safe

"Wonderful mastery you have over these savage animals," said the admiring visitor to the lion tamer. "How do you manage it?"

"Easy enough, sir, if you keep on the right side of them."

"Ah, yes—but what is the right side of them?"

"Well," said the tamer, "I reckon it's the outside."

Saddler Sime was a droll character of a type by no means scarce in the rural towns of Scotland. One morning, when a neighbor entered his shop he was greeted as follows:

"Man, Jamie, I had an awfu' dream last nicht. I thocht I saw my wife fleein' awa' up to heaven wi' a great big pair o' wings."

"Aye, mon, an' did ye no' try to pu' her back?" was the reply.

"Na, na," said the saddler, "I just clappit my hands an' cried, 'Shoo! Shoo!' I was feared she wid never hae anither chance o' gettin' sae near in."

A TAX THAT WORKED EVIL

(Wall Street Journal)

Of those taxes which are popular among a thriftless class but are bad in principle and mischievous in practice, that for providing allowances for the unemployed out of the taxpayer's pocket is one of the worst. It puts a premium upon malingering, shirking and idleness, and it tends to increase the very evil it attempts to cure.

An instructive lesson can be drawn from the operation of the law in England, where pressure by powerful labor unions and the returning soldiers forced the Government to commit itself to doles of this kind. The entire burden, it need hardly be said, is laid with discouraging results upon the shoulders of the thrifty and industrious. The administrators of the tax are beginning to discover this, and such grants are not made in the lavish and irresponsible way they were at first.

Public opinion was so aroused at the indiscriminate grants made following the enactment of the law that the courts of referees have stiffened their backs and are disallowing claims in the sensible exceptions made in the law itself. In a report made in January it appears that out of 15,786 cases, forty per cent of the applications were approved; while it appears from an analysis of 270 recent sittings of these courts that 28.4 per cent. were allowed. This is at least a hopeful showing, and in England at least bad laws tend to be brought within the limits of common sense or are repealed.

In 25 per cent. of failures the claims were rejected because the claimants had left their employment voluntarily. The impudence of a claim in such circumstances can be imagined. Some 43 per cent. of the claimants refused to accept suitable employment, evidently with the idea that it was the business of the taxpayer to keep them in idleness. The two last items are satisfactory, as 12.7 per cent. of the rejections had been dismissed for unsatisfactory conduct, and 16.6 per cent. were idle on account of trade disputes.

There is much encouragement in the last item, because if allowances were made in the case of strikers, strikes would never be settled and would become a mere pretext for idleness, at immense cost in production and in the destruction of the morale of the workman, who notoriously deteriorates the longer the strike lasts. He would be in an ideal fighting condition, from his poitn of view, if his employers were paying taxes to keep him in idleness.

There is a lesson here for ourselves, and our legislators must learn that the way to counteract bolshevism and all that it implies is not to buy it off. Like the payment of any other form of blackmail, the tendency would be to increase demands continually.

And read, here, what your neighbors say:

"I can certainly say that Aprol makes most delicious boiled mayonnaise I ever tasted; I could never use Olive Oil and use butter instead which oft-times curdled and at all times dried on sides of bowl. Aprol keeps perfectly fresh two weeks or more. Try it on waldorf salad." (Apple, walnut, celery.)
(Signed)

"I was very much interested in the sample of Aprol which you gave me the other day. I took it up to the house, and they used it both in salad dressing and in cooking and we have all enjoyed the rather different flavor very much. It seems to make a perfect mayonnaise and salad dressing; and its nutty taste makes it a wecome variation on the standard Olive Oil, which in other respects it seems to equal in every way. I should fancy that it would find a ready sale as soon as people have tried it."
(Signed)

"I have tasted your Aprol in many ways and find it very excellent for cakes, pudding and salad-dressing, and would greatly recommend it to any one." (Signed)

"Having used Aprol in frying eggs, making mayonnaise dressing, and also plain cake, I find it very superior as a shortening for where I always use ½ cup of butter, I use less than ⅓ cup of Aprol. It is, therefore, more economical and gives better results. Aprol is certainly a first-class shortening.
(Signed)

"I have used Aprol for salads, cakes, and frying purposes. In using it for salads, I find the flavor much more pleasant than Olive Oil. I have also used it for cakes, and find that by using it in the proportion of half the quantity of butter, it produces exactly the same results. For frying purposes, it is an excellent substitute for butter, especially when frying pancakets, etc."
(Signed)

"I am sending a few words to express my appreciation of Aprol. Not only have I found it most useful in cooking—for it adds a delicious flavor to the article cooked in it—but it is decidedly beter than Oleo or lard for culinary use. During the recent epidemic of Influenza I gave it to my young daughter as well as taking it myself and I attribute to its use the curing of us both of an exceedingly bad cold. Neither of us could retai nOlive Oil, but Aprol not only was retaining but it was also very pleasing to the palate. I now recommend Aprol to my friends for culinary, table and medicinal uses and cannot speak too highly of its delicious flavor."

EVANGELIST H. D. KENNEDY ON THE THEME REDEEMING LOVE

Revivalist, Who Opens Special Services To-morrow, Has Written Booklet That Has Already Run Through Five Editions.

Evangelist H. D. Kennedy, who begins a series of revival meetings in the big tent on Hunter Street to-morrow evening has written the following treatise on "Redeeming Love." Published in book form it has already run through five editions. The essay is as follows:

The most welcome news this world ever heard was the angels' message to the watching shepherds on Bethlehem's plain, sung, no doubt, by the sweetest choir of heaven. "Glory to God and good-will to men" was their song. The glory of God and the welfare of men have always been in union.

For four thousand years the wrath of God was upon man because of sin but now a Saviour has come to save man not in, but from sin, for there is no promise in the Bible for the man who will continue in sin, and he who would bear the name of Christ must depart from all iniquity. When a man searches for Him with whole heart (Jer. 29 : 13)

There is but one way of seeking God by way of Calvary. "I am the way," said the Savior. "No man cometh to the Father but by me" (John 14 : 6.) Cain, on the outskirts of Eden tried to come his own way but God told him if he did not come His way, the way of the blood his sins still lay at his door. "I am the door," says Christ, the door by which man gets in to God and by which God gets out to man. "God outside of Christ is a consuming fire." There are two sides to His nature. The same God that promised our first parents a Saviour, also drove them from Eden. He who saved Noah in the ark deluged the world with the flood. He who rescued Lot from Sodom rained down fire on that wicked city. He who protected Daniel in the lion's den caused his enemies to be destroyed. Those who come in at the door are safe, others, like Ignorance, of the Pilgrim's Progress, who get over the fence to avoid the Slough of Despond, the Hill of Difficulty, the Strait Gate, and the Cross, will, like him, fall in the end, and may seek to enter in and not be able (Luke 13 : 24.) Yes, man must seek the Lord in God's way and in God's time, and not say, like Naaman, "Behold, I thought it would be some other way." No man has any right to think or to have any opinion in this matter, but must obey Bod. There is only one way, that is Calvary; only one name, that is Christ; only one time, that is Now. Therefore wait not—"How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?" (Heb 2 : 3).

Seek Him while He may be found; there may be a time when He will not be found. Call on Him while He is near; there may be a time when He will not be near. Some may seek, like the foolish virgins, when the door is shut. There was no "next time" for Lot, for Bartimeus, for Zaccheus, or for the dying thief. They called while He was near. It is possible to be almost saved yet altogether lost. "Remember Lot's wife!" Who was she? The niece of the Great Abraham; the wife of righteous Lot; she entertained the angels, they sat at her table they slept under her roof they clasped her by the hand, and led her out of the city of destruction almost to the place of safety, she was altogether lost (I Peter 4 : 18).

If you had a dozen lives you might experiment on this one, but when you have only one you should be careful. Christianity is a bargain, it is to the sinner's advantage to quit sinning for "the way of the transgressor is hard." The tempter may whisper that to seek God would be to lose the joy of this world; but it is not a matter at all of losing, but of getting, not subtraction, but addition. Seek first the kingdom of God, and all the rest shall be added (Matt 6 :33).

Before the angel's message was heard, no man had ever seen God, but now in the new-born Babe the world has its first and greatest object-lesson: God revealed in the flesh; the Christ who is to teach men not to regard God simply as a God of tempest and Storm, who thundered forth His law from Sinai's mount, but rather to regard Him as a God of Love and to pray to Him as a Father in heaven.

Men said of the Master, "This man receiveth sinners" (Luke 15 : 2), which was gloriously true, for He said, "Him that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out" (John 3: 37). If a friend invites you to call you expect to be received. You do not expect the door to be closed in you face, and if you come to Christ He will. He does, receive you. Do not wait to fix yourself up, it was "the lost" He came to save (Luke 19 : 10.) Come just as you are; you are invited, "Let him that will, take" (Rev. 22 : 17); take as you would any gift. It is yours when you receive it. You receive Him. He then gives you power to become a child of God (John 1 : 12). Do not wait for feeling or for power to receive. You get the power from an electric battery after you take hold, not before. Salvation is a gift; you do not pay for gifts. If you pay the smallest part of the value of a gift it then ceases to be a gift. God's gifts are not for sale; they are "without money and without price" (Isa. 55: 1). All He asks is your two mites—your vile body and sinful soul. "A bruised reed will He not break, nor quench the smoking flax" (Isa. 42 : 3), and "a broken and a contrite heart He will not despise" (Psa. 51: 17). "The gift of God is eternal life," but "the wages of sin is death" (Rom. 6 : 23.)

Death is what all deserved. Adam could not die for Eve's sin; he had his own to die for. Eve could not die for Adam's sin; she had her own to die for. So it was necessary for some one to die who had no sin of His own; that One was Christ. "All had gone astray," and "the Lord laid on Him the iniquity of us all" (Isa. 53 : 6.). At the front door of that verse all go in sinners; at the back door all come out redeemed, but all are not saved. God is reconciled to all men, but all men are not reconciled to God. A man must personally accept a personal Savior as his substitute to claim salvation. Barabbas may have beheld Christ and cried, "You are on my cross." Yes, Jesus was substitute for Barabbas, and in like manner for every man. Christ's atonement—at-one-ment—redeemed all. Every child born into this world is redeemed and if he dies in infancy, in Eden he is saved, baptized or not baptized, for he is not responsible, and, like Adam, falls from his innocence, then he must come to a personal Savior.

There is but one way of escaping a prairie fire, to set fire to the grass at your own feet and follow your own fire, then the first fire must stop. So to be safe from judgment you must stand at Calvary under the shade of the cross where God's judgments spent themselves nineteen centuries ago when He laid on that spotless Lamb the sin of a lost world. Believe and accept His finished work and you are safe (Rom. 8 : 1.)

But some one may say, "I have no faith; I want to believe, but I cannot." Why, faith is the most common of all common things! Suppose a man were to say to his wife, "Wife, I have no faith in you," and she were to answer, "No, I have no faith in you." What would happen? Go down street some one may shoot you; you have faith in the law to protect you. You may not have voted for the present government of this country, yet you write the most private letter, address and stamp it, and throw it into the hands of officials of a government you will not support, and you have faith in its reaching it destination. You take a trip on the railroad, you throw down your money in gold and get a ticket not worth two cents at the present value of paper, yet you board the train. It might run off the track, the conductor might refuse to take your ticket, but you have faith in the railway company, the agent, the conductor, brakesmen, fireman, engineer, and you rest contented and arrive at your journey's end. Now, if you have faith in everything else, why not have faith in the Name that is above every name? (1 John 5 : 10). To build a character without faith in Christ is to build a house without a foundation; you may have beautiful walls and roof but if you have no foundation it will fall. You may add to your virtue knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness and love, but if you have not faith—in a personal Savior your character will not stand the light of eternity, for, "without faith it is impossible to please God." (Heb. 11 : 6).

When you come to God He receives you. Believe that. Your sin that caused God's wrath to be upon you is gone; it is "blotted out" (Isa. 43 : 25.) God will "never mention it again" (Ezek. 18 : 22). He has cast it behind His back, into the sea of His forgetfulness (Isa. 38 : 17); therefore, if it is behind God's back, it is not between you and God. You feared death because of its power and sting. But sin is death's sting, and sin is gone (1 Cor. 15 : 55, 56). Death now is but the cage door through which the captive soul gets free into a broader liberty. "Death is but the first breath we draw when we enter life." Therefore forget the things which are behind and reach forth to the things which are before (Phil. 3 : 13.) You will have all you can attend to with what is ahead of you without fretting over the past. The past, whether good, or bad, does not count. No matter how good you are, you are not good enough. If it were possible for you to be good enough to inherit salvation and heaven, Christ would never have come to this world. No matter how bad you are, He can save to the uttermost, and His blood can cleanse from all sin (I John, 1 : 7).

Works do not count before conversion, but a cup of water given in His name after conversion will have its reward. God said to Moses the night of the Passover in Egypt: "This shall be the beginning of months to you." All their service in Egypt did not count. Israel's history was reckoned from the night the blood sheltered them; and the Christian era dates from the night the Babe of Bethlehem was born. So God reckons your history as His Child from the moment you claim Christ as your personal Saviour.

Some one may say, "I am afraid I will not hold out," Never mind that. When you walk you walk but one step at a time; you breathe one breath at a time; a clock ticks but one tick at a time. You do not "hold out" you "hold on." The Master's hand is "able to keep you from falling." (Jude 1 : 24.) A mother leads her child across a pond of ice; she holds him by the hand; she keeps him from falling; she holds him, he does not hold her; he may slip; he will never fall unless he wilfully pulls his hand out of hers. If you pull your hand out of the Savior's hand you will fall if you trustingly leave it there you may slip as the child does, but you will never fall.

Some ask, "What if I sin after I am converted?" For this God has provided. John, in writing Christians said, "If we sin we have an Advocate with the Father" (I John. 2 : 1). An Advocate pleads for another. Jesus said before He left this world, "It is expedient for you that I go away." If it had been better He would have remained here. He intercedes. "Israel's keeper neither slumbers nor sleeps." Wink the lash of your eye and it cleanseth the eye, and restoreth the sight. In like manner the blood of Christ is continually cleansing your soul from ignorant sins you may commit. But if you sin after conversion knowingly, then definite confession must be made. Let acid drop on silver plating; leave it there it will cause dust and ruin, but wash it off instantly and no harm is done, the blood of Christ cleanseth you again instantly "from all unrighteousness" (I John, 1 : 9). Do not wait until you retire to confess or the unconfessed sin will mar your soul as the acid does the silver.

Having once come to Christ, you will naturally want others to come to Christ. You may feel your inability to do much to help others, and think such work is meant for certain chosen ones, but God says, "Let him that heareth," not come, but "say come" (Rev. 22 : 17). The disciples one day despaired of having enough to feed the multitude. Jesus said to Philip, "Go and see what you have" but a few loaves and fishes. Yet, when touched by the Master's hand, they fed a multitude. You may have but one talent. "Go and see." "Neglect not the gift that is in thee," for, helped by the Holy Spirit, you are accountable for all you can learn to do; that is the privilege of every Christian. God will use your talent however small. He used a rod in the hand of Moses, an ox-goad in the hand of Shamgar, a ram's horn in Joshua's hand David's sling and stone, the jaw-bone in Samson's hand, ravens to feed Elijah, and the rock crowing to bring Peter to repentence. God will use you. When Andrew found Jesus he brought his brother, who became the hero of Pentecost, and the inspiration of the ages ever since. There is no joy higher to the human soul than that of knowing you have led another to the foot of the cross. "They that win souls are wise," and they that turn many to righteousness shall shine as the stars for ever and ever. The conversion of one soul in God's sight is a great work (James 5 : 20). To seek for others may seem a cross, but a cross taken up and carried is not so heavy

Eggs on Bushes.

Herring that flock along the coast of southern Alaska in vast "schools" lay their eggs in bunches in very shallow water near shore, attaching them to floating seaweeds or rocks. It is a habit of which the native Indians take advantage by throwing quantities of brush into the water at the spawning season. Later, they collect the brush and scrape off the fish eggs, drying the latter in the sun for food.

Learn to Swim.

Swim every day and you will not develop large, ugly muscles, but beautiful, smooth-working ones under a clean skin, a body that moves with grace, bright eyes and a smile that will carry you anywhere. One of the greatest medical experts in the country has classed swimming as the greatest of exercises, because it uses the whole muscular system, with moderate demand on nerve control.

World's Supply of Coal.

A good authority gives the coal area of the world in square miles as follows: United States, 192,000; British America, 18,000; Great Britain, 12,000; Spain, 4,000; France, 2,000; Germany, 1,800; Belgium, 518; rest of Europe, 100,000; China, 2,000; Japan, 5,000. Coal is found in commercial quantities in 28 of the states and territories of the United States.

RICH, RED BLOOD MEANS HEALTH

WEAK, PALE PEOPLE REQUIRE A BLOOD-MAKING MEDICINE.

It took centuries for medical science to discover that the blood is the life. Now, it is known that if the blood were always abundant, rich and pure, very few people would ever be ill. It was not until the end of the 19th century that an instrument was invented for measuring the red part of the blood. Then doctors could tell just how anaemic a patient had become, and with medicine to make new blood the patient soon got well.

All the blood in the body is nourished and kept rich and red by the food taken daily, but when, for any reason, a person is run down and cannot make sufficient blood from the food to keep the body in health, then a blood-making medicine is required. The simplest and very best of blood-makers suitable for home use by anyone, is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When a course of these pills is taken their good effect is soon shown in an improved appetite, stronger nerves, a sound digestion and an ability to master your work and enjoy leisure hours. For women there is a prompt relief of, or prevention of ailments which make life a burden. Mrs. Thos. Kaake, Trenton, Ont., tells how she obtained new health and strength through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says: "The weakness came on me so gradually that at first it was hardly noticeable. But after a time it got so that I could not go up stairs without stopping to rest. Every particle of color left my hands and face, and the least exertion would tire me and leave my heart palpitating violently. I consulted a doctor who told me the trouble was anaemia and prescribed a tonic. I took this medicine for some time, but it did not seem to help me a bit. Then I read of a cure in a similar case through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to try them. The result was these pills made me feel like a new woman. I have gained all my former health and strength, and feel that I owe my present condition entirely to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

EMPLOYERS

THE EMPLOYMENT SERVICE
OF CANADA

The PROFESSIONAL and BUSINESS SECTION has been established to assist professional, business and technical men and women.

Many officers, soldiers, sailors and war workers, who sacrificed their positions during the war, now desire to secure employment in the occupations for which they have been specially trained.

Employers should not wait until increasing business forces them to employ anybody they can obtain, but should look ahead and avail themselves of this unusual opportunity to enlist the services of highly trained workers, ordinarily secured only with difficulty. On application there can be referred to you, for example :—

ENGINEERS
ARCHITECTS
BUSINESS EXECUTIVES
ACCOUNTANTS
SECRETARIES TEACHERS
LAW CLERKS
COMMERCIAL ARTISTS
SALES MANAGERS
TRAVELLING SALESMEN
CHEMISTS
YOUNG COLLEGE GRADUATES

These workers are returning to civil occupations with increased initiative, a broader view of life, and a greater capacity for work.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

Prof. Irwing Fisher and Dr. E. L. Fisk, authors of a book called "How to Live"—without great risk—which gives the views of ninety odd authorities of eminent repute—the hygiene reference board, Life Extension institute—come out right blunt and bold on the myth of taking cold. What they say about the influence of gentle salutary drafts has my O. K for the popular conception that a draft will cause a "cold" is "greatly exaggerated—"that is just what we are told. And the best of friends a seeker after health can cultivate, is a gentle draft—a gentle draft, be sure to get that through your pate.

All this in chapter one in the very last edition; but not so fast, for chapter seven introduces genuine contrition.

"After one has actually caught cold the rules above given for preventing a cold are in most particulars reversed. One should then avoid drafts."

Now, isn't that aggravantin'?

It amounts to the same old thing: "Have plenty of fresh air—but look out you don't take more cold!" Or, or variation: "Secure good ventilation—but exclude drafts." Certainly, my darling daughter, you may go out to swim—but don't go near the water.

You remember the old schoolbook story of the boy who tarried to turn the grindstone for foxy grandpa—until the last bell rang, and then the young rascal got a good scolding from grandpa. Well, foxy grandpa is still playing that trick on the public.

The only trouble with Prof. Fisher and Dr. Fisk and the ninety-odd members of the advisory board and the other eminent gentlemen of the institute is that they can't decide just how far it is advisable to go on this question of taking cold—so they get you running along pretty fast for a while, till you begin to think it is a comparatively safe trail after all, and then, all of a sudden, they jump back and yell, "Hey, look out, there's a real dangerous draft!" but of course your momentum carries you just over the line so there you are. Take your cold philosophically, anyhow. Remember that you have caught it under the auspices of Prof. Fisher, Dr. Fisk and the ninety-odd authorities. That ought to be some satisfaction.

A Contribution to the S. A. F.

"Kindly forward your booklet entitled 'Somersaults'—a stamp is inclosed herewith. E. G. C."

A. S. A. E. (stamped addressed envelope), not a stamp, is required. Loose stamps go into the S. A. F. (Salvation Army fund), helping to feed unfortunates at the holiday time. Thank you in behalf of the army for your contribution.

Corsets and Stomachs.

"By profession I am an actor, playing the part of a woman. This requires wearing a corset, which is a light, elastic top affair, and, although I do not lace it very tight it has reduced my waist measure from thirty to twenty-seven inches. I wear this corset a good many hours a day, find it comfortable and do not feel in the least any effects from it. Can any harm result from wearing such a garment? Have you ever before heard of a man wearing a corset? X."

The primary effect of lacing or corset wearing is increase of intra-abdominal tension or pressure, which diminishes appetite and tends to reduce weight, but this is only temporary. The permanent effect is weakening or atrophy of the abdominal supporting muscles, hence decrease of intra-abdominal tension, and a tendency to overeat—to fill the void—and therefore corpulence. About one per cent. of men wear corsets or similar splints or supports under medical advice, for the symptomatic relief of ptosis or sagging of abdominal organs.

THANKFUL MOTHERS

Thousands of mothers throughout Canada—many of them your neighbors—speak with thankfulness concerning the use of Baby's Own Tablets. Once they have used the Tablets for their little one they would use nothing else. The Tablets are an absolutely safe medicine for even the youngest baby, being guaranteed by a government analyst to contain neither opiates nor narcotics or other harmful drugs. Concerning them Mrs. David McRoim, Divide, Sask., says:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets and have found them so satisfactory I would not be without them." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

When a girl thinks a young man is almost good enough for her, she is sure to think he is too good for any other girl.

If a woman refuses to go away for a week's visit it isn't because she's afraid her husband will be lonesome—but because she is afraid he won't be.

We wonder if the Lord loves a cheerful giver as much as the cheerful giver loves himself.

HUNTER STREET BRIDGE IS ONE OF CITY'S LANDMARKS

History of the Structures That Have Spanned the Otonabee in the Past and the One That is Still in the Air.

(By Mrs. Alice Stillson.)

The Hunter street bridge, that for 43 years has spanned the Otonabee river, connecting the east and west parts of the city, which, until 1904, were called Ashburnham and Peterboro, must go. Although the structure is good for several more years for certain kinds of travel, yet it is not strong enough for street car traffic; and that is the kind of convenience the people of East City are most desirous of obtaining and have every right to expect at an early date.

Ever since the Quaker Oats Company built their large cereal factory in this city, it has been the intention at some future date to build a high-level bridge at Hunter street. In 1906 the city engineer was instructed to prepare plans and an estimate of the cost of such a bridge, and the general estimate given was $60,000.00. The matter has been discussed at various times since then, and, now, it has finally been decided to build this new high-level bridge. The contract by latest report has been given to Russel-Townsend, the estimated cost being $228,000.00, but this is subject to change.

Way back in 1827, when Peterborough was called "Scott's Plains" and Ashburnham went by the name of the "Scotch Village," the first bridge was built across the Otonabee by a local contractor named Horace Perry. The cost of this bridge was defrayed largely by the Government. After some time, it became weakened by flood water and was destroyed. For a time after this, the river was crossed by ferry and a scow swung from side to side by means of a long rope fastened to a tree at a point above. Before the erection of the dam at the point known as "The Locks," the river was shallow and easily forded at many places.

Later on, a wooden bridge was built known as the "Howe Truss Wooden Bridge," but in 1811 this bridge was destroyed by fire, which was started among some debris on the bridge. The span next the town was on fire first and soon the whole bridge had disappeared.

A special meeting of the Council was called to see what could be done, and in November of that same year, a contract was entered into with Whyte and Davis to build a new bridge.

Early in 1872 the new cast iron bridge was completed and opened for traffic. The bridge was accepted by the Council. Some, however, were in doubt as to the strength of the new bridge and the Council ordered it to be tested. In March, after a fair test, the bridge was accepted from the contractors. But it did not last long. Three years later, it was wrecked. The east span fell and the County Council held a meeting to deal with the matter. The west span was inspected to see if it could be strengthened and the east one rebuilt; but it was decided by the town and County Councils that it would be better to have an entirely new bridge, and in September, 1875, a contract was given to the Canton Bridge Co. to erect a new one.

The material arrived and was entered at the Customs at a value of $3000.00, which was deemed by the collector, Charles Perry, as being below value, which was by contract price $800.00. When the matter was settled, the material was released and work was begun on the new bridge. The work went steadily forward, and on Otober 13th, 1876 the old bridge, which we use today, was completed.

Having had one bridge fall, the Council was resolved to give this one a more severe test as to it's strength and carrying powers. We can imagine the scene which some of our old residents no doubt witnessed. Both villagers and country people came out in great numbers and, in the presence of the town and County Councils, nine loads of lumber and one of flour, making up an estimated weight of forty tons, were placed on one span of the bridge. Everyone watched in breathless excitement, as the last load was added. Would she stand or fall? Moments of tense eager, waiting and then the heavy load's moved across the bridge and safely gained the opposite shore. A cheer rang out for the splendid new bridge that had stood the test.

So, for over 43 years, the Hunter street bridge has borne the heavy burdens of the daily traffic and given faithful service. Now it is to be cast off for a newer structure. Strange it is how inanimate things seems to become endowed with real feelings as we think of the memories connected with them. We love to retrace our footsteps over the same places where we once walked with a friend and so to many, the old bridge seems not mere wood and iron, but a more animated thing—a link of old friendship and a memory of old trysts. If this old bridge could speak as the "Talking Oak" of Tennyson lore, what could it not tell? Many the lovers who have strolled over the old structure and whispered words of tender meaning—words that will live in eternity, for love is enternal. How often has it served as a highway for the honest toiler as he stepped gaily along in the morning to his daily task or walked slowly home with wearied footsteps in the evening. Many sights has it seen on market days when the farmers' wagons passed across laden with the bountiful products of their labors.

But if we allowed sentiment to rule entirely, there would be little progress. As in the Province of Brittany in fair France, where buildings and modes of living are just as they were three hundred years ago, because the Britons love the old and cling so strongly to their old sentiments and superstitions, so should we be, if we did not realize that progress must mean change. Old things must pass away to give place to new ones that are better. Farewell old bride! You have served your day and generation well and will not soon be forgotten.

OMEMEE

(Special Correspondence.)

Omemee, June 14.—Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Mahood and son, accompanied by Mrs. Sluggitt and little daughter and Miss Lila Pasons, motored to Peterborough on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Macpherson and Mrs. W. G. Stephenson motored to Toronto on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Parsons and children attended the Robinson circus in Peterborough last week.

Swimming has been the chief sport in Omemee for the young folks during the past week, many young ladies having taken advantage of the popular swimming pool. There is no reason why this splendid exercise should not be enjoyed by all. Why not erect a bathing house in Omemee?

The many friends of Mr. W. G. Stephenson will regret to learn that he is confined to the General Hospital, Toronto, having been taken ill suddenly. He was operated on for appendicitis. The latest reports as to his condition were very favorable, and his many friends will hope for a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Cornell visited Peterborough friends Saturday.

Miss Millard and Miss MacEwan were among the many who visited the Electric City on Saturday last.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Shepherd and daughter of Coldwater attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Curry last week.

Mrs. James left last week for England, where she will visit her mother. Prior to her departure the Girls' Guild of the English Church presented Mrs. James with a handsomely fitted club bag and many good wishes for a pleasant voyage and a safe return home. Mrs. James, although greatly taken by surprise, made a very fitting reply, assuring the society that their generous thoughtfulness would be ever appreciated.

Mrs. Fewsey of Cornwall and Mrs. Dingman of Oshawa were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Morcombe last week.

Mr. Ellison of Toronto preached in the Methodist church Sunday in the interest of the Serbian relief fund.

Mr. G. A. Balfour, Lindsay, spent the week-end in town.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Hungerford of Lindsay motored to Omemee Tuesday and were the guests of Miss Davidson.

Mrs. S. English of Peterborough was in Omemee on Tuesday renewing old acquaintances.

Mrs. Sandy, of Buffalo, N. Y., is spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Williamson.

The Misses Rutherford paid a brief visit to friends in Peterborough Saturday.

Gnr. Hunter Lewis is spending a few days with friends in Peterborough.

Miss Anna McCrea, who for the past year and a half has been living in California, returned home on Tuesday.

Mrs. J. Bushnell attended the missionary convention in Lindsay this week.

MAY SETTLE THE PARIS STRIKE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 13.—The Labor situation was brighter this morning and there was fair prospect of general settlement before long. The Miners' Union has written to M. Collirad, Minister of Labor, and Louis Locheur, Minister of Munitions, re-stating their case, and Collirad has replied agreeing to intervene once more in behalf of the miners' demands before the Chamber of Deputies.

Premier Clemenceau will see delegates of the Transport Workers' Union today and hope is maintained that he will be able to end the strike so that normal service may be resumed tomorrow.

DRINK HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST

Says you really feel clean, sweet and fresh inside, and are seldom ill.

If you are accustomed to wake up with a coated tongue, foul breath or a dull, dizzy headache; or, if your meals sour and turn into gas and acids, you have a real surprise awaiting you.

To-morrow morning, immediately upon arising, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is intended to first neutralize and then wash out of your stomach, liver, kidneys and thirty feet of intestines all the indigestible waste, poisons, sour biles and toxins, thus cleansing sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal.

Those subject to sick headaches, backache, bilious attacks, constipation or any form of stomach trouble, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin enjoying this morning inside-bath. It is said that men and women who try this become enthusiastic and keep it up daily. It is a splendid health measure for it is more important to keep clean and pure on the inside than on the outside, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing disease, while the bowel pores do.

The principle of bathing inside is not new, as millions of people practice it. Just as hot water and soap cleanse, purify and freshen the skin, so hot water and a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Limestone phosphate is an inexpensive white powder and almost tasteless.

Not Needed in Her Profession.

A certain little girl was remarkably backward in her georgraphy, and the teacher wrote a note to the child's mother requesting her to see that the little one gave special attention to that subject in her home lessons. But there was no apparent improvement.

"Did your mother read the note I sent her, Millie?" asked the puzzled teacher.

"Yes," was the reply.

"What did she say?" questioned the mistress.

"Mother said she never knew geography, and she got married; and Aunt Winnie, she never knew geography neither, and she got married; and you do know geography, and yet you ain't got married; and so it doesn't matter if I don't know it."

What will women do if there is no housecleaning in heaven?

Various Noises.

A critic in London encourages concert-goers who are bewildered by some of the latest musical compositions. "The very fact," says he, "that the composer is given carte blanche to make any noise he likes has given the hearer the chance of practically getting to know, in process of time, all the noises there are. As he gets to know them he can distinguish them: as he distinguishes them he can discriminate between the noise and the music." In the opinion of this critic all the old rules for passing judgment on musical composition have gone by the board, and no new rules have taken their places. So it apparently becomes the affair of the concert-goer to listen with an open mind and cultivate an ability to decide for himself what parts of a composition are music and what parts are unsuccessful experiments in artificial noise.

Brienne-le Chateau.

Brienne-le Chateau, the little French town where Napoleon received his military education, celebrates this year the one hundred and fifth anniversary of the emperor's last visit to the village. It was on January 29, 1814, that Napoleon began his campaign against the Allies, who were storming at all the borders of France. At Brienne, where he had been taught the grim science of warfare, he attempted to cut the Silesian Army in two by suddenly interposing his forces between those of Schwartzenberg and Bleucher, the object being to prevent their uniting. Almost on the same spot and on the same day Napoleon had a hairbreadth escape from the attack of a Cossack who attempted to murder him. It was only the prompt assistance of Gorgaud that saved Napoleon.

Our Foolish Filosofy.

Cheer up. Why worry? Most anything you do will make somebody glad. If you get sick somebody who don't like you will be pleased about it. If you get well somebody who likes you will feel mighty happy about it. If you die the undertaker is entitled to congratula—er—that is to say, we all have our little moments.—Indianapolis Star.

Uncle Eben.

"After an argyment has lasted as much as an hour an' a half," said Uncle Eben, "I decides dat it's either about finished or else dar ain' g'ineter be no end to it."

Fact and Fiction.

In novels a man nearly always marries the right woman. And he succeeds in doing so about half the time in real life.—Topeka Capital.

Daily Thought.

Cookery is become an art, a noble science; cooks are gentlemen.—Burton.

OMEMEE PAYS TIBUTE TO ITS RETURNED HEROES

Seventeen Veterans Presented With Address and Signet Rings at a Mass Meeting in Coronation Hall.

(Special to The Review.)

Omemee, June 14.—Coronation Hall was packed to the doors on Monday evening by young and old from all parts of the country, the occasion being another monster reception to recently returned heroes. Reeve Parsons acting as chairman, called on the audience to sing one verse and chorus of the Maple Leaf. To the strains of this rousing patriotic air seventeen of the twenty young heroes expected, filed on the platform amid a storm of applause from the audience and the three cheers and a tiger which were given for them was but a small expression of the joy of the people. The following program was then given,

Piano duet—The Misses James.

Address and presentation of signet rings, by Reeve Wilson.

Short and very interesting speeches from many of the soldiers.

Solo—Mrs. E. Hume.

Recitation — "Fleurette" (Robert Service)—Mrs. Lewis.

Song—Helen Johnson.

Duet—Mrs Cornell and L. Parsons.

Song—Wilbert Clement.

Song—Mrs Hume.

God Save the King.

During the evening a handsome bouquet of snowballs was presented Mrs. Hume (an English bride who has come to reside near Omemee.) Mrs. Hume is the possessor of a powerful soprano voice and will be a very welcome addition to musical circles in the village.

Toward the last of the program, three cheers were given for Sergeant Mintz, who has come to reside in Omemee. Sergt. Mintz has the distinction of being one of two Canadians who won the Medal Militaire given by the French Government for conspicuous bravery and equal to our Victoria Cross.

The boys received on Monday night were, for Omemee: John Palmer, Hillier Cunningham, N. Clarke, Kenneth Griffin (Emily), Stewart Bannon, Harry Hayes, Howard Vel, Alfred Groves, Frank Lucas, Jesse Rik, A. Herlihey, D. O'Brien, W. O'Brien, Jno. O'Donnell, Cyril O'Neil, Ross Harrison, Gordon Harrison, M. Twomey, Fred. Brockley, Frank Smith.

The Address.

The following was the address:

"It is with great pleasure that we are here to do honor to you and others, who have done their part in taking up arms to fight against the German foe. You have answered the call to duty.

"President Lincoln, during the American civil war, on a public occasion, said: 'I do not ask God to be on my side. I desire to be on God's side in this terrible conflict.' This is the principle which we hope has animated and inspired us in this most awful of all wars. We have prayed as we poured out our best in men, blood and treasures, that we, in spite of all our faults as a nation and empire, were fighting on God's side. You have taken up arms and fought for God, justice and liberty and in the highest of all ideals, you were willing to suffer hardship, wounds and, if necessary, to make the supreme sacrifice as so many of your fellows have done.

"We rejoice that you are one of those who are able to return and live in this great country with its wonderful future.

"The ring which we ask you to accept is a small token of the appreciation of the people of the Township of Emily and the village of Omemee for what you have done for the peace and prosperity of the country.

"We wish you every happiness, success and long life in this Canada of ours.

"Yours very faithfully,
"T. J. PARSONS, Reeve,
"W. H. KENNEDY, Clerk."

EVANGELIST H. D. KENNEDY

as to drag it along. Jesus hung six hours on the cross for you, therefore bear your cross for Him (Luke 14 : 27.)

To be a follower of Christ means self-denial. To be a musician you must deny yourself and take up your cross daily and follow that line of work; to be a painter, an artist, a scholar, you will find no "royal road." So to be a Christian you must look at things as they are and follow Jesus, no matter what they may mean (Matt. 16 : 24) To be a true witness, and every time you confess Him before men He says to His Father and the angels: "Do you see that Christian down on earth confessing Me?" And if you do not confess He says: "Do you see that so-called Christian down on earth who has taken My name, yet is ashamed of Me?" (Luke 12 : 8, 9). What we want today is Christians to confess, not profess, Christ. A witness never speaks of himself, but of another. "Ye are my witnesses," said the Master, and "when the Holy Ghost is come He shall testify of me" (John 15 : 26). So if you are directed by God's Spirit you will witness for Christ, and the Holy Spirit will also bear witness with your Spirit (Rom. 8 : 16). That is, when you witness on earth that you are a child of God, the Holy Spirit witnesses before all heaven that that is true.

You may at times be tempted to doubt this, but do not let the tempter make you believe that temptation to doubt is doubt. Temptation to doubt is not doubt neither is temptation in any way sin, for Adam and Eve before the fall were tempted, so was Christ on every point yet without sin. God tests but never tempts His children. Temptations are permitted to test: "though now for a season, if need be, ye are in heaviness through manifold temptations" (I Pet 1 : 6). God will chasten those He loves. If the children quarreling in the street are not yours you pass them by. But if your boy is there you correct him at once. The mother who pulls her child back from the fire, or takes the butcher knife from him, though he cry, does not love him less. Is not the ground plowed before sowing. Is it not the precious stone that receives the polish? Is it not the garden tree that bleeds from the pruning knife? (Prov. 3 : 13.)

No matter how dark it may seem at may seem at times "God is not very far away from any one of us." Remember the sleeping Christ in the stormy sea. Though asleep He was still there. God's grace is sufficient for to-day's trials, not for to-morrow's trials brought into today. They that suffer shall reign. If you are not willing to go to God's school of sorrow you may get to heaven, but will not reign "no cross, no crown." "Let no man take thy crown." Trust on, pray on. The most of the trouble in this world never happens. A hill in a distance appears like a mountain, but is only a hill when we draw near to it. It is worth while having winter to appreciate spring, and "the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared to the glory which will be revealed to us" (Rom. 8 : 18). Believe this and your life will be like the even star, which shines more brigthly the darker the night becomes. Trials only widen and deepen us, and make us better acquainted with Jesus, and empty the heart to make room for greater blessing. Storms do not affects the depths of the ocean. We must believe when we cannot discern. Delays in answered prayers are not denials. Ships heavily laden take longer to get into harbor. If you cannot get the best, get the best possible and be happy. God gives us night to show us the stars. If the sun always shone we would never see the glory of the stars, and if it were not for darkness sometimes in our Christian lives we would often miss some of God's brightest revelation. It was a Patmos John saw the Revelation. There is an oasis in every desert; there is a rainbow in every tear.

In closing let me give you a practical remedy when tempted to doubt God's love. Remember there is the temptation that will overtake you but such is common to man (I Cor. 10 : 13). Common—everybody has them. We may not think so. We may think they are peculiar to us, but they are common, and with each temptation there is a way of escape. Therefore do not look at the temptation and try to justify yourself in yielding to it, neither fear its power, but look for "the way of escape." If there is but one door in a burning house, that is the way of escape; do not try to make a hole in the wall, but hasten to the door. The tempter will say, "God is not good or He would never allow you to suffer." Point him to Calvary, to the bleeding Saviour. He will sneer and say, "That was Christ two thousand years ago." tell him to look again to the cross, where unselfishness reached its height, where God's love was manifested, where hung the unchangeable Jesus, the same yesterday, today and forever. The devil will not look. That is one thing he will never do. He will not look at the cross. He will flee from it, and angels will come and minister unto you, and the Master's hand will keep you from falling.

"To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in His throne." Amen.

SCAPA FLOW.

Known In Naval Circles as the "Last Place on Earth."

Scapa is known by navy men as "the last place on earth"—but it is really only in the midst of winter that this title is deserved. Then there are only about seven hours of daylight, and, owing to the rough seas, communication with the shore more or less ceases.

When the better weather arrives, parties are landed from the ships for recreation on the various islands. On the island of Flotta, the officers and men of the Grand Fleet have made a first-rate golf-course of eighteen holes, and this is the chief attraction of Scapa. This island also has several football and hockey grounds.

Several ships have cultivated plots of land on the island of Fara, and have quite useful vegetable gardens. Unfortunately, however, the ship sometimes leaves for another port just when its best produce is waiting to be gathered, and on its return is perhaps nicely ready for next year's seed.

In the early days of the war men were much inconvenienced by having nowhere to shop, but in 1915 the steamship Borodino was chartered by the Junior Army and Navy Stores, who started a floating branch of their establishment at Scapa. This ship indeed came as a blessing to the fleet, for she contained a laundry and a hairdressing saloon, and in the shop were to be purchased all manner of articles and luxuries which help to comfort those who "go down to the sea in ships."

The after-hold of the steamship Gourko, a provision-ship and sister of the Borodino, was early in 1916 turned into a theatre, so that while in the daytime the Gourko carried on provisioning the fleet, at night she was able to lay alongside any warship requiring accommodation for a concert.

"Our surgeons will always have a good word for Scapa; its air is most bracing, and with the climate slightly warmed by the Gulf Stream, it might almost be called a health resort.

Coal Beneath the North Sea.

It is often said that Britain owes her commercial supremacy to her coal. For her size she has more and better coal than any other country in the world, and for steam purposes South Wales practically supplies the world. Where did the coal come from?

The coal seams, lying one below another to an unknown depth, and not infrequently cropping out at the surface, are sure proof that tropical conditions once prevailed in the latitude of these islands. In primaeval times, a period whose remoteness is measured by millions of years, the district which is now Britain was connected with the continent, and the coal of England doubtless runs under the Channel and the southern part of the North Sea, and is continued in the coalfields of Northern France, Belgium and Flanders.

All this region was covered thick with great tree ferns, growing to a gigantic height, of exceedingly rapid growth, in the damp steaming heat of a tropical climate which exceeds the heat of the equatorial regions of Africa to-day. Growth succeeded growth, and in the course of ages probably seas flowed over it and deposited the sand which is now rock. Then came another period of growth, and the pressure carbonized the fallen vegetation and formed layers of coal, pieces of which still bear imprinted upon their flat surface the beautiful tracery of the original fronds of the tree-ferns.—Tit-Bits.

New British Gun.

Experiments which have been taking place in connection with a new British field gun have now resulted in the evolution of a weapon which is considered to be the best of its kind in the world.

The advantages of the new gun are that it will fire the heavy 18½-lb. shell used in the ordinary quick-firer a further distance and with greater rapidity than has even been attained with a field-gun before.

In fact the new gun increases the range of the British normal field weapon by at least 3,000 yards, and it is expected that further developments will extend the vulnerable point by another 1,000 yards.

Experiments have shown that the new gun can discharge as many as 28 rounds a minute.

One of the difficulties at first experienced was that, although the increased distance could be attained with comparative ease, accuracy could not be wholly relied upon at the lengthened range, and although the gun was used on a limited scale during the closing stages of the war, its far-reaching effects were not utilized to their full extent for this reason.

The vibration set up by the extreme rapidity of fire also operated somewhat against accuracy, but it is understood that both these difficulties have now been overcome, and that the gun has been found to answer all requirements.

A Delicate Point.

The following letter was written by the wife of a man fighting overseas to a member of the Salvage Club, an official organization for preventing war waste:

"Dear Sir,—I called at your office on Wednesday at one o'clock, but was told you were engaged on Salvage, and that I could not see you. I wanted to ask you about Bert's teeth what he lost at the front in the mud—do I still have to keep up the payments of them on the installment plan? I feel quite sure that your Salvage Club what they talks about would have the matter put right if you would only mention it. Yours respectfully ——"

Late George W. Russell,

A Prince of Anecdotists

Stories of Famous Men

THE late George W. E. Russell was known in Britain as a prince of anecdotists." In one book he recalls the Duke of Wellington saying that he had "been much exposed to authors"; all his long life Russell was much exposed to the great men of a time and society rich in them, and employed his opportunity well. When James Payn was dying he used to visit him to retell amusing stories characteristic of those he had met, and the veteran journalist advised him to make a book of them. "Collections and Recollections," of 1898, was followed by a long list of titles. In his last volume Russell entertainingly proved that he had been acquainted with every Premier since his uncle, Lord John Russell. Writers of anecdotal memoirs, autobiographies, and diaries have abounded in England for a long time past. Poets from Moore to Austin, statesmen from Greville to Lucy, generals, journalists, schoolmen, clerics, have left us long shelves interesting chiefly for anecdotes of the personages of the day. Of those who founded their fame on Virgilium tantum vidi, none deserved it more than Russell.

A good story is its own excuse for being. But one service of writers like Russell is that they give us an intimate, informal view of characters who otherwise would be seen only as on dress parade. Anecdotists like J. R. Planche, William Jerdan, William Harness, Thomas Raikes, A. J. C. Hare, offer biographers stones which they can polish into illuminating jewels. We know that Lord Shaftesbury was a philanthropic reformer and the soul of practicality; Russell illustrates it in telling how Shaftesbury replied to a Whitechapel clergyman who, when asked about relieving some starving children, said: "My God will supply their needs"; "Yes, so He will, but they must have some food directly." It is a glimpse of the real Browning one boresome guest with endless questions, Browning disengaged himself by finally exclaiming: "But, my dear fellow, this is too bad; I am monopolizing you." The story is illuminating of Bishop Thorold's reply to a pertinacious pastor who badgered him for leave to visit the Holy Land: Dear Blank: Go to Jericho. Yours, H. W. T." We can better credit Strachey's recent portrait of Cardinal Manning when we read how, after Newman's death, Russell asked Manning as to the truth of some recent harsh articles on the divine. 'He replied that he thought them very shocking; the writer must have had a very unenviable mind, etc.; and then, after a moment's pause, he added, 'But if you ask me if they are like poor Newman, I am bound to say — a photograph.'" The principal touchstone differentiating a good anecdote from vulgar gossip is truth to fact. The motive also must be regarded; there are not only malicious anecdotes, but the tuft-hunter's anecdotes, retailed to prove an intimacy with the great.

Anecdotists who take their craft seriously may well contribute to social history, as Pepys unconsciously and Greville consciously did. Russell had a careful regard to the illustration of traits of his time, and developed in his essays a commentary upon the social, political, religious, and intellectual tendencies of the last half century that cannot be neglected in looking for information on these topics. For the anecdotal essayist like Russell every current movement is a glorious show. The woman-suffrage struggle was simply a pageant which presented many picturesque facts and episodes to the curious neutral; and yet Russell helped define public opinion. He insisted that British society—in both broad and narrow meanings of the word — had changed infinitely for the better in his time. The Shoreditch woman who, being asked at a hospital by the surgeon what animal had given her a bite larger than a dog's and smaller than a horse's, replied, "No animal, sir — another lydy," is less common than once. A royal scion would not now delight to push a lady into a pond. In these briskly democratic days there can no longer exist such imperturbably dignified servants as the butler who, when the eldest son of an earl fell over the front staircase into the hall below, and the younger son called down to ask if he were hurt, replied instantly, with sure knowledge of the devolution of titles, 'Killed, my lord." England could hardly show to-day the snobbery that produced Harcourt's capital aside, as he listened to Sir Rainald Kneightly expatiating at dinner on his glorious lineage:

And Kneightly, to the listening earth,
Repeats the story of his birth.

Russell furnishes a multitude of illustrations of the changes he gladly traced to the Evangelical movement, popular education, and great reformers.

The born anecdotist is far rarer even than the born dinner-table raconteur. The latter may be assisted by expansive geniality, infectious good humor, or other personal trait, not to say by the wine. The former must submit to all the evaporation of aroma from his stories produced by cold print and lapse of time. Russell spoke of his "anecdotage" as if age and experience were needed for the art; the most infallible good taste assuredly is—a taste that drags nothing in by the heels, takes no liberties, and never runs into dulness. Above all, we must admire in a Russell his memory; while most men find it hard to recall a dozen good stories, he preserved hundreds from oblivion.

Various Powers Named.

Only the power derived from melting glaciers and snow caps is known as white coal, while other water powers are termed "green coal." But there is another vast source of power, namely, that which may be derived from the waves and tides of the ocean; and this is now termed "blue coal."

Pearl Long Valued as Jewel.

The pearl is the only jewel worn as nature formed it. All the precious stones—diamonds, rubies, emeralds and the rest—have to be cut before they can be worn. But the pearl is worn just as it is taken from the oyster shell. It is among the most ancient of jewels.

Giving and Doing.

It is the giving up of life that saves it. When we stop calling it our own, seeking to hoard it and enrich it for ourselves, and begin bestowing it in loving interest and service upon others, we find that it has suddenly become richer and stronger than ever before.

Cannibal Fish.

Many fresh-water fish copy the sole and turn cannibal. Pike are the worst in this respect but trout have similar habits. Almost every pool in a brook has its cannibal which accounts daily for half a dozen of its younger brethren.

No Words Wasted.

The shortest review of a book that we have heard of was that published in an American paper recently. After mentioning the title, the author, and publisher, it passed judgment in the one word, "Shake."

Grouch and Bad Health.

Scientists tell us that it takes the body three months to recover from an attack of anger. A grouch, then, must be constantly trying to get back to good health.—Detroit Free Press.

PROPER DIET FOR ATHLETES WHEN TRAINING FOR EVENT

Celebrated Coach Gives Table of What Should and Should not Be Eaten.

(Charles H. Wilson.)

Athletes who read my training article yesterday will remember the part in which I admonished them to abstain from the use of tobacco and set forth the bad effects its use had on their physical efficiency. Today I am writin about an equally serious subject—that of PROPER DIETING. It will be to the benefit of embryonic athletes to follow my advice closely.

What to eat and what not to eat is a subject that means much to an athlete in conditioning himself for a big test. If instructions are not properly followed, the effects may be the same as come from smoking. Of course, I admit it is difficult to comprise a set of rules on the topic, it being virtually impossible to prepare a menu for an athlete to which he should adhere.

Food—Fit and Unfit.

Some food may be nutritious when prepared in a certain manner and injurious in another. All I can do is to tell them what particular items of food to avoid and name those that are good for them.

Pastry of all kinds should and must be left entirely alone. Likewise, all fried dishes should be avoided. Well cooked meats, eggs, fresh vegetables and milk make a good substantial diet. They do not give that "gorged" feeling after a meal. Nevertheless, you should not partake of too great a quantity of them. It is just as bad to overeat properly prepared food as it is to eat moderately of dishes hard to digest.

I herewith submit a "training table menu" that many of our present day college athletes follow. It shows just what is good for an athlete and what is injurious.

It is as follows:

Meats.

Roast beef, moderately rare; mut- iops, lamb chops and beefsteak, broiled moderately rare; chickens, turkey, duck, sweetbreads, rabbit, fresh fish (not salt fish), lamb and mutton.

Vegetables.

Spinach, lettuce, celery, asparagus (without oil or butter dressing); white potatoes, boiled, mashed or baked; lentils, lima and dried beans, rhubarb, greens, kale split and green peas, tomatoes in season.

Fruits.

Oranges moderately; apples, baked or stewed; currants, prunes, figs, raspberries, raisins, dates, stewed fruits.

Breads.

Wheat, rye and graham bread and toast one day old; hot bread or rolls or any kind of cakes shoud not be eaten during training period.

Miscellaneous.

Eggs, soft boiled, shirred, omelet or poached; oatmeal, grapenuts, boiled rice and rice pudding, nuts (preferably pecans, brazil and walnuts), tapioca, sage, arrowroot and cauliflower.

Always eat slowly, masticate the food thoroughly and do not eat too much. More ill health comes from overeating than from hunger. Do not eat fat or fried foods.

Fruits and cereals are best suited for morning and evening meals. Fresh fruits should be eaten at the beginning of a meal, not afterward.

All grains and vegetables should be thoroughly cooked, especially green fruits and vegetables. The time for digestion depends largely upon how the food is cooked.

Jess Willard Talks Of Training

(By Lambert G. Sullivan.-

Toledo, Ohio, June 13.—"Training has never been so easy for me as it has been for this fight," declared Jess Willard in discussing his July 4 match with Jack Dempsey.

Willard was taking his regular forenoon rest in a downtown hotel and a number of newspaper men had formed a circle about him. Although Willard's headquarters are in the outlying part of the city, he makes a daily trip to the city after he has finished his road work each morning and sits around discussing various phases of the boxing game.

"Take my road work for instance," continued Jess. "That used to be punishment of the worst sort for me. It was simply agony for me to force myself to do that sort of work and I usually confined myself to two or three miles of it. My feet always seemed as heavy as lead; I used to get terrific pains in my groin and my legs were tired and lame after I d. Now, however, it really is a pleasure. I seem to have more spring and pep in me than I ever had and seem to get along faster. I went between four and five miles this morning and felt just as fresh when I finished as when I began."

"Perhaps it's because you're going into this fight a little mad, while in other fights you always were good natured," suggested one of the writers.

"That's not the case," replied Jess. "I'm more at ease this time than I ever have been before. Instead of having a flock of managers telling me to do this and to do that; to talk to this person and not to talk to that one; to pester the life out of me with their orneriness, I'm going about getting into condition just the way I know will do me the most good. My mind is perfectly clear, I haven't a worry in the world and I actually enjoy the exercise I am getting. Everyone else seems to be worried about my condition but me. I know what I'm doing and I'll be as fit as fiddle on July 4. If I'm not it will be my loss, no one else's.

"I know that I have been knocked and that I have been roasted but that doesn't worry me. In all the knocks you have heard directed at me you have never once heard me make a reply. I know it has been propaganda instigated by persons who are 'sore' on me and I know that to make a reply would be to dignify them attacks. I know the public can't be fooled all the time. The reaction in my favor is already setting in."

Another of the writers present told Jess that one of his former managers had magnanimously declared he was willing to let by-gones be by-gones and would do anything possible he could to aid Jess. Jess merely laughed.

"That fellow has as much chance of being in my corner July 4 as a snowball in hades," he said. "I'll have a fight on my hands that day and I don't want anything else to worry about. I don't want any boxes of tickets burned up in this fight."

Jess' attention was called to a story written by a former lightweight boxer. "Here the boxing game has made bout was a money-making affair pure and simple, and that there was no danger of the title changing hands. He merely sniffed at this.

"I can't get that fellow's idea at all," he remarked a few minutes later. "Here the boxing game has made him an independently wealthy man and he comes out knocking it. I never knew knocking to do any good, in sports or in business. If you can't say good about a thing, why say anything unless you are duty bound to do so. If one of you boys thought there was anything wrong with this contest, I'm sure that you wouldn't hesitate to write it, and you would be wrong if you didn't. But for a fellow who has made his fortune in the game and has not been within 300 miles of Toledo for several years, to come out with an interview like that strikes me as being both bad business and bad sportsmanship.

"I may have been an unpopular champion. I know that I haven't had the personal following that other boxers have had. But when Jess Willard is through with the boxing game, he'll never have anything but good to say about it."

CHARLIE MILLS WON THE CIGARS

HIGH MAN AT WEEKLY SHOOT OF GUN CLUB.

The Gun Club held their weekly shoot last night and some good scores were handed in.

Charlie Mills won the box of cigars in the handicap event with Stan Coon, second, winning the candies. Charlie Tanner and Peter Gettas were tied in the beginners' shoot, and in the shoot off the Lakefield gunner was one up. Both men are doing good work for the first year at the traps.

The local club expect to have a visit from the Port Hope and Belleville clubs in the near future. The Lakefield club are getting their traps in shape and will have matches with the Petrborough shooters at an early date. Below are the scores:

Ludendorff Was Plunger

And Not a Great Genius, So Declares Angry German

PHILIP SCHEIDEMANN, the the German Chancellor, who in a recent speech in the National Assembly at Weimar referred to Gen. Ludendorff, the moving spirit of the German military command, as a "plunger," refused to retract his characterization of the general when protest was entered by Field Marshal von Hindenburg. Herr Scheidemann, in fact, declares that Gen. Ludendorff himself had used the word in referring to his own position last October.

These facts are brought out in the following letters exchanged between the field marshal and the Chancellor. The former wrote from Great Headquarters on February 16 as follows:—

"In the session of the National Assembly on February 13 your Excellency referred to Gen. Ludendorff as a 'plunger.' This word, coming from a position of high public responsibility, has deeply pained me and many others who are faithfully attached to Gen. Ludendorff who in his own energetic fashion desired only the welfare of the German people. The unscrupulous and frivolous characteristics of a plunger are wholly foreign to his nature. I cannot bring myself to believe that your Excellency would deny to my co-workers, for whose actions I am jointly responsible, recognition for his genuine and earnest efforts in behalf of the Fatherland. With assurances of distinguished," etc.

Chancellor Scheidemann sent the following reply:—

"Permit me to express to your Excellency my regret that my reference to Gen. Ludendorff should have pained your Excellency. So far as the subject itself is concerned, I cannot recede from my spoken word. I call that man a plunger who stakes everything on the turn of a single card without considering the results that the failure of that card might bring on.

"That Gen. Ludendorff proceeded in this manner I have been able to convince myself during my career as a Parliamentarian and subsequently as a member of Prince Maximilian's Cabinet. It was all the more permissible for me to speak of the 'genial plunger,' inasmuch as Gen. Ludendorff himself, as can be proved by documentary evidence, personally stated in referring to himself on October 1, 1918: 'I have the feeling of a plunger.'

"I beg to remain with the assurance," etc., etc.

A Sponge.

A sponge will hold water because it has, on account of the plan on which it is grown, the power of capillary attraction. The sponge is made up of little hair-like tubes. If you take a glass tube, open at both ends, and immerse one end in a vessel of water, you will find that the water will rise in the tube to a level higher than the surface of the water in the vessel. The smaller the hole through the glass tube, the higher the water will rise. This is caused by the cohesion of the water against the inside surface of the hole in the tube, and causes a pull upward. The water is pulled up into the tube because the surface of the tube has a greater cohesive attraction for the water than for the air which was in it, and the air is forced out partly. Some liquids, such as mercury, will not rise in the same way, but are depressed in a glass tube, since they cannot adhere to gloss. Mercury, however, will run or rise in a tin tube just as water in a glass tube, because it adheres to the tin.

Now, the sponge is merely a lot of capillary tubes which have the same power of pulling up the water as the glass tube. The tubes in a sponge are so fine that the water will rise to the entire length of the tubes. In addition, this adhesive quality of water to the inside of the tubes in the sponge is so strong that the sponge can be taken entirely out of the water and the water will remain in it.

An old bachelor says that love is more like a pestilence than a disease.

Chinese Tea Houses.

Just as England has highway taverns and as we have roadhouses along our highways, so has China her tea houses. The Chinese do not indulge much in intoxicants, and tea is about the strongest drink they consume. Tea houses there are about as numerous as ice cream and soda resorts are here.

Hymn From Unexpected Source.

Hymns have come from very unexpected sources. One of the finest in the language, "The Spacious Firmament on High," found in all collections, was written by a chief secretary for Ireland, Joseph Addison, whose other works would hardly lead one to suppose him fitted for the task.

Temperature and Sound.

When the temperature is 32 degrees, sound travels 1,090 feet a second and one additional foot a second for each additional degree of temperature. Electricity over a wire where there is no resistance travels 180,924 miles a second.

Only Derby Wearers Do This.

A man will give the tight skirts as an example of the intellectual inferiority of woman and then go out and look at himself in the mirror trying on various derby hats without cracking a smile.—Chicago Post.

Lexicographer Wanted.

A new verb has come into existence. It is the verb "to automotive." The meaning is not quite clear, but we take it to mean to improve upon the automobile and its use.—New Haven Journal-Courier.

Pile Trouble on Trouble.

Never bear more than one kind of trouble at a time. Some people bear three—all they have now, all they ever had, and all they ever expect to have.—Anon.

Daily Thought.

The commander of the forces of a large state may be carried off; but the will of even a common man cannot be taken from him.—Confucius.

The Object of a Tax.

Drawing up a tax bill that will suit everybody seems to be an awful tax on the mental capacity of its author.

Quaint Custom.

By a curious old law dating back to 1779 all the grapes left on the vines after the harvest at Beziers, France, go to the poor. If a police officer decided to enforce the law rigidly the owner of the vineyard could at once be haled into court should he attempt to pick the culls.

Big Gold Coins.

The largest gold coin in circulation is stated to be the gold "loof" of Annam, the French colony in eastern Asia. It is a flat, round piece worth $275. The next size to this unwieldy coin is the Japanese "obang," which weighs more than two ounces and a half, about equal to $50.

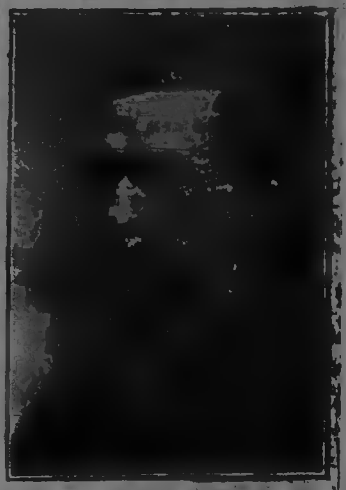
Man's Ingratitude.

"Once upon a time," said Uncle Eben, "dere was a fairy dat granted a man three wishes. Den de man made a fourth wish and de fairy couldn' grant it an' de man was jes' as mad an' ungrateful as if he hadn't had no wishes granted at all.

Stingless Bee.

An Indiana bee keeper has succeeded in breeding a race of stingless bees. They are a cross between Cyprus drones and Italian queens. These bees gather more and finer honey than their armed cousins and also resist disease better.

Dr. George Adam



One of the most recent acquisitions to Canada from Scotland is George Adam, of Montreal. He has been prominent in public life in the British Isles, and has rapidly come to the front here. He is a bosom friend of Harry Lauder's and a very warm friend of David Lloyd George. Two of his best lectures are entitled "A Trip to the Front with Harry Lauder," and "A Familiar Picture of David Lloyd George."

We are leaving it to the various committees to say which one of the lectures they prefer to hear. Both are great, but the majority of the committees are choosing to hear of the great British Premier, who has played such a vital part in the winning of the War.

Adam lectures on the second evening of the week.

It is impossible to buy a friend that is worth the price.

FIRE ON EDINBURGH ST.

Fire broke out yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. C. Maudsley, 179 Edinburgh street. A large pile of edgings from a lumber mill had been placed in the shed at the rear of the house, and the fire must either have been started by children playing with matches or by sparks from a chimney. The fire brigade was called out and extinguished the blaze before it had gained much headway.

MAKE NOTE PUBLIC.

Reply of the Allies to Hun Counter Proposals Coming Monday.

Paris, June 14.—The reply of the Allied powers to the German counter proposals to the peace terms is likely to be made public on Monday, according to present plans. It is expected that the text of the German counter proposals, which has never been given out, also will be made public shortly.

Mrs. Mensa wife of the manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia at River Herbert N. S., was found dead in bed.

MRS. McKENNEY GAINS 17 POUNDS

EATS WHAT SHE PLEASES AND SLEEPS LIKE A CHILD NOW, SAYS MINNEAPOLIS WOMAN.

"I never thought I would let my name be used in connection with a medicine, but if it had not been for Tanlac I would still be a sick woman and I feel that I ought to try to help others by telling them about it," said Mrs. J. F. McKenney, who resides at 121 Cedar Ave., Minneapolis, recently, in a statement, in which one of the benefits received described is a gain of seventeen pounds.

"I had been suffering from stomach trouble for five years," she continued, "and had almost despaired of ever getting relief. My appetite was very poor and I always suffered so much pain in my stomach after meals that I had gotten almost afraid to eat anything. My food would ferment and the gas from it would press on my heart until I would just have to fight for breath. I often had nervous, sick headaches, and was very dizzy at times. I could hardly ever get a good night's sleep, was very weak, and always got up in the mornings feeling as tired as when I retired at night. In fact, that tired, wornout feeling was with me all the time and I hardly had strength to do my housework.

"Finally I got to taking Tanlac on the advice of my daughter in Muskogee, Oklahoma. She told me of a minister there who said he did not believe there was ever a case of stomach trouble Tanlac would not relieve, and the results in my case have convinced me that he was right. Soon after I began taking it my appetite improved and I commenced to gain both in weight and strength. My appetite is just fine now, the gas has stopped forming on my stomach, and I can eat what I please, and all I want, without ever having a pain or an uncomfortable feeling afterwards. I sleep just like a child every night, get up in the mornings feeling rested and refreshed."

"When I began taking Tanlac I only weighed one hundred and eighteen pounds, but I now weigh one hundred and thirty-five, making an actual gain of seventeen pounds. This is just what six bottles of Tanlac have done for me, and there's nothing too good for me to say for it."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. D. Warne Drug Co. Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co. Ltd., in Fowlers' Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

WILL SPEAK ON OVERSEAS CLUB

FRANCIS R. JONES AT BOARD OF TRADE ROOMS THURSDAY.

The address to be given by Francis R. Jones, F. R. G. S. of London, England, at the Board of Trade rooms next Thursday evening, promises to be one of more than usual importance and interest. Mr. Jones is the special commissioner of the Overseas Club and the Patriotic League and he will speak on its origin and plans for the future. He will also discuss the important problem of the promotion of trade with the British Empire and the conservation and upbuilding of its manhood, referring to the great influence that British emigration has had and will continue to have on the British Dominions overseas.

Mr. Jones has been acting as Secretary at the Club's Headquarters in London, England, for the last two years. He has some very interesting stories to relate about his work and experiences in the world's greatest metropolis, besides the accounts of his recent visit to France, Belgium and Germany as the guest of the Canadian Military Authorities.

The building trades strike at Halifax is settled, both sides agreeing to arbitration.

A motor road is being built by the Ontario Bureau of Mines into the Kirkland Lake camp at Cobalt.

H. J. Habgood, Niagara Falls, has a quarter of an acre of fall wheat which he thinks is ready to cut.

Flower Sunday At Trinity Church

At Trinity Methodist Church tomorrow the morning service will be of special interest. The various classes of the Sunday school will march in a body to the church and will form in a procession within the church, each pupil carrying flowers, which will be received and built into a beautiful design. These flowers will afterward be sent to the sick and the shut-ins. The music at this service will be special. An interesting number will be given by a class of girls from the Primary Department. Mr. A. D. Hone, B.A., and the pastor will give an address. The members of the school are requested to be in their places in the S. S. hall at 10.30 a.m. sharp. The parents are all cordially invited. All are welcome.

At the evening service the pastor will preach on "The Kind of Religion that Counts."

EDITOR'S MAIL

WHY NOT HOME INDUSTRY?

Editor Review: What is the matter, Mr. Editor, with the bridge question? I have been an interested spectator of the game of battledore and shuttlecock that has been played with the poor bridge, and as a practical engineer have many times been tempted to butt in on some of the weak suggestions that have appeared in the press. But, surely, Sir, if we are to have a new bridge, the time has nearly arrived when it should be settled one.

If Horatius had had to wait so long for a bridge, we should never have had Macaulay's famous Lay, for Rome would have been sacked. We, of Peterborough, seem to be in very much the same plight as the Romans were, for the invaders are right upon us. We nearly succumbed to the attack of the Russell-Townsend invader, and now another outsider in the person of Leonard Construction Company is after the hardly earned dollars of the Peterborough ratepayers.

Who is going to pay for the bridge anyway? The ratepayers of Peterborough! Then why in heaven's name can we not find a capable firm of Peterborough contractors who will spend any profits there may be in Peterborough? Why should we go to Toronto or Chicago to give this contract? PETERBOROUGH FOR THE MEN OF PETERBOROUGH is m motto even if it should cost a little more. Keep the money at home with the men who have to contribute their 36 mills on the dollar.

The decision to build of reinforced concrete is all right from an engineering viewpoint, it is perfectly sound, and there is no need to worry about the depth of the river bed either. We have the concrete in the county, the gravel within the city limits, and the labor is here. Why can we not find brains enough in the city without going outside? If there is not a contractor that can tackle it, I would sooner do it by day labor then call in somebody from outside to skim off the cream!

I do hope now that the Council has missed fire for the ninety-ninth time, wiser counsels will prevail and a chance given to see whether it is not possible to keep this work at home so that those who have to pay for the bridge may participate in what there is in it in the way of profits.

Yours truly,
JAS. GUISE-BAGLEY.

VICKERS BIPLANE MADE 140 MILES AN HOUR IN FLIGHT FROM CANADA TO IRELAND

Lieutenant Brown Slightly Injured When Machine Landed—Both Occupants Dazed and Deaf as Result of Trip but Soon Recover—Were Given Royal Welcome.

London, June 16—When the Vickers Vimy biplane driven by Capt. John Alcock, was first sighted crossing the Irish coast, says a despatch to the Daily Mail from Clifden, Galway, an airplane flew out from the Cranmore aerodrome to render assistance. This machine landed near the Vimy but unfortunately was wrecked, owing to the softness of the ground When the Vickers-Vimy machine landed, Lieut Arthur W Brown, the navigator, said to Capt Alcock: "What do you think of that for fancy navigating?" and the pilot of the machine responded "very good."

The two men who had just completed an epoch-making voyage then shook hands. When assistance reached the machine the two aviators were helped to the ground and it was found that Lieut. Brown was slightly injured on the nose and mouth by the jolt given the machine when it struck the ground. Both men were deaf and dazed and were unable to walk steadily for some minutes. They quickly recovered, however, and were escorted to the wireless station in triumph, being given the most hospitality available. They distributed cigarettes as souvenirs and gave away a small dog and cat which were mascots during the trip The entire equipment was rainsoaked by the downpour during the flight. They made 140 miles an hour at times.

The Vickers-Vimy machine has a wing spread of only 67 feet and is equipped with two 350 horsepower Rolls Royce motors, said to be capable of developing a speed of more than one hundred miles an hour The capacity of the gasoline tanks was recently enlarged to 865 gallons, and the lubricating oil tanks to 50 gallons, which is believed sufficient to carry the plane 2,400 miles under normal weather conditions A wireless telegraphy set, capable of sending and receiving messages over comparatively long distances, is part of the plane's equipment.

Captain Jock Alcock, the pilot was among the British pioneers in aviation. He obtained his flying certificate in 1912 and joined the Royal Naval Air Service immediately upon the outbreak of the war. He acted as an instructor at first, but was after sent to the Turkish front, where he held the record for long distance bombing raids. He was later captured by the Turks and held prisoner until the armistice was signed.

London, June 16.—British, French and United States newspapers this morning pay tribute to the great airplane achievement of Alcock and Brown as splendid progress in aviation.

At one time, Capt. Alcock said, he found his machine diving so swiftly toward the surface of the ocean that he was compelled to loop the loop to avoid contact with the water, which would have crumpled the machine up into a mass of debris, had she struck at the speed she was going at the time.

EMPLOYERS CONCEDE CHIEF POINT

Strike at Winnipeg With Collective Bargaining Disposed of Now Looks Nearer Than Ever to Settlement.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, June 16. — "Daylight is in sight," said Mayor Gray early this morning after a midnight conference with Senator Robertson on the metal trades dispute, which was the origin of the general strike in this city. The mayor said the street cars would be running soon.

In a lengthy statement to the public the metal trades employers today outlined their policy on the question of collective bargaining, which is endorsed by the mediation committee of the railroad brotherhoods' officials as "being in principle and effect the same as that enjoyed by these railroad organizations." Senator Gideon D. Robertson, Minister of Labor, after reading the declaration by the companies, said: "The policy outlined is a full and complete recognition of collective bargaining as generally interpreted and applied and is entirely in accord with the established practice on our Canadian railways. It should, in my opinion, be accepted as satisfactory to Labor."

D. C. Coleman, of the C.P.R., A. E. Warren, of the C.N.R., and W. P. Hinton, of the G.T.P., also endorse the policy as outlined in the statement. The policy outlined provides no discrimination in regard to union men or non-union men, the employes to have the right to negotiate schedules covering hours, wages and working conditions, employes to have the right to elect representatives from among the employes of the firms involved. In case of disputes, if an agreement cannot be reached by the methods outlined, duly accredited international officers of the metal trades organizations shall be called upon to assist in effecting a settlement.

FINAL ANSWER TO GERMANS WILL BE DELIVERED TODAY; GIST OF COUNTER REPLY

German Delegates Will Leave For Home as Soon as They Receive the Document—Synopsis of Huns' Answer Made Public—Object to All Main Features of Treaty.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 16.—The reply of the allies to the German counter proposals will be delivered to Count von Brockdorff Rantzau, head of the enemy peace delegation at Versailles at four o'clock Paul Dutasta, secretary of the Peace Conference will take the revised treaty personally to Versailles to hand it to the Germans. A special train is held in readiness at Versailles and it is presumed that the Germans will depart for Weimar immediately upon receipt of the allied reply. Editors and printers worked throughout the night and this forenoon in a feverish effort to complete the reply at five o'clock this morning. Corrections were still being made but it was stated that the delivery of the document about four o'clock was assured.

Germany's Wail

The German reply and counter-proposals to the conditions of peace laid down to them at Versailles on May 7 were made public here Sunday. The reply covers 119 pages, and includes a covering letter by Brockdorff-Rantzau of May 29, which has already been published, and a second section of comments following the main outline of the original draft treaty. Two separate documents on legal and financial questions are included as part of the general reply. Both English and French translations have been furnished in pamphlet, the former totalling about 60,000 words

"Peace of Might" Wails Hun

The Germans maintain that the allied and associated powers have forsaken the peace of justice to which they solemnly pledged themselves in the armistice negotiations, and concluded a peace of might, in which all the principles quoted at length from speeches of the statesmen of allied and associated powers have been violated

They protest against the proposed terms individually and collectively, demand a return to the original agreements, press for verbal negotiations and state that Germany expects justice on a basis of equality and reciprocity.

Wants Place in League

The reply begins with a detailed analysis of the legal basis of peace, alleges a flagrant series of contradictions to this basis and points out that the results would be the complete enslavement of the German people and the betrayal of all the world's cherished hopes of peace In the counter proposals Germany demands immediate admission to the League of Nations, as part of the spirit of the armistice agreement, and as necessary for the acceptance of the proposed military naval and air terms. She then analyses the territorial changes demanded, claiming that the right of self-determination has been wilfully violated.

Cries Over Colonies

She bitterly assails the abolition of all German rights outside Europe as irreconcilable with the preliminary negotiations, and as wholly impossible to a great people who not only have supreme needs for markets and supplies but who have shown themselves capable of sharing the world's task of colonisataion.

Germany is wholly unable to accept the Reparations Committee set forth by the allies as involving an infringement of her sovereignty, but proposes to co-operate German Commission to work alongside it. She accepts responsibility only for civilian losses in occupied Belgium and France,(and agrees to maximum payments of the one hundred billion marks, provided the other terms as to colonies, overseas trade and territories are accepted as she proposes. As to deliveries of ships, raw material and machinery, she can meet the allied claims only in part largely because of decreased production.

Still Doing the Demanding

Germany demands that in the economic provisions she be treated on a basis of equality and reciprocity and not in the one-sided way outlined. She agrees to freedom of traffic on German rivers and within Germany, but always on condition that there be no interference with German sovereignty. Similarly with the original of treaties lapsed through the war, she expects reciprocal treatment rather than the assumpton by the allies of the right to say what engagements are or are not to become operative again

Would Protect ex-Kaiser

The Germans refuse to accept the trial of the ex-Kaiser or to sanction his extradition from Holland on the ground that no German subject can be brought before a foreign court without established law or legal basis Similarly she cannot agree to extradite other subjects accused of violation of the laws and customs of war. Instead, she proposes to an international court of neutrals to judge the fact of crime the punishment to remain with the national courts The labor clauses are not satisfactory to Germany to Germany, and as a result she again proposes, an international conference to examine the allied and associated proposals, the German proposals and the Berne resolutions. A bitter protest is entered against the occupation of the Rhine provinces and the demand made that all allied troops be withdrawn within six months of peace The occupation as proposed would break up German economic life and allow the prejudicing of German interests in favor of France and Belgium

TRAFFIC MIX-UP ON GEORGE STREET

STREET CAR, AUTOS AND DELIVERY WAGONS WERE IN COLLISION.

The new one-man street cars proved their worth as safety cars this morning at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets. Car No. 35, in charge of Motorman Young, was proceeding westwards along Charlotte street, when three automobiles and a delivery rig tried to cross the corner at the same time. One of the autos, which had come south on Aylmer tried to turn east on Charlotte but was caught on the street car's fender. Fortunately the safety brake on the street car operated in time and the automobile was able to proceed with nothing worse than a rather rough jolt.

FIRE LAST NIGHT CAUSED BY STORM

SEVERAL HUNDRED DOLLARS DAMAGES DONE AT PLANT OF C. G. E.

Fire, which broke out in one of the substations at the works of the Canadian General Electric Company and which was caused by the thunderstorm last evening, was responsible for several hundred dollars damage. The first alarm was sent in about 10.30 p.m., just as the storm was practically over, the bolt probably being conveyed along the wires from the vicinity of Nassau. Four men and the chief's car were sent up in response, but owing to the fact that the fire was beneath the flooring and that it was impossible to get at it except by chopping away the floor which was burning briskly a general call to the firemen was later sent in. The insulation of the cables and wires which ere laid in cement trenches was badly burnt. The fire was finally got under control by the aid of chemicals.

Sorel, Que., June 16. — After attempting to murder the girl with whom he was in love, Aurelian Rondeau shot her father, Philip Menard, who protected her, and killed him, and then committed suicide at St Ours yesterday. Rondeau, who was married, met the girl coming from church and attempted to shoot her The father received the shots when he stood in front of her. Rondeau jumped into the river, was pulled out by a young man named Larivieres and when brought to the shore shot himself twice in the abdomen.

War Medal For All Who Donned Khaki

VICTORY RIBBON AND DESIGN FOR THOSE WHO SERVED IN THE WAR.

London, June 16.—The British Army Clothing Department has made the first issue of a ribbon for the new general war service medal. The decorations will be issued when ready to all men and women who have served anywhere during the war in any capacity. The Allied Victory Medal ribbon and design, which have also been decided upon, will be issued only to those who have served in a theatre of war.

SUN STARTED FIRE?

Blaze This Morning in Furniture Store Room.

Another call came to the local firemen about 10.50 this morning when some furniture was discovered to be ablaze in a store room over the Coughlin Monumental Works at 216 Hunter street. There is no indication as to how the fire started, and the only theory worth considering is one of spontaneous combustion. The rays of the sun coming through window and striking on the mirrors might possibly be reflected in sufficient strength to ignite some of the packing. The damage was not very great.

The information was given in response to an enquiry by Sir Herbert Ames.

PUT OFF STRIKE FOR ONE WEEK

TORONTO STREET RAILWAY MEN SEND FINAL DECISION TO COMPANY.

Toronto, June 16. — Unless the Government can appoint a Board of Conciliation and have the points at issue discussed at midnight, Toronto will be without a street car service By a big majority the street railway men turned down the proposal made by their executive that men be appointed to sit on the proposed Board of Conciliation and that the strike be held off for two weeks to give the Ottawa authorities time to act.

Up to the Company

It is now up to the company. The men agreed, after a long and hot discussion, to postpone action for one week in order to give the company time to meet their terms of an eight hour day and 51c an hour. They made it quite clear at the meeting which packed the Star Theatre on Saturday night that they had no intention of conceding anything on these two points. Today the officials of the union, Mr. A Conn, Controller Robbins and ex-Ald Joseph Gibbons, will notify the Toronto Street Railway Company of the stand the men have taken

LABOR TROUBLES GROW IN MONTREAL

TWENTY THOUSAND WORKERS ARE NOW IDLE IN THAT CITY.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Montreal, June 16.—Four thousand employes of the Dominion Textile Company in Montreal struck this morning for shorter hours and higher wages. A strike which may spread to the whole building trades here was started this morning by the electrical workers. There are now 20,000 strikers in Montreal. One thousand two hundred employes of the packing houses struck this morning There is no fresh development in connection with the railway shop men's strike called for all Canada on Wednesday.

VETERAN GIVEN PLACE ON FORCE

LESLIE BRISTOW DONS THE UNIFORM OF CHIEF THOMPSON'S FINEST.

A new face appeared among the local police force this morning when P. C. Leslie Bristow began his duties. He is used to a uniform, although the color formerly was khaki instead of blue, and will, in the opinion of his friends, soon master the multifarious duties of a policeman, which range all the way from leading little strayaways back to their parents to arresting the most dangerous type of criminals

He takes the place made vacant by the resignation of P. C. Graham Bromley, whose last act in office was to arrest Joseph Collins and Stephen O'Connor for being drunk and disorderly on Charlotte street Saturday evening Mr. Bromley leaves the police force to enter the employ of Edward Cooney, the baggage and express man.

In police court, Joseph Collins and Stephen O'Connor pleaded guilty to the charge of being drunk and were each assessed $10 and costs or thirty days in jail

Michael Polmero was haled into court on the charge of assaulting his wife. She appeared in court to give evidence against him, and he pleaded guilty to the charge, but owing to extenuating circumstances he was let go on suspended sentence for a month. He is employed by the Quaker Oats Co., and his wife admitted that he was a good provider, though he had a bad temper. Mrs. Polmero has ten children, Michael being her second husband Since her second marriage she has had two children, one not two years old, and another a baby of three months. Its father thinks a good deal of the latest arrival, and undertook to punish his wife for slapping the child. Mrs. Polmero is a Canadian, but her husband is an Italian, and, as Acting Magistrate H Rush remarked, "It is another unfortunate case of mixed marriages" Magistrate Rush was assisted by F Adams, J.P., who are acting during the absence of Police Magistrate D. W. Dumble at his cottage at Stoney Lake.

CONSCRIPTION OF LABOR.

OUR CONTEMPORARY, that appears unable to free itself from leading strings, endorses a suggestion made by one of its exchanges and joins in an attack on the Government for failing to "do something" to induce the people in the cities to go back to the land and so lower the cost of living by increasing production.

Why be absurd even in a political argument? The Government is as powerless in this regard as it is helpless to regulate weather conditions or to send rain and sunshine in season to the farmers. What the Examiner has in mind would practically amount to a conscription of city labor for duty on the farm. Such a course is inconsistent on the part of a journal that from the first opposed at least by withholding its approval—the policy of compulsion for military service during the darkest days of the war. How, for example, would some city people take it if the Government decreed that they take jobs with the farmers? And at that, there are plenty of city people—not excepting a few editors—who, if formally charged with vagrancy, might meet with some difficulty in setting up a tolerable defence.

Of course, it is regrettable that the urban population of Canada is out of all proportion to that in the rural communities. But there are other things also out of joint. It is too bad, for example, that the Otonabee River pursues so devious a course instead of following a straight line from its source to its outlet. No Government has a warrant to amend the one condition any more than the other.

Suppose the Dominion Government offered a bonus to all men who left the city to help out on the farm, would such a measure meet with popular support or would it attain the object in view—the lowering of the cost of living? It is easy for newspapers to call upon the Administration to "do something." It is an entirely different matter and beyond the attainments of the same paper to define that "something." A policy of destruction comes easy to the most of men. It is construction that provides the problem. The foolish and the idle can with little effort destroy what wiser heads have been at infinite pains to build.

THE POT AND THE KETTLE.

HON. R. LEMIEUX, M. P., Postmaster-General under the Laurier regime, as a public man excites the admiration of all classes regardless of politics. His ability is nothing short of transcendent. When he has anything to say, he says it without fear or favor, and fighter that he is he always carries on his combats in the open. If he has a fault, even that leans in the direction of virtue, being excessive zeal for race and creed.

It is this characteristic, no doubt, that leads Mr. Lemieux into an occasional error of judgment. He deplores everything of the nature of religious or racial agitation, and yet his very objections may assume the attitude which he challenges when that attitude is taken by others.

In the House a few days ago Mr. Lemieux made a recent occurrence in Winnipeg the text of an impassioned address on religious toleration. A clergyman of an influential denomination took a leading part on behalf of the strikers in that city, and was charged with an ambition to establish a Soviet form of government. Mr. Lemieux's argument was if that clergyman had been a member of another denomination, his action, taken on his own initiative, would have been acclaimed as a concerted effort, inspired from abroad, to wreck the British Empire.

Mr. Lemieux errs in taking the religious agitator too seriously. Such agitation is the lone stock in trade of certain small bore politicians who flourish according as publicity is given them. The one way to suppress them finally and effectively is to let them alone, to ignore their every outburst. They will cease to have a standing just as soon as newspapers give over taking note of them, even by adverse criticism, and members of Parliament of Mr. Lemieux's class refrain from alluding to them either in the House or on the public platform during a campaign.

Neither of the denomiantions involved in this issue should be held responsible for the vagaries of individual members, and no right thinking person so regards them. Mr. Lemieux should be satisfied with the strength of his own fortress. Why take seriously the vaporings of agitators whose only basis for criticism is really a tendency on the part of a religious denomination to hold Divine wisdom in higher esteem than that of human statesmanship? Let the heathen rave and the agitator imagine vain things. The fires of discord that have been burning in Canada since the beginning will disappear if public men, Mr. Lemieux included, cease to fan them.

AERIAL OCEAN TRAVEL.

ANOTHER AIRSHIP has succeeded in crossing the Atlatic, the latest to accomplish the feat having chosen the most direct course and making a flight of nearly two thousand miles without a stop. Everyone admires the daring that inspires men to take such risks. It is not just to say of them that they are actuated by a desire to secure immediate material reward. The ambition to prevail over the forces of Nature, to demonstrate the possibilities of aerial navigation, would alone induce men to venture on a flight of two thousand miles with a fathomless ocean beneath them.

Of course, there are cynics to say that this flirting with death is of a piece with the feat of the foolhardy adventurer who walks across Niagara Falls on a tight rope or navigates the whirlpool rapids in a barrel. The comparison is hardly fair. No real good is accomplished by either of the achievements last mentioned. Barrel navigation will never become a popular means of transit. Crossing a river on a tight rope will never be a favorite and universal method of locomotion even in districts where the powers entrusted with the duty of erecting proper bridges are as slow to move as are the members of our own City Council.

But aerial navigation is different again. The day is coming when the Atlantic ocean beyond all question can be negotiated in a few hours, in safety and comfort, too. The idea is yet in the stage of infancy, but it will be developed just as was the problem of crossing the ocean by boat.

Aerial navigators now are the victims of weather conditions. They are no worse off in this regard than were the providers of the old time sailing vessel that was the prey of wind and wave. But the sailing vessel gave way to the powerful modern steamship that is practically independent of adverse wind and treacherous sea alike.

The airship will be developed just as the vessel has been, until a machine has been secured that can make the flight regardless of the contending forces of Nature. That much has been demonstrated recently by the pioneers in transatlantic flights. The achievements of these men are valuable aside altogether from the exhibition they afford of undaunted courage. A sustained flight of two thousand miles over solid land would not so appeal to the people. Neither would it concentrate master minds so thoroughly upon the possibilities of aerial navigation.

SCOTCHMEN AS AGITATORS.

AT A SESSION of a church court or convention last week the question of deporting agitators was raised, whereupon one of the clergymen present recommended caution. It was his opinion that if such a policy were adopted Canada would be stripped of some of her best Scottish citizens.

Is the Scotchman an inherent agitator, as this clergyman implies? That depends altogether on what construction is placed upon the term. But at the outset it can be safely and assuredly stated that there are fewer pernicious agitators among the Scotch than is to be found in any race in Canada, or in the world, for that matter. The progressive man is not of necessity a mischief maker. If the individual whose feet are stuck fast in the muck of tradition is essentially safe, then it is just as true that he is ineffably useless and the world is no better for his existence.

It was a Scotchman who, according to the records, first settled in Peterborough. It was Celtic acumen that first saw the possibilities that the region offered, and it was Celtic pertinacity that changed a wilderness into a garden. The Scotch residents have taken a leading part in shaping the destiny of this country. There was no task sufficiently formidable to dismay the sturdy Scottish pioneers. There was no industrial, economic or political ill that they hesitated to assail. Away back nearly one hundred years ago there were agitators of that race who in their day were branded as traitors and whom history now classes among the patriots, men whose fearlessness won for their progeny every blessing which they now prize as among the chief boons of existence.

Progress has marked the Scottish race since the beginning, even in the matter of faith. No denomination has so revised its creed since that creed was first fought for on the hills of the old land. That creed has been purged of errors and prejudices, thanks to the inspired efforts of the agitators again.

But in all this agitation there has run a vein of characteristic national caution. The Scotch have nothing to fear, even if a liberal policy of deporting the agitators be given effect. The majority of them will be found equal to the test of citizenship. The sponsorship of the pastor who would shield them from evil may have been well meant, but it is entirely unnecessary.

FOR SCIENTIFIC TAX REVISION

(New York Commercial.)

The National Association of Credit Men has gone on record as urging Congress to frame a revenue measure by the terms of which the revenue required from taxation will be raised primarily by a tax on individual incomes, and that the only tax levied on organized business, as such, shall be a flat rate income tax, the same as fixed for the normal tax on individual incomes, for in this manner only can the tax on incomes be placed in an equitable manner and in proportion to the ability of the individual, who in the last analysis bears the burden. The assessment of the tax in a manner which will discriminate against any business entity on account of the form or time of its organization, or in the manner in which its accounts have been kept, is the basis for a most emphatic protest.

Framing of tax laws which will fall with equal justice in every direction is a task practically beyond human accomplishment. No one has ever succeeded in doing it since the world began. It is possible, however, to minimise the defects in tax legislation by scientific study of conditions. The present revenue laws of the government fall far short of being ideal. From the very nature of things they had to be drafted on the basis of theories rather than practical experience, for we are now being taxed on a basis that has no precedent in our own history. It is safe to say that the present laws were passed by Congress with a great many of its members having no more idea of what they were voting for than children. It would have been interesting if a poll could have been taken of both senators and representatives who had actually read the tax bills through from end to end. The group would in all probability have been narrowed down to the members of the committees to which they were referred.

After the bills were reported out of committee Congress struggled with them for months, and in the closing days gave up the task in despair and hustled them through almost as they were originally. In other words, our revenue legislation is dependent almost wholly upon those who draft the bills in the first place, in most cases persons outside of Congress. Up to the present time numerous defects have developed and many theories have gone wrong. The problem, for instance, of how to capitalize good-will proved to be a baffling one, and therefore was left unsolved, with the result that excess profits taxes are levied with the greatest inequality. The next revenue bill should be drafted by experts who, taking into account the experience thus far acquired, would at least be able to avoid some of the most glaring defects.

The Ten Commandments Of Labor

Weary of the senseless butchering which is going on in Germany, a prominent Berlin newspaper is giving publicity to the Ten Commandments of Labor, first published during the revolution of 1848. These commandments are:

1. Thou shalt work for unless a man work, neither shall he eat. So it is written. Let the many who eat without work hear and obey.

2. Thou shalt not suffer idlers. When thou seest an idler, thou must say to him, "Brother if thou art idle, I must do thy share or work, which is unjust."

3. Thou shalt not suffer slave labor. All men are born free and equal.

4. Thou shalt receive fair wages for thy work, and if men tell thee that there are hard times in the market and the wages must be lowered, thou shalt say that they create and not they that sell must fix the price of work.

5. Thou shalt not endure hunger. No sparrow falls from the eaves from hunger. Only a fool will work for another and go hungry himself.

6. Thou shalt not go in rags. The flowers in the meadows, the roses in the garden, have shining raiment; the birds of the air rejoice in bright feathers, and the pelt of the bear is thick and warm. Hast thou not prepared the flax and spun the yarn? Hast thou not spun the yarn? Hast thou not woven the royal purple of kings? And thou shalt go in rags.

7. Thou shalt enjoy thy life, for men are given to be happy. Thou hast done all that is needful to preserve and beautify the life of men; thou hast drawn food from the soil, and hast given to the spirit its wings, and therefore must thou and all thy brethren be happy.

8. Thou shalt walk in honor. None shall say unto thee, 'Laborer, poor laborer, witless laborer.' No, for only the idle are dishonorable.

9. Thou shalt close thine ear to the voice of the priests. The tree of knowledge is the tree of life. The priests. The tree of knowledge is the tree of life. The priests who do not work, and would yet live on the fat of the land, try to keep you from the tree of knowledge.

10. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

WIT AND WISDOM

Professor (to his class): "Gentlemen, I have to apologize for a short delay in beginning this lecture. I have unfortunately left my manuscript at home, so my son—whom I have sent for it—will be here shortly."

Professor's Son (returning): "Mother could not find the manuscript and so she has sent the book you copied it from."

Mrs. Testy: "What are you burning, my dear?"

Mr. Testy: "The letters I wrote you before we were married."

Mrs. Testy: "Oh, you heartless wretch. Have you no sentiment, no tender—"

Mr. Testy: "Shut up, my dear. I'm doing it for your sake. I'm trying to manage things so that when I die nobody will dispute my will on the round of insanity."

"Your narrative is too highly colored," remarked the editor, returning the bulky manuscript. "In what way?" inquired the disappointed author. "Why," replied the editor, "in the very first chapter you make the old man turn purple with rage, the villain turn green with envy, the hero turn white with anger, the heroine turn red with blushes, and the coachman turn blue with cold."

Queer.

It's curious, but it's often said
And I should like to know
Why some men toil to earn their bread
And others work for dough.

Interrupted.

It was the still, tense scene of the drama.

"Dear me," she said, audibly. "How annoying. Now I'll have to wait until this is over before I can tell you the rest of that story."

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

One kind word a day is some men's limit.

The patch is likely to come off in a patched-up quarrel.

Every married man is in favor of a heavy tax on bachelors.

He who laughs last laughs best, because he knows what tickles him.

If a young man means half he says during courtship, the girl is lucky.

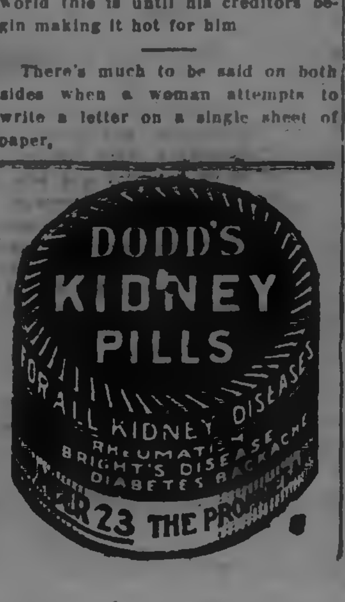
Many a man climbs the ladder of fame only to be rewarded with a good hard fall.

Some country people would rather have a pint of trouble than a bushel of happiness.

Never is the weather so bad that the oldest inhabitants can't remember when it was worse.

A man seldom realizes what a cold world this is until his creditors begin making it hot for him.

There's much to be said on both sides when a woman attempts to write a letter on a single sheet of paper.



TO-DAY'S STORY

The most marvellous wood workman in the world is Hananuma Masakichi, of Tokio, Japan, who has carved a figure in wood so like himself that when the two are placed side by side it is said to be almost impossible to tell which lives and breathes and which does not. By several connoisseurs in art this wooden figure has been pronounced the most perfect and human image of man ever made. Masakichi has faithfully reproduced every scar, vein and wrinkle to be seen on his body. The figure is composed of 2,000 pieces of wood dovetailed and jointed with such skill that no seams can be detected.

Tiny holes were drilled for the reception of hairs, and the wooden figure has glass eyes and eyelashes in which no dissimilarity to Masakichi's own can be detected.

The Japanese artist posed between two mirrors while modeling this figure, and for some time after its completion he posed frequently beside it, to the confusion of spectators, who were often entirely at a loss as to which was the artist. The figure stands with a little mask in one hand and an instrument for carving in the other; the lifelike eyes are apparently gazing at the mask, and the face wears a look of intense absorption.

FEMININE LOGIC

The young lady across the way says she would have sworn that President Wilson was a college graduate but the paper says he's a mere academician.

HOW ABOUT THIS GIRLS?

Spooning, Flirting and Short Skirts Blacklisted.

Eyes that won't behave are indecent.

Thus decrees Dr. Florence H. Richards, teachers of physiology and hygiene at the William Penn High School, Philadelphia.

According to Dr. Richards, eyes that stray to neither right nor left are the eyes that girls should cultivate. And as for "spooning?"—that's out of the question entirely!

"Flirting and spooning are indecent," says Dr. Richards. "Parents should warn their daughters against these practices. Many parents view them in the light of natural inclinations which are harmless."

Tight skirts, transparents waists, high heels, suggestive dancing, silk stockings that are gauze weight, and movies that "go too far" also are on Dr. Richard's black list.

"Tight skirts endanger the morals of the observer," she says; "besides they are not hygienic. They prevent freedom of movement and subject the wearer to the danger of falling."

Dr. Richards names two yards as the "very minimum" for the circumference of milady's skirt.

"High heels and pointed toes are decidedly unhygienic," Dr. Richards asserts. "This is the manufacturers' fault. The girls buy what is in style. Manufacturers should change the style. I recommend shoes for girls such as are worn by the soldiers."

Dr. Richards is opposed to the "vampire" in the movies. "As a rule the 'vampire's' dress is suggestive, and the story itself is usually far from helpful."

BOY SCOUTS AT DIVINE SERVICE

PARADED TO ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH FORTY STRONG LAST NIGHT.

Forty sturdy young Canadians wearing the uniform of the Boy Scouts, paraded to St. Andrew's Church last night and before the services went through their various evolutions with creditable military precision under the direction of Scoutmaster Thornton. Only about half the corps was present. The scouts occupied centre pews in the church and Rev. James Rollins, the pastor wore his uniform as captain in honor of the occasion.

Choosing as his text the words, "Can the Ethiopian change the color of his skin or the leopard his spots," Mr. Rollins preached to the boys, whom he predicted would, if they remained true to the order, grow up into likeable dependable men, on the difficulty of breaking away from bad habits once they were formed. In conclusion he told of the death of a young man in France with whose friends he communicated as chaplain of the battalion and whose father wrote back that the young fellow had always been a good boy and never caused his parents a moment of uneasiness.

How Well Do You See?

If you find yourself squinting and frowning at your work it is an indication that you are straining your eyes.

Such a strain, if continued, will seriously and perhaps permanently impair your sight. If neglected too long it may be impossible to bring your eyes back to normal even by the use of glasses.

Wouldn't it be more sensible to have us examine your eyes NOW?

ROAD ALL TAKEN OVER

Provincial Highway Scheme Steadily Develops.

Every section of the roads which constitute the Provincial Highway from the Quebec border to London has now been taken over by the Provincial Government. This announcement was made by Mr. W. A. McLean, of the Department of Highways. The last section to be taken over was that between Brantford and Woodstock. The direct road from Brantford to Paris has been taken over and from Paris to Woodstock, the provincial highway, will run through Gobles, Princeton and Eastwood, along the Governor's Road. The government has also designated as a provincial county road the alternative route from Brantford to Woodstock which runs through Burford. While this route will be contructed by the county authorities, the provincial government will pay 60 per cent. of the expenditure of construction. This action on the part of the government will mean that an excellent chain of county roads will be built and maintained through that section of the province aside from the provincial highway itself.

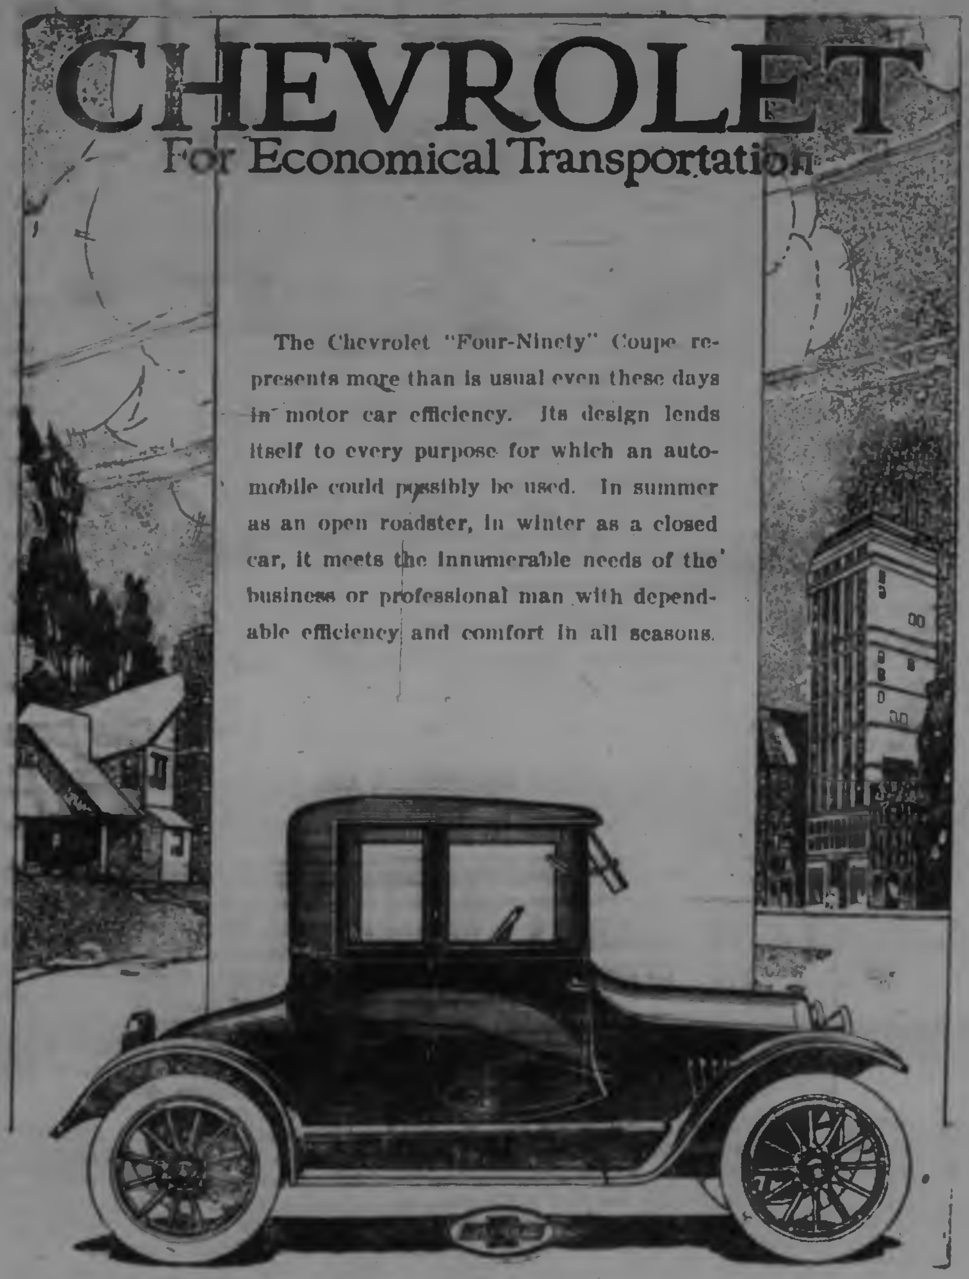
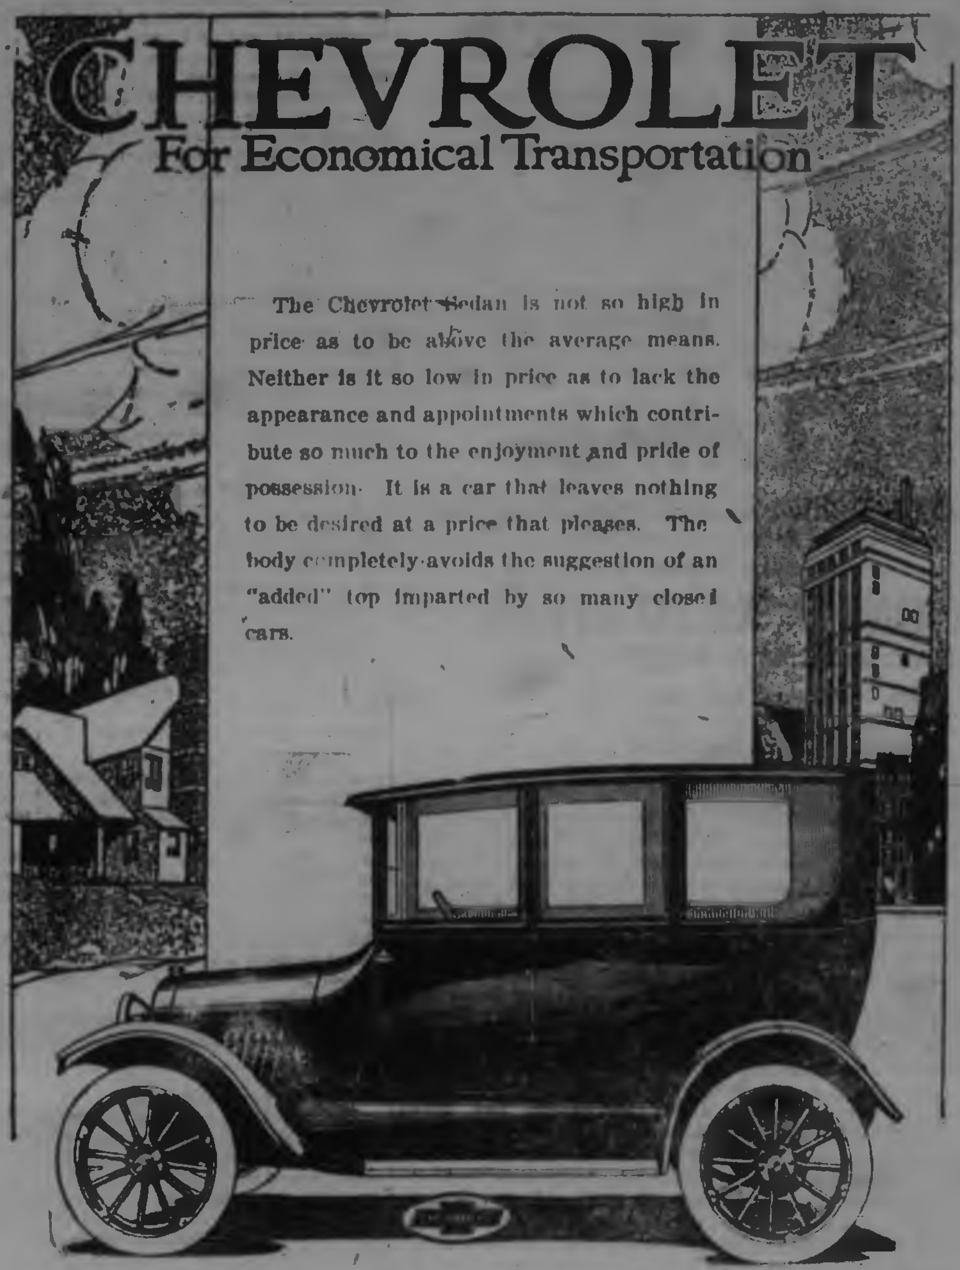
Important Annoucement To Motor Car Buyers



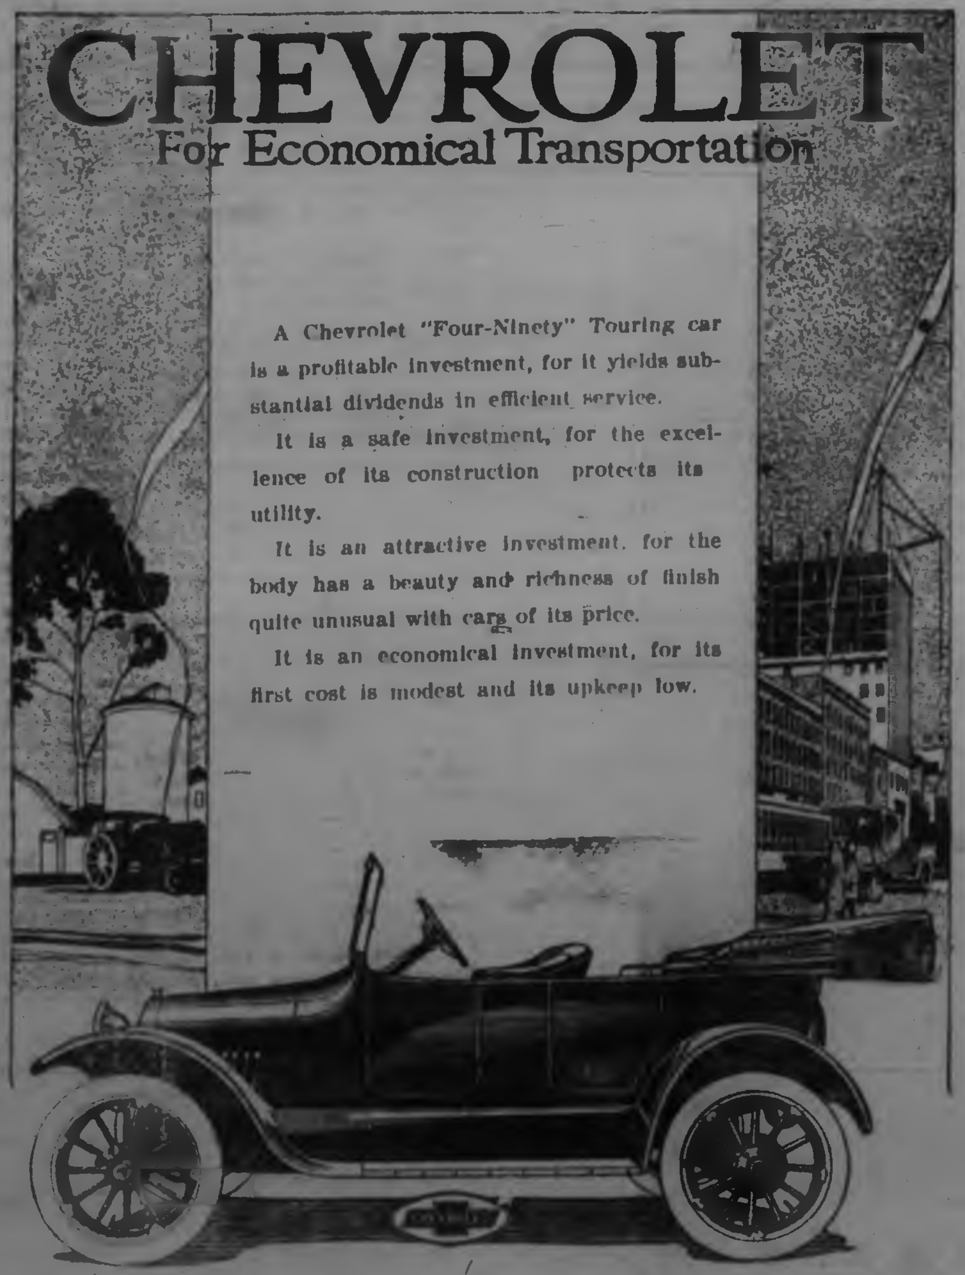
CHEVROLET
For Economical Transportation

The Chevrolet "Four-Ninety" Coupe represents more than is usual even these days in motor car efficiency. Its design lends itself to every purpose for which an automobile could possibly be used. In summer as an open roadster, in winter as a closed car, it meets the innumerable needs of the business or professional man with dependable efficiency and comfort in all seasons.



CHEVROLET
For Economical Transportation

The Chevrolet Sedan is not so high in price as to be above the average means. Neither is it so low in price as to lack the appearance and appointments which contribute so much to the enjoyment and pride of possession. It is a car that leaves nothing to be desired at a price that pleases. The body completely avoids the suggestion of an "added" top imparted by so many closed cars.



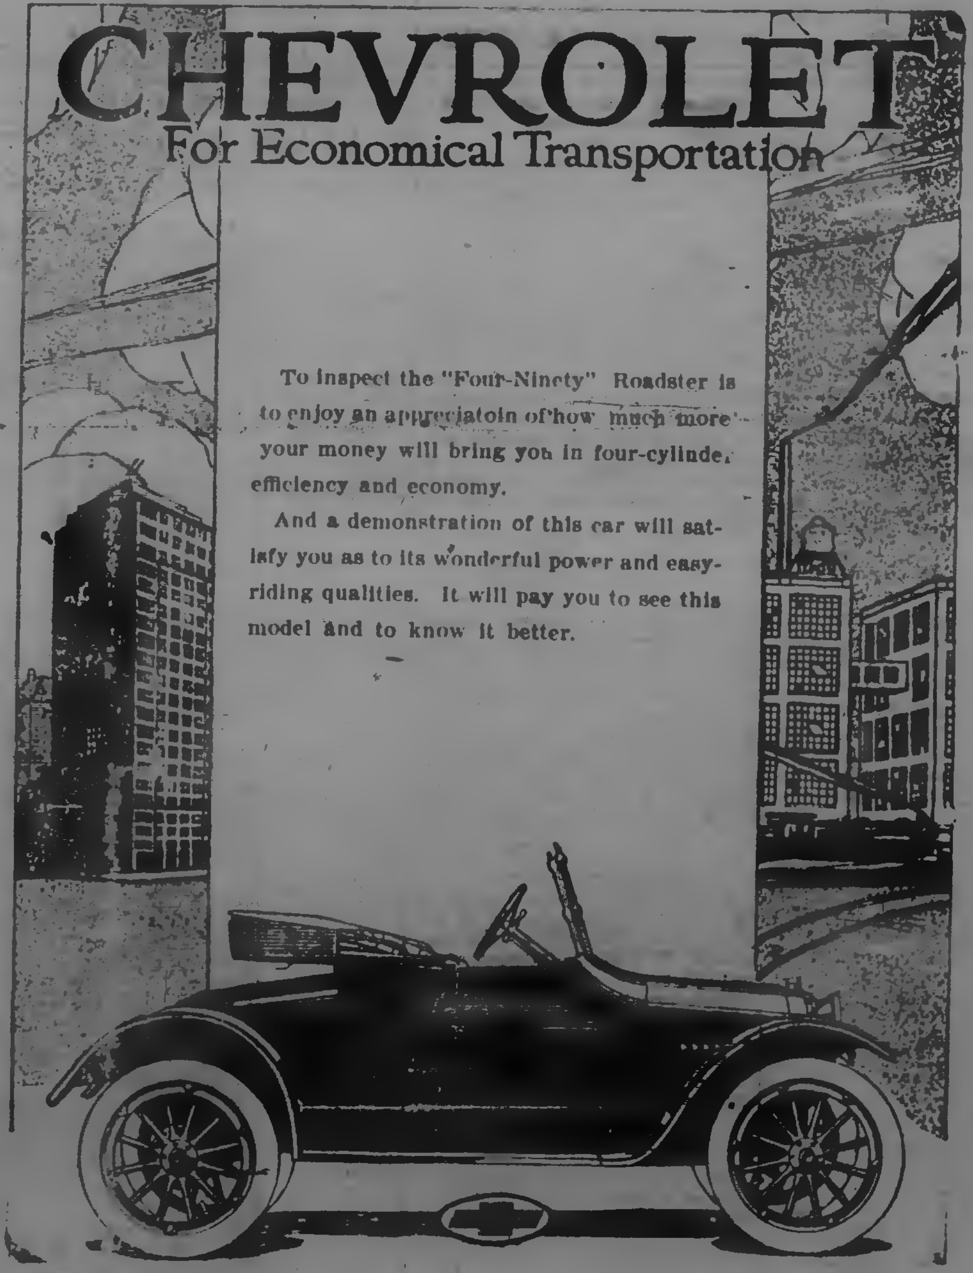
CHEVROLET
For Economical Transportation

A Chevrolet "Four-Ninety" Touring car is a profitable investment, for it yields substantial dividends in efficient service.

It is a safe investment, for the excellence of its construction protects its utility.

It is an attractive investment, for the body has a beauty and richness of finish quite unusual with cars of its price.

It is an economical investment, for its first cost is modest and its upkeep low.



CHEVROLET
For Economical Transportation

To inspect the "Four-Ninety" Roadster is to enjoy an appreciatoin of how much more your money will bring you in four-cylinder efficiency and economy.

And a demonstration of this car will satisfy you as to its wonderful power and easy-riding qualities. It will pay you to see this model and to know it better.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

When a man's chronological speedometer begins to tremble around 40 he generally acquires a vast contentment. It sticks out on him all over. He radiates satisfaction. He is a substantial and too often a solid citizen, thirty pounds or more too solid for the good of his country. But he revels in his very solidity. He mistakes his high stomach for dignity and his high blood pressure for hearty good health. And he eats, and eats, and smokes, and just enjoys himself to beat the band all in a quiet, dignified, home body way.

At 40 a man is nearly grown up. He has poise, character, from one to half a dozen bosses, and eke a gasoline buggy. Now and then he has a grain of sense too. At 40 a man has well established habits, or the well established habits have him, depending on the man and the elevation of his stomach. At 40 a man is at his best, and his best is good for twenty years. At 40 a man quits lamping around and settles down to love his wife truly and labor for his children and his children's children, for by this time they are coming along.

Yet at 45 a man is middle aged, and the change of life is upon him before he realizes it.

The chnge of life, you know, is not wholly imaginary. It really happens—ask Mrs. Harris, she knows. Yes, indeed, the middle aged man is a candidate for every ailment Mrs. Harris can possibly mention in polite society. Bright's disease, hardening of the arteries, heart muscle failure, apoplexy, cancer and everything. The women have no corner on the change of life; their only to procrastinate while the disease gets a good start, thanks to the vague rumors propagated by Mrs. Harris. A man, being by nature a less credulous person, takes little stock in Mrs. Harris' views; when he feels himself slipping, he goes to the doctor for an examination. He has just enough sense to do that after 40.

It's a great age, 40. Next to sweet 16, which is the greatest age in the world, and 21, which is getting quite common, 40 is by all odds the finest age for a man. Thirty used to be considered ideal, but that was in the days when men were very good and died young. Forty, comparatively, is now the milepost on the spot where 30 used to be. Life is longer today by at least ten years than it was fifty years ago.

About thirty-six or so a man ought to begin training to stay forty as long as possible. He ought to camouflage his birthdays, sneak past them without exciting any comment on the part of the family, so that in a little while folks would learn to size him up and say: "I wonder how old that bird is anyhow?" It is an excellent thing for everybody, including the man himself, to kep them guessing about that.

Little Ones Anxious to Grow.

"I would like very much to know if there is any possible way to make me grow 4 ~~few~~ inches. I am 19, a girl—not a young girl of 19, mind you—weigh 124 pounds with clothes on, and am 5feet and 1 inch tall. A younger sister is much taller than I am. MISS B. E."

I know of nothing that will influence the stature of adults. Sometimes ductless gland treatment administered by the family physician seems to stimulate growth in children whose growth is retarded. Assuming your clothes weigh ten pounds, you are underweight. Take a yeastcake after food twice a day. Yeast is rich in vitamin, and vitamin is essential for growth.

The Late Lamented Eggnog.

"Is an eggnog taken daily beneficial? Could the eggnog be the cause of my skin being sallow? My skin is growing more sallow, and there are brown spots under my mouth and on my forehead. Can you suggest anything for this? C. M. C."

Eggs plus milk plus sugar plus cinnamon plus vanilla plus ice makes a rather inviting knick-knack for one who for any reason cannot eat eggs cooked. It could scarcely account for a sallow complexion. The brown spots are best removed by taking half a dozen rolls before breakfast every morning, half a dozen more before retiring every night, and a couple miles of oxygen on the hoof tres in diem—in other words, daily physical exercise three times daily to increase oxygen absorption.

BLOUSE AND THE SHIRTWAIST

Garments That Aid the Majority of Women in Solving the Economical Dress Problem.

Every once in a while we are told by some fashion authority that "no one is wearing the shirtwaist," or that the blouse of the season is so modified from the old type of tucked-in shirtwaist as to be really a different garment; that "every one" now considers it necessary to have a special blouse made with a coat costume so that it virtually becomes a one-piece frock with a coat to match.

But the "every one" in such statements, notes a fashion correspondent, is really a very inconsiderable personage and the good old shirtwaist goes along solving the dress problem of almost all women—either in the home or in the workaday world outside the home.

You could prove to yourself if you wished to that it rarely if ever pays to buy a shirtwaist made of inferior material. In fact, the cheap shirtwaist is usually made on an inferior pattern and not only does the material shrink out of shape but the actual lines are such that it loses its good looks and comfort after a few launderings.

You could prove, even if you are dressing on so thrifty a basis as to allow yourself only $100 or $75 a year for all your clothes, that it is true economy to buy every year two blouses that cost as much as $6 or $7.

The Dyspeptic Ostrich.

Long ago the phenomenal power of the ostrich was immortalized in the idiom of all the world's great languages. To have the "stomach of an ostrich" is the synonym for incomparable digestive power. As a matter of fact, however, the ostrich, if not a confirmed dyspeptic, has a most delicate digestion, and the successful feeding of ostriches in captivity requires constant care.

He Stuck to It.

The judge was listening to testimony in a case and ventured to interject a remark. "Do you claim that this men hit you with malice aforethought?" he asked. The complainant eyed him suspiciously for a moment and then replied: "You can't mix me up as easy as that, judge. I said he hit me with a flivver, and I stick to it."—The Argonaut.

Indiscreet charity is better than chronic penuriousness.

TWO NEW COLORS NOW IN USE

Overseas Blue and Artillery Red Provide Very Smart Combination—Military Effects.

There are two new colors which are beautiful, overseas blue and artillery red. The overseas blue is a shade as lovely as the sky on the most beautiful of days. Artillery red is the vivid bright scarlet one would imagine it to be. A combination of navy blue and artillery red is very smart, a mere touch of the latter being sufficient to brighten the dullest frocks. It is placed agreeably on a paneled blouse buttoning at one side with rather large round red buttons caught with silken loops of red cord.

It is curious to note, observes a fashion writer, how we reach out after as many of the military effects as possible. Epaulets, for instance, are made of fur, or gold fringe or silver, and again of some of the Japanese brocaded metallic fabrics.

Another military note is the slashing seen in some costumes. One fabric is slit and a material of contrasting color is pulled through the opening. This treatment supplies a very new and effective bit of trimming. A charming soft blouse of dove gray georgette with a tiny French chemisette of Alencon lace was slashed through with pale pink velvet ribbons at the yoke and on the cuffs.

Helpful Hints.

The air of a room may be freshened by putting a few drops of oil of lavender into a bowl of boiling water and letting it stand until the water is quite cold. People who keep houses dark for fear of the sunlight spoiling their carpets or furniture have no idea of the disease-destroying influence of sunlight and air. The ends of candles are useful in kindling the fire. Cut them into small pieces and distribute them among the kindling. The fire will burn up much more quickly.

New School's Snap Judgment.

A number of years ago when a Boston paper asked leading authors of this country and England to name the best poem in the English language, James Whitcomb Riley chose Longfellow's "The Bridge." He found in it every element necessary to a perfect poem. Most of the other writers said there could not be any "best" and declined to make a selection. The new school of rhymeless and rhythmless verse writers have ruled Longfellow and Tennyson out as "artificial" and second rate.—Exchange.

Flag of Denmark.

The national emblem of Denmark, which is the oldest in existence, dating back to the thirteenth century, was born of war, and the legend is traceable to the fact. In a battle between the Danes and the heathen Livonians, King Waldemar declared that he saw a cross in the sky. The news was communicated to his troops, with the assurance that the portent was the sign of celestial aid. The cross forthwith became the national emblem, "The Danneborg," strength of Denmark, as it was called.

When Man Ate Grass.

M. Marcel Baudouin, who has been examining some human remains, dating from the neolithic epoch (the latest period of the stone age), has presented the Academy of Science with a curious report. The shape of the incisor teeth of two young children of this distant epoch leads him to the conclusion that the present single root teeth of human beings are in reality a development from three germs, and that man is descended from the herbivorous animal with an ancestor possessing 132 dental germs.

LEADING DAIRYMAN AND HIS BEST BUSINESS ALLY

The above is a picture of J. B. Hanmer, of Norwich, the enterprising young farmer who raised the champion cow of Canada, Rolo Marcena DeKol, the Holstein that was sold recently in Philadelphia for $26,000. The cow's four-month-old calf sold at the same time for $7,000. Mr. Hanmer not only cleaned up a small fortune on the sale, but he also realized handsomely on the butter fat produced by the cow while she was his property. His best business ally in the venture was the De Laval separator, which is shown with him in the picture. A full story of Mr. Hanmer's success as a dairyman was published in The Review last week.

HALTON LIBERALS FOR HOME RULE

BELIEVE THERE SHOULD BE NO APPEALS FROM CANADIAN COURTS.

Milton, June 13.—Resolutions calling for the prohibition of appeals to rect representation of the Dominion in the Capitals of countries where there are opportunities of promoting Canadian interests, and for the placing of all self-governing communities within the British Empire on a footing of equality, were enthusiastilally passed at the annual meeting of the Halton Liberal Association here.

The association went on record as expressing appreciation of the effort of W. F. Nikle, M.P., for Kingston, in securing the passage of the resolution in the House of Commons proptilally prohibiting the conferring of titles upon Canadians resident in Canada.

Besides the election of officers, delegates were nominated for both the Provincial and Dominion Liberal Conferences, soon to take place. W. J. Clements of Milton was elected President, and C. D. McGregor, also of Milton, Secretary-Treasurer. W. D. Gregory, of Oakville, candidate in the last Dominion election, and E. H. Cleaver of Burlington, Provincial standard-bearer, were the chief speakers.

For Practical Education.

One of these resolutions called for such changes in the present educational system in the Province as would insure a suitable and practical education for young Canadians in both rural and urban environments rather than the laying of special stress upon certain scholarly and academic courses, applicable only to a limited number and unsuitable to the great mass of the people.

NEW VERSION OF SCRAP OF PAPER

FORMER GERMAN CHANCELLOR REFERS TO HISTORIC STATEMENT IN MEMOIRS.

London, June 16.—Former German Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg gives in his memoirs the following version of the "scrap of paper" incident, accordin gto a Brussels despatch to the Daily News from Ernest Smith. He does not deny that in the course of an interviem on August 4, 1914, Sir W. E. Goschen, the British Ambassador, reminded him several times that violation of the neutrality of Belgium would be a decisive act in the relations of England and Germany.

"If you compare it with the terrible event of a German-English war," the former Chancellor safs he replied to the British Ambassador, "the Belgian neutrality treaty is only a scrap of paper."

"My blood boiled," he adds, "at this hypocritical insistence upon Belgian neutrality, while shutting one's eyes to the fact that a declaration of war by England would mean the ruin of the world. Truly, compared to such a declaration, the violation of Belgian neutrality seemed insignificant. Mr. Goschen might have added to the report of his interview that when he left me he burst into sobbing."

SAYS THE COUNCIL EXCEEDED RIGHT

CAPT. KENNY ARGUES CITIZENS ARE OPPOSED TO LIQUOR SALE.

Cobourg, June 16.—In the address in the Methodist Church here on "The Enemy in Our Province," Capt. the Rev. H. B. Kenny claimed that the Cobourg Town Council had not the right to ask the Provincial Government to open a liquor store here (as it has done) when the citizens of Cobourg had said by their votes on more than one occasion that they wanted total prohibition. Local option would have carried in Cobourg had it not been for the three-fifths handicap, and the Town Council, he said, was exceeding its rights in asking for a place where liquor shall be sold.

He showed that strong drink was an enemy to the country by weighing down national energy and retarding development of our resources, economically, by means of the enormous waste brought about through liquor; industrially, by unfitting employees for work, and vitally, by generating diseases that destroy and weaken the race by depriving young people and children of their rightful advantages. The woman, he said, who will vote for alcohol betrays her trust. The man who will vote for it is against childhood, and the man who is opposed to childhood is an enemy of the country. He showed that the indirect effects of strong drink upon our national vitality are greater than its direct effects. Drunkenness is one of the least of the effects of strong drink.

In concluding he called for the solidification of all forces. Every organization should take it up until it is a live question. Wives, mothers, sisters, should agitate. He asked those present to vote in the coming referendum in the interests of the homes of Canada.

Useless Equipment.

A soldier just released from the service was the guest of friends at a dinner in celebration of his return home. The waiter placed an elaborate silver service around the table. The soldier looked at the showy array, carefully selecting one knife, one fork and one spoon. Shoving the rest of the silver from him, to the surprise of his hosts, he remarked: "Too much equipment to keep clean."—Judge.

Lindsay Citizen Victim Of Heat

WM. NELSON WAS OVERCOME WHILE WORKING IN HIS GARDEN.

Lindsay, June 16. — Lindsay friends of Mr. William Nelson were shocked Friday night to hear the sad news that he had collapsed while working in his garden during the heat of the afternoon. Death took place between five and six o'clock his beloved wife being the first to notice his absence and also to find his lifeless form

It appears that the deceased gentleman was anxious to complete hoeing a few rows in the garden before partaking of the evening meal. Mrs. Nelson urged him to lie down and rest for a spell, but he replied that he wished to finish the work, so that he might have Saturday free to cut the lawn and take a walk down town in the afternoon. When supper time arrived he was not to be found but on looking down the long garden towards the town, Mrs. Nelson saw her husband lying between the rows and on rushing to his side found life to be extinct. It was a severe shock to Mrs. Nelson, who was alone in the house at the time.

The late Mr Nelson was known to the majority of people in Lindsay, he having resided here for years. For a long time he was connected with the police department of the town Recently Mr. and Mrs. Nelson have been in charge of the Isolation Hospital He is survived by his wife one daughter, Mrs. John Elliott of Lindsay and one son William, at Buffalo.

FIUME TO FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

IS RAISING ARMY TO STAND BY ITALY'S CLAIMS.

Rome, June 16.—Reports from Fiume state that the National Council met on Friday, and after reviewing the political situation with the Mayor of the city, concurred in the view that it was necessary to form an army in Fiume for the defense of the city's liberty and independence.

The Council voted by acclamation a bill creating an army of Fiume, the necessary funds to be provided by an issue of treasury bonds amounting to $20,000,000.

The Council decided to entrust the organization of the army to the poet Sem Benelli, a former Captain in the Italian army, and also decreed that justice throughout the territory of Fiume would be administered in the name of the King of Italy.

School Boards at Windsor to Confer

CONSTRUCTION OF A $250,000 TECHNICAL SCHOOL IS CONTEMPLATED.

Windsor, June 16.—Members of the Public and Separate School Boards will meet the Industrial Committee of the Board of Education, to meet at the Collegiate Institute, where plans for the construction of a $250,000 technical school will be discussed.

The joint conference of School Board is to unite the educational forces along the boarder in their request to their respective City Councils for money. The new training school will be given a grant from the Ontario Government as soon as the Councils of the five municipalities signify their willingness to pay half the bill.

The school, which the Boards hope to provide by next January, will offer technical training not only to children in the public and separate school, but also to boys and girls employed by manufacturers Classes will be given at unusual hours for the special benefit of employed children.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed with Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre at Once

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

KENNEDY REVIVAL CAMPAIGN LAUNCHED SUNDAY IN BIG TENT

Fully Six Hundred Attended in Spite of Heat and Threatening Weather—Evangelist Spoke on "The Woman of Samaria."

The revival campaign, with Evangelist Kennedy as chief speaker and Mr G W. Mulligan in charge of the musical services, was launched last night in the big tent on Hunter street In spite of the intense heat and the threatening weather the place was fairly well filled and the audience listened to an interesting and inspiring address by Mr. Kennedy. There was an encouraging air of unity about the entire proceedings The choir was made up of representatives from the various churches and Miss Ida Sanderson, organist of Murray Street Baptist Church acted as accompanist. On the platform were Revs. R. A. Whattam, R. Pogue, F. E. Malott, A. J. Thomas and P. Neville all of whom took part in the service. Mr. H. H. Cowan, chairman of the committee in charge of the arrangements, was also on the platform and made a short address in which he outlined the object of the meetings.

The thunder storm and the heavy rain came on while the meeting was in progress but the big tent stood the test bravely and not a drop of rain fell upon the audience. The temperature, too, was more comfortable than that of the various city churches earlier in the evening Those who attend these services can have no grievance on the score of accommodation and the addresses by Mr Kennedy as well as the musical services should attract hundreds each night and no doubt will when the meetings are fairly under way There will be no collection taken up any night this week. The interest which outsiders are taking in the campaign is shown by the fact that already over $100 has been donated without solicitation, to meet the expenses

Mr Kennedy's sermon last night was based on the story of the woman of Samaria and her meeting with Christ at the well of Jacob. The speaker was full of fire and earnestness and held the attention of his hearers to the end. Mr Kennedy is a forceful speaker and knows the Bible from beginning to end

It is urged that those who attend be in their places promptly at 8 o'clock so that the services can be concluded by 9.15. The first three hundred to arrive tonight will receive a booklet containing one of the most interesting stories of the kind ever written.

The following are a few sample sparks that Evangelist Kennedy strikes from his gospel anvil:

A revival is the natural result of the right use of means, just the same as a crop of wheat is

A farmer does not wait for God to give Him a crop in His own time.

No one complains when we have revivals in business or politics.

Take Pentecost out of history and the New Testament might go into the waste basket Most Christians were converted in a revival

Some would rather fish with a hook and line.

No one would complain about excitement if a child were rescued from under horses' feet

Opposing revivals may be the sin against the Holy Ghost—taking away the fireman's ladder

It is said that once a convention of ice-bergs resolved to abolish the sun.

Its easier to bend a poker when its hot. So with a church.

Some sing "Come ye disconsolate where'er you wander," while sitting in their own comfortable homes doing nothing to help

It would be unfortunate to have an ingathering without a revival.

It hurts to be revided—pinned.

Begin the work of a revival in your own life or in any community and the devil gets busy.

Every engine needs tightening up after every trip and occasionally goes to the round house.

When an engine cannot make schedule time or draw loads, it needs fixing

There can be no movement without friction and no battle without the drawing of lines.

There is a big difference beween reading an essay on mustard and putting on a plaster.

The world needs workers not knockers.

There are always ten men full of unbelief.—Spies.

An empty wagon makes the most noise and its the weakest wheel that creaks and groans the most.

Only one duty has been committed to the church—that is to evangelize the world

That is the one thing heaven is interested in. There is joy among the angels when a sinner turns to God.

We have societies today for most everything, except keeping the ten commandments.

Even the heathen do not forsake their gods.

It is not the business of the church to entertain the world.

Some church members only help the preacher to count one more at conference.

Best remedy for a sick church is to put it on missionary diet.

The greatest thing that was ever done in this world was done in favor of lost souls.

CHURCHES MUST BE DEMOCRATIC

DELEGATES AT TORONTO CONFERENCE DISCUSSES QUESTRION OF HONORARY DEGREES.

Toronto, June 16.—"I haven't much use for just the priestley in the church; it's time for the prophetic," said Bishop Nicholson, of Chicago, addressing the Methodist Conference. "If the Christian church takes the attitude the Russian church has taken, it will be put out of business, and deserves to be put out of business, because that church had become an agent of the spy system of the Czar." He added: "That church which closes its ears to the cries of the workingmen will pay the fare. If the ministry isn't a job for a red-blooded man in these days, I don't know where we'll find one. You can't do the work of the Lord in this day without thoroughly trained men; and what worries us is the fewness of them."

Abolish Honorary Degrees.

Rev. (Capt.) J. W. Magwood presented the following motion:

"That whereas this is the day of democracy—a day in which the currents of popular sentiment are running strong against all superficial distinctions and honor arbitrarily conferred, and whereas the Federal Parliament, by a decisive vote, has advised his Majesty the King that the practice of granting honorary titles to members of our common Canadian citizenship be discontinued.

"Therefore, be it resolved, that the Toronto Conference respectfully advise the authorities of our colleges to place themselves and the church in harmony with popular sentiment and conviction in this matter, by ceasing to grant any further honorary degrees to ministers of our church."

Rev. T. W. Neal asked if the motion would include the levelling of all military ranks to that of private. Capt. Magwood said that rank did not stand for anything. The motion was temporarily withdrawn, but will come up probably today and a lively discussion is anticipated.

THREE KILLED AT CROSSING

HERBERT LLOYD, DAUGHTER AND GRANDDAUGHTER ARE STRUCK BY TRAIN.

Napanee, June 16.—While driving to Napanee Saturday afternoon, Herber Lloyd, a farmer, of South Fredericksburgh township, together with his daughter and granddaughter, were instantly killed on the Grand Trunk Railway track at Mooney's Crossing about two miles from Napanee. The team of horses were also instantly killed, and the wagon was smashed. Mr. Lloyd attempted to cross the tracks at the rear of a freight train, and did not see the fast passenger train going in the opposite direction. The trainmen stated that the team baulked on the tracks and could not be induced to move. The bodies were brought to Napanee on the train, and an inquest will be held.

SIMILAR TASTES IN LITERATURE

HOW DETECTIVE CRONIN WAS AIDED IN SEARCH FOR McCULLOUGH.

Toronto, June 16.—A knowledge of his tastes in literature played an interesting part in the recapture of Frank McCullough after his escape from the Toronto jail on April 15th, last.

Detective Bart Cronin, who was placed in charge of the case after the murder of Detective Williams, had been anxious to secure information from McCullough after his original arrest, as to where he had cached that part of the plunder gathered by the murderer and his accomplices, which had not been accounted for. One robbery which McCullough acknowledged he had pulled off was the theft of about $8,000 worth of silk from a railroad car. The silk, he confessed, had been taken while the train was in motion, and in a burst of confidence in one of the many long conversations Cronin had with him in the jail he told that he had boarded the train with a rope ladder with hooks attached to one end. When a convenient place was reached, he had let himself down from the running board to the car door, which he forced. The silk he threw out was later picked up, and safely cached.

Talk About Books.

"Did you ever read 'Beating Back'? asked the detective, referring to the life story of Jennings, one-time train robber, now a prosperous lawyer in the western States.

"I have," then McCullough.

The talk then drifted to books, and the officer discovered that the prisoner had ready many of the detective books with which he himself had beguiled his idle hours, and the contents of which he had not forgotten.

Remembered Conversation.

When, early in the morning of April 15, the police were notified that the murderer had made his escape, Cronin remembered his conversation from which he had learned who McCullough's heroes in the world of crime were, and hazarded the opinion that, like some of these McCullough would seek a hiding place as near the scene of murder as he could. Other members of the police force laughed at the idea and expressed the opinion that the murderer would cross the line as soon as he could. The detective, however, stuck to his opinion, and several, whose business kept them near the corner of Bathrust and King, were taken into his confidence, and asked to keep an eye out for the refugee.

That Cronin was right in his surmise was shown when McCullough was captured in a house so near the livery yard in which the murder had been committed that he could almost have jumped into it from his bedroom window.

DUKE AND DUCHESS VISIT KINGSTON

WERE PRESENT AT SERVICE IN ST. GEORGE'S CATHEDRAL SUNDAY.

Kingston, June 16.—This city is entertaining over the week-end the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire, who arrived in the city Sunday to attend the closing exercises of the Royal Military College. Their excellencies were met at the station by Mayor H. W. Newman, members of the city council, Brigadier-General V. A. S. Williams, G.O.C.; Brigadier-General C. N. Perreau, commandant of the Royal Military College From the station they drove to St. George's Cathedral, where they attended the special service of thanksgiving for the safe return of ex-cadets of the Military College. Following the service their excellencies had luncheon with Brigadier-General and Mrs. Perreau at the Military College, and in the afternoon were the guests of the city on a motor drive around the city and vicinity. To-morrow their excellencies will have a busy day.

To Visit Hospital.

They will visit Queen's Military Hospital, and her excellency will inspect St. John's Ambulance Brigade Nursing Division, No. 21.

The duke will inspect the R. M. C Cadets and officiate at the laying of the corner-stone of the new educational building, and the R.M.C. Cadets will put on a special exhibition in the gymnasium At night the duke will address the members of the Canadian Club at the Frontenac Club

Their excellencies are accompanied by Miss B. Edgerton, Lord Richard Nevill, Lord Haddington, Capt. Cater and Capt. MacMillan.

FRED. G. BALE.

No one is better qualified than Mr. Bale to carry the message of the new democracy to the parents of Canada. As the youngest Mayor in Ohio, Mr. Bale received wide publicity, and he has been in public life ever since. During the four years that he was prosecutor in the Juvenile Court of Columbus, a yearly average of 1,500 cases of children passed under his observation. At this time he saw how many evils were traceable to the saloon, and later, as Attorney for the Anti-Saloon League he wielded a wide influence in the campaign that resulted in Ohio becoming a dry State.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berlin, June 16. — Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, chief of the German peace delegation at Versailles, has informed the Berlin Government that immediately after receiving the Allied reply to the German counter proposals he will leave for Weimar, arriving Tuesday afternoon. This information has been received from official sources With expert opinions and the Assembly's attitude before it the cabinet will hold a final meeting probably on Friday and will submit the German answer to the National Assembly on Saturday for ratification.

HAMILTON YOUTH IS UNDER ARREST

MANN ACT BY ROCHESTER MARINE ACT BY ROCHESTER POLICE.

Rochester, N.Y., June 16.—Antonio Mazza, 25, of Hamilton, Ont., is held here on charges of violating the Mann White Slave Act, by bringing Mrs. Elsie Fennell Adams, of 15 Nightingale street Hamilton, and Miss Meta Kelly, of 6 Archibald street, same city, into the United States for immoral purposes

The girls are being detained here as witnesses.

Three years ago, Mazko was employed here. He induced a high school girl, 14, to elope with him. He took her to Hamilton on a motor-cycle where they were arrested. The girl was returned to her home here. Mazza was not extradited.

On June 6th, Mazza induced the two Hamilton girls to go to Niagara Falls, Ont., in an automobile; with him were three other men. At the bridge immigrations officers turned them back. Two of the men returned to Hamilton. Mazza and Victor Barusie of Hamilton, were ferried across the river with the machine. The two girls secreted themselves in a dummy engine and eluded the immigration officials.

All four went to Buffalo, where they remained until Sunday, when they came here. Yesterday their money was gone and the girls went without food. At night they drove to a garage to sell the car. The fact was communicated to the police and all four were arrested. Barusie will not be prosecuted as he was a tool for Mazza. The automobile is believed to have been stolen.

DUMMER FARMER FELL FROM BARN

HARRY PATTERSON MET WITH PAINFUL ACCIDENT LAST WEEK.

Mr. Harry Patterson of Dummer was the victim of a very painful accident on Friday afternoon last. Mr. Patterson was working on his new barn, when he stepped on a loose board and fell to the ground floor. A cant-hook which he had in hand pierced his ear. Those who witnessed the accident say that Mr. Patterson was fortunate to have escaped without more serious injury.

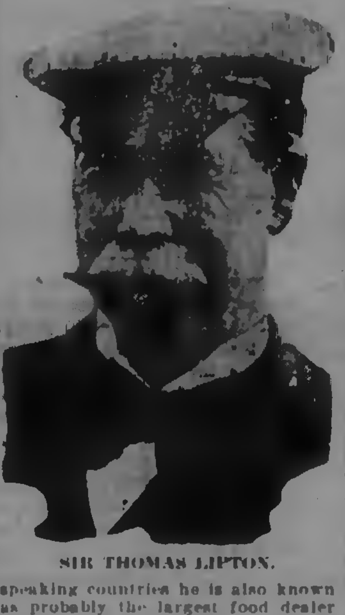
Sir Thomas Lipton Tells Facts About Yacht Racing
As Affected by the War

SIR THOMAS LIPTON, the Irish baronet and yachtsman — and merchant — has had his own share of worries about the labor situation. He predicts it would be impossible to revive yachting in Great Britain on any extensive scale until things become normal, because the expert sailors for yachts are mostly fishermen, and fishermen nowadays, with a run of luck, are able in many instances to clear $150 or more a week. When the British army demobilization has proceeded as far as it is going, Sir Thomas thinks that yachting will not only revive but that it will be on a larger scale, as regards small boats, than ever before. While the British have ever been a seafaring people, they have been made more so by the demands of the enormous number of men to operate not only the ordinary fighting ships but the prodigious fleets of lesser craft which did scouting, patrolling, mine-laying and similar jobs and inured their crews to the sea in all sorts of weather.

Sir Thomas Lipton is one of the oddest mixtures of brains and blarney that ever came prominently before the public. He is a survivor of that school of extraordinarily shrewd Irish-bred merchants who at one time were the backbone of the commercial world. Nowadays, when an Irish name on a great mercantile establishment is almost a curiosity, the public is prone to forget that originally the Irish were omnipresent traders, from push-cart peddlers to founders of huge department stores.

To Canadians Sir Thomas Lipton is known as a perennial and irrepressible challenger for the America Cup, the historic prize in international yachting. In all English-speaking countries he is also known as probably the largest food dealer in the world. And he is a self-made man, who was in his youth a boy employed in the mines of the United States, although he was born in Glasgow, Scotland, on May 10, 1950, of Irish parentage.



SIR THOMAS LIPTON.

He returned to Great Britain and by a rare combination of brains, Irish blarney and Scotch shrewdness, built up his chain of stores that stretch around the globe.

Sir Thomas has a head for thinking. He gives the impression that his second thoughts are best, and his head indicates that. There is a bulge to his forehead, well above the eyebrows, and there is a development of the muscles of the forehead, which are tokens that while his Irish parentage may make him impulsive, his mental processes tend to keep the impulsiveness in check and cause him to weigh a problem carefully if given sufficient time. His experience in challenging for the America Cup this year exactly justifies that conclusion, and he told the story himself. Said he:

"When the armistice became an assured thing and it seemed that the world would settle down to peace, I thought the occasion ripe to revive the challenge for the America Cup. The official challenge was already over here, having been delivered before the war in 1914. There would have been eight or nine months or more before the race was held, and I thought that would be time enough for peace conditions to return.

"The American yachtsmen did not think that a race in 1919 was desirable. Since discussing the matter with them I accept their views entirely and am convinced that they were entirely right and that I was too precipitate. The negotiations for a definite peace have been indefinitely prolonged, the economic readjustment has been a slow and difficult process and the return of the soldiers and placing them in employment will occupy the public mind for many months. I am now glad that the race has been postponed for at least another year."

Brains are required to make a man open to conviction. Sir Thomas has brains.

Every interviewer who has met Sir Thomas Lipton lately has noted that he has affected to a profound degree by the horrors of the war. It is impossible to talk with him more than a few minutes without the [illegible] the sight throughout Great Britain of men who have lost limbs or eyes or both, or have otherwise been maimed and handicapped or incapacitated by the war. It is deeply to be regretted that the people of the United States who are prone to discuss the peace proposals as mere academic questions, because they know nothing of the actual horrors of war, as evidenced in Great Britain and France, do not all have an opportunity to talk to Sir Thomas and be pulled off their pitiful perches.

Speaking of the effect of the war upon sports generally, Sir Thomas said:

"The heavy income and other taxes upon the large fortunes which formerly supported seagoing yachts will naturally tend to decrease that form of sport, to say nothing about the tremendous increase in wages, the price of coal and other factors in the upkeep of boats.

"Another sport which I presume will be hard hit will be hunting. Keeping a pack of hounds and conducting hunts was an expensive business before the war. Many men were employed, damages done to farmers had to be paid for, and so on. Now every one of the items will be doubled in cost.

"Popular sports, such as football, boxing and cricket should experience a boom, since the whole British Empire has become largely an outdoor empire, but the sports which necessitate large individual contributions for their maintenance will necessarily be curtailed."

In this connection it is interesting to note that the high cost of sport is beginning to touch the pockets of the masses as well as of the yachtsmen and huntsmen. One of the most prominent of the British professional football clubs has already raised the price of general admission from sixpence to a shilling, or will do so in the near future.

PADEREWSKI'S HAIR.

Flowing Locks Made Him Victim of Hysteria.

Long hair has its own associations in the popular mind, and people persist in holding this preconceived view. It first made Paderewski a victim of hysteria, now it causes surprise that he could be anything else than a pianist. When he first came to the United States, says the New York Sun, had he "patronized the hotel barber on his arrival, and subsequently kept his hair short in the fashion affected by most Americans, we should not hear now so many exclamations of surprise over his development in statesmanship." The case is analyzed, but the people will hardly profit:

"The fact that he was an unapproachable master of the pianoforte would not have dislocated the popular bump of understanding; that a musician may be versed in politics is not hidden even from the lowbrows.

But Paderewski's flaming halo marked him for exploitation, not as a musical genius, but as a man bizarre merely in his personal appearance. He was easy to caricature, easy to make the butt of good-natured if frequently pointless witticisms. So he became known to millions as a strange, rather freakish individual first, as a pianist afterwards; and the enthusiasm his performances aroused added to his unwelcome fame. Paderewski was mobbed; women stormed the stage at his recitals; a glimpse of him on his way from the hall was accounted a high distinction; his devotees lined his path, intercepted him in his hurried exit. Tales of overwrought maids and matrons endeavoring to kiss him—and sometimes succeeding—were not wanting.

"All of this was distasteful to Paderewski — the man who is now guiding Poland in its rehabilitation is not different from the man we knew of a quarter of a century ago as a pianist. Then, as now, he was a genius of industry, a level-headed business man, a patriot longing for freedom for the Poles. The extravagances of his auditors aroused in him no feeling of conceit or gratitude. Rather they repelled him and wounded him. That hysterics should be the tribute paid to his performances was far from his purpose and repugnant to him.

"Had not the war come, and with it Poland's opportunity, the real Paderewski might for all time have been unknown save to a comparatively few. The mythical genius would have had first place in the popular mind. But when the opportunity was opened to Paderewski to show himself in another character, he was ready for the task that lay before him."

The Other Fellow.

"I'd buy a car if it weren't for one thing." "What is that?" "Having to look out for the other fellow." "But if you had a car the other fellow would have to look out for you also." "Gee! I never thought of that! I'll buy one."

Korean Women Independent.

Korean women are no longer slaves of their husbands, but are ready to assert their rights. Many of them no longer depend on their husbands for support as of old, but try to obtain their own living in various branches of industry.

The Difference.

Vanderbilt, the elder millionaire, used to boast that he only wore a suit of clothes once. Many of us are like that, of course—only it is a much longer once.

Add Industry

Our idea of a man who is completely occupied is a cross-eyed fellow with the St. Vitus dance trying to kiss a two-faced girl with a hare lip.

Optimistic Thought.

Speaking silence is better than senseless speech.

CROWDS VISIT TRAINING CAMPS OF BIG FIGHTERS

Greater Interest Than Ever Taken in the Coming Bout at Toledo For Championship

Toledo, O., June 16.—Old time fight goers have been particularly impressed about one thing in connection with the preliminaries to the Willard-Dempsey boxing match of July 4. This is the interest manifested in the training of the two men. Never before have such crowds attended training exhibitions as have turned out at the rival camps on the banks of Maumee bay, and if they are significant of the interest prevailing throughout the United States this fight is going down as one of the biggest attractions in the history of sport. This pleases Tex Rickard.

It still is more than three weeks before the contest, yet the crowds that have watched the men train have been tremendous. Many a promoter would like to have a crowd as large as one of these training crowds at his regularly scheduled attractions, and, although the price of admission to the training work is only 25 cents, Jack and Jess certainly are making more than their training expenses during the preliminaries.

Sunday's crowds of course are larger than Wednesday crowds, yet even the midweek gatherings are large. At both Willard's and Dempsey's camps the crowds even ordinarily are so great that there is no comfort in them. Jack and Jess have tried to get circus seats for the benefit of their patrons, but have been unsuccessful, so the crowds must stand around while they are doing their work and standing for an hour or two under the sun that Toledo is blessed with is no joke, which is another reason for astonishment at the size of the crowds.

Big Crowds at Camps.

A crowd of from 700 to 1,000 can be counted upon with regularity through the week, and last Sunday's gathering was close to 3,000 at each of the camps. The crowds are steadily growing, and no one can predict how many persons are going to try to crowd into the inclosure for the last week preceding the contest. It will be at least 5,000 and will be more if the contestants care to enlarge their quarters to take care of a greater number.

There are many explanations for this, of course. First is the fact that Toledo is a big railroad centre and hundreds of persons pass through the city every day in the year. Naturally, some of these persons stop over for a few hours and what more natural than that they should take a run out to the training camps to see the boxers work? Scores of traveling men "make" Toledo and a few hours won't be missed, which may account for the fact that some business houses are finding that Toledo has grown vastly in importance in the last few days, according to their salesmen's reports.

Then there is the fact that Toledo has recently gone dry. In a dry town there isn't much of anything else to do except look at things. The dryness has only recently come and as yet the majority of men have found no substitute for the saloon and are killing time by watching Willard and Dempsey work.

Strikers Watch Boxers.

Another factor is that there has been a big strike in progress ni Toledo. Now, no, all these strikers are spending all their time picketing. By far the majority of the strikers are comfortably "loafing" and there isn't any counterattraction to the training camps, especially as the Toledo ball team is on the road, and even if it were in town it wouldn't be much of an attraction.

A few weks ago I wrote a story remarking that Tex Rickard was as crazy as a fox in picking Toledo as the fight scene. Tex undoubtedly picked the best spot under the sun for the contest. Every mail brings in letters and checks from towns Rickard never before suspected existed and many of these heretofore unheard of burgs are within a few hours of Toledo. But other letters are coming from every part of the United States and Canada and the crowd July 4 probably will be gathered from every part of the western hemisphere.

PETES LOST SATURDAY'S GAME WITH BELLEVILLE

Required Ten Innings to Settle the Contest and Score at End of Play Was 5 to 4

Belleville won out from Peterboro Saturday afternoon by a score of 5 to 4, but it took ten innings and the assistance of an extra enthusiastic bunch of rooters to accomplish this fea. Peterboro's manager, Jake Solomon, was in several tight corners, and it is largely owing to his cool-headed actions during a couple of disputed plays that the game did not degenrate into a rough-and-tumble exhibition of rowdyism. The winning run for Belleville in the tenth was a home run following Clancy's inability to hold a long high fly to centre field. John Roseveâr of Port Hope was the umpire.

The score by innings:

Peterboro .... 4000000000—4
Belleville ....2100000011—5

Peterboro's lineup was practically unchanged, as follows: Cherrett, ss; Heenan, lf; Collins, rf; Long, 1b; Cavanah, b; Hugerman, 2b; Clancy, m; Swanston, c; Kirn, p.

Other Games.

Cobourg lost to Port Hope in the latter town by 7 to 2 on Saturday. The umpire was Alex. Kay of Peterboro. Port Hope goes to Belleville Wednesday evening, and the result of the game there will put either one of them alone in first place.

CHANCE FOR BALL GAME

The Dufferin Baseball Club of the Lake Shore Senior League, Toronto, would like to arrange an out-of-town game with some fast team for July 1st. Communicate with R. Lester, 342 Bartlett Ave., Toronto.

Albert Crae lost his life by drowning when the fishing schooner Madeline Dyke was wrecked off Triangle Island, B. C.

John Bolton, a Niagara-on-the-Lake fisherman, ran out of gasoline, and having no oars, drifted for two days on the lake.

Geo. E. Smart, of the Canadian National Railways, Montreal, is enquiring of car builders for 20 steel first-class coaches.

The Edmonton Brewing Co. were fined $50 for having beer of greater alcoholic strength than allowed by the Act, at Calgary.

It is rumored that a big automobile factory will locate at Sarnia

Nest of the Sunfish.

"Sunfish venture close to the shore to lay their eggs and guard them," says Dr. E. F. Bigelow in "On Nature's Trail," in Boys' Life. "This is a strange fact. They begin in the southern part of our country in April, and may be found farther north in the summer, preparing a circular nest in the sand by removing all the twigs, plants and debris from a sunny spot about as large as one's head. Then by swaying her body the female fish removes the sand and gravel to a depth of from three to four inches. Exactly how is this digging done? Is some of the sand and gravel taken in the fish's mouth? Here is a problem for our good Boy Scouts to solve. It is interesting to note what cosy places these nests occupy. Such spots are sometimes like miniature houses as the aquatic plants are so close together at the top that one may well imagine them to form windows for sun parlors. When the young are hatched, the sunfish, like the bullhead, guards the nest against all intruders."

Hot Blast of Volcanoes.

Writing in the Monthly Weather Review, George N. Cole sets forth detailed arguments to prove that the hot blast which swept over the city of St. Pierre during the eruption of Mont Pelee, as well as similar blasts in connection with the eruption of Vesuvius that destroyed Pompeii and Herculaneum, the eruption of Taal, Sakurajima, etc., derived its heat from the sudden compression of the air surrounding the volcano, and not from conditions in the volcano itself. In other words, it was not, according to this hypothesis, an outpouring of hot crater gases that caused the destruction, but the dynamic heating of the air attending the propagation of the explosion wave.

How Busy Man Saves Time.

The busy business man no longer need linger over such platitudes as "yours of the 5th at hand," and "we are glad to be of service to you in the matter." Instead he has his favorite phrases numbered and filed in a small desk catalogue, and dictates his letters largely by talking numbers to his stenographer.

Powdered Eggs.

China is one of the principal sources of dried and powdered eggs. Manufacturers of prepared products in this country are said to be interested in the possibilities of dried and powdered eggs, especially in view of the increased use of such products in ready-mixed flours and in bakeries.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

When dishes used for cooking have become discolored, rub them with damp salt until all stain is removed.

A marble boiled in milk, porridge, custards, etc., will automatically do the stirring as the liquid cooks, and so prevent burning.

Scatter salt on a carpet when sweeping, and you will not only find it has a cleansing effect but that it also keeps away moths.

Liquid ammonia is invaluable for washing silver, softening bath water, and producing a good lather when washing woolens.

Dissolve a teaspoonful of saltpeter in a cupful of cold water and throw over a scuttle of coal. The fire will be brighter and last longer.

If a fire has to be left unwatched for several hours put a handful of salt on the top of the coals. This will prevent the fuel burning away too quickly.

Always shrink wool to be used for darning purposes by holding the skein in the steam from a boiling kettle. Otherwise the wool will shrink and make a hole larger than the original one.

Compensation.

One Sunday morning Pat appeared in public with a very noticeable black eye. "Hello!" said a friend. "I see you got the worst of the argument last night. "Oh," said Pat, "I don't know so much about that! I've got Murphy's wages in my pocket!"

A Shooting Fish.

A shooting fish in the East Indies has a hollow cylindrical beak. When it sees a fly on plants that grow in shallow streams it ejects a single drop of water, which knocks the fly into the tide.

Close to Being Twins.

Two little girls, dressed alike, entered a store, when the man coming to wait on them said: "Are you little girls twins?" "Well, pretty near," said one of them; "there's only a pound difference."

The Critics.

Critics are too apt to forget that rules are but means to an end; consequently where the ends are different the rules must be likewise so.—Coleridge.

Initial Combinations.

The collection of initials and initial combinations which have become current since the war is a severe strain on the alphabet, and the result is rather perplexing at times.

For instance, "M.P." once stood prominently for Member of Parliament; now it stands equally for Military Police (not to mention Mince Pies). "C.B." is Confined to Barracks rather than Caught Bending. There is a bad double on the letters "C.O.," which may signify Commanding Officer or Conscientious Objector. Inverted, they give Officer Commanding or "Old Contemptible."

To attach "R.A." to your name does not necessarily imply you can paint. It may imply Royal Artillery, and that you can shoot. "W.O." used to mean walk over. It does still, in a sense; but it is the walk-over of the War Office that comes to our mind. And imagine confounding the Army Ordinance Department with the Ancient Order of Druids! "A.O.D." signifies either.

Perhaps "P.C." is the hardest-worked combination of all. It stands for Privy Councillor and Police Constable, Parish Council and Perpetual Curate, postcard and petty cash. To which may be added pie-crust, push-cart, parish church, poor chap, and pickled cabbage.—Tit-Bits.

Gen. Ironside.

According to the newspapers, Gen. Ironside, now commanding in North Russia, passed as a Boer during the German Herrero campaign, and was in charge of native convoys which attacked German forces. His object was to study German methods of fighting in Africa. He was never suspected as he speaks Dutch fluently.

When Gen. Ironside was leaving at the end of the campaign he had a dispute concerning certain payments due him. After one Prussian officer had blustered loudly, another struck Gen. Ironside across the face with his whip. The general controlled himself with a supreme effort because he had complete maps and notes about the whole campaign stitched inside his tunic.

Pessimist vs. Optimist.

Here is another illustration of the difference between the pessimist and the optimist: "A pessimist is a man who believes that it will take centuries for the world to recover from the blow to civilization; and an optimist is a man who retorts that there will be plenty of centuries."

Optimistic Thought.

The sting of every reproachful speech is the truth of it.

The death occurred on Saturday, June 14th, at 268 Charlotte street, of Margaret Richardson, aged 66 years. Deceased was born at Cavan Township. The funeral will take place from her late residence, 268 Thomas street, today, at 1.30 p.m., and thence proceed to Gardiner's cemetery, Cavan, for interment.

REV. C. J. DUFFUS

Rev. Father C. J. Duffus, a retired Roman Catholic priest, died at his residence in Kingston yesterday morning, after a very short illness, beginning last Wednesday. He was 69 years of age and had spent his life in the service of the Roman Catholic Church in various parishes in Eastern Ontario, and for the past few years had been living retired in Kingston.

One brother and one sister survive him, Mr. James Duffus, 269 Romaine street, Peterborough, and Mrs. James Woods, Tacoma, Washington U.S.A. The body will be brought to this city on the 5.30 p.m. train tomorrow evening and will be taken immediately to St. Peter's cemetery for interment.

Swimming Pools For Each School

Toronto, June 16.—Much discussion was provided at the meeting of the property committee of the Board of Education when Chairman Noble was advocating a swimming pool to be placed in each school where an addition was to be erected this year. "But we haven't the money," interjected Trustee Rawlinson, "to spend on swimming ponds." On the motion of Trustee McRae it was decided to ask the architects on the new Parkdale Collegiate and Malvern school to estimate the cost for the installation of swimming pools.

NEW TENDERS FOR BATHING HOUSE

PLANS MODIFIED AS TENDERS RECEIVED TDAY WERE TOO HIGH.

The City Council's special bathing beach committee met this afternoon to open up tenders for the erection of a public bathing house.

Three tenders were to hand, and Chairman Ald. A. A. McIntyre remarked, "I hope we'll handle these tenders a little more businesslike than those for the bridge have been treated."

The lowest tender received would leave the committee with but a small margin with which to meet incidental expenditure, and Ald McIntyre at once suggested a modification of the plans by twelve feet.

The original plans for this bathing house, prepared by Mr. Walter Blackwell, showed a building 40x40 feet, providing for forty-four dressing rooms, divided equally among the two sexes.

Ald. Gainey wondered if Hickey's old boat house could not be purchased at a reasonable figure, but his Worship pointed out that the building would have to be broken up to get it to the bathing site.

The committee fell in line with the chairman's suggestion that the plans be modified and new tenders called for, and a reduction of twelve feet in the building's width was agreed upon.

The three tenderers of today will now be invited to tender on a building 40 by 28 feet, providing for thirty dressing rooms, fifteen for boys and fifteen for girls. All outside sheeting, rafters, joists and skidding are to be planed both sides, and tenders must be on hand by 5 o'clock Wednesday evening. This, Ald. McIntyre contends, will assure the receipt of an acceptable tender, and the building will be erected at once.

The bathing spot now decided on is at the west end of Maria street, across the river, a little north of the C. P. R. bridge.

This committee and Ald. McIntyre, its chairman, are to be congratulated on adopting business methods in all their deliberations.

The committee's appropriation for a bathing spot and house is $1500.

There were present Chairman Ald. McIntyre, Mayor Duncan, Aldermen Gainey, Taylor and Hamilton.

EXPRESS REGRET AT DEPARTURE

OF MR. AND MRS. THOMAS WARD WHO LEAVE FOR CANTON.

Sincere expressions of regret were offered yesterday by Canon Davidson, Dr. Cameron and Mr. R. J. Devey, the organist and choir leader of St. John's Anglican Church, on the occasion of the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Ward and their son, Master Desmond Ward, for Canton, Ohio. They voiced the opinion of the whole congregation when they said that Mr. Ward's splendid voluntary work in the choir would be greatly missed in the future. However, there was always the hope that when conditions became normal Mr. and Mrs. Ward would see their way clear to return to Peterborough.

Many of the choristers took the opportunity at the close of the service to wish their departing friends a safe and happy journey to their new home. Today they left for Campbellford where they intend to remain till Wednesday, leaving for Canton, Ohio, on Thursday.

UNION SERVICES TO BE RESUMED

TRINITY AND ST. ANDREW'S TO COOPERATE DURING JULY AND AUGUST.

The union services of St. Andrews and Trinity Churches that proved so successful and popular during July and August last year will be resumed for the summer, commencing the first Sunday in July. Rev. F. E. Malott will be in charge in July and Rev. James Rollins in August. Services will be held alternately morning and evening, in each church just as they were last year and the choirs will officiate jointly.

Child Welfare, Made in Canada Goods, Equal Pay, Memorials, Clothes, English Language Are Few of Subjects.

The 25th annual meeting of the National Council of Women opens next Tuesday in Regina Sask.

A number of resolutions on vital matters will be brought in at the meeting. One billed for discussion is the sugestion that a Child Welfare Week throughout the Dominion be inaugurated. This is being brought in the Virden Local Council.

Another to come up the same day presented by the Macleod Local Council has to do with "made in Canada" goods. Macleod urges that, since the objection made to purchasing Canadian goods is the claim that the price exceeds imported goods, the Women's Council should endeavor to remove this. The plan suggested is corresponding with the Canadian Trade Commission with the object of ascertaining in what way they can reduce the cost of Canadian goods.

On the same subject the Toronto Local Council is suggesting that a committee from the Women's National Council meet the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in an attempt to secure a better understanding between consumer and manufacturer as to quality and price of "made in Canada" articles.

Equal Pay

The question of "equal pay for equal work" is involved in a resolution to come from the Victoria local council.

The decoration of mothers who lost sons in the war is the suggestion embodied in a resolution to be moved by London, seconded by St. Thomas, and supported by New Westminster local council.

In connection with memorials to the men, Vancouver adds the amendment that any memorial should include the nurses.

The United Farm Women of Alberta also touch on memorials. Their opinion is that the ample provision and care for the widows and children will be the best memorial to the men.

Nurses' Hours

Welland Local Council will bring in a resolution advocating an eight hour day for pupils in hospital training schools.

Discussion is asked by the Montreal Local Council on the question of a distinctive Canadian flag.

West Algoma will advocate a perpetual national or empire holiday on the day on which the peace proclamation is signed.

West Algoma will advocate a per-ton Women's Council, will suggest that the Dominion Government be asked to give recognition to the late Mrs. Fessenden of Hamilton, founder of Empire Day, by placing a tablet to her memory in the new Parliament buildings in Ottawa.

A novel suggestion from the Winnipeg Council and a somewhat similar one from the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association is that railway fares of delegates be pooled.

The Single Tax Association will bring in a resolution urging the release of industry from taxation and raising revnue by collecting the annual rental value of land.

Minimum Wage

Winnipeg will ask the National Council to urge the various Provinces to create a minimum wage board for women. Such a board in Manitoba has, says the Winnipeg Local Council, brought benefits to women workers there.

The Ontario Women Citizens' Association has a resolution on citizenship. Their opinion as embodied in the resolution is that no one in Canada (outside of Quebec) be allowed to vote unless he or she has an adequate speaking and reading knowledge of the English language.

Victoria Local Council will move that women of Canada be given an opportunity to register at an early date in order that they may be able to vote at the next Dominion election.

Ottawa Local Council wants to see "vaudeville acts" coming into Canada, censored.

Legislation making mothers co-guardians of their children is another question to be brought up by Ontario Woman Citizens' Association. The Canadian Suffrage Association wants the Federal Government to be urged to remove all legal disabilities from the children of unmarried parents.

Moose Jaw Council is bringing in a resolution on the designing of women's clothes.

Prof. Trumpour Receives Gifts

PRESENTED WITH ADDRESS AND PURSE OF $300 IN VANCOUVER.

The Rev. Prof. H. R. Trumpour, a former rector of All Saints' Church in this city, now professor of dogmatic theology and New Testament literature in Latimer Hall or the Anglican Theological College, Vancouver, on the occasion of his leaving St. George's Church, Vancouver, after a two years' ministry in that parish as rector-in-charge, was given a reception attended by between two and three hundred of the parishioners, presented with suitable addresses from organizations in the parish, also with a purse of three hundred dollars, and a small library of very valuable modern theological books. Presentations were also made to Mrs. Trumpour. Prof. Trumpour will along with his college duties resume the rectorship of St. Helen's Church, a suburban parish in one of the most beautiful sites in Canada, near the new buildings of the University of British Columbia.

Chief Georges Regis, of the Montagnais Indians, headed a deputation to Ottawa to obtain help for needy trappers.

Y.M.C.A. HONOR ROLL

As a complete list of Y. M. C. A. members who enlisted is not available, the Association is asking the citizens to send in the names of those of their household who were members at the time of enlistment or who had transferred their membership to a branch of the Y.M.C.A. in another city. The blank is provided in order to secure information required. A prompt response is requested as it is desired to have the Honor Roll installed as soon as possible.

It is also suggested that friends of members who enlisted fill in a number of blanks. Duplicates will be eliminated, and a complete list should be the result.

PROTEST PROHIBITION

A. F. of L. Demonstration at Washington Last Saturday.

Washington, June 16.—Anti-prohibition forces from many cities, composed largely of union men, opposed to abolishing manufacture and sale of beer and light wines, descended on Washington today for a great demonstration at the capitol, planned by the Central Labor Union of the District of Columbia.

Many special trains arrived during the morning, and while awaiting the hour of the meeting, 2 o'clock, the delegates, with bands, marched bout the city. As the influx continued, union officials in charge of arrangements predicted their first estimates of a crowd of 100,000 would be exceeded.

Miss Hogan, Ottawa, was awarded $2500 damages for breach of promise against J. G. Sutherland.

THE WEATHER

Saturday's highest temperature was 1 degrees. Sunday's highest 93 degrees. Two more very warm days are thus added to June's record for heat. The rainfall last evening totalled a little over ¾ of an inch (.79). It did not, however, bring any alleviation in the heat, as last night was the warmest night yet, the lowest temperature during the night being but 68 degrees.

STRIKE LEADERS AT WINNIPEG ARE PLACED UNDER ARREST AND TAKEN AWAY IN AUTOS

Raid Was Carried Out Early This Morning and Ten Prisoners, Including Rev. William Ivens, Are Taken Out of the City, Supposedly to Penitentiary at Stoney Mountain—The Labor Headquarters Also Raided and Bolsheviki Literature Confiscated.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Winnipeg, June 17.—In early hours of this morning many men prominently associated with the leadership of the strike were quietly arrested by special police at their homes and spirited away in automobiles to some place in the country, presumably Stony Mountain. The following is an official list of those said to be taken into custody:—R. B. Russell, Rev. William Ivens, R. E. Bray, George W. Armstrong, Alderman John Quinn, Alderman A. A. Heaps and four agitators of Russian nationality.

Beyond expressing indignation at the presence of representatives of the law at their homes, the men taken into custody submitted to arrest quietly. It is understood the prisoners were not taken to any of the city police stations.

The blow of the Dominion Government against sedition in the West fell between three and four o'clock this morning. It was announced that the arrests were also to have been carried out in Calgary and other Western points at the same time. Simultaneous with the arrests the Labor Temple, from which the strike has been dictated, was raided by the Royal Northwest Mounted Police and literature said to be of a Bolshevik nature was seized. The building was thoroughly searched and doors that could not be opened were broken down. Books and papers of all sorts were taken and thrown into waiting automobiles.

The raid was conducted by Inspector Gref of the city police force, Inspector Mead of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. For the purpose a cordon of special constables, numbering several hundred, were placed around the building. Following is a list of those said to be arrested with their occupation:

R. B. Russell, secretary of the Metal Trades Council and one of the inner circle of the Strike Committee.

Rev. William Ivens, editor of the Western Labor News and pastor of the Labor Church.

R. E. Bray, leader of the pro-strike parades, which visited the Parliament buildings on a number of occasions recently.

Alderman John Queen ,advertising manager of the Western Labor News and member of the City Council for ward 5.

Alderman A. A. Heaps, upholsterer, member of the City Council for ward 5.

Moses Almasoff, extreme socialist, Russian.

Mike Berenzak, admirer of bolshevist theories, and Russian by birth.

Bolshevists Arrested.

Acting on authority from the Federal Government at Ottawa and armed with warrants issued by Dominion Government officials, nine men whom secret service authorities had marked down as leaders of bolshevikist propaganda, were arrested this morning, according to an official statement issued by Acting Chief of Police Chris H. Newton at 10 o'clock this morning. It was declared that all of those taken into custody had played a prominent part in the sympathetic strike now in its fifth week. They were taken to the Stoney Mountain penitentiary.

NEW ALLIED TERMS REACH HUNS; TREATY WILL NOT BE SIGNED?

Such is Rumor at Weimer—Spirit of Depression Prevails Among German Peace Delegates—False Report That Mob Stoned the Huns at Versailles.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Weimar, June 17.—The new Allied terms reached here late last night, and the first apparent effect upon the German leaders who remained awake to wait for the terms was that of depression. A report passed rapidly through the old castle where the Government heads are residing temporarily, that the signing of the peace terms by Germany was highly improbable. No one would take this for publication, but every official and every member of the foreign office available expressed deepest pessimism and resentment at the alleged cruelty of the terms

The Germans were especially embittered over a false report that a French mob had stoned helpless German delegates at Versailles.

WASN'T BUILT FOR THE GLORY OF GOD

PROBE INTO THE HIGH COST OF LIVING—HUGE PROFITS ADMITTED.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, June 17.—Before the Cost of Living Commission today W R Paton, of the Paton Manufacturing Company, manufacturers of tweeds, of Sherbrooke, P.Q., admitted that the profits of his company increased from about 7 per cent. in 1914 to over 72 per cent. in 1918-19

When Mr. Paton was asked if it was not due to the public to lower prices, he said: "Our mill was not built for glory of God or anybody else. It was built for the benefit of the shareholders."

RAILWAY SHOPMEN MAY NOT STRIKE

RECALL OF STRIKE ORDER IS A POSSIBILITY TODAY SAYS LABOR LEADERS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Montreal, June 17.—A recall of strike order issued to the Canadian members of the railroad shop men of America last night was a possibility today, it was learned in labor circles.

FOUR CHILDREN PERISH IN FIRE

SMALL BOY SPRINKLED PETROL OVER HOT STOVE PIPES.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Quebec, June 17.—Four children perished in a fire in the home of their parents, Mr and Mrs. P Plante, in St Francis, Beauce, Saturday night. The parents were at work in the field and the house was in charge of sick relatives, who managed to escape. The fire was caused by a boy sprinkling petrol over hot stovepipes.

FORMER PARTNERS AT LOGGERHEADS

CASE OF KING VERSUS LINDSAY UP IN COUNTY COURT.

The case, arising out of the broken partnership between Samuel King and Hugh P Lindsay, insurance agents in this city was begun this morning. Mr S T Medd appearing for the plaintiff, Samuel King and Mr. J F. Strickland for the defendant, Hugh P. Lindsay. The amount in question is a balance of $76 and unstated rent of an automobile. A horse that cost $117 and after four months' use was turned out to pasture with its feet in bad condition figures prominently in the case and suggests that hunting policytakers is a very trying task to beast as well as man. Thirty dollars more was added to the cost of the animal for care and pasturage before it was finally sold on December 1, for $75. The first witness called was Samuel King and at noon today the defence had not concluded its cross-examination

Lieut. Strickland Gets Appointment

IS NOW LEGAL AGENT IN PETERBOROUGH FOR DOMINION GOVERNMENT.

Lieut. J F Strickland, barrister at 395 Water Street, has been appointed legal agent of the Dominion Government for Peterborough. The appointment is a desirable one and Lieut Strickland's many friends will be pleased to hear of his success His choice is another recognition of military service as Lieut Strickland went overseas with the Foresters Battalion and served in the battle of the Somme and others of the hottest engagements in the war

5,774 More Heroes On The Acquitania

DUE TO DOCK AT HALIFAX ON JUNE THE 19TH.

Ottawa, June 17. — The Militia Department has been advised that the liner Aquitania, with 5,744 Canadian troops on board, will arrive at Halifax on or about June 19.

She carries 255 officers, 24 cadets and 5,465 other ranks. The Department has not yet been advised as to the units on board.

For Toronto there are 32 officers and 541 men; for London, six officers and 153 men; for Port Arthur, one officer and 88 men; for Hamilton, seven officers and 92 men; and for Kingston, five officers and 58 men.

Secretary Dickie of the Union has left Montreal to confer with the executive officers of the United States division at Atlantic City, and it is hinted here that he may be asked to call off strike due to start at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, so that question of wages and hours both for United States and Canadian shopmen could be taken up at the same time at later date.

BOTH PARTIES WERE TO BLAME

JUDGE HUYCKE DISCUSSES THE CASE OF BURNHAM VERSUS ACKERMAN.

The action of Edgar Burnham v Mrs. Chas Ackerman for $1000 damages, costs and $10 a day auto rental was dismissed this morning by His Honor Judge Huycke, without costs His Honor made one exception in the case of the adjournment last December. "If the plaintiff could have come to court in December the costs of the adjournment will be paid by him, but if he was unavoidably absent through illness the costs will be in cause. "In future," declared the Judge, "I will accept no more doctor's certificates unless they are properly drawn up under oath."

In his summing up, Judge Huycke remarked that he agreed with the jury in finding the plaintiff as well as the defendant guilty of contributory negligence. The defendant very properly offered to make reparation but the plaintiff refused

The question submitted to the jury and their answers were as follows:

1—Were the damages to the plaintiff's car caused by the negligence of the defendant? A.—Yes.

2.—If so, in what did such negligence consist? A.—Brakes not properly adjusted, and being on the wrong side of the street.

3.—Could plaintiff by ordinary and reasonable care have avoided the accident? A.—Yes.

4.—If so, what could or should he have done to avoid it? A.—He should have applied brakes and tried to stop.

5.—At what sum do you assess the damages, A.—One hundred and fifty dollars to the plaintiff.

His Honor Judge Huycke will make his decision known tomorrow morning at ten o'clock in the County Court.

FIFTEEN INJURED IN G.T.R. WRECK

PORT HOPE-TORONTO TRAIN DERAILED THIS MORNING NEAR OPS.

Many passengers on the Port Hope-Toronto train, which passes through Peterborough at 8:20 a.m., miraculously escaped fatal injury this morning when two passenger cars left hte rails 140 rods from Ops Station, two miles east of Lindsay. As it was, some fifteen people sustained injuries, the most serious cases being as follows:

Rev. G. Brown, Barrie, collarbone broken, scalp wound, suffering from concussion of the brain.

Rev. F W White, Plainfield, scalp wound.

Mr Deacon, Collingwood, scalp wound

News Agent Moyes, of Port Hope, bruised hip and side

Pte. Rhodes, Whitby, suffering from shock.

E. Powers, Emily, bruised ankle and jaw.,

Mrs. E. E. Sharpe, Lindsay, bruised chest and probably internal injuries.

Conductor Buller, scalp wound and side injured.

Mrs Jno. Gibbs, Lindsay, wrist lacerated.

Mrs Gould, Uxbridge, scalp wound.

What Happened.

There were 125 passengers on the train, which is known as No. 93, Conductor Buller in charge.

Two passenger coaches and a mail car left the rails and toppled over into a deep ditch.

The baggage car stayed on the rails, but tilted to one side.

The engine's tender left the rails, but the engine itself remained on the Cause of the Accident.

One cause given for the accident is that the engine—one of the big Mogul kind—was too heavy for the road bed, resulting in its tender leaving the rails, followed by the three coaches referred to.

The track is torn up for about forty rods and the ties smashed into kindling wood. One rail was sent flying completely through one of the coaches.

Medical Assistance.

Within a very short time after the accident surgical help was dispatched from Peterborough and Lindsay and the injured given every attention, and conveyed to the latter town.

The noon train at this city from Toronto was an hour late in consequence of the accident.

SIR LOMER GOUIN'S QUEBEC GOVERNMENT PRACTICALLY RETURNED BY ACCLAMATION

HUN DELEGATES LEAVE FOR HOME

GO DIRECT TO WEIMAR WITH ALLIES REPLY TO COUNTER PROPOSALS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berlin, June 17.—Berlin was advised by telephone this evening that Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau had received the Allied reply to the German counter proposals and would leave for Weimer at 8 o'clock. The news that the Entente had replied to Germany was made public here late last night. The German delegates are due to arrive in Weimer on Tuesday afternoon. The minor members of the delegation and expert attaches will come to this city direct from Versailles.

DAN FITZGERALD SAVES ANOTHER

RESCUES MYRTLE McGREGOR WHO WAS DROWNING AT INVERLEA PARK.

Myrtle McGregor, the daughter of David McGregor, 191 Antrim street, had a narrow escape from drowning at Inverlea Park last night. It was about 8:30 o'clock, shortly after the first thunderstorm, that she was noticed to be in distress. Dan Fitzgerald, the hero of the former accident about a week ago, jumped in and brought the young girl to shore, where she was soon resuscitated. The accident occurred within the netting placed for the protection of the bathers.

CONFERENCE SAYS PREMIER BORDEN

TO DISCUSS THE VEXED QUESTION OF MUNICIPAL RIGHTS.

Ottawa, June 17.—Sir Robert Borden moved a resolution providing for a free conference between the Senate and House of Commons on the bill to consolidate and amend the Railway Act. The Senate has amended by a consequential amendment an amendment of the Commons to the bill, and has refused to accept other amendments. The amendment relates to the control of streets by municipalities.

Mr W. C. McQuarrie asked if members of the House would be allowed to attend this conference and express their views. He had been anxious to speak on the third reading of the bill and had been unable to do so.

The Premier said that if Mr. McQuarrie would communicate his views on the bill to him, he would try to have them placed before the conference.

Dealing Now With Terms For Austria

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 17.—The Council of Five met this morning to consider the remaining clauses of the Austrian peace terms President Wilson will leave tonight for Belgium

MUNICH ELECTIONS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berlin, June 17.—In the municipal elections in Munich yesterday the independent socialists made large gains. The Independents captured sixteen seats in the city council against ten for Majority socialists. Combined the socialists will have a majority in the council as the bourgeoise parties won only twenty-three seats.

First Time in Canada's History This Has Been the Result of Nomination of Parliamentary Candidates—But Very Few Opposition Candidates in the Field—Over Forty Government Candidates Elected by Acclamation—Cannon Re-Elected For Speaker.

Montreal, June 16.—Sir Lomer Gouin's Government was practically returned to power today at nomination day. This is the first time in the history of Provincial or Federal elections in Canada that a Government has been able to secure a majority of the members elected by acclamation. Insome divisions where there are contests, both or more candidates claim to be Liberals, either favoring the government or running as Independent Liberals because of, the fact that another Liberal has been officially endorsed as the candidate, but in these cases such so-called Independent Liberal candidates will probably join the Government forces in the Asembly if elected

Lack of organization, due to the shortness of the notice given and the absence of means for a general contest was responsible for the fact that there was no organized opposition to the Gouin forces on anything like a general scale. With the exception of Hon. Napoleon Seguin, Minister without portfolio in the Government, all the Ministers are returned by acclamation. This excepts Hon. Jeremie Decarie, Provincial Secretary, who decided not to run in the county of Maisonneuve, and who will probably be given a seat in the Legislative Council so that he may continue in the Government.

Ministers Elected

The Ministers elected by acclamation are:

Hon Sir Lomer Gouin, Prime Minister and Attorney-General, in Portneuf

Hon L. A Taschereau, Minister of Public Works and Labor, in Montmorency.

Hon Walter Mitchell, Provincial Treasurer and Minister of Municipalities in Richmond.

Hon. Honore Mercier, Minister of Colonization, Mines and Fisheries, in Chateauguay.

Hon J. A Tessier, Minister of Roads, in Three Rivers.

Hon J E Caron Minister of Agriculture in Iles de la Madeline.

Hon Jules Allard, Minister of Lands and Forests, sits in the Legislative Council, and the other two Ministers without portfolio, namely, Hon Narcisse Perodeau and Hon. John C Kaine are alos safe from the election strife in the same chamber.

That there were more than 40 acclamations out of a House of 81 Deputies did not occasion much surprise, for the predictions generally had been around that way, there having been a great lack of Opposition candidates. Especially did this prove to be correct in the Quebec district, all but two or three seats in that section of the Province running down to the Gulf having gone to the Liberal party by acclamation

One Conservative Acclamation.

There was only one Conservative elected by acclamation. That was Brig-Gen C A Smart, in Westmount. There was last-minute opposition offered to Mr. Arthur Sauve, Leader of the Opposition in Two Mountains, and also to Mr. C. F. Gault, in St. George's. In both these cases, however, it would appear that the sudden candidates acted upon their own, for the Liberal organization very early in the campaign appeared not desirous of trying chances [illegible] Conservative strongholds

Nineteen Elected in Quebec Dis-

Quebec, June 16.—In the District of Quebec alone, today, the nomination date set for the Provincial elections, nineteen candidates favoring the Gouin policy and Cabinet were elected by acclamation. This leaves only seven electoral divisions where a vote will be cast next Monday in the present elections.

Never in the history of the Liberal party in Quebec Province has such a tremendous proportion of the Liberal candidates been elected without opposition at a general election.

And what opposition is being made in a number of such ridings where opposition has been made to the Gouin candidates is not regarded as serious, and it is doubtful whether two of the Conservative or Independent candidates will be elected when the polls close on Monday.

Little Opposition

As it is there is opposition to the Gouin candidates only in the following:

Quebec East—Louis Letourneau, present Liberal member, is opposed by F. X Gallbois. Letourneau will probably be re-elected.

Montmagny—Charles A. Paquet, head of the General Car Machinery Company and Fortunat Belanger, a farmer, to come out as straight Liberals: issue doubtful.

St Maurice—George Delisle, present member; Hubert Biermans and Dr J. A. Dufresne.

S Saveur—Arthur Paquet, present Liberal member and A. E. Lortie Labor Candidate.

Drummond—Hector Laferte, present Liberal member, opposed by J. A. Nadeau.

Saguenay—Maxime Morin, Liberal; A. Dauteuil, attorney, Conservative; and another candidate coming out as Independent.

Lake St John—Moreau vs Bergeron, the latter a Conservative.

Francoeur Secretary

Speaking of the coming changes in the ranks of the Gouin Cabinet, L'Evenement today says that within the next few days Mr. J. N. Francoeur, the newly elected member for Lotbiniere, will be sworn in as Provincial Secretary to replace Hon. Jeremie Decary, who retired last week, and who will be appointed to Legislative Council. Mr. Severin Letourneau, formerly M. P. P. for Hochelaga (Montreal), will be appointed to the legislative Council.

Hon Jules Alard, present Minister of Lands and Forests will become Prothonotary at Montreal, and be replaced in the Cabinet by Hon. M Galipeault at present Speaker of the House and today re-elected without opposition in Bellechasse

New Cabinet Portfolio

A new ministry will be instituted in Quebec, the Cabinet of Municipal Affairs and this would be given over to Mr Perreault, member re-elect for Arthabaska.

Cannon for Speaker

L. A Cannon M.P. for Quebec Centre, re-elected today by acclamation will be the next Speaker of the House, according to L'Evenement.

Ottawa, June 16.—At the nomination for the Quebec general elections in Hull today the sitting member, Jos Caron was the only one nominated. Dr. J. A. Quimet decided at the last moment not to run.

Canadian Rioters Did Not Fire Town

DENIALS OF RUMORS TO THIS EFFECT—ARMY HUTS TOTAL LOSS.

London, June 16.—A strenuous denial is given to the statement that the rioters at the Canadian Military Camp on Saturday night deliberately set the town in a blaze. It is certainly true that, when the seriousness of the fire was appreciated, practically the whole camp turned out in an attempt to extinguish the flames. The long draught and the inflammable holdings made the effort futile. The line of huts today present the spectacle of a mere heap of blackened rubbish.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

TUESDAY, JUNE 17, 1919

PROPOSED BATHING BEACH.

THE WATERS of the Otonabee River in the vicinity of Maria street, where it is proposed to establish the new bathing beach, are polluted by the sewage that comes from the adjacent residences on Engleburn avenue. "Picture it, think of it, lave in it, drink of it, then, if you can." Even an intrepid alderman would hesitate before availing himself of the facilities which the city is about to provide.

The Engleburn residences referred to are unable to derive any benefit from the sewer on Burnham street, that thoroughfare being of a much higher altitude than the one along the river bank. Some of these residences are provided with septic tanks with overflow pipes leading to the river. Others are connected directly with the Otonabee. Anyway, there is a constant drainage of sewage into the water at this point. The residents are aware of this fact and will not bathe in the river. Why, then, should such a place be selected for a public bathhouse?

It is claimed that the amount of sewage dumped into the river is not sufficient to contaminate the waters, but that is simply a question of degree. The very fact that there is any should give the special committee pause before they go too far with the arrangements.

Two years ago, when a private citizen sought authority to build a bath-house on the island in that neighborhood one of the reasons given for turning down his request was the very contamination here referred to. If the river was polluted two years ago, the conditions have not changed, but are rather worse today than ever. Bathing is supposed to promote rather than endanger public health.

CANADA NEEDS PROTECTION.

CANADA NEEDS PROTECTION because the international economic movement is towards protection.

Great Britain is committed to Imperial preference, is restricting imports and protecting home industries.

Acting Premier Watt of Australia has announced the introduction of a measure for higher protective duties.

The Premier of South Africa has stated that the revenue tariff of that country will be increased to protect home industries.

France is exercising government control of imports to build up home manufactures and home markets.

Japan is imitating pre-war Germany and is following an extreme policy of protection.

Practically every leading statesman of Brazil has declared and voted for a stiff protective tariff, and the country is solid for such a measure.

In the United States the Republican party has now a majority in both the Senate and the House of Representatives, and it has always supported a high tariff.

The United States tariff commission is urging the enactment of a "bargaining tariff," even in advance of a general revision of the tariff law.

A higher tariff for the United States has been forecast by Chairman Fordney, of the Ways and Means Committee of the next United States Congress, who will be the author of the new tariff bill. He emphasizes the importance of the home market, which, in normal times, consumes between 90 and 93 per cent. of the entire production of the United States. "I am not in favor," he says, "of chasing rainbows around the world to find a market for our surplus, which in amount is only about seven per cent. of our normal production, and at the same time neglect our home market and open the bars to the flood of goods offered us, made by the cheap labor of the world, to the detriment of our own laboring people."

SUNDAY AUTOS AND STREET CARS.

NO READER of the St. Thomas Times-Journal can accuse that paper of radicalism. It is sane and safe as those terms are applied to the press of the day. It is disposed to let old established customs severely alone. Still the Times-Journal does not fail to read certain signs of the age and to speak out on occasion.

St. Thomas has a park which lies at a considerable distance, as public parks generally do, from the residences of the very people who are supposed to patronize such resorts. St. Thomas, too, owns a street car line of its own. Being a city out of the specially favored class that boast of a population of 50,000 or more, St. Thomas has no voice in saying whether those cars shall or shall not operate on Sunday. That matter is disposed of by the authorities higher up. Residents of the smaller cities are not supposed to know what is good for them.

> Methodist district conferences and the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church have alike placed themselves on record as attributing part, at least, of the labor and social unrest to the lavish display of wealth made by many of those who possess more than the average of that coveted possession. The examples of ostentation most commonly cited are such vanities as silk and satin raiment, diamonds, luxurious entertainments and the like that serve to differentiate the rich from the masses that must economize in order to obtain the necessaries of life for themselves and their families. But there are other and less outstanding contrasts of similar kind that the churches themselves have assisted to produce and to perpetuate and that are provoking an increasing amount of acrid criticism in the quarters where unrest breeds. The class that suffers, too, is beginning to ask the why and wherefore of the discrimination.
>
> Here in St. Thomas the citizens possess a park whose natural beauties make it an ideal resort in this torrid weather. Yet on the one day in the week when toil is suspended for the majority who need rest most, Pinafore Park might as well be in the moon. The citizens own their street railway, but the law forbids its use by its owners. They cannot even vote on the question, for the law limits that privilege to cities of fifty thousand and upwards. Even if that privilege were theirs, it is certain that the churches would be the first to oppose, and oppose strenuously, a proposal that the citizens should travel to their park on a Sunday afternoon on their own street cars. We do not propose at this time whether, if they did this, it would be a mortal or a venial sin, or, for that matter, a sin at all. We mention the present barriers to the use of Pinafore Park in order to point a moral that is evident every fine Sunday in summer.
>
> Although the citizens of St. Thomas not lucky enough to own motor cars or rich enough to hire a taxicab must walk to and from Pinafore in a boiling heat, they can take the electric road to Port Stanley and pay five or six times the street car fare. They see motor cars by the score and the hundred crowded with passengers bent for a day in the country and free to indulge their bent without limit or restriction. What under such circumstances is the natural feeling among tired parents toiling with young children to and from Pinafore Park along Elgin street and Wilson avenue, for instance, much frequented by motorists? We are quite aware of the common objections made to Sunday street cars—the point made is that they lose their validity when a man is rich enough to own a car and a chauffeur or to hire the same. Whether either of these is a lavish display of wealth we do not profess to know, but it certainly suggests an enquiry not without its bearing on social unrest.

In Peterborough the situation is the same. On Sundays autos and livery rigs are in evidence everywhere. The poor man's carriage, the street car, is kept in the barn. The parks are inaccessible to those who would use them on the very day when they have an opportunity to do so. The poor man can huddle with his children on the shady side of his dwelling during the broiling Sundays of the heated period, or at the best can take them for a walk on the city streets that are sizzling in an atmosphere of ninety degrees or more.

If it is sinful to operate street cars on Sunday, the same can be said of the livery rigs and autos that ply regularly on the first day of the week. If street cars on Sunday have a tendency to take people away from the church services, the same is true of the other vehicles. But the worst feature of all is the discrimination between large and small cities. If the residents of a centre of 50,000 or over have a right to vote on the question of Sunday cars, the same liberty should be permitted cities of half the size. Municipalities are coming more and more to insist on a fuller measure of home rule instead of having their affairs managed and their policy dictated not so much by the responsible legislators at Toronto as by an organization self-created and independent of the votes of the people. There will be class unrest and dissatisfaction so long as there is excessive and palpable class legislation.

SENATE NOT TO DELAY PEACE

(New York Commercial)

A rather comfortable assurance is given by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, leader of the Republican majority in the United States Senate and chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, that a state of peace between the United States and Germany need not be delayed by whatsoever action the Senate may take with respect to the Covenant of the League of Nations. Is it possible that the Massachusetts Senator does not expect all this rumpus which the Senate is kicking up to be taken seriously, or is it possible that the Senators are not likely to take it seriously themselves? From the outset it appears to have been a question of seeking after partisan advantage rather than any real apprehension as to dire results if the Peace Treaty should go through in the form proposed by the Peace Conference.

It is quite true, as Senator Lodge says, that inasmuch as Congress declared a state of war, it can also declare a state of peace. There never was a moment when the United States was not free to make a separate peace. The President has always been careful to refer to the Allied Powers as "associates," and not as "Allies," and while these countries are bound by agreement to make peace at the same time, the United States is not bound to do so. Congress can bring a state of war to an end at any time. The Peace Treaty, in the opinion of Senator Lodge, contains nothing of special interest to us, but concerns more particularly Great Britain and France, whose signatures without ours need not affect the obligation devolving upon Germany.

With such a narrow technical interpretation of our position the American people can have little patience. His declaration that the Peace Treaty itself contains nothing of special interest to us is the most amazing statement made by any member of either House since the United States entered the war. If the Peace Treaty does not concern us, then why did we enter the war? Why have thousands and thousands of America's finest men made the supreme sacrifice? Why these bereaved homes, these blinded, broken, crippled men; this enormous sacrifice of money and material this dislocation of commerce and industry. Why has the President of the United States absented himself from our shores for the last six months?

It may be possible for the United States to desert her associates, but it is inconceivable that she would do such a thing, even if both Houses of Congress were made up entirely of narrow minded men. So far as it has been possible to gauge public sentiment, the American people are out of sympathy with the actions of the obstructionists in the United States Senate, and it is quite certain they will refuse to subscribe to the doctrines put forth by Senator Lodge. The vast majority of the people now realize that the interests of the United States extend beyond the confines of her own borders and if Senator Lodge is not aware of this fact, it is time he found it out!

The United States is vitally interested in the Peace Treaty itself and everything relating to it.

Selling Refreshments On Sunday

(Mail and Empire.)

On general principles most thoughtful people prefer to see a Parliament or a Council repealing an old law rather than passing a new one. Anarchists are by no means alone in their belief that there are too many laws, too many obstructions and restrictions placed in the way of good citizens. Most people, we believe, would like to see the restrictions now imposed upon the sale of refreshments on Sunday abolished and people who are entitled to sell ice-cream and cooling drinks through the week also empowered to sell them on all days. We can all remember the ridiculous discussion that used to rage over the question as to whether ice-cream is a food. The matter was considered in ministerial conferences and gravely debated in law courts. The point was that if ice-cream could by no stretch of the imagination be considered a food its sale on Sundays would be a contravention of the Lord's Day Act. Ice-cream finally was given the status of a food and its sale in restaurants was permitted. Restaurants may now sell any kind of drinks or beverages on Sundays because they happen to be restaurants. But a soda water fountain that does not happen to be located in a restaurant must remain idle on Sundays. It is now proposed that this restriction should be removed. It is difficult to understand why any special consideration should be given to a restaurant fountain as opposed to a drug-store fountain, to make one man a criminal for doing on Sunday what he has done with perfect propriety and general approval on every other day of the week, and which his neighbor who has a restaurant license is at liberty to do as freely on the Sabbath as on Saturday. Standard hotels are permitted to sell their temperance beer on Sunday, yet a soda-water fountain that is not in a drug-store is sealed at a time when there is a great public demand for its activity. There might be something to be said in favor of having all fountains, even if it were nothing more to the point than that the city needs the money, but it is hard to find a reason for limiting the output of soft, cooling drinks and ice-cream on the day of the week when there is, perhaps, the greatest demand for them.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

Some day before long I am going fishing. One of the best things a doctor can do for his patients is to go fishing. Fool that I was (not to change the tense) when I lived on Lake Keuka, where the finest trout in America are caught, fishing looked just like work to me, as compared with practice, so I never fished. Now that I live far from good fishing water I love to fish. The appetite was acquired in the course of a brief visit on Keuka, where the Keuka Lake Medical and Surgical association or something of the kind holds an annual summer meeting and gives all the doctors, great and small, from far and near, a chance to get acquainted and pick flaws in one another's methods. They flock there from New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Winnipeg, Toronto, Jerusalem and Bath, not to mention Elmira, Cleveland San Francisco and Horseheads. Among those present on one occasion was Dr. Robt. T. Morris of Botham. Dr. Morris goes fishing sometimes. ~~He described one fishing trip that proved very lucky.~~

It seems that Dr. Morris is an explorer. In exploring around the abdominal cavity he sometimes was unable to cover his trail. The patients who had been explored occasionally persisted in dogging his office, because they had sinuses that refused to close. It was getting to be a real burden, so many patients coming around every day to have those annoying sinuses dressed. April came, and with it wild rumors of the fishing upstate. The doctor bit. He snatched his tackle and hied away to the water. Clean forgot to advise the patients what to do in his absence. Consequently they just contained themselves and their sinuses in impatience until he got back, a sadder but wiser man. Then they stormed his office in no pleasant mood. They had not been dressed for days and days. Mut the neglect had allowed several of the most obstinate sinuses to heal up in the doctor's absence. So the moral he drew was this: When your luck is bad, go fishing.

Owing to the versatility of our style, it must be, a good many readers ask if we really write all these health talks or just sign our name to them and have them written by various specialists. We write them all—we doctors. I just shape them up to fit this space. We contribute to this and that medical journal, or read a paper before this and that medical society, and I grab the idea and stick it in here. That, perhaps, accounts for our versatility. I am not the whole cheese, but just a sort of cheese connoisseur. I should like to go fishing occasionally and let some other fellow conduct this column for me. Don't care what brand of healer or health expert he may be, only so he is on the square and sound in his ideas. He may be the veriest layman or laywoman.

Who will spell me while I go fishing?

A chance to reach a large audience of thinking readers ought to interest somebody.

St. Vitus' Dance.

"My daughter aged 7 years is suffering from St. Vitus' dance due to fright. She was badly frightened six months ago, and the trouble soon developed. Please advise me what remedy I had better try. She seems to grow worse instead of better.

"MRS. K. K. C."

Fright does not cause chorea (St. Vitus' dance). The cause is infection of nervous structures, the infection generally entering via diseased tonsils. It would be fool-hardy and cruel for you to try any remedy. By all means place your daughter under the regular supervision of your physician without delay.

There is no such solution. Besides, you wouud only bite them off anyway. Have the nails regularly and frequently manicured by an expert manicurist. to remove the temptation to use your teeth on them.

APSLEY

(Special Correspondence.)

Apsley, June 17.—A basket social and concert was held Thursday night at Hale's school house, Chandos, which was a great success. There was a large crowd, the house being packe to the door. Mr. Fred. Bullied showed his ability as an auctioneer, which did him credit.

The refreshments consisted of lemonade, ice cream and dainty lunches, for those who had no baskets. The program was not lengthy but was well composed, consisting instrumentals, songs, recitations and the entire evening was enjoyed by everyone. The proceeds amounted to $11.25 clear profit, which goes towards the purchasing of the Methodist parsonage. Rev. Mr. Beck, Methodist minister, acted as chairman. The managers wish to thank all those who took part in making the evening such a success. Special thanks are extended to Mrs. John Buchannan and Mrs. Joe Whitmore, who took the main part of the work and provided the refreshments, etc.; to Mr. Fred. Bulied, who worked hard during a hot and strenuous evening; to Mr. F. Woodbeck, as clerk, and to Mr. R. Knox, as cashier.

GOOD ATTENDANCE AT TENT SERVICES

BUT STORM OF LAST EVENING NO DOUBT KEPT SCORES AWAY.

The threatening weather no doubt kept scores away from the Kennedy revival services in the big tent on Hunter Street last night, but even at that there was a fair attendance. The local clergymen who assisted at the services were Rev. R. Pogue and Rev. A. J. Thomas. Excellent music was furnished by a volunteer choir, the singers from Knox Church being unable to keep their appointment on account of the storm. Evangelist Kennedy preached an interesting discourse with the transfiguration as the theme

Prayer is the expression of a felt want.

Prayer brings us to realize our dependence on God.

Prayer is our only means of personal acquaintance with God.

Prayer is the most effectual means of self discovery.

Prayer brings us to see the peril of the lost.

Prayer is the key of the morning and the lock of the evening.

When you feel least like praying that is the time you need most to pray.

Prayer is not exacting favors from a reluctant God

Prayer is getting God's will done in our lives and on this earth

Prayer is emphasized in the Bible more than anything else.

The hole in the pipe determines the amount of water that comes through. So, when we pray the blessing depends on our faith.

We should be anxious about nothing, prayerful in everything and thankful for anything.

Prayer brings us into partnership with God in saving a world.

Every Christian should pray with his money, his vote and his influence.

In creation there was no prayer till Adam, that was the first cable.

The secret of Paul's success was that he always had a better time with God than with man.

God's glory must be the chief object of prayer if we are to receive an answer.

Answered prayer brings glory to God.

In so far as God's word has power with us, will our prayer have power with Him.

When we pray we speak to God. When we read His word He speaks to us.

We canont live by breathing in or out, we must do both. Prayer is talking to God, reading is breathing in from God. We should do both, at least fifteen minutes a day.

The greatest thing any one can do for Fod or man is to pray.

God will do as the result of the humblest prayer what He would not otherwise do.

When we pray we give God an opportunity to act both manward and Satanward.

Prayer is God thinking His thought over in a man's mind.

All great leaders for God have been men of prayer

Mount Carmel and Pentecost were both the result of prayer.

Dont excuse yourself for getting off your knees, that may be spiritual laziness.

Talking to men for God is a great thing, but talking to God for men is greater.

Every Christian must move God toward men, before he can move men toward God.

Nothing is too hard for God to do if He can get the right man to do it.

Many a soul may be lost because some Christian did not put himself in touch with God and pray.

God's pathway to a human heart is through a human heart.

Prayer is God the spirit talking to God the Father, in the name of God the Son, and the Christian's heart is the prayer room

Sees No Hope For Reduction in Coal

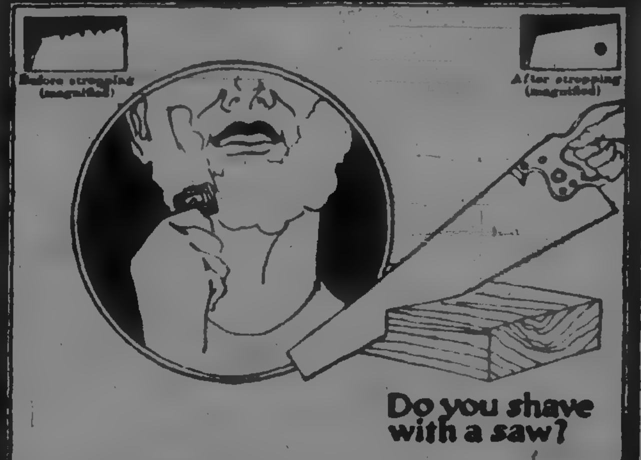
A. R. MacLEAN ADVISES PUBLIC TO PRESS FOR SUPPLY.

Ottawa, June 16.—Hon. A. K. MacLean, acting Minister of Trade and Commerce, tonight issued a statement on the coal situation, saying:

"I am urged to draw the attention of the public to the fact that owing to lack of orders many mines were forced to close down in the early spring, with the result that some seven million tons of coal, or one-twelfth of the yearly output, was lost, and there is, in consequence, a shortage of just that amount of coal with which to enter next winter.

"Furthermore, it is patent to everyone that with the unrest existing today, and with the absolute knowledge that there is a cold winter ahead, there is only one sound policy for the Canadian consumer of coal to follow, both in respect to imported coal and also as to domestic coal. That sound policy is to keep pressing for supplies and to leave nothing undone until each consumer has at least a substantial portion of his next winter's supply in his cellar.

"Apart from the foregoing facts, there is still a further consideration to be borne in mind, and that is: the publi cneed not look at the present public need not look at the present If there is to be any change, every indication points rather to an increase."



Do you shave with a saw?

FOOLISH question No. 1199! Well, maybe it sounds like that. But compare for a moment the illustrations above. They show pretty well what we're driving at; that is, unless a blade is stropped regularly it develops an edge very like a saw and causes that "pulling" and after-smarting of which you complain.

Not so with the AutoStrop Razor. For the self-stropping feature, you see, reforms the saw-like edge that results from shaving: it keeps the blade free from rust, and it provides you with a sharp blade free for every shave. The beauty of it is you don't have to remove the blade from the razor to sharpen it, nor do you have to take the AutoStrop Razor apart to clean it. From first to last stropping, shaving and cleaning—the blade remains in the razor.

Consider then the greater comfort, convenience, economy of the AutoStrop Razor. How small the price of $5.00 for razor, strop and 12 blades, looks in comparison!

ENGINEER BARBER'S CONTRACT

Editor Review: I had an opportunity this morning of looking over the contract and specifications for the bridge, and I am somewhat surprised as to its contents. It looks to me as if the whole thing was prepared in the office of the engineer.

I have had some experience in England of the ways of the architect. He always prepares the specifications, and he specifies what firms are to supply the materials to be used. Needless to say, those firms would not be named if they were not, say, friendly to the architect. Then the specification designates the architect as the sole and final judge as to the quality of the material and work and as to the progress certificate. Every contractor that bids on the work knows he will have to bribe the architect if he wants to escape trouble, and the merry game goes on because the contractor always makes allowance in his tender for the architect's rake-off.

Now, this bridge contract and specification is exactly on the lines above indicated. There are letters from the engineer suggesting firms from whom the materials are to be obtained, and the hint that one named firm's goods have been inspected and would be approved. It is provided in the specification and contract that Mr. Barber is to approve of everything, he is to give certificates of progress every month, and to decide the amount. In all things his decision is to be final and conclusive. He even has the power to object to any workman, and the contractor must dismiss him. He is the sole judge; no court can interfere with his decision, neither can the Council. The contractor is entirely at the mercy of the engineer.

I am informed on good authority that Mr. Barber told the Council that he had put two contractors out of business on other work as a proof of his assiduity. And I am told further that the contractors are all afraid of him, and that is the reason why local contractors as a body have avoided the bridge contract up to the present time, and it is said that no contractor who is not in a position to handle Mr Barber will ever get through this contract without trouble.

Now, sir, I have not a word to say about Mr Barber; he may be immaculate. They tell me if the Russell-Townsend Company get the contract there will be no trouble. That may be so, but I would like to know why.

What I do say is, that it is not to the interest of this city to put into the hands of one man so much power nor to offer so great a temptation to engineer or contractor to work graft. As matters now stand, if anything like mutual interests is ever established between engineer and contractor, there is a door wide open to the ratepayers being beaten. In a contract of the size and work of the complication and magnitude of the bridge, as efficient a job could be done on an economy basis and thousands saved for the contractor, if the engineer was complacent, and on the other hand, many thousands spent needlessly and without adding to the efficiency, if the engineer was hypercritical.

I would humbly suggest that another clause should be inserted in that agreement that would let in the local man on at least a fair footing, to the effect that in case of the contractor being dissatisfied with the engineers' decision on any point, there be a summary right of appeal to an independent authority.

Yours, etc.,
JAS. G. GUISE-BAGLEY.

LASH FOR THIS MAN

Nickolas Starshuck of New Toronto, an Austrian convicted of wife-beating in the County Police Court yesterday, was sentenced to ten days in jail by Magistrate Brunton. Each day of the ten Starshuck will receive a lash in the jail, as a reminder that wife-beating is not a thing to be condoned in Canada.

BUY W-S-S

The Easiest Way To Invest

Canada, following the example of other Allied countries, has made it possible for wage earners—men and women—to invest in safe securities without effort.

These securities are called War Savings Stamps.

The cost now $4.04, but by compounding interest, the $4.04 you invest now will be worth $5.00 in 1924. There is no other security in which you can invest such a small amount that is as safe and that bears so high a rate of interest.

Or you can start with 25 cents, by buying a Thrift Stamp. When you have sixteen Thrift Stamps, you can exchange them for a War Savings Stamp.

In June W-S.S. Cost $4.04

You take no risks. The Government of Canada guarantees to pay you back your money—with interest—at any time during the five years, or to pay you in 1924 $5.00 for every $4.00 (and a fraction) you invest now.

NEW PARTY IN THE WEST LIBERALISM IN DISGUISE

But West Will not Cast in Its Lot With Quebec so Long as That Province Dominates.

Regina June 17.--Many people in this province, who are disposed to join a new political movement for genuine reform, are asking themselves whether the new party now coming into existence on the Farmers' Platform is genuine, or a mere camouflage for old-time Liberalism. Old-time Conservatives are especially concerned over this. Their old home has been broken up, and, as the party behind Union Government has not yet been established permanently, these old Conservatives being like a man without a home, feel inclined to enter the first door that looks inviting. But they don't want to hang up their hats in a house that may turn out to be a Liberal abode.

Today men in political life do not know what course they may take six months hence, nor can leaders of new movements make confident predictions. A new party is certainly being launched on the prairies and with outward signs of being quite independent, for the time being at least. But no one can tell where it will ultimately be landed by the at present strong current of events.

To be fair to the leaders of the movement, one must concede to the majority of them a genuine desire to assume a straight middle course between the two recognized parties. It is true that the greater proportion of them have belonged to the Liberal party. Perhaps it was inevitable that the greater proportion of them should have been of this persuasion; for as the West has been overwhelmingly Liberal, it could not be otherwise than that a new party, if it were to succeed, should include within its ranks a large number of such persons. But it would be a mistake to think that there were no old-time Conservatives in the ranks.

Origin in the Plains.

I considering the question as to whether the new party will keep to the middle of the road or not, it must be borne in mind that the movement is not the result of the activities of one, or possibly two, strong personalities. It has had its origin among the people of the plains. The "bolt" that has occurred in the House of Commons has been produced chiefly by strong and continuous pressure from these provinces. While Parliament has been in session, the Council of Agriculture has been drafting its platform and making pronouncements on public policy; the provincial farmers' conventions have been endorsing all these things; the "locals" hrouhgout the country have been writing and wiring their members at Ottawa to stand steadfast, and have gradually been building up a thorough and extensive political organization.

It is undoubtedly true that some of the men prominent in this new movement would like to control it for the Liberal party, and may attempt to do so; but it is questionable whether they, in they immediate future, could resist the pressure of the mass behind who do not desire to play the party game.

It must be remembered that the whole body of the people on the prairies does not divide into Liberals and Conservatives, as is the case in the East. There are tens of thousands of Americans who know little about these parties and who care less. To a lesser extent this is true of thousands of Old Countrymen, who know no more about Eastern Canada than they have seen from a railway car window, or the rear and of a train. In the cities there are thousands of industrial workers whose advanced ideas will prevent them lining up permanently with either Liberals, Conservatives or Unionists.

Cannot Capture Movement.

While the prairie provinces naturally are strongly Liberal, still they have little in common with the at present Quebec-dominated Liberal party. In matters relating to industry and government generally the West has little in common with Quebec, and cannot have much as long as that province continues to be the reactionary influence it now is in political life. If nothing else, the attitude of Quebec to public ownership of public utilities and the bilingual question will keep these portions of the Dominion apart on subjects of fundamental importance.

At present it does not look as though the Liberals could capture the new movement, if they tried to do so; for the farmers have decided to try their luck in politics. Of course, a great deal will depend upon the attitude taken at the National Liberal Convention. If it should take a radical stand and endorse the Canadian Council of Agriculturists' platform, this would strongly affect the situation in these parts. But with Quebec in the saddle, as it is to-day, there is little likelihood of this.

In short, the situation respecting the new Western party seems to be this: Having decided to go into politics as a body the Western farmers and a large number of other people on the prairies are determined to see the experiment through for a while. Being radical in character, it is quite probable that if the Liberal party makes itself over and becomes radical, the new Western movement may eventually merge with it. But this will not be this year or next. There is little likelihood of the west going back to the Liberal fold as long as Quebec dominates.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and Bladder weakness result fro muric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailment to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jed Salts from your pharmacist and take a table-spoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

M.H.O. DR. AMYS DRAWS LINE AT LOCAL DEAD-BEAT PATIENTS

His Duties to Attend Only Indigent Cases at the Call of the Charity Board or Relief Officer Miller.

Last night the local Board of Health delved into the question of just exactly what the Medical Health Ofiably found it impossible to get Dr. Amys, the M.H.O., positively declined to act as a "go-between" dead-beat patients and family physicians. He is paid, he said, to attend only indigent cases, and in this, he was warmly supported by Chairman Wm. Buller and the Board generally.

It appears that bills from physicians other than Dr. Amys for attendance on patients are being sent into the Board of Health, and Mayor Duncan insisted on enquiry into the cause therefor. The Mayor took the position that were the calls to attend indigents in excess of what is warranted by the salary paid the Medical Health Officer, then Dr. Amys' salary should be augmented to meet conditions. In any event, the duties of the Medical Health Officer should be clearly defined, and acted on by the Board.

Blade Complains.

At a previous meeting of the Board, at which Dr. Amys was not present, Police Sergeant Blade complained that the Medical Health Officer had refused to respond to his calls for attendance on cases phoned into the police station. Last evening Sergeant Blade told the Board that he made no charges against Dr. Amys, but his (the sergeant's) instructions are to phone Dr. Amys, the Medical Health Officer, all cases needing medical attendance reported to him at night. In following these instructions, he invariably found it impossible to get Dr. Amys, and had no other recourse but to phone some other physician, who, of course, sent in his bill to the Board

DR. FRANK BOHN.

The lecturer on the fourth day of Chatauqua will be Dr. Frank Bohn who created such a tremendous interest on the circuit last year. It will be a great pleasure to welcome Dr. Bohn to our town, knowing his reputation as a speaker and his knowledge of the great questions of the day.

Dr. Bohn has spent the year largely in Switzerland and has been in attendance at various conventions of Socialists combatting Bolshevism and forwarding the interests of the Allies. His subject, "Revolutionary Europe," will be of intense interest.

During the past year he has contributed articles to the "New York Times" and other leading papers and magazines, and no one has been quoted more frequently and more copiously than he has as an authority on all great international questions.

THEATRICAL

NAOMI CHILDERS LEADING WOMAN

IN "AFTER HIS OWN HEART," COMING TO THE GRAND.

Naomi Childers, well-known to Metro audiences, will be seen as leading woman with Hale Hamilton in "After His Own Heart," a clever comedy-drama to be shown at the Grand Theatre soon.

Miss Childers, noted for her rare beauty and exceptional talents, has won an enviable reputation as leading woman for the screen's most famous stars. Before being engaged to play opposite Mr. Hamilton, in "After His Own Heart," she had just completed "Blind Man's Eyes," with Bert Lytell. Previous to that she played with Harold Lockwood in "Shadows of Suspicion," a screen Classics Inc., production released by Metro.

"After His Own Heart," was adapted for the screen from the famous story of the same name.

STORY WRITTEN BY MASTER HAND

BEN AMES WILLIAMS, AUTHOR OF "AFTER HIS OWN HEART."

Ben Ames Williams, noted novelist and short story writer, is the author of "After His Own Heart," the latest Metro production, in which the popular star is seen.

This story first appeared in the All Story Weekly, and the screen version which will be shown at the Grand Theatre soon, introduces Mr. Hamilton in a role distinctively different to anything he has hitherto done, and gives him rare opportunity for his virile and dynamic style of acting. The play contains many amazing incidents which lead to an unexpected and powerful climax and although filled with laughter it shows a romance of beautiful heart interest.

Advertising And Modern Business

NOTHING IS SO LITTLE UNDERSTOOD BY MANAGERS OF MUSICAL ATTRACTIONS

Probably one of the greatest, if not the greatest, things in modern business, is advertising. Probably no other thing is so little understood by managers of musical attractions, local and otherwise. Advertising is everything, provided you have the goods to back it up.

Among the managers of the great artists, artists with real, not alleged, box office drawing power, the value of advertising and its use is well understood. They believe in big advertising, in advertising on a large scale, and in keeping everlastingly at it. They know the secret that many men will never guess, that it is the constant hammering, not the occasional spurt, that brings results to the advertiser.

The man who can distinguish between the good and the bad in publicity (another name for advertising) and who has an attraction that will deliver the goods, yes, deliver even more than the circular, billboard and reader sets forth, and who has the courage to "hold on," is coming out upon one of the many highways that lead to success.

Educate your public. Make them feel that they "know" your artist, create a desire for first hand knowledge, for it is the curiosity to hear and see the great ones, the celebrities of the world, that changes the money from their bank to yours.

Correct handling of types and type faces, the use of white space, or color, of design and proportion, of photographs and cuts are details of the business that count for more than most people realize.

To watch the steady and fruitful results of well placed and well handled advertising is a fascinating game.

ACCIDENT TO G.T.R. INTERN'L LIMITED

ENGINE AND TWO COACHES LEFT TRACK AT SUNNYSIDE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, June 17.—One hundred and fifty passengers and crew of the International Limited, G.T.R. eastbound, due here at 9.13 this morning, had a miraculous escape from death or serious injury when the train was derailed on a twenty feet high Sunnyside embankment, just west of this city.

The engine, baggage car and two coaches left the rails, but as the train was running on one of the centre tracks, all remained on the embankment, and nobody was hurt.

The accident is said to have been caused by a misunderstanding or misplacing of a signal to stop at a ponit where workmen were making repairs.

TRANSFORMER ON FIRE

There was considerable trouble last night owing to the electrical storm and in many places the people were forced to go to bed in darkness unless they were fortunate enough to have a reserve supply of coal-oil or candles. The transformer at the corner of Water and Dennistoun streets was set afire, throwing the service out on Water street completely and in various other places the wires were snapper. It took the firemen twenty minutes to repair the damage to the transformer.

of Health. On one occasion Nurse Odette had phoned the police station for a physician to attend suffering from a mis-carriage due to a fall, and Dr. Amys would not respond. (This woman's husband was working in the lumber camps and the case could not be classed as indigent.)

Another complaint Sergt. Blade made was the case of an old man taken suddenly sick, and Nurse Odette phoned the station for medical assistance. (Neither was this case considered as indigent.

Most of the station calls came at midnight, Sergt. Blade said, and he wanted an understanding as to the police's position in the matter. Their only instructions are to call the Medical Health Officer. Blade admitted that Dr. Amys had never refused to attend any cases at the police station.

Not a "Go-Between."

Dr. Amys replied that he objected to being made a "go-between" dead-beat patients and other physicians; all legitimate indigent cases reported to him had his attention. "My duty is to respond to such calls certified to by either Relief Officer Miller or the Charity Board."

Chairman Buller appreciated the fact that many dead-beats would try to evade their just medical fees by posing as indigents and sending in their calls through the police station for the Medical Health Officer.

Chorus: "That is so!"

As suggested by Chairman Buller, copies of the bylaw defining the medical Health Officer's duties, will be furnished Dr. Amys and the Board, and at another meeting, a definite understanding reached.

Routine Business.

In regard to stable nuisances, Dr. Amys contended that no permits for the erection of stables should be issued without the Board of Health's approval, and that fire limits should be extended.

On motion of Dr. Amys and Jas. Murty, the Board will recommend that the City Council issue no permits for new stables without this Board's approval.

Dr. Amys and Mr. Murty were authorized to act in the matter of purchasing oscillating fans for the Queen Mary Hospital.

Those Present.

Chairman Wm. Buller, Harry Morgan, Jas. Murty, Mayor Duncan, Medical Health Office Amys and Sanitary Inspector Stapleton.

Constable Stephen Constable, the police force of North Wales, Pa., resigned. His name afforded the citizens too much amusement.

ORIENTALS TOOK GAME FROM DE LAVALS BY SCORE OF 7--5

Thunderstorm Gave Players Half-Hour Rest After First Innings—Play Stopped by Darkness at End of Seventh.

The Orientals won last night from the De Lavals by a score of seven to five. At the end of the first innings play was suspended for half an hour while a thunderstorm had possession of the field, driving the rooters up to the top benches. At that time the De Lavals were ahead by four to zero, but when play was finally resumed the luck had turned and the Orientals went in and tied the score in the second. In the third they went ahead with another score and from that time they were masters of the situation. In the seventh innings De Lavals scored one run, and with three men on bases looked exceedingly dangerous. Barrie, however, was thrown out at first and the game was called by Umpire Kay on account of darkness.

First Innings.

Orientals—Cherrett walked, but was caught at home on Collins' clout to Barrie; Clancy walked; Collins was thrown out at second and Phelan died at first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

De Laval—Dugan walked; Bergoine doubled, scoring Dugan; Barrie lived when Nicholson dropped his third strike; Rose made the circuit; Cavanagh was thrown out at first; Neary fanned and Fitzgerald flied out to Cherrett. Four runs, two hits, one error.

Second Innings.

Heenan and McCarney walked; Murray doubled, driving in two runs, but was caught off second base; Kirn flied out to Cavanagh; Nicholson was hit by the pitcher; Cherrett singled, scoring Nicholson; Collins walked, and Clancy was hit by the pitcher; Cherrett came home on a passed ball and Phelan flied out to Legon. Four runs, two hits, one error.

Campbell, Legon and Dugan were all thrown out at first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Third Innings.

Heenan reached first on Dugan's error; McCarney walked; Murray flied out to Cavanagh; Kirn reached first on Neary's error, Heenan scoring; Nicholson walked; Cherrett lived on a fielder's choice, McCarney being caught at the plate; Collins flied out to Fitzgerald. One run, no hits, two errors.

Bergoine walked but was caught at second; Barrie flied out to Clancy; Rose made first but Cavanah was out, Murray to Phelan. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

Clancy flied out to Rose; Phelan was out at first; Heenan singled; McCarney walked, and Heenan came in on Cavanah's error; McCarney was caught stealing second. One run, one hit, one error.

Neary walked, but was out on a double play, Kirn to Cherrett to Phelan; Campbell flied out to Collins. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

Murray was thrown out at first; Kirn fanned; Nicholson and Cherrett singled, and Cavanah's fumble of Collins' grounder filled the bases; Clancy fanned. No runs, two hits, one error.

Clancy caught Bergoine's and Legon's flies and Dugan perished at first base. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Sixth Innings.

Phelan went out at first; Heenan doubled; McCarney struck out, and Murray flied to Legon. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Barrie flied out to Heenan; Rose grounded out at first, and Cavanah's fly was caught by Clancy. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Seventh Innings.

Four successive walks forced Kirn in, then Nicholson was caught off third and Clancy and Phelan struck out. One run, no hits, no errors.

Neary singled, was sacrificed to third by Fitzgerald and home by Campbell; Legon reached first on Murray's error; Dugan singled and Bergoine walked, but Barrie was thrown out at first. One run, two hits, one error.

$20 And Costs For This Auto Driver

DROVE CAR DOWN WATER ST. WHILE UNDER INFLUENCE OF LIQUOR.

In Police Court this morning a young man from Hastings proved that one can ride down Water street without necessarily being on a water wagon. Last night when he was taken in charge he was driving an automobile, and was in such an intoxicated condition that he was a menace to the safety of everyone else on the street. This morning he pleaded guilty to the charge and was sentenced to a fine of $20 and costs by Acting Magistrates H. Rush and F. Adams, Justices of the Peace. In all it cost him $24.10.

JOHN McDOUGALD DEAD

Ottawa, June 17.—The death occurred in Halifax Saturday evening of John McDougald, Dominion Commission of Customs. He had been ill only a week, being seized with a stroke on Monday last. His wife and his only son, Bryson, accompanied the remains to Ottawa, where the funeral will take place on Wednesday afternoon.

Provincial police officers say they have seized documents proving that the I. W. W. and the One Big Union are the one and same organization.

Walter Rawcliffe, young son of John Rawcliffe, of Paris, was drowned in the Nith River.

Harold Gilloghly of Kingston, 16, was drowned at Yonker, where he had gone to attend a camp meeting.

Major-Gen. Mewburn, Minister of Militia, introduced a bill to provide for a permanent force not exceeding 10,000, instead of 5,000 as at present.

Miss May Barnhart, of Cornwall, a school teacher, and Gus Bradley are believed to have been drowned in the St. Lawrence four miles below Prescott.

Mrs. Frenzer had her purse, with $4,300, the savings of years, stolen in a Los Angeles store.

DOCTOR SAYS JESS WILLARD IS IN PERFECT CONDITION

Noted Physician For Athletes Gives Out the Results of Physical Tests.

(By Charles Essig)

Jess Willard has submitted to a physical test by Dr. James Henry Blair, staff physician for the Chicago Amateur Athletic League. Dr. Blair made a hurried trip to Toledo several days ago, after I had negotiated with Willard by wire, and put the champion over the medical hurdles, as it were. I was particularly anxious to get a line on the champion's condition for my own information and also for the information of the public. Dr. Blair is in charge of the physicians who will examine the runners in the Daily News race June 21 and is an authority on the human body.

Stories are wired daily that are misleading. Toledo is alive with artists, photographers and scribes. Even the photographer tells you that Willard is flabby and the negative shows it—the evidence is positive. On the other hand a scribe tells you a whale of a story as to how Willard is coming along and is a bear for work. Well, what the public wants is unadulterated facts that will not mislead those who are not on the ground to see for themselves.

To commence with, a man was created to do just so much, and if he goes beyond that limit he cracks. Exercise is second nature. If you the inclined to be fleshy, you will eventually gain that end. If, on the other hand, you are slim and wiry, you will harden up, but will not take on any amount of extra flesh.

Exercise, But Don't Overdo

Exercise will do you a world of good if taken right and, on the other hand, will undermine your constitution if overdone or taken injudiciously. Every athlete should first take a thorough physical examination to determine his condition. A man in good condition physically, is morally better; is improved in disposition. But in order to keep fit you have to use good judgment and exercise common every day horse sense.

You are like a furnace, which requires a thorough daily shaking, fresh fuel and a daily routine that will keep it in perfect order. A man likewise requires the same attention.

When you exercise you start something. You develop your muscles, you take off the superfluous fat or you add flesh, you make new tissue, you develop your lungs, you inhale fresh air, you throw off the poison, you liven up the corpscles in your blood, the poison is eradicated by the "pep" in your system, the uric acid is eliminated and things are better generally.

On Discretion and Diet

Discretion is a great word and special attention should be shown to your diet. Overeating is a bad thing, it is much better to get up a bit hungry from the table than to overeat. Also a physician is a great help and we naturally need advice A physician can help you more if you help yourself

And now what about Jess Willard, is he going on the right road? Will he be ready July 4? Here is what the examination shows:

By James Henry Blair, M.D.

"JESS WILLARD, white,
"Age thirty five.
"Structure, massive.
"Form, symmetrical.
"Muscles, well formed, showing clean liver.
"Tongue, clean.
"Flesh, smooth and hard.

"Naturally a man of Willard's tremendous size and bulk will carry hardened flesh and no amount of work, physics, salts, massaging or electric baths will entirely eliminate the hardened tissue, especially when thirty. Possibly a certain amount will burn up like the oxygen will burn fat up, but nature is a funny performer and a man who lives outdoors a great deal of the time as Willard has will develop hidden muscles and they will remain active for years

"Hands and feet practically perfect, showing that the system is free from uric acid joints, too are free from acid effects.
"Blood pressure, normal for age
"Wasserman test negative.
"Urine test normal.
"Heart action very good.
"Pulse, soft regular and strong.
"Inhalation, slow and strong with no murmur."

Shows Champion is Fit

All this shows that Jess Willard is fit as far as actual condition is concerned. These are facts and will give you the exact status. The doctor says in his proof that Willard has been eating sparingly, cutting out meat, which he has always indulged in, and naturally the change has affected his stamina to a certain extent, but with a return to the regular diet he will show wonderful improvement in staying qualities.

The doctor advised the champion to use plenty of salt in his masseuring, rubbing the dry salt in before he took the usual bath after his daily road work. He also advised the big fellow to do plenty of sprinting instead of too much road work on dusty roads. Run fifty yards and walk back repeating several times at short intervals that was the advice given.

Dr. Blair has examined more athletes than almost any other man in the United States and emphatically says that Willard is a marvel of strength. He predicts that he will be perfect on the day of the battle, notwithstanding the great number of stories to the contrary that are coming from Toledo. He has the foundation, the spirit, the confidence, is physically fit and morally prime. He has all requirements and it will take a great man to beat him if condition counts for anything.

Tea Popular British Beverage.

Tea is the most popular of British beverages, and in spite of William Cobbett's lament that "tea shops" were being substituted for wholesome small beer to the detriment of the populace in his day, "the cup that cheers" is the staple drink of all classes. It cannot be said that there has been any marked deterioration of English people through constant indulgence in tea.

Modest Request.

An English lady was visiting a convict in prison, and as she was about to leave she asked him if there was anything she could do for him outside. "There is, lady," said the convict. "I'd appreciate it very much if you'd call on the mayor and ask him to extend me the freedom of the city."—Boston Transcript.

STEADY GROWTH CANADIAN UNIONS

MEMBERSHIP IS NOW 248,88'; AN INCREASE OF 44,257 IN A EAYR.

Atlantic City, June 17.—Statistics of Canadian trade union membership up to the end of 1918, presented to the American Federation of Labor by P. M. Dixon, show:

Membership for all classes of trade unions	248,887
Increase over previous year	44,257
Total branch unions	2,274
Increase	300
Membership in international unions	201,432
Increase	36,536
International organisations represented	96
International branch unions	1,897
Increase	195

How They Are Distributed.

The local unions of the international organizations are distributed throughout the nine provinces as follows:

Ontario	820
Quebec	277
British Columbia	224
Alberta	181
Manitoba	127
Saskatchewan	112
New Brunswick	78
Nova Scotia	75
P. E. Island	8

In addition to the international organizations having branches in the Dominion there are thirteen bodies classed as non-internationals, who have between them 332 local branches, with a combined membership of 37,928, an increase for 1918 of 88 branches and 5,585 members.

Quebec Independent Units.

Apart from unions having either international or non-international affiliation there are 45 independent units in the Dominion, 37 of which have reported a membership of 9,527, a gain of 2,136 as compared with the reported membership from 28 independent units which were in existence in 1917. The majority of these independent units are located in the province of Quebec, and some of them are of a semi-religious character, the membership being confined to adherents of the Roman Catholic faith. Of the 45 independent bodies in the Dominion, 31 are located in Quebec, which province shows an increase of 12 in this class of organization. In September, 1918, a convention of "national" unions of the Province of Quebc was held, 27 unions being representd. Officers were elected, and it was decided to hold another convention in the city of Three Rivers in 1919, when the question of forming a federation of "national" unions would be considered.

The remainder of the 45 independent unions were located as follows: British Columbia 5, Ontario 3, New Brunswick and Manitoba, 2 each; Nova Scotia and P. E. I., one each.

CAPT. (REV.) JAS. ROLLINS BECOMES MEMBER G.W.V.A.

Peterborough's Enthusiastic, Militant Pastor Elected at Last Night's Meeting by a Standing Vote.

The G. W. V. A. last night admitted to their ranks a most distinguished member, the Rev. Jas. Rollins, who enlisted with the rank of Captain of November 6, 1915, and was with the boys in khaki up till a couple of weeks ago. He was introduced to the meeting by Comrade Davidson on the motion of Comrades Findlay and Oxley, his application for membership was accepted by the meeting by a standing vote. In reply the newly elected member spoke as follows:

"I am very glad to join this association for I have always felt that it was the greatest privilege of my life to be identified with soldiers and to be one of them. The men who came home later can certainly thank those who came home first for the magnificent work they have done in getting the new building of the G. W. V. A. into shape."

President Morison then announced that Comrades Rollins, Williams and Standish would form a committee to interview the dependents of the men who have fallen and see what form they would like the proposed war memorial to take. Comrade Standish voiced the opinion of a good number of those present when he said "I need no $10,000 monument to remind me of the two sons I lost in this war. A war memorial should be something that is helpful to the community instead of being merely for show and vanity."

The executive brought forward the suggestion that the G. W. V. A. should only meet once a month till next October but this idea was turned down by the members almost unanimously. The chairman of the Entertainment Committee reported the total receipts of the Moonlight Excursion as $115 and the net profit $45.90.

Long and Yeotes from the Executive were acepted, and Comrades Findlay and Ringer were appointed in their places. The meeting decided not to accept the resignation of second vice president R. H. Muir.

The report of the Peterborough delegation to the Ontario Convention of the G.W.V.A. at Windsor was received and the delegates thanked for their hearty work, on the motion of Comrades Oxley and Lancaster. As a result of their work the convention will take place next year in Peterborough, and as the president remarked it is not a moment too soon to begin planning for the event.

The debated question concerning the legality of the fine of $500 or six months' imprisonment mentioned on the back of military buttons for improperly using them was apparently settled by the following extract from an Order-in-Council, issued by the Dominion Government. "Any person who fraudently or without proper authority issues or wears badges that resemble military badges is subject to a fine not exceeding $100 or 30 days in jail." The meeting decided to send the matter on to the Dominion Secretary of the G. W. V. A. without comment.

Warden McIntosh Suggests Memorial

TO WAR VETERANS OF THE CITY AND COUNTY OF PETERBORO—COUNTY COUNCIL IN SESSION.

At the June session of the County Council this afternoon, Warden John McIntosh submitted the following address to his colleagues:

Today we mourn and rejoice at one and the same time. We mourn the loss of so many of our brave Canadians who died for the principles of democracy. We rejoice in that today as the result of such sacrifices democracy prevails and I would consider the providing of a suitable memorial by the County and City to those brave boys who have fallen for their country.

Various matters will have to be dealt with by you and I feel satisfied that the bests interests of the County will be looked after. We have had some unpleasant things to contend with but I must say that the Council have always tried to do things in a statesmanlike manner. One of such troubles has been the satisfying of the Crown Attorney with rooms.

You are all aware of the litigation that took place and in the decision of the Judge we cannot infer what is necessary. Having written to the Inspector of Legal Offices some time ago to come and determine what was requisite and not having received a visit from that gentleman, I succeeded in getting Mr Nichols to accompany us to interview the Attorney-General who assured us of the matter being attended to in the near future.

Mr Hatton notified me by letter that unless the County paid him $350 annually as office rent as a result of not being satisfied with the offices (with the three rooms provided) he would bring on another action and I trust the intervention of the Government will avert another lawsuit. The Chairman of each committee will with the assistance of the various member of such committees bring all matters before you and knowing the interest you all take in these matters, I will not go into detail with regard to them.

No doubt the adoption of the County Road System will come up and I trust it will receive your careful consideration.

In conclusion permit me to thank you for your individed support in the performance of my duties as Warden and all will unite in thanks to God, the Great King, who must have looked upon with favor the cause of the Allied Entente Nations.

The dispute between the packers and butchers of Toronto was finally adjusted.

A round table conference will be held in Toronto Thursday afternoon in an effort to avert a street car strike.

VANDALS WORKING AT PUBLIC PARKS

PROPERTY AT INVERLEA AND JACKSON INJURED BY YOUNG HOODLUMS.

The Nicholls Park Board members are having their own troubles. Their efforts on behalf of the public are meeting with something less than appreciation, and the prospects are that harsh measures must be resorted to in order to protect public property.

The Board recently installed a shelter at Jackson Park, and already some vandal has attacked the structure with a hatchet. The dressing-room at Inverlea Park has been broken into and all sorts of damage wrought in the interior. The other night a band of young hoodlums were detected in the act of throwing into the river the seats that the Board have provided along the bank.

Caretaker Kitney resides permanently at the Oval, and as a result there is little trouble there. Superintendent Rose, of Jackson Park, however, has a territory too extensive for one man to supervise properly. There is no one on duty at Inverlea, as the Board is financially unable to maintain an official.

The Board have asked Chief Thompson for help, and he recommends them to apply to the commission for the services of a constable on a bicycle. The parks are so far apart that even a mounted policeman would not be able to cover the ground satisfactorily. If the depredations complained of continue, it is quite likely that a special officer will be appointed temporarily.

Was Buried Alive

CORP ADAM STARK

Corporal Adam Stark of Indian River is returning to his home on Thursday. He has been absent three and a half years on active service going direct from Canada to the front line. He has had several exciting experiences, being wounded twice once at the Somme and once at Ypres and was once buried alive while engaged in sniping. An aeroplane, that passed over the place where he with three others was interred, dropped bombs which unearthed them, killing two and wounding Corp. Stark and his companion. The latter managed to crawl to brigade headquarters and notify officers who sent a search party and rescued him.

Corporal Stark was in Belgium when the armistice was signed and has been in the Army of Occupation ever since. His friends have made arrangements to have a reception in his honor at his home when he arrives.

STRIKE LEADERS PLOTTED TO CRIPPLE THE ELECTRIC POWER PLANT IN WINNIPEG

Evidence of the Conspiracy When Secured by Officials Led to Arrest of Those Involved—Another Prominent Socialist Arrested—No Strike in Victoria.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Winnipeg, June 18.—The latest addition to the list of arrests of Labor leaders is Sam Blumenburg, who has been for years a prominent figure in advanced Socialist circles in Winnipeg and who was named among those against whom proceedings were to be taken. It was this that led to his apprehension. Walking into the police station he enquired about this and was placed under arrest and is now being held awaiting the instructions of the special Crown Prosecutor.

The records of the Strike Committee, which were seized when the Labor Temple was raided early Saturday morning, indicate that a special committee was selected on June 10 to investigate and report on the possibility of cutting off the electric power from the city. Correspondence also shows that the receipt of Bolshevik money was acknowledged by the strike leaders.

Information to the above effect was given last night by Hon. Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor, in the course of an interview explaining why strike leaders had been arrested yesterday and not before that date as being suspected of taking part in a seditious conspiracy.

NO STRIKE AT VICTORIA.

Victoria, June 18.—There will be no strike in Victoria. The Strike Committee has dissolved. Members of the committee voted 8 to 8 on the question of a general strike in sympathy with Winnipeg, and the deadlock resulted in a dissolution.

EDITOR NEWSOME'S REPORT OF VISIT TO PETERBOROUGH

Article in Sanitary and Heating Journal Declares That Plumbing Work in This City is Defective—Remedies Suggested.

Mr. Edwin Newsome, editor of the Sanitary and Heating Journal of Toronto, recently spent several days in this city inspecting plumbing conditions, having been induced to come here by citizens who complained that there was something amiss. The local papers at the time published synopsis of Mr. Newsome's findings.

In the report of his inspection, which he published in his own journal, Mr. Newsome does not mention Peterborough by name but the connection is observous even though he refers to this city by the initial "P." In the article, which is illustrated, he says:

Hotel Lavatories Not Ventilated.

The first to pay a visit to was that of one of the best hotels. This hostelry, while in many ways up to date and modern, had in several [illegible] rooms a first-class pedestal lavatory. The fittings to same were modern, with the exception of the traps. These traps, too, were non-vented traps, and the bylaw governing plumbing states that traps must all be vented as shown under Class 10, Section G, which reads as follows:

"All drains and plumbing fixtures of every house or other building shall be provided with sufficient traps and vents to prevent gas from the sewer, drain or waste pipes from escaping into any apartment; and each such fixture shall have its own trap and sufficient vent; such trap to be placed directly under, and close as possible to fixture."

In this hotel a number at least of these traps are not vented. And without doubt this installation could not be termed as having been executed in accordance with the plumbing by-law.

Barber Shop Plumbing.

A barber's establishment was visited in the store on the main floor, four lavatories were installed. No traps were fitted at all to any of these fixtures. The accompanying sketch will show the readers how these lavatories were fitted up.

In the first place a 2-inch C.I. in the basement is taken off the main soil pipe, and a 2-inch cast iron trap, with a mercury vent, taken off same on the sewer side of the trap. Then four other branches are provided, in-

LABOR IS URGING DOMINION CONGRESS TO CALL STRIKE

President Moore Says, However, That Strike Leaders Arrested at Winnipeg Departed From Constitution and Are not Entitled to Help.

(Special Correspondence.)

Ottawa, June 18.—"It doesn't look to me as if the arrest of the strike leaders in Winnipeg will tend to improve the situation any," said Tom Murray, President of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress, "although the Government may have cause for this step and proof to back it up. It is never good to use etreme methods when results may be gained in a more peaceful manner.

"Winnipeg Labor leaders have not seen fit to communicate with the Dominion Congress during the strike and they have [illegible] tutional authority, but if they signify [illegible] to place themselves under that authority, we stand [illegible] to give them such assistance and advise as circumstances permit," said Mr. Moore.

Until Winnipeg Labor men communicates with the Congress, President Tom Moore holds that it would be indelicate and uncalled for on his part to interfere. For this reason, he has so far given no answer to the score or more telegrams from Labor councils all over Canada demanding that Congress call anything up from a Dominion-wide one-day strike to an indefinite general strike lasting until all grievances of the Winnipeg men are remedied. Labor councils all over Canada are standing by the Winnipeg strikers and are up in arms over the arrest of the leaders' as shown by their telegram to Ottawa, Mr. Moore says.

Allies Preparing To Move On Huns

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Coblenz, June 18. — The demonstration of troops preparatory to advancing further into Germany if the Germans refuse to sign the terms of peace will begin Wednesday throughout all the occupied area. Orders to this effect were received today from Marshal Foch, commander-in-chief of the Allied armies, who sent similar orders to all the Allied forces on German soil. Leaves to soldiers, permitting them to visit recreation points within the occupied zone have all been suspended until it is known whether the Germans will accept or reject the peace conditions.

STREET CARS ARE RUNNING AGAIN

SERVICE RESUMED IN WINNIPEG WITH FORMER EMPLOYES ON DUTY.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, June 18.—Limited street car service was resumed this morning after an absence of nearly five weeks. Thirteen cars, manned by the old regular employes, were out. Shortly after they started, however, the electric power went off, which stopped them and many factories for sometime. The power came on again at 10 o'clock and continued. More cars are out this afternoon, as the men are coming back to work rapidly.

A strongly reinforced picket of strikers was on duty at the Main street barn, but there was no demonstration of any kind when the cars came out. No cars started from the other barns. It was announced that only the Portage Avenue route will be covered for the present. The first cars continued along the street with very few passengers, but when it became clear that there was to be no attempt at interference, foot-weary pedestrians made use of them in increasing numbers.

THREE SMALLPOX PLACARDS POSTED

HEALTH AUTHORITIES DECIDE TO TAKE NO CHANCES WITH THE DISEASE.

Three yellow placards bearing the dread words "Smallpox here" have been put up by the Health Authorities, one on each house where the victim of the mysterious disease resided. There is yet no certainty that the affection is smallpox but it was decided that the case called for the exercise of every precaution. Two of the sufferers have been removed to the Isolation hospital where the huts built some years ago for just such a contingency were got in readiness and every preparation made for the reception of the patients in less than twelve house. The third victim, who lives in the suburbs with his mother the only other inmate of the house, has been left at home. There is no cause for alarm. Even if the disease proves as serious as has been feared prompt measures on the part of the health authorities will prevent an epidemic.

Miss May Barnhart and Gus Bradley, of Cornwall, are believed to have been drowned in the St. Lawrence near Prescott.

CANADIAN SOLDIERS LEAD IN ATTACK ON THE POLICE ONE CONSTABLE IS KILLED

Raided Place to Release Comrade Under Arrest—Several Policemen Injured, One Seriously—Unrest Due to Delay in Getting Home, not Confined to Canadians.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, June 18.—The unrest among the Canadian soldiers in England because of the continued postponement of homeward sailings on account of strikers, culminated last night in an attack by 400 Canadians on the Epsom police station, several policemen were wounded, one so seriously that he died this morning. The purpose of the attack was to release a Canadian soldier who had been arrested. To avoid further trouble the police released another Canadian in whom the mob was not interested.

During the last few days there has been trouble in the Canadian camp at Witley where the soldiers burned huts and did other damage, according to reports. There is much sympathy here for the Canadians who repeatedly have been given dates for homeward sailings, only to be told that further postponement was necessary owing to the strikes of dockworkers at Liverpool and other ports or to lack of transports.

The unrest has not been confined to the Canadians. There have also been protests by Australians and New Zealanders. Some Scottish units composed of veterans recently held a demonstration against being sent back to France while the men who had not seen active service remained in England or are demobilized.

ATTORNEY GENERAL WILL LOOK INTO CROWN PROSECUTOR'S CLAIM

Mr. Hatton's Demand For $350 a Year Office Rental Has Been Referred to Department at Toronto--Good Roads Question to be Take Up

The various communications between Crown Attorney Hatton and the County Council regarding the former's application for $350 were read at the meeting of the County Council this morning. Warden John McIntosh stated that on Monday he and Mr. Nichols had visited the Attorney-General in Toronto, who promised to investigate the case immediately. The matter was left in the hands of the legal committee. The portion of the Warden's address touching on this question was referred to a committee with Mr. Squire as chairman. This committee reported favorably, and on motion of Messrs. Darling and Holland it was accepted.

$3000 Asked for Grants.

The Navy League asked for a grant of $3000 and will send a deputation this afternoon to back up their request. The Exhibition Board of Peterborough are asking for a $2000 grant, similar to that given by the city.

The shorthand writer on County Court cases will henceforth receive $2 a day, in addition to 10c per folio for each typewritten copy.

The inspector of legal offices sent in a letter advising the county to purchase a new book recording machine, the net price of which is $329.75.

Communications.

Communications were received from the Red Triangle Club and the Knights of Columbus, thanking the county for the donations.

The communication from the city regarding the county good roads scheme was referred to the committee composed of the reeves of the seven southern townships, and, according to Warden McIntosh, definite action in the matter will be taken before the close of Council.

The Council has to pay 37 cents a day to the Alexandra Industrial School for the maintenance of Hazel Head. She has led a very erratic life and her father is powerless to do anything with her. In her statement she said: "I don't want to go home to my father, and I will not if I can help it. He strikes me and will not give me proper clothes."

Seven infants were placed in the care of the Children's Aid Society. The president of the Society addressed the Council stating that it was not their desire to charge the county for the support of these children in addition to the grants received.

The Inspectors will secure the increase they asked for, namely, from $400 to $500 in their travelling expenses. This was carried on motion of Messrs. Eason and Holland by a vote of six to three, an amendment offered by Messrs. Griffith and Coughlin to ignore the request being defeated.

DICKSON CO. ASK $200.000 FOR DAM AT LAKEFIELD

Hydro Will not Pay This Amount, but, Will Begin Expropriation Proceedings.

A telegram from J. H. Burnham M.P., just received by the Review says:

"I have received a letter from the Hydro Commission stating that the Commission has received a letter from J. E. L. Goodwill, on behalf of the Dickson estate re the Lakefield Dam offering Peterborough an option on the power rights etc at Lakefield for two hundred thousand dollars on prompt payment. The Hydro will not recommend the payment. It says, of any such amount for the property. This means the immediate expropriation by the Hydro of the dam.

Representatives of the Dickson company said this afternoon that the matter was not in a stage to warrant discussion.

ANNUAL MEETING AT CHEMONG PARK

BOARD OF AGRICULTURE TO COMMENCE THERE FRIDAY, JUNE 27TH.

The annual meeting of the West Peterborough Board of Agriculture, formerly the Farmers' Institute, will be held at the pavilion, Chemong Park, Friday afternoon of next week, June 27. A good program will be provided, and all members and their friends are asked to attend as there is at the present time urgent necessity for co-operation among the farmers of Canada. One of the items of business to be disposed of is the election of officers.

RAILWAY STRIKE IS CALLED OFF

RANK AND FILE WERE NOT IN HEARTY ACCORD WITH IDEA.

Montreal, June 18.—The threatened strike of railway shopmen in Canada will not take place today as had been announced by the leaders.

Decided disinclination of the rank and file of the workers to follow the drastic policy of the leaders, together with lack of sympathy from the International are the causes for the sudden change of front. President Tallion of the No. 4 Division Railway Shopmen of America, said:

"The Committee has decided, in view of late developments in the situation to temporarily postpone the strike. In doing this we have in mind further negotiations with the Railway Board.

PREMIER'S TRIBUTE

Lloyd George Congratulated Alcock and Brown.

London, June 18.—David Lloyd George, the British Prime Minister, has sent from Paris the following telegram to Capt. Alcock:

"Heartiest congratulations to you and Lieut. Brown on your audacious and successful flight. It is a splendid achievement.

"I am especially delighted that two British officers who fought in the war should have been the first to link Europe and America in a single non-stop flight."

Calgary Railway Shopmen Strike

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Calgary, June 18—The Grand Trunk Pacific and C. N. R. Shopmen went on sympathetic strike this morning following the C. P. R. shopmen who have been out for some weeks.

Lord Northcliffe In Surgeon's Hands

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, June 18.—Viscount Northcliffe, newspaper owner, underwent an operation today. A bulletin issued by his physician says that the Viscount's condition is satisfactory.

German Cabinet Opposed To Treaty

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, June 18.—The Associated Press this morning issued the following: While the sentiment in the German cabinet, according to a Weimar despatch, is almost unanimous against signing the treaty, official Germany has not definitely committed itself on the amended peace conditions. The German leaders had an extended conference at Weimar on Tuesday to discuss the treaty terms on which hangs the future fate of Germany. It is expected that the amended conditions will be laid before the German national assembly today by the cabinet.

It is declared that the only thing that might persuade the German government to agree to the treaty is the possibility of political and economic chaos in Germany afterward.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 18, 1919

OUR HOME MARKET.

THERE IS AN INTIMATE economic relationship between agriculture and industry. Industrial Canada largely provides the market which absorbs between 80 and 85 per cent. of the agricultural products of the Dominion. No less than 2,000,000 Canadians are directly dependent for their livelihood upon the continued prosperity of Canadian manufacturing establishments. In 1917 these establishments gave employment to 700,000 persons and paid over $500,000,000 in wages and salaries. They represented an aggregate capital investment of $2,772,517,680, and the value of their products was in excess of $3,000,000,000.

Reports on specific industries now being issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show that the iron and steel industry in 1917 provided a market for the products of other industries to the value of over $2,000,000,000. It represented a capital investment of $307,407,980. The total value of its products was $400,385,086. It employed over 77,000 persons and paid $78,737,983 in salaries and wages. So, the Canadian woolen manufacturing industry in the same year gave employment to over 25,000 persons, produced goods to the value of over $578,000,000, and represented a capital investment of $64,472,747.

Special reports published by the pulp and paper industry for the last year show that it represented a total capital investment of $186,000,000, employed 25,000 persons, and paid $27,800,000 in wages.

AUTOMOBILES.

IN THE UNITED STATES there is one automobile to every eighteen persons; in Canada there is one to every 25; in Australia one for every 100; in England, one for every 268; in France, one in 402; in Italy, one in 1,002; Mexico, one in 2,385, and in China one in 267,267.

WARM PRAISE FROM BRITAIN.

SOMETHING THAT should have an important bearing on trade relations between the Motherland and Canada, whose opportuneness the Canadian Trade Commission impresses upon our business community, is the British public's warm appreciation of what has been done by the Dominion in the war. The very name of Canada appears to strike a chord of sympathy, and to arouse a desire for closer association. It would be putting a somewhat ignoble and mercenary construction on this to state that it simply opens a new era for business connections across the ocean. Yet so curious is the Anglo-Saxon race to which we belong that it is exactly this feature which would appeal most to the practical British mind as the only consistent form in which the national sentiment could be expressed. More foodstuffs and still more produce of our vast farmlands could be sent to Great Britain, where the consuming public learned in war time to know that in times of stress food from under the old flag may always be relied upon. On their part, they are doing all possible by granting a government preference as well as fostering private predilection for all goods from within the Empire.

If proof were wanted it would be found in the cordiality of the remarks recently published broadcast in English and Scottish newspapers of the British Food Controller, the Rt. Honorable George H. Roberts, M.P. (by the way, one of the finest types of the democratic, self-made Labor men in the British Parliament). Mr. Roberts, after remarking that Canada had not found it necessary to adopt compulsory rationing in its food control methods, said:

> "The measures adopted in Canada to increase production and to conserve food, combined with the fact that the British Government was able to keep the sea route clear, made it possible for Great Britain and her allies to overcome what was their greatest enemy, insufficiency of food. In 1918 the situation was very critical and food became as important a problem as that of munitions. For example, in December, 1917, France held supplies of wheat and flour sufficient only to meet the needs of its civilian population for about three days. It has been my privilege to become acquainted with the measures adopted by Canada, particularly during the last two years of the war, and I know the difficulties that had to be encountered and the remarkable efficiency achieved. Production was thoroughly organised, and having regard to its enormous territory, its diverse conditions of climate, the few crowded towns and the sparse settlements, the achievements of Canada in furnishing food supplies at the gravest period of the war, have won for the Dominion an admission of deep obligation and profound appreciation."

CREDITS FOR EUROPEAN COUNTRIES.

THE PROBLEM of providing long-term credits to European countries is now receiving greater attention in the United States than at any time since the armistice was signed. Mr. Eugene Meyer, Jr., managing director of the War Finance Corporation, is about to leave for France to consider the problem, not only as head of the War Finance Corporation, but also as the representative of Hon. Carter Glass, Secretary of the Treasury. A Washington despatch to the Wall Street Journal says that it is generally understood in Washington that Mr. Meyer is going abroad to advise a credit system. The despatch adds: "None of the bankers who have been abroad has been able to work out an adequate plan. The project is entirely too big for even groups of private interests. A credit consortium has been discussed, but no conclusions have been possible."

Senator Owen of Oklahoma has suggested the organization of a billion-dollar corporation to extend long credits to those in Europe who are in need of facilities of this kind. His proposal is that the United States government should be a member of the corporation and that the government and the banks of the country together should provide half of the capital, while the remaining half should be obtained by private subscriptions. In the meantime, financial interests in New York, with the assistance of the Federal Reserve Board, are giving consideration to the formation of group export corporations for wheat, copper, steel, tobacco, and other American products, similar to the organization for handling foreign sales of cotton. It is planned to give the group corporations the backing of a central securities corporation, which would draw its funds from the investing public, furnishing perhaps hundreds of millions of dollars to finance the shipment of raw materials to the countries lately at war, so that they may return to work and pay off their debts to the United States.

THE FOREIGN MARKET.

"WHY," ASKS A MEMBER of Parliament, who probably never read a work on political economy, "does it happen that the manufacturer of agricultural machines can send his goods to Europe and compete there in the open market of the world? Why does he need protection to do this?"

The great question is the production of the machines. If these can be built in Canada on the same conditions as those prevailing among the manufactories of the U. S., the rival manufacturers meet on equal terms in the markets of Europe.

Would the member of Parliament referred to put the Canadian manufacturer out of business and leave the Canadian and European markets alike to be supplied by the Americans? If that is not his real idea, that would be the logical result of the policy which he advocates.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

WOUNDED—IN THE POCKET.

(Buffalo News.)

The study of the literature of protest that can come from the German delegation at Versailles shows that it is of a personal and material nature. The Germans are not so deeply wounded in their antional pride and patriotic sensibilities as they are in their pocketbook. The anguish of the settlement lies in the terms of reparation—of wealth mortgaged to pay the cost of unsuccessful crime.

THEIR HEAVY RESPONSIBLIITY

(New York Evening Sun)

A heavy responsibility for all crimes of radicals lies at the door of the parlor anarchists, communists, socialists, bolsheviki or whatever they may call themselves. Their evil promptings and their creation of a fictitious sympathy encourage the more brutal and ignorant type to put their teaching into practice.

SARCASTIC.

(Toronto Telegram.)

Leading nations might receive Canada's interim motion to the effect that twelve billion eight million marks be referred to the United States for payment. Surely the republic that won the war is chiefly entitled to pay damages to the empire that lost the war.

GREED GERMANY'S RUIN.

(Philadelphia Record.)

The ruin of Germany dates from its collection from France of an indemnity that afforded a large profit on the costs of the war. Ever since htat time the German people have been perfectly convinced that any war they might engage in would be short and hihgly remunerative. They know better now, but experience is an expensive teacher.

PUZZLED.

(Brantford Expositor.)

The consumer can't for the life of him understand why he is called upon to pay $12 a ton for coal when there is a surplus at the collieries.

WOULD BE BUSY.

If the Allies "nailed" all the lies the Central Powers have been guilty of telling since the beginning of the war, they would have used up a train load of iron spikes.

OPINIONS ABOUT POOR FOLK

(E. W. Home's Monthly.)

The greatest fallacy of all time is that the poor man need do nothing to help himself, that the reformers will take care of him by means of resolutions and conventions. The poor man, in popular literature, has never been to blame for anything, particularly for his poverty; the rich man has robbed him, and there is nothing to do but make the rich man give it back.

I lately wrote that "I had never known any one in a public utterance to tell the truth about the poor, which is that they are not imposed on."

I meant no more than that there is not now, and has never been, a general disposition to impose on the poor; that there are no laws in the United States discriminating against them. I did not mean, of course, that individuals in all classes are not imposed upon by other individuals every day and hour, but in this one is as bad as another.

So I stand by the statement, although it has shocked many.

I was lately talking to a lawyer of some local note, and made the statement that there are no laws in this country discriminating against the poor, whereas there are many discriminating against the well-to-do. He denied it at first, whereupon I asked him to look over his books. He did this with a rather surprising result; in a week he brought me a typewritten list of seventy-three such laws, and said he had not completed his search.

The facts are, of course, that laws specially favoring the poor bristle in the statues of every state, in the national laws, and in the ordinances of every city and town. I do not object to this, and only mention it as further evidence that there is no disposition either in law or custom to impose on the poor; on the contrary that they are the objects of our concern and benevolence. The Bible is notoriously prejudiced in their favor and this has continued in almost every book to this day.

I know the poor from the inside, having long been one of them, but never have I known of a law oppressing me because of poverty; on the contrary, I have always observed that the laws rather gave me the best of it. I have not encountered in a long life a generally accepted social custom intended to impose on the poor; on the contrary, custom has always begged me to acquire an education, and offered me abundant and honorable opportunities to improve my financial condition.

A Washington professor fears I am "an employe of predaceous wealth." I am not, nor am I an employe of predaceous poverty. My case is that as an observer of events I prefer to be reasonably honest. I am tired of those extravagantly good people who praise themselves and abuse their enemies to a point beyond truth and fairness, as mischievous a form of lying as can be indulged in.

When I speak of the poor I do not mean the old or the sick; I mean the shiftless, of which we have a tremendous number in this country. I shall never have the same respect for the shiftless man that I have for his brother who is reasonably industrious and frugal, and who frequently becomes useful not only to his family but to his community. No one can persuade me that the men who earn $10 a day are not as honorable as those who earn $4, and I believe the $10 a day men are a little more capable than their $4 brethren. And if the $10 a day men are promoted, which is happening to them constantly, I do not believe them less worthy than they were when they were working for less.

Nor do I think that there is any useful thing accomplished by our American plan of forever exalting the poor and crying down the well-to-do. I do not believe it is any easier for a poor man to get into heaven than it is for a well-to-do man.

Finally, I believe (and the professors may make the most of it) that a thousand well-to-do men will average a little better in usefulness, integrity and industry than a thousand average poor men.

I believe this because in our fat country extreme poverty indicates an individual below the average, unless it is accompanied by old age or misfortune.

The most useful men the world has ever known have been well-to-do, with very few exceptions. Let any man perform a useful service for the world, and the world will pay him for it, as it should.

I believe—and every man of ordinary honesty and intelligence believes—that a man who behaves, saves, and works hard is entitled to progress in his finances with age, and provide for his days of inactivity. If he does not succeed in this in some measure, the world blames him, and he blames himself, as much as I do.

When we properly train children, our ambition for them is that they may become not only polite and worthy men and women, but successful in life; one result is as much in our minds as the other. You never in your life knew a father or a mother who warned their children to avoid becoming well-to-do. If we have a son who is spoken well of by his employer, and is promoted because of good habits, how proud we are of him! How the neighbors praise him. He is pursuing precisely the course expected of a good boy. Yet this is precisely the course which, if persisted in, will result in his becoming well-to-do, and possibly rich. How apparent, then, is that meanness which declares that such a man when he has become elderly, and properly rounded out his life, is a thief.

An Even Break

"Young man, are you satisfied with your present position?"

"Naw, but it's fifty-fifty. The boss ain't satisfied with the way I fill it, either."

Tempus Fugit

Comedian N. C. Goodwin said in an address before a young women's Bible Class in Los Angeles:

"Gather ye roses while ye may, for time is still a-flying, and the pocket that's full of love letters today will in a few short years bulge with spectacle cases."

A Condemnation

E. Berry Wall was condemning the 1919 fashions.

"In the foyer of the Hotel de Paris at Monte Carlo," he said, "a young girl in a white dinner gown stood with a young American soldier the other evening under a blazing electrolier.

"The girl whinging round before the young man, said:

" 'How does my new gown show up?'

" 'Up to the knee,' said he, 'And what stunning diamond and ruby buckles you're sporting on your garters!' "

A Wet Volcano

William Jennings Bryan said at a "bone dry" celebration in Washington:

"Drink is the cause of poverty and slums. Drink, in some sulms, impregnates the mind even of childhood.

"A school teacher said in a puzzled voice to a slum urchin:

" 'Why do you say that you would like to live in a volcano? Define a volcano, child.'

" 'A volcano' piped the kid, 'is a mountain overflowin' wid lager.' "

Fake War Work

Senator Sherman said at a dinner party:

"Now that the war is over, we can freely upbraid the fake war worker. The fake war worker was legion. You've heard perhaps, the story about the grocer?

"A grocer back in 1915 or 1916, was sanding his sugar with his errand boy's help.

"The errand boy, lifting a scoopful of sand, asked:

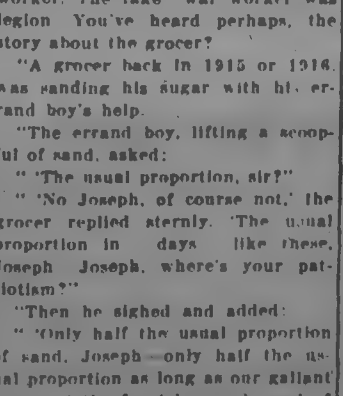
" 'The usual proportion, sir?'

" 'No Joseph, of course not,' the grocer replied sternly. 'The usual proportion in days like these, Joseph Joseph, where's your patriotism?'

"Then he sighed and added:

" 'Only half the usual proportion of sand, Joseph—only half the usual proportion as long as our gallant troops at the front has such need of sandbags.' "

Franco Tete, Dominico Laversa and Frank Call were sentenced to five years each at Montreal for carrying concealed weapons.



THE PASSING OF THE TAMBOURINE

IS LAMENTED BECAUSE THE TAMBOURINE WAS USED TO BEAT THE DEVIL AT HIS OWN GAME.

An editorial writer on the New York Globe has turned aside from the pressing civic, national, and international problems of the day, to pay a tribute to the tambourine, and to lament its approaching end. "Heave a romantic, sentimental sigh," he says, "for the passing of the Salvation Army tambourine, for it will jangle no more on the windy street corners, bang no more before brothel and dive, and no more accompany the big bass drum while the kneeling circle lifts its voice in a hymn set to a rollicking air of the street. It is going, going, almost gone, soon to be embalmed in memory and no more heard or seen of men. For the Salvation Army needs too much money nowadays to send its lassies out with the tambourine like a mendicant with a cup. It will make special drives to replenish its income instead of using the tambourine to collect nickels and dimes.

"But what yeoman duty it performed while at the height of its usefulness and fame! It went right into the devil's haunts and beat him at his own game of noise. It hypnotized the dull, bleared mind of many a drunkard so he followed its steady, monotonous whang, whang, whangety-whang through the streets to the army citadel and there found help to fight the good fight. Without it Mrs. Fiske would have been hampered "Salvation Nell." It was the acme of advertising, the instrument of the element that appealed to the poor wreck in the gutter and led him to get up and follow as a savage would tread with trancelike eye after a beaten tom-tom in the jungle wilds. It was awful, it was ludicrous, it was a travesty on religion, it was all and more, perhaps, than any aesthete chose to call it. But it brought in the strays, the black sheep hearkened to it, follow it gladly, as lost sheep would the bell on the wether of the flock.

"And now it is passing away, passing like the saloons and the Tenderloins and the Barbary Coasts of America which it so valiantly combated. Life is the loser by another touch of the picturesque, another splotch of color wiped from the monotonous canvas."

Many have heard the whanging of the tambourine on the dreary streets of the poorer sections of our cities, but perhaps few know that it claims relationship with the drum. Says Webster's dictionary of the tambourine:

"A musical instrument of the drum species, formed of a hoop, like one end of a drum, over which parchment is stretched. Small jingles are inserted in the hoop, to which also small bells are sometimes attached. It is sounded by sliding the fingers along the parchment or by striking it with the back of the hand."

INSPECTORS ASK FOR INCREASE

MESSRS. LEES AND BRODERICK NOT SATISFIED WITH TRAVELLING ALLOWANCE.

Inspectors G. E. Broderick and Richard Lees appeared before the County Council yesterday afternoon to ask for an increase of twenty five per cent in their travelling expenses. At present they draw a salary of $2,500 and in addition they are allowed $400 for travelling expenses. This last item they consider should be raised to $500. The Council went into some comparisons with Oxford County. The total assessment of that county is $30,000,000 as compared to Peterborough's $9,275,000 yet in Oxford the inspectors draw the same salary and are only allowed $250 for travelling expenses.

On the motion of Councillor C. J. Darling of Dummer and Daniel Holland of Ennismore the matter was referred to the committee on schools.

The following gentlemen were appointed as a committee to deal with the Warden's address: Mr. Bert Squire of Norwood, Mr. Norman Lean of Burleigh; Mr. William Mattheson, of Havelock; Mr. Daniel Holand of Ennismore; Mr. J. H. Bell of Monaghan; Mr. Bert Middleton of Smith. Mr. Spire will act as chairman of this committee.

Vigo Jenson, who stole a bottle of liquor in Chatham, was allowed out on suspended sentence on the understanding that he would go west.

The Calgary Diocese of the Anglican Synod passed a resolution condemning the Alberta Liquor Act on the ground that it could not be enforced.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

Dear Dr. Brady: In the health talks written by you I read that "The Rod is a good Remedy." Now. I wish to state the manner in which I came to smoke cigarettes.

I am a boy of 16 years and have recently been discharged from the United States marine corps—honorably. I enlisted at the age of 15 but, of course, had to secure my parents' permission. I was sent to the music school to learn to blow a trumpet. While in training none of the boys, who were between the ages of 15 and 18, were allowed to smoke. Also congress has passed a bill allowing boys who are rated trumpeters of the U.S.M.C. to smoke.

The very day I became rated the sergeant congratulated me and handed me a big cigar. From then on I became a smoker.

Now, Dr. Brady, can you blame me, a boy of 16, for smoking? And do you think you could not trust me because I smoke cigarettes? The government encouraged me to do so, and even the Red Cross distributed cigarettes to boys from 16 to 18 years of age who were rated as trumpeters of the U.S. marines. Why?

Yours truly.

Let Uncle Sam explain why boys are encouraged to smoke. Let the Red Cross explain why cigarettes are thrust upon boys under 18.

The Red Cross right now plans a great movement for improving the health of the civil population in peace time. Will the cigarette habit be encouraged among young boys in civil life?

This boy writes a manly, straightforward and businesslike letter. He may possibly get along in life in spite of the great handicap which has been thrust upon him. Yet, if he were my boy, trumpeter or no trumpeter, he would drop the cigarette habit in a hurry. That is, he would unless he were a better man with his dukes than I. And of course a cigarette smoker of 16 wouldn't last long in a hard scrap.

The sergeant no doubt meant well when he handed the 16 year old boy a big cigar. But I'd keep an eye on the sergeant with such notions of manhood.

So far as I know the use of tobacco by grown men often seems to be harmless. But any doctor knows that the use of tobacco by immature youths is sure to do harm.

Spring and the Liver

"Is the spring tonic of one-third sulphur and two-thirds cream of tartar, mixed with molasses good for one to take, or is it an old fashioned theory? Also, when one has not the opportunity to do much walking, is there any special exercise one can take at home to keep the liver in good condition? I am 24 years old, and have been quite sallow of late, which makes me think my liver is out of condition.

Mrs. W.L.G."

Sulphur is a laxative. Cream of tartar is a mild diuretic (increases flow of urine). Molasses is a good food. Sallow complexion is not due to any liver trouble. That is an old overworked almanac idea. Take six rolls before breakfast every morning and six more at bedtime. For keeping in good physical condition the year round a regular schedule of room exercises should be followed before dressing mornings and after undressing nights. Send S.A.E. for detailed description of such exercises.

RUPTURE APPLIANCE EXPERT COMING

New Invention Retains Rupture Without Pain or Loss of Time.

Old-fashioned galling, slipping trusses and foreign mail order methods are done away with by the surgical inventions of a Canadian specialist who has devoted years to this one study. The perfected new Egan "CURATRUSS" (as prepared to order) gives instant retention, rest and security where others have failed. It prevents all irritation, retains every part in its natural position as soon as it is used, and ready made trusses are thrown away. Egan's "Curatruss" is intended to assist nature in her work closing the opening in the shortest time known and at small cost. Testimonials from men, women and parents. Nothing complicated. No inconvenience, but just a natural retentive method. It costs you nothing to investigate. Delays may be dangerous. Now is the time to make yourself comfortable for your daily work.

Y.M.C.A. HONOR ROLL

As a complete list of Y. M. C. A. members who enlisted is not available, the Association is asking the citizens to send in the names of those of their household who were members at the time of enlistment or who had transferred their membership to a branch of the Y M C.A. in another city. The blank is provided in order to secure information required. A prompt response is requested as it is desired to have the Honor Roll installed as soon as possible.

It is also suggested that friends of members who enlisted fill in a number of blanks. Duplicates will be eliminated, and a complete list should be the result.

A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

Miss Kelly Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Newark, N. J.—"For about three years I suffered from nervous breakdown and got so weak I could hardly stand, and had headaches every day. I tried everything I could think of and was under a physician's care for two years. A girl friend had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she told me about it. From the first day I took it I began to feel better and now I am well and able to do most any kind of work. I have been recommending the Compound ever since and give you my permission to publish this letter."—Miss FLO KELLY, 476 So. 14th St., Newark, N. J.

The reason this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, was so successful in Miss Kelly's case was because it went to the root of her trouble, restored her to a normal healthy condition and as a result her nervousness disappeared.

Newsprint Enquiry Is Over At Last

PROCLAMATION OF PEACE MAY INTERVENE IN ANY DECISION.

Montreal, June 17.—The newsprint inquiry is over unless the Paper Control Tribunal later wants more light on disputed points. But it is possible a judgment may never be given. The Tribunal yesterday declared itself in an absolutely helpless position, because it has not obtained a number of exhibits filed when the case was before Paper Commissioner R. A. Pringle. An effort will be made to get these at once, but in the meantime the proclamation of peace may intervene, and some authorities contend that the Tribunal ceases to exist when that happens.

Don't Intend To Obey.

The only point of interest elicited at yesterday's brief hearing was that the Fort Frances Paper Mills do not intend to obey literally the direction of Commissioner Pringle that they pay back $3.10 per ton to western publishers on account of having received a rebate of duty on slush sulphite which these mills import from the States. Their counsel hinted that Mr. Pringle had since given some sort of supplementary instructions, the nature of which they did not specify, and which are unknown to the publishers.

Mr. Tilley, for the publishers, proposed that both parties rest their case on printed briefs, which have been submitted, and the court confessed difficulty in following any supplementary argument, as the briefs had not reached the members in time to be read.

Justice Middleton, however, wished Mr. Tilley's view of the question of granting a more favorable price to the high cost at Fort Frances mill, which has to supply paper in the Canadian West, which could not get their paper from other mills except by paying very high freights.

Mr. Tilley pointed out that the Circuit Court in the United States had taken the view that the Fort Frances mill was not entitled to a higher price because the droughts and other misfortunes which had increased its costs were hazards of business. The Fort Frances mill has, moreover, a rebate of duty on sulphite brought in from the States, amounting to $49,000, which it is permitted to retain, besides a rebate which it has been ordered by Commissioner Pringle to distribute among its customers, but has not yet distributed.

Mr. Phillips replied that this rebate of duty is not to be passed on to the Western publishers until there is an accounting to see how much of the sulphite brought in from the States was slush, and how much was lapped, as the rebate was only on slushed sulphite. When Mr. Tilley declared that Mr. Pringle had ordered the mill to pay back the amount to its customers without any provision for an acounting, Mr Philips remarked: "But my learned friend does not know the instructions given by the commissioner since the hearing."

Mr. Joseph Lucas was in Peterboro on Sunday.

FINE CHANCE FOR PLOWMEN

PRIZES AGAIN OFFERED FOR FIVE-ACRE CONTESTS THIS FALL.

Considering the extreme heat and busy season there was a good attendance at the meetings of the Directors of the Plowmen's Association on Saturday to arrange the work for the coming fall.

After an interesting discussion it was decided to withdraw the public match for this year and to add another class for double plows to the five acre competition which is proving a great success.

There will be a class for double plows and one for single plows open to all plowmen. Not less than five to be plowed on your own farm. All entries must be in by October 10th, ready for judging by October 20th. The following prizes will be given in each class. 1st $15; 2nd $12; 3rd $10; 4th $8; 5th $5.

Anyone wishing to compete in this contest will send their entry fee of one dollar for each class to the secretary-treasurer, Hugh McFee, R. R. No2. Keene.

MINERAL OIL

For Chronic Constipation

By buying this product from us you can get the highest in quality that can be procured at an ESPECIALLY LOW PRICE. There are many thin oils on the market that are not suitable for internal use; other oils have irritating qualities which render them also unsuitable. The one we are selling is guaranteed thick and entirely pure.

It is recognized that a good grade of Mineral Oil is one of the best remedies for CHRONIC CONSTIPATION that is being used. It acts mechanically and does not irritate the intestinal tract, nor does the dose have to be continually increased, as is the case with ordinary purgatives.

It is much better and cheaper than Castor Oil as a laxative for children, since Castor Oil has two effects, the first of which is purgative, and the second or after effect, which is Constipating.

PUBLIC NOW TOLD ALL ABOUT TANLAC

AUTHORITIES NOW SHOW JUST WHAT THIS MEDICINE REALLY IS.

In a recent issue of this paper announcement was made that Tanlac now has the largest sale of any medicine of its kind in the world and that more than twelve million bottles had been sold during the past four years.

These are unusual figures, and the question naturally arises in the mind of the reader why this phenomenal success and why has this preparation so far out-stripped all other medicines of its kind. It is only natural therefore that the manufacturers should offer some explanation to satisfy public interest.

In the first place, Tanlac is manufactured in one of the largest and most modernly equipped laboratories in this country. Its formula is purely ethical and complies with all national and state pure food and drug laws. Altogether there are ten ingredients in Tanlac, each of which is of recognized therapeutic value.

Many of these ingredients have been individually known and used since civilization first began, and some of them have been used and prescribed by leading physicians everywhere, but until they were brought together in proper proportion and association as in the Tanlac formula, humanity had not heretofore realized their full value and effect.

In referring to one of the more important ingredients of Tanlac, the Encyclopedia Britanica says: "It has long been the source of the not valuable tonic medicines that have ever been discovered." In referring to others of the general Therapeutics, a standard medical text book, states that "they impart general tone and strength to the entire system, including all organs and tissues."

This same well-known authority in describing the physiological action of still another of the ingredients of Tanlac which is of value in treating what is commonly known as "a run-down condition" uses the following expression: "It is highly esteemed in loss of appetite during convalescense from acute diseases."

There are certain other elements in Tanlac which because of their influence upon the appetite, digestion, assimilation and elimination improve the nutrition and vital ativity of all the tissues and organs of the body, and produce that state of general tonicity which is called health.

In discussing another ingredient the Encyclopedia Britania says: "It is one of the most efficient of that class of substances which act upon the stomach so as to invigorate digestion and thereby increase the general nutrition. It is used in dyspepsia, chlorosis, anemia and various other diseases in which the tone of the stomach and alimentary canal is deficient." Concerning still another ingredient this same standard authority says: "It causes dilation of the gastric blood vessels, increases secretion of the gastric juice, and causes greater activity in the movements of the muscular layers in the walls of the tomach. It also tends to lessen the sensibility of the stomach, and so may relieve gastric pain."

The United States Dispensatory makes the following comment regarding another ingredient: "It may be used in all cases of pure debility of the digestive organs or where a general tonic impression is required. Dyscepia, a tonic gout hysteria, and intermittent fever are among the mang affections in which it has proven useful."

There are certain other ingredients described in the Dispensatory and in other standard medical text books as having a beneficial action upon the organs of secretion, whose pepper functioning results in the purification of the blood streams passing through them. In this manner objectionable and poisonous ingredients of the blood are removed, and the entire system is invigorated and vitalized.

Tanlac was designed primarily for the correction of desorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. At the same time, however, it is a powerful reconstructive tonic and body builder, for it naturally follows that any medicine that brings about proper assimilation of the food and the thorough elimination of the waste products must therefore have a far-reaching and most beneficial effect upon the entire system.

Although Tanlac's claims for supremacy are abundantly supported by the world's leading authorities, it is the people themselves who have really made Tanlac what it is. Millions upon millions have used it, and have told other millions what it has done for them. That is why Tanlac has become the real sensation of the drug trade in this country, and that is also why it is the most widely talked-of medicine in the world today.

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

DEFAULTER OUT ON HIS OWN BAIL

DOURO YOUNG MAN SURRENDERS TO THE DOMINION POLICE.

This morning A. J. Leahy, of Douro, surrendered himself to the Dominion Police at 163 Simcoe street and was allowed to go on his promise to appear on Saturday morning to stand his trial. Inspector Ward has made this a rule in all such cases where men voluntarily give themselves up.

Three more defaulters were tried before County Magistrate Moore at Lindsay yesterday, on information laid by Inspector H. F. Ward of this city. Timothy Borgan, a young Downeyville farmer, who had surrendered himself to the authorities, received the minimum fine of $250 and costs, which he paid into court.

J. A. Bowen, of Highland Grove, was let off with the payment of costs. When his order to report was sent to him he was in Alberta.

Wilbert Sucee, of Cardiff Township, Haliburton, claims that he was never notified that his exemption was cancelled, and the case will come up again on June 30. In the meantime the Dominion Police will have the records searched at Toronto to see whether his contention is true or not.

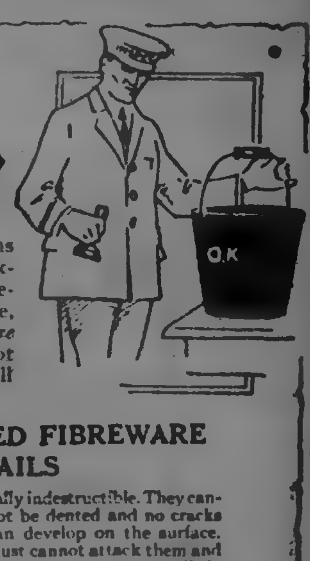
GAVE PURSES TO RETURNED MEN

TWO BROTHERS PRESENTED WITH $25 EACH BY THEIR NEIGHBORS.

A reception was tendered two of our returned heroes of Bethel community, Ptes. Harold and Gordon Harrison, when about 150 people of the neighborhood gathered at the home of their father, Mr. Wm. Harrisan, and presented them each with a purse of $25.

The address of welcome dealing with the response to the call of King and country was read by Rev. H. B. Herrington, pastor of Bethel circuit. The presentation was made by Mr. Thos. Atwell and Mr. John Sherin. Pte. Harold Harrison replied emphazing how glad they were to be home. He said many people in this country were discontented, but they didn't know when they were well off. The gathering then joined in singing "For They're Jolly Good Fellows," and gave them three cheers.

Games were played on the lawn. The organ was brought out and patriotic and other songs were sung. Light refreshments were served at the close. All had a jolly good time.



100% SANITARY

Germs flourish in the seams and joints of ordinary milk-pails. No matter how carefully you scald and cleanse, you never can be quite sure that some crevice does not harbor a colony which will make trouble later on.

EDDY'S INDURATED FIBREWARE MILK PAILS

are 100 per cent sanitary, because there are no joints or seams to cleanse. They are made in one piece, from wood pulp, under tremendous hydraulic pressure. The hard, glazed surface is baked on at high temperature, and is absolutely impervious to liquids. Eddy's Milk Pails are practically indestructible. They cannot be dented and no cracks can develop on the surface. Rust cannot attack them and no ordinary accident will do them injury. They cost no more than ordinary milk pails. They will save you labor now, and in the long run they will save you money.

NO MORE HONORARY DEGREES FROM METHODIST COLLEGES

Toronto Conference Votes by Big Majority Against Conferring of Tinsel Titles.

Toronto, June 18.—There was a lively debate in the Methodist Conference on Capt. (Rev.) J. W. Magwood's motion to discontinue the giving of honorary degrees in Methodist Colleges, except for service or scholarship. By 122 to 72 the resolution arried, the D.D.'s present almost unanimously voting "nay." Capt. Magwood jestingly remarked he was unselfish—his own D.D. might not be far away. "As far as my military title is concerned, that is forced on me by reason of the service I am in. I will drop it as soon as I leave this work."

Tinsel Titles.

"We have been denouncing titles and honorary titles in our church, let us be careful not to carry tinsel titles in our own church.

"We know how to get a B.A. or a B.D., but who knows how a D.D. is got? (Laughter.) If this was a Parliament I would feel like moving for the correspondence in regard to the conferring of the degree of D.D., and it would prove interesting. For ways that are dark college senates are peculiar. I am moving this to help the colleges."

Capt. Magwood quoted and disagreed with a remark that any "mutt" could get a B.D. or a B.A.

"What is a 'Mutt'?"

A delegate: "What is a 'mutt'?"

"A partner of Jeff," replied another delegate.

Rev. John J. Ferguson argued that any degree not earned by scholarship should not be given, nor should there be "correspondence" degrees.

J. O. McCarthy: "This motion feeds the flame of unrest that is sweeping too fast over this country, a lack of reverence for law and order, and the honored men of our church."

Rev. John Coburn: "The main trouble is that we have too many American degrees coming in here. I heard a man say he could buy one for $15.00.

Prof. Wallace, of Victoria College, said that numerous requests were received at the college for degrees, both by men how wanted them, or others who spoke for them, "but the men who ask for them are generally the men who don't get them."

Wants It Retroactive.

Rev. Dr. Young: "Let Captain Magwood make this retroactive, and relieve us who have been distgnated with a D.D. of our burdens. At the same time let us abolish military titles given to men who don't know the butt end of a rifle from a broomstick."

ENLARGED TILL FRIDAY.

More Evidence Needed in the King vs. Lindsay Case.

The case of Samuel King against Hugh P. Lindsay was enlarged till Friday morning to secure the evidence of Mr. Morris. Four witnesses were called by the plaintiff's solicitor, Messrs. King, Perrot, Darling and Johnson, and two by defendant, Mr. Lindsay and Miss Bradshaw. Mr. S. T. Medd for the plaintiff and Mr. J. F. Strickland for defendant.

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, billious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do, says a well-known physician.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, dring before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except for a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became saturated with an accumulation of body poisons, begin this treatment and above all, keep it up! As soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and purifying, so limestone phosphate and hot water before breakfast act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

EARNINGS OF COMPANY NOT FORMED FOR "GLORY OF GOD"

Paton Manufacturing Company Cleaned Up Profit of 197 Per Cent in Five Years.

Ottawa, June 18—Here are some of the facts gleaned from Mr. W. E. Paton Manager of the Paton Manufacturing Company, Sherbrooke, Quebec, the man who told the Industrial Committee yesterday that his company was not organized for the glory of God but to make money for the shareholders:

Authorized and paid-up capital, $600,000 all in comon stock.

Net earnings on capital in 1912, 3.32 per cent.; in 1913, 9.71 per cent; in 1914, 6.88 per cent; in 1915, 26.15 per cent; in 1916, 35.38 per cent; in 1917, 46.81 per cent; in 1918, 17.07 per cent; and 72.9 per cent in 1919.

Turnover in 1917, $1,785,000.

Advance in price of the tweeds manufactured by company, approximately 80 per cent.

Cause of increased price given as increased price of raw material and labor.

Accumulated surplus of more than a million.

Dividends in addition to surplus, of 1½ per cent. in 1911, 6 per cent in 1912 and 1913, 9 per cent, in 1914, 10 per cent; in 1915, 11 per cent, in 1916 13 per cent. in 1917.

Make 197 p.c. in Five Years

The whole thing was thus tersely summarized by Mr. Pringle: "So in five years you have made net earning it 197.41 per cent on a capital of $600,000?"

Mr. Paton stated that the fewer varieties to which they were able to confine their output and the volumes of output enabled them to make these profits more than the high prices charged. Asked if a reduction to ten or twelve per cent might not very materially have affected the price of his product, he answered: "Naturally, but not by 72.9 per cent.

Later he stated that a ten per cent reduction in prices would leave no profit whatever to the company. He denied that the 35 per cent. tariff on his product during the war had been any protection, stating that there were no British goods available for this country in any case. Taking off the entire duty under present conditions would not make any difference, as he had an order from the British Government for goods, as they could not get enough over there.

"The only rival you have now is the Dominion Textile Company? They ran pretty close last year. 63 per cent on their preferred," commented Mr Pringle.

Says Statement Honest One

To that Mr. Paton answered: "I dare say that if we had help from outside sources and issued a couple of million dollars' worth of bonds out profits instead of being 72.9 per cent on a small capital, might have been 7.2 per cent on a large capital, and then we would not have had these remarks to day. But our statement is an honest one, and we have not been going into the issuing of bonds and stocks."

Textile Man Testifies

Mr. Francis G. Daniels, General Manager of the Dominion Textile Company, said that the company was organized in 1905 to take over the branches now owned by it at Kingston, Hochelaga, Montreal, St. Anne's the Colonial Bleachery, the Merchants' the Mount Royal, Montmorency and the Magog Cotton and Print, and had done so by taking over the bonded indebtedness of the various companies, by issuing five million dollars' worth of common stock, for which they paid $500,000, and issuing $1,940,000 of preferred stock, of which half a million dollars was put into the business and the balance given to the common shareholders of the companies purchased.

The turnover for the year ending January 31, 1918 was $16,850,278.78, making a gross profit of $1,873,374.41, or 11.11 per cent, on the turnover and for the next year the turnover had become $23,666,216.66, giving a gross profit of $3,334,752.58 or $14.05 per cent on the turnover. Mr. Daniels claimed that after making all provisions for general expenses, interest on bonds, war taxes, donations to funds, depreciation and so on, the net profits would be only 6.6 per cent on their turnover.

310 Per Cent on Common Stock

As this amount makes $1,559,- pointed out that it mean net earnings of 310 per cent on the common stock investment of $500,000, Mr. Daniels contended that that was not fair, that the percentage should include as well as he $500,000 the replacement value of the plant, as shown at fourteen million dollars by the Canadian Appraisal Company in 1914, and capitalized good-will at $12,000,000. He said that on March 31, 1918 they had carried 13,900,000 pounds of raw cotton taken from inventory at 32 cents. The price had mounted to 14 cents a pound over this on the futures market and the profit had "naturally taken the profit on that margin on the way up."

Harry Higgins Chatham, was sent to Burwash for one year for assaulting a girl 14 years old.

Dr. Augustine had a narrow escape when his auto struck and broke a hydro pole at Aylmer.

Out of 200 babies examined at the St. Thomas Child Welfare exhibit, 50 per cent, were 98 per cent perfect.

The Story

Thomas Wentworth Duncan, accustomed to millions, suddenly finds himself penniless owing to a dishonest trustee who has decamped with his fortune. Work now stares Tom in the face but as he has never been accustomed to anything more strenuous than polo he is stumped at the prospect of just what to do. To make matters worse he has fallen in love with Sally Reeves but, obviously, without work or money he cannot ask her to marry him. Altogether life looks very blue to T. W. D.

On returning home in the cold gray dawn after what he expects will be his last ball with his old friends, he finds a mysterious letter on his table inscribed, PERSONAL AND IMPORTANT.

The note proves to be amazing. It tells him that his financial plight is known to the writer and that if Tom will give one month to a certain unexplained project the sender will pay him $250,000.

Tom at first decides to reject it, but the thought of Sally makes him change his mind and he accepts.

The following day, as arranged for in the letter, a limousine calls for Tom and with it a huge, silent solemn man whom he at once names Goliath.

Goliath, takes him to the hospital of Dr. Spleen where the preposterous scheme to which he is supposed to agree is disclosed to him. The egotistical doctor proposed to take Tom's heart, which is young and vigorous, and transplant it in the breast of Judah P. Corpus, a decripit millionaire, in the hope that it will instill new life into the old man. In its place Tom is to receive the discarded heart of the older man.

This scheme makes him realize at once that he is in the hands of a maniac. He becomes nervous but he is under the watchful eye of Goliath and cannot escape. By bribing one of the orderlies, however, he manages to get word to Sally. She immediately rushes to the hospital but neither can find a way out of the terrible situation.

Tom is prepared for the operating room and the lovers give up all hope for his life. Two hours later Sally is horrified to see a corpse carried from the hospital.

Four hours elapse and Tom awakens in his own room. He is confused until Sally tells him he is safe. She also tells him that as Dr. Spleen was about to perform the operation that he thought would be the wonder of the age, the excitement was too much for him and he dropped dead. To cap the climax and bring happiness into the lives of the lovers Tom receives news that the authorities have found the absconding trustee and that his fortune is saved.

MEREDITH HUYCKE BROKE ARM WHILE PLAYING BALL

Speedy Young Southpaw of the Packers Meets With Painful Accident---Team Lost For First Time.

The Orientals put a stop to the winning streak of the Matthews-Blackwell team last night, winning by five to one. The only regrettable feature of the game was the accident which occurred to Meredith Huycke, the Packers' speedy southpaw. In the seventh innings he broke his arm while pitching to Kirn. His father, Judge Huycke and several players on both sides rushed out to his assistance when they saw him fall. As there was no doctor on the grounds he had to be carried off the field to an automobile and rushed to a doctor's residence for medical treatment. This is the first accident that has occurred in either the City or Central Ontario Leagues this season.

LIEUT MEREDITH HUYCKE, who broke his arm in a game of baseball at Riverside Park last evening.

The first two innings were without runs, hits or errors for either side. In the third Kirn came in on a passed ball with the Orientals first run, and neither side even looked like scoring again till the seventh when Matthews-Blackwell made it even. The Orientals went ahead another notch in the eighth and piled three more on top of that in the final innings. The fielding on both sides was exceptionally good, the winners making two bungles and the losers only one.

First Innings.

Orientals—Cherrett walked; Collins fanned; Clancy was hit by the pitcher and Phelan and Heenan struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Matthew-Blackwells — Holyman walked; Butcher flied out to Kirn, and Lowe and Swanston were thrown out at first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second Innings.

Hagerman and Jackson died at first and McCarney got Shaughnessy's fly; No runs, no hits, no errors.

Third Innings.

Kirn singled; Cherrett sacrificed him to second; Collins singled, scoring Kirn; Clancy flied out to Cunningham and Phelan was thrown out at first. One run, two hits, no errors.

Cunningham struck out; Huycke got a free pass, and Holyman and Butcher flied out to Clancy and Cherrett. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

Heenan was thrown out at first; McCarney walked, but was caught asleep off first and Murray fanned. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Collins couldn't handle Lowe's scorcher in time and Swanston doubled; Hagerman flied out to Murray, and Lowe was caught at the plate; Jackson's fly to McCarney retired the side. No runs, one hit, one error.

Fifth Innings.

Cunningham was thrown out at first; Huycke singled, but was forced to second, and Butcher flied out to Collins. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Sixth Innings.

Collins walked; Clancy singled; Phelan struck out; Heenan flied out to Cunningham, and the latter's throw in caught Collins at the plate. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Lowe went out, Kirn to Phelan; Swanston was hit by the pitcher, and after negotiating second and third on free passes tried to force his way home but didn't make it; Hagerman fanned. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Seventh Innings.

McCarney and Murray went out on a grounder and a fly to first; Head doubled, and Kirn sent up a pop fly to Frost, who replaced Huycke. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Shaughnessy went out, Kirn to Phelan; Jackson singled; Cunningham grounded to first; Frost singled, scoring Jackson; Holyman flied out to Clancy. One run, two hits, no errors.

Eighth Innings.

Cherrett bunted safely; Collins sacrificed; Clancy fanned but Phelan's single scored Cherrett; Heenan [illegible] thrown out at first. One run, two hits, no errors.

Butcher was thrown out at first and Lowe and Swanston flied out to Kirn and Heenan. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Ninth Innings.

McCarney walked; Murray singled; Head's double drove in two runs; Kirn reached first on Lowe's error; Cherrett fouled out to Swanston, and Head was caught at the plate by Hagerman after an attempted double steal. Collins' single scored Kirn, and Clancy grounded out to Lowe. Three runs, three hits, one error.

Hagerman flied out to Collins; Shaughnessy fanned; Jackson reached first on Murray's fumble; Cunningham grounded to Clancy who threw to the plate, getting Jackson. No runs, no hits, one error.

KETCHEL LASTS ONLY ONE ROUND AGAINST WILLARD

Another Pugilist Who Aspires to High Honor is Quickly Disposed of by Champion.

Toledo, O., June 18.—Willard's new sparring partner, the much heralded Ketchel from New York, arrived yesterday at Willard's quarters to box in brand new tights. I told Archer to introduce him to the crowd for the benefit of the press and public. Archer looked over and smiled but just then Jess finished him and Archer didn't have time.

The minute that he did last was exciting. This New York Ketchel was a sailor, but he did not let his punches sail. The New York Ketchel would remind one of the late and only Stanley Ketchel—he's so different. This is the kind of sparring partners for which they pay railroad fare from New York to Toledo, as well as good wholesome grub and salary. He is now on his way to New York and no-one will miss him.

As a fighter I am all in, and look like a midget compared to Willard, but if I cannot give him more real work in one minute than the New York Ketchel could give him in one hour, I never had a boxing glove on. It is a shame Willard does not get some good husky material in his training quarters.

Champion Jess Willard is very much opposed to mixing up with colored boxers. He said the only colored boxer he ever crossed arms with was Johnson, and the only reason he did that was because Johnson was champion and Jess figured that he was destined to whip the colored champion.

Color Line is Discussed.

The champion's personal press representative, Mr. Beamish, while riding in my automobile today, spoke to me regarding Jess and the color line. When I asked him why he did not accept Jack Dempsey's offer to send Big Bill Tate and the Jamaica Kid over to give Jess a real workout, he said:

"Suppose one of them should make a good showing with the champion. It might be possible that press representative was a personal friend of the colored man and he would start a campaign which would eventually lead into a match or get Jess in bad for refusing, and through some hook or crook the title should change hands.

"At that Jess doesn't think there is a man in the world who has a ghost of a show to beat him today and the same applies to the young challenger, Jack Dempsey, who will be decisively defeated before the twelve rounds are up. Anyway, it is a foregone conclusion that Jess will have him outpointed sufficiently to win a referee's decision and beaten so badly the public will not even ask for a return match, because the champion will so outclass the challenger that it would appear ridiculous."

Big Jess stripped for action yesterday with the togs he will wear on July 4th when he crosses arms in that mammoth arena with Jack Dempsey. Jess puts on tights to disprove the theory that a great many women who have been watching Willard train say he laced up in a big rubber [illegible] and they are now satisfied he [illegible]. His legs arms and body carried a certain amount of fat, but you could see the muscles popping through, and in a couple of weeks more he will be in tiptop shape without any surplus flesh. His wind seems very good and he steps around quite frisky, making his sparring partners appear like truck horses.

Dillon Praises Dempsey.

Jack Dillon, the Indianapolis heavyweight, who was known as "Jack the Giant Killer," arrived in town today to give the boxers the once over. He is very much in favor of Dempsey as the winner. He said:

"Jack is chuck full of pep and ginger, and, believe me, while he worked he worked, and make no mistake about that. If the big fellow doesn't soon get to developing speed he won't be able to lay a glove on the lightning Dempsey. He ought to have a good, speedy punching bag for that purpose."

That is what I have said all through my stories.

While Willard was boxing Walter Monahan he started to show the crowd how clever he was popping the "Jewish wonder" with rights and lefts, but holding back his punches. Just before the finish Walter hooked his left square on the mouth, drawing blood. Jess kidded through the three rounds with Jack Hempel, stepping around him as if he were an amateur. I think Willard felt a lot better by not being bundled up in a long gymnasium suit, owing to the hot weather. Jess perspired freely.

Dempsey Works Hard.

Down at Jack Dempsey's training quarters there was a large crowd of eager fans expecting the challenger to put on the boxing gloves, but were disappointed, owing to the cut eye received from the Jamaica Kid. Jack will start boxing again tomorrow. Although the fans were disappointed in not seeing Dempsey box, they got a run for their money because every second that Dempsey was out in the gym he was tearing into the punching bag, shadow boxing and working with a heavy leather sand bag.

KING EDWARDS ARE CHAMPIONS

WIN DECIDING GAME WITH QUEEN MARY'S—SOUTH CENTRAL JUNIORS LEAD.

The championship of the Senior Public School Baseball League was decided last night when King Edward won from Queen Mary by seven to two. Evans and Rye were the batteries for the winners and for the losers Hill and Davis. Alex. Kay umpired the game, which he declares was of an exceptionally high standard throughout. At the close of the league race these two teams were tied for first place with six wins and two losses, making necessary the extra game which was played last night on the King Edward School grounds. The shield, which has been reposing in the Queen Mary School for the past six years, now passes to the King Edward School.

Final standing of the league:

	Won	Lost	P.C.
King Edward	7	2	.777
Queen Mary	6	3	.500
Central	0	8	.000

In the Junior Public School Baseball League South Central was the winner with ten straight victories. The other schools each had a team in this league.

"CONNIE" TO QUIT?

Believed Famous Manager to Take Business End.

New York, June 18. The retirement from the managerial ranks of Cornelius McGillicuddy, known to the baseball world as Connie Mack, is foreshadowed in the recent return to baseball of Harry Davis, long the lieutenant of crafty Connie. A report from the Quaker City has it that Mack has tired of the task of managing a ball club and is about ready to devote his attention to the business end of the game. Davis is to succeed Mack as boss of the Athletics on the field.

HAMILTON TEAM TO PLAY PACKERS

WESTINGHOUSE MEN OF AMBITIOUS CITY WILL BE HERE JUNE 28TH.

The Westinghouse Baseball Team of Hamilton will be in Peterborough on Saturday, June 28, to play an exhibition game against the Matthews-Blackwell team. The Hamilton boys have won six straight games without a single loss this season, and undoubtedly the match between them and the leaders of the City League should be a good one. The following Monday the Westinghouse team will proceed to Lindsay and play the local team there.

CONDITIONS ON ONTARIO FARMS

The following is a summary of reports made by agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Fatalities among horses engaged in field work during the last two or three weeks have been very heavy. The Lanark representative states that within a radius of fifteen miles of the town of Perth, about fifty horses died as a result of the intense heat.

The unusually hot weather has also baked clay soils to such an extent that in some cases spring sowing has been prevented, and the progress of some of the growing crops has been checked.

On the other hand local rains have occurred so timely in some quarters that the growth of vegetation has been surprisingly rapid. A claim comes from Brant that in thirteen days from the time of planting, corn has measured ten inches above ground, while a field of rye is reported in Essex that already averages over seven feet in height.

Early sown spring grains look well, but those put in late are not expected to do well.

Fall wheat is heading out fast. The straw is long, and some of the crop was knocked down by the rain storm of Friday.

Clover promises well, as last year's seeding is turning out better than was expected. Some alfalfa has been cut and has done well.

Haldimand, however, states that blue grass has been practically ruined by the excessive heat, and that other pasture crops are being threatened.

Late potatoes and corn are still being planted. Mangels and sugar beets are practically all in, but a large acreage of turnips is yet to be sown. A good deal of buckwheat and millet is being rushed in to take the place of spring grains which could not be sown in time.

About half the tobacco planting has been done in Essex, and the final acreage is expected to be comparatively large.

The unusually hot weather of June has affected strawberries on heavy clay soils to a considerable extent.

Beef cattle are being marketed slowly owing to dropping prices. Dairy cows, however, continue in good demand at from $125 to $175. The milk flow is at its height.

Hogs are selling at from $20 to $22 per cwt. They are as a rule being marketed rather light in weight. Six-weeks-old pigs are quoted at $15 in Haldimand and $22 a pair in Frontenac.

Live stock are valuable in Northern Ontario. Working horses are rated at $500 a pair in the Port Arthur district, and good milch cows at from $175 to $200 each.

The Brant representative expresses his belief that co-operative shipping will be generally established in that county by the fall.

KILL ROADSIDE WEEDS

Cultivation Stores Water in Soil for Crops.

Grasshoppers Cheaply and Quickly Destroyed by Treating With the Poisoned Bran Mixture.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

"A STITCH in time saves nine." This is especially true in the case of weeds. When one considers that a single specimen of many kinds of weeds may produce over 10,000 seeds, and that many of such seeds may be blown far and wide by the wind, one begins to realize just what a source of contamination is a weedy roadside, a fence corner or a waste place.

In Ontario it is too common a sight in the fall of the year to see a farmer busy with his fall cultivation, attempting to clean his field and preparing a good seed bed for next year's crop. At the same time on the roadside near the field or in the fence corners or some waste place near it such weeds as Perennial Sow Thistle, Canada Thistle, Milkweed and Wild Lettuce are maturing seeds by the thousands, to be blown on to his well tilled field and reseed it with enough filth to markedly lessen his crop and increase his labor next year.

When labor is so scarce and when the maximum quantity of grain should be produced from every acre under cultivation, no man can afford to allow weeds to seed anywhere in the neighborhood of his farm. A few hours spent now and again during the summer cutting weeds on roadsides, in waste places and fence corners is a good investment for the future, which will pay handsome dividends in labor saved and increased crop.—Prof. J. E. Howitt, Ontario Agricultural College.

Conserve the Soil Moisture.

Moisture is the most important soil property. Without it a crop is absolutely impossible, no matter how much fertility may be present. With the proper amount large crops are obtained, while on the other hand if moisture is excessive or deficient the yield is diminished according as the excess or deficiency increases. If all the water necessary for the production of a full crop could be collected on the surface of the ground at one time, it would be from 18 inches to 24 inches deep, depending on the crop and the season! During the growing season only 10 or 12 inches of rain falls in Ontario, and this is only half the amount required by the crops. Hence it becomes necessary to store up in the soil as much of the winter and spring rains as possible, while at the same time guarding against excess.

The amount of water a soil may contain depends on the pore space in the soil. Sands have least pore space, loams and mucks most, and clay is intermediate. The [illegible] of a coarse sand is about 35 per cent., of a loam or muck about 50 per cent., and of a heavy clay about 45 per cent. From these figures it will be seen that a soil may contain nearly as much water as soil grains. Since the plant roots require air it is not desirable to have all the soil pores filled with water; some free air space must be left, hence drainage becomes necessary.

There are three ways that water may be lost; first by run-off, secondly by drainage, and thirdly by evaporation. Of these three the greatest is evaporation. It may amount to half the total rainfall. As long as the soil is wet in the spring we want all these at work, but as soon as the soil is dry enough for cultivation we want the losses cut off. And cultivation is the only direct means by which this can be done in summer. Cultivation should begin just as early as the soil is dry enough. To delay one week may cause the loss of as much as 1¾ inches of water, and this is as much as falls in the month of April, a very serious matter when the needs are so great and the supply so limited. In the fall of the year cultivation should be deep to increase absorption and retention of water; in the spring shallow, in order to produce a dry layer of soil on the surface to cut off evaporation.—Prof. W. H. Day, Ontario Agricultural College.

The Astrologer.

An astrologer, who was famed for his great learning and his knowledge of the stars, went out for a walk. As he walked, all the time looking up at the sky, he said to himself: "Oh, how much wiser am I than most men. All the secrets of the stars are known to me. I read them as other men read books. . . ." Thus speaking, he came to a well, but, being far too busy praising his own cleverness to notice it, he tripped and fell in headlong, and there he had to stay until his servant, hearing his cries, came and pulled him out.—Aesop's Fables.

Anglo-Saxons.

The Angles, or Engles, were a people once located in a part of the world now known as Schleswig-Holstein and who accompanied or immediately followed the Saxons into England. The Angles are believed to have been the more powerful race, for they occupied the larger portion of Britain, and they gave their name to the land, for out of Engle grew the word England and the Saxons made the word Anglo-Saxon.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

KINSMAN—HANNA

A very quiet wedding was solemnized early this morning at the bride's home, 75 Hunter street, when Miss Maude Amelia Hanna, second daughter of Mr. James Hanna, became the bride of Mr. Norton Anson Kinsman, of Buffalo. They were unattended, only the members of the bride's family being present. After the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. R. Pogue, the young couple took the 4.20 train for Buffalo. The bride was very popular among the High School girls of Peterborough. All join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Kinsman a long and happy wedded life.

At the annual [illegible] of the Women's Missionary Society held in Cambridge Street Church, Lindsay, Mrs. James Kendry was appointed Branch treasurer and Mrs. J. K. Moore was re-elected District Superintendent. Mrs. Moore also gave an instructive paper on the "Rest Fund for retired missionaries."

Mrs. Gamble, 321 Roger street, motored back to Toronto with Mr. and Mrs. Warren Hunter, who spent the week-end with his sister, Mrs. J. Dickson, Roger street.

Mrs. H. Boyle, of Rochester, spent the week-end in Peterborough.

Miss Black, of Toronto, was a Peterborough visitor yesterday.

"THE GOOD SHEPHERD" THEME OF EVANGELIST KENNEDY

Revivalist Continues to Make Most Favorable Impression Upon His Hearers in the Hunter Street Tent—Preaches Tonight on Samson.

Evangelist Kennedy continues to make a most favorable impression in connection with the union evangelistic campaign, which is being held in the city. His delivery is different from that of most evangelists in that he does not make any effort to appeal to the emotions. It is claimed that the public is about equally divided into two classes, one class who think first and act second and the other class comprising those who act first and think second. Evangelistic campaigns, it is claimed by some, are especially designed to reach the latter class of people. If this is the case it explains why so many people are opposed to evangelistic campaigns. Because such appeals do not move them they do not realize their power to affect other types of people. So far Evangelist Kennedy's appeals have been of a nature that are being appreciated by people of all types. His word painting of the Bible characters he portrays has a strong appeal of an unusual kind while his frequent reference to Scripture in support of his statements make their appeal to the intellect.

The subject last evening was "The Good Shepherd." Mr. Kennedy had the gathering recite in unison the 23rd Psalm and from the hearty response his request received it was evident that a large percentage of those present were familiar with that great Psalm. With this as his text Mr. Kennedy drew a vivid picture of an eastern shepherd and his loving care of his flock. He showed that David, the Shepherd King, had a vision of God as a good shepherd and as a prophet looked ahead, also of Jesus Christ as the Good Shepherd.

Tonight Mr. Kennedy will speak on Samson. It will be a message especially for young men.

The musical services last evening were unusually strong. The members of St. Andrew's Church choir turned out well and lead the singing, rendering a special anthem in excellent form. Mr. Mulligan also contributed a solo, his interpretation as usual being most sympathetic. This evening the members of the Murray street choir will have charge of the musical features. The ministers on the platform last night included Rev. Messrs Greatrix, Manning, Pogue, Webb and Thomas.

A full meeting of the Executive Committee having charge of the arrangements for the campaign has been called for this evening, following the service.

EDITOR NEWSOME'S

to which the four lavatories enter.

There are no traps on the lavatories, the waste pipes are connected just exactly as shown in the sketch. And whoever fitted this job up evidently was of the opinion that the trap so fitted and vented as shown, would be accepted as a sanitary system. There is no argument about it. It really is a filthy contraption, and should be sufficient to close up the establishment. It is not in accordance with the plumbing by-law in any way, though this has been law for a matter of 15 years. The installation in question was installed at a comparatively recent date.

In the basement of this barber's shop a w.c. was installed. No vent on the w.c., though a number of fixtures in addition to the lavatories are installed in apartments above the barber shop, and in the vertical at the foot a 4 x 2 cast iron Y branch fitting is inserted, and a plug of paper stuffed into the 2-inch opening.

A Pool Room Job.

A basement pool room situated on the main street was next visited. A w.c. was installed under the stairs. No circulation of air, and no ventilation provided whatever.

The bend appeared to be vented by fitting a piece of pipe into some portion of the soil pipe, and a mercury vent fitted to a vertical pipe, projecting up through the floor. A few feet away a wash-basin was fitted up with a non-vented N.P. trap.

Both these jobs appear to have been installed at no very distant date. And neither in accordance with the existing plumbing by-law. Complaints were made by several persons that the plumbing inspector was somewhat lax in carrying out and enforcing the by-law.

The law demands that all connections between brass, lead and iron shall be made with a wiped solder joint. This is not enforced, and cases could be cited in great numbers, but space does not permit.

Expansion Tank Overflow.

In another otherwise fairly good installation, a bell trap in the floor is connected directly into the soil and drain pipe. And in this job an open expansion tank is furnished with an overflow pipe directly connected to material and unpractical installations has been the rule. Such laxness means that if a conscious sanitary engineer were to tender on a good job, and intend in earnest to use none but the best material, and, also to carry out every part of the plumbing by-law, that man would seldom, if ever, secure the job, because his price would be high.

Plumbing Inspector Under Council.

Another point, too, which is important. Sanitary plumbing installation relates to health, and the plumbing inspector should be on the staff of the Board of Health. In the city referred to the inspector is little better than the servant of politics. He is hired, and could be dismissed by the council, we learn, which should not be the case. He should be really the mechanical man in the Board of Health, and under the direction of the Local Medical Officer of Health.

It is to be hoped that the city of P—— will soon set these matters right. The public are not being treated right, the trade is not progressing, no journeyman with any dignity whatever would stoop to break the law, or even dare to, if the plumbing inspector granted no favors. Further, the by-law mentioned should not only be enforced, but it should be remodelled, some of the clauses and sections are obsolete, and very difficult to specifically define.

Piano Recital At The Conservatory

Miss Bessie Elcome of the Conservatory staff and her pupils gave a most delightful piano recital at the Conservatory on Monday evening, which was much enjoyed by a large number of musical friends, who look forward with pleasure to this charming annual event. The pupils, numbering about 30 preformers of different grades, presented a most remarkable program, their playing showing the result of the careful training they have received from their capable teacher.

The stage was beautifully decorated for the occasion with daisies, buttercups and roses. The boys and girls flitting about made a pretty stage picture. During the evening Miss Elcome was presented with a handsome bouquet of American Beauty roses. The following was the program:

"Vesper Bells—Arthur Robinson, Geo. Huffman.
Minuet in G—Isobel Carter.
Waltz—Jean Burrell.
"Claribella"—Marguerite Mason.
"Allegro Moderato"—Alda Bartlett.
"Hand in Hand"—Marion and Jean McCannon.
"Pixies' Waltz-Song"—Eva Dallin.
"Andante Sostenuto" — Gladys Walker.
"Fairy Dance"—Cleo Fowler.

"Feather Dance"—Phyllis Gardiner.
"Danse Provencale"—Ross Thompson.
"J'y Pense"—Hazel Blewett.
"Petite Serenade"—Amy Fairbrother.
"Messengers of Spring", "Chant du Soir"—Leonard Rambo.
"Une Parole D'Amour", "Joys of Spring"—Jean McCannon.
Love Song"—Amy Beal.
"Caprice Etude"—Donald Jordan.
"Les Sylphides"—Frances McFadden.
"Danse Tzigane"—George Huffman.
1st Valse in E Flat—Alice Cocks, Helen Lamb.
"La Parisienne"—Irene Canfield.
Violin solo—Selected—Miss Regina Hill.
"Echoes of the Chase", "La Capricieuse"—Dorothy Stilson.
"Serenade sans Paroles", "Canzone Triste"—Alice Cocks.
Nocturne in B Flat, "An Old Love Story"—Helen Lamb.

SPARKS FROM GOSPEL ANVIL

SOME OF THE NUGGETS OF TRUTH UTTERED BY EVANGELIST KENNEDY AT REVIVAL SERVICES IN BIG TENT.

There are always some men who are not known except to God.

No man knows his strength or weakness until occasion proves them.

I would rather walk in the dark with God than go alone by sight.

Testing comes from God. Temptation comes from Satan.

Christian life is not done so long as God has anything for you to do or to suffer.

The quickest way to get a blessing from God is to thank Him for the blessings you have now.

Some folks look so sad, as if God were dead and had not left them anything.

The most beautiful sunset has clouds.

All clouds are of short duration.

There is an oasis in every desert and a rainbow in every tear.

Paul learned to entertain the throne when he knew it came to stay

Quit sympathising with yourself and get busy for others, if you want to be happy.

The gem cannot be polished without friction, nor the Christian without adversity.

There is no circumstance in life that may not be turned into a virtue or victory.

We cannot always have what we want, but we can always have what God wants us to have.

Fretting and worry is always caused by unbelief.

The good man should never despair, for either God will glorify Himself in his protection or he will glorify God in his suffering for Him.

A man has only as much religion as he can command when in trouble.

Experience is going through a thing and having it go through you.

"SIGN TREATY; END AGONY," SAY RESIDENTS OF BERLIN

Change of Public Opinion is Noted, According to Latest Advices, Even Among Members of Cabinet.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berlin, June 19.—"Sign the treaty and be through with the agony," is the gist of comment of the people of Berlin today. The residents of Berlin seem to have resigned themselves to the inevitable. "Rathet an end with terror than terror without end," was the way one small merchant put it today.

Germans Are Resigned.

New York, June 19—The Associated Press this morning issued the following: German feeling toward the peace treaty appears to be taking a more favorable trend. Although the peace delegation headed by Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau is reported as decidedly opposed to the acceptance of the revised Allied terms the latest despatches from Weimar where the German Cabinet and the National Assembly are considering the treaty reflect a different view point. The Majority Socialists present, the dominant political force in the German republic, are declared in these advices to be more favorably inclined toward the treaty than at first while the clerical sand democrats of the left wing are reported to be swining in the same direction. One report from Berlin represents the people of the capital as resigned to future, desiring only to see treaty signed and suspense ended.

Fifteen Unionists Bolt On Budget

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, June 19.—At 1 a.m., previous to the vote being taken. Hon. Mr. Fielding, former Minister of Finance, made a castigating attack on the present Minister of Finance, Sir Thomas White, who, he said, as one of the noble eighteen in 1911, cried, "No truck or trade with the Yankees," and defeated reciprocity in that year, but reduced the tariff to the same level in 1919.

While th econcluding speeches were being delivered by Colonel Arthur and Col. James Peck, V.C., most of the members were in corridors singing "Pack All Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag," ani other popular songs while the overment Whips were making last efforts to steady the recalcitrant western supporters.

Fifteen Unionists voted against the overnment on the Budget issue. They were all westerners except Hon. W. S. Fielding, Paradee, West Lambton, and Cockshutt of Brantford. Cockshutt voted with the Government against the McMaster amendment but against the Government on the Budget, presumably in both cases, on account of his high protectionist principles. The Oppositionists who supported the Budget were McCrae of Sherbrooke and Euler of North Waterloo.

THIRTY CENTS FOR CANAL LABORERS

AND GOVERNMENT HAS QUESTION OF AN INCREASE UNDER CONSIDERATION.

J. H. Burnham, M.P recently asked the following question in the House of Commons:

"Is it a fact that the Government is paying 29½ cents an hour to labourers on the Trent Canal, in the vicinity of Peterborough, while the current rate for the same district and work is universally 45 cents per hour?"

The reply sent in by Deputy Minister G. O. Bell was as follows:

"The rates of wages now paid on the Trent Canal in Peterborough district—for casual labour—30 cents per hour; permanent labour, $2.60 per day.

"The Department of Railways and Canals has no information showing that the current rate for this district is 45 cents per hour.

"The question of increase in wages is now under consideration by the Department."

LABOR PROTESTS AGAINST ARREST

TRADES COUNCIL DELEGATES WILL SEND COPY OF RESOLUTION TO OTTAWA.

At the regular meeting of the Trades and Labor Council last night a resolution was adopted protesting against the arrest of the strike leaders at Winnipeg. A copy of this resolution will be forwarded to J. H. Burnnam, M.P., for presentation to the Government.

There was a long discussion of the situation in Winnipeg. Some of the delegates took the ground that a sympathetic strike is unconstitutional and others held that it was a mistake to apply that term to the affair at Winnipeg, as each individual union that quit work was after a redress of its own grievances as to hours and labor. There was also a diversity of opinion on the one big union idea, which was devied by some and upheld by others. The opinion was expressed that there was no attempt at violence in Winnipeg and no disorder to justify the arrest of the leaders.

FAIR BOARD ASKS FOR $2,000 GRANT

LARGE DEPUTATION WAITED ON THE COUNTY COUNCIL THIS AFTERNOON.

Mr. J. T. O'Connell the chairman headed a deputation from the Peterborough Exhibition Board to the County Council. They asked for $2,000 which is specially needed for the erection of a horse stable. It is up to us," he declared "to see that Lindsay does not beat us in obtaining the best show grounds between Toronto and Ottawa. If we had suitable stabling accommodation we could have a fat stock show here in the winter. We can use the present horse stables for the cattle."

Mr. Harry Webber, a representative of the farming community, stated that a properly conducted fall fair is one of the best educators that we have. "The backbone of Peterborough County in the future will be the livestock. Last year we had to herd our sheep under the grandstand for lack of accomodation. We feel that the farmers should help support it by giving us at least as much as the city."

Mr. Wm. Steinkronss of Smith township said "I wouldn't live in a place if I couldn't go to a decent fair A good afir is a benefit to everyone in the community. I am sure we will have the best fair between Toronto and Montreal.

Mr. Roland M. Glover spoke of the benefits derived by the farming community as a result of a real up-to-date fair

The smaller fairs would act as preparatory fairs for the larger one in Peterborough.

Mr J. O Wall and Mr. John Gillespie also spoke. The latter explained that the fair will be held on

JAMES R. BELL, WELL KNOWN BUSINESS MAN, PASSES AWAY

Death Came Unexpectedly Last Night After a Brief Illness—Was Man of Remarkably Genial Disposition That Made Him Friends Among Old and Young.

James R. Bell, one of the best known and most successful of the younger set of business men in the city, died last evening at his home in the Bell Apartments, Hunter St., after a brief illness. His death was a shock to his many friends, as he had been around as usual no later than last Saturday He was taken ill on Monday and it was only two days ago that the doctor was called. No serious result was anticipated, as the trouble was regarded as a bilious attack.

The late Mr. Bell was a man of an invariably genial disposition which made him a special favorite with old and young alike. He never complained, but those who knew him best realised for some time that his health was failing. A short time ago he sold out his business and planned to enjoy a well-earned rest. He and Mrs. Bell had arranged to leave yesterday on an auto trip for Buffalo and other points, his car having been repaired and repainted in preparation. They had intended to be absent for at least a month.

The late Mr. Bell was a member of one of the most prominent and highly respected families in the city, where he was born nearly forty years ago and where he had resided all his life. His father, the late John Bell, who died in 1914, was in his day one of the men who took an active part in building up Peterborough. The deceased was married twelve years ago and is survived by his widow. There are no children.

The immediate members of the family who survive are, besides Mrs. Bell, wife of the deceased, Mrs. John Bell, the mother, Miss Victoria Bell, at home, and two brothers, Sergt.-Major Joseph Bell, of Vancouver, who acted as military instructor during the war, and George Bell, Saskatoon. Neither of the brothers will be able to reach the city in time for the funeral.

The remains have been removed to the home of the mother of the deceased at 415 Water street. The funeral will be held to Little Lake Cemetery at 9:30 Saturday morning. Rev. Canon Davidson will officiate. All friends of the deceased are asked to accept this invitation, and the late Mr. Bell numbered these by the score.

CALLS ARREST OF LEADERS MISTAKE

WINNIPEG FREE PRESS SAYS SUCH ACTION WAS NOT NECESSARY.

Winnipeg, June 19.—Commenting on the arrest of the strike leaders, the Manitoba Free Press says: "The strike had been won by the citizens. Within 30 hours—from information which the Free Press believed to be absolutely authentic—it would have come to an inglorious end; and the leaders—those under arrest and their immediate associates—would have been involved in a disaster from which, in all probability, not one of them would ever have recovered. Labor, which had been betrayed and cajoled by them, would have disowned them; and they would have been called to account by the ordinary processes of law for the illegalities in speech and action which marked their course during the strike."

May Welcome Martyrdom.

After saying it is quite possible that the leaders will welcome this martyrdom thus thrust upon them, the Free Press continues:

::The Dominion Government has, however, taken the responsibility of the drastic course of action now being followed. It possibly has information not available to the public which compelled the action it has taken. It may be justified by the results obtained. The Government has taken its course; it must see it through.

Have Start of Action.

"At last we have start of action. At last we have officialdom aroused to a sense of duty. At last we have the first move of those in authority to pick up the challenge cast down by treason and to exert the pressure of the strong arm of the law.

"Had the ringleaders in this farcical revolution been subjected three weeks ago to the treatment they received last night, Winnipeg would have been saved millions of dollars and an unenviable reputation it will now take years to live down.

"The trouble has been that everyone in authority has treated the ridiculous posing of a handful of mountebanks seriously. They were not treated like bad boys playing a silly game. They were treated as if they were grown men intellectually who were engaged in an enterprise that might live in history."

Appeals for Calmness.

The Tribune says: "The assumption must be that the Dominion Government has ample and specific evidence that the men under arrest have violated the laws of Canada.

"When the highest authority in the Dominion places its hands on any man or men residing in Canada, citizens, including newspaper editors, who are not in the immediate confidence of the authorities and having no definite knowledge of the evidence leading to the arrest, can only withhold comment pending knowledge which will enable men making comment to exercise their own judgment in the premises. Whether the action leading to the arrests has been wise or unwise, will depend wholly on the evidence. The Tribune appeals for calmness on the part of all good citizens. An immediate fair trial of the men under arrest must take place."

Minister Confers With Strikers

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, June 19.—Representatives of the Strike Committee were in conference with Hon. G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labor, last night. No statement was given out as to the nature of the proceedings, but it is understood the Minister fully went into the question of why advantage had been taken of the Amendment to the Immigration Act to arrest strike leaders suspected of Bolshevik tendencies. The explanation will be considered by the Strike Committee and it is possible that a further conference with the Minister will be held today. The conference was held at the instance of T. J. Murray, counsel for the men under arrest, and among those present were A. J. Andrews, K.C., counsel for the Crown, and Commissioner Perry of the R. N. W. M. P.

SENATE ACTION MAY DEFEAT PROHIBITION IN ONTARIO

Many Persons Will Refuse to Support O.T.A. if This Province is to be Flooded With Liquor From Quebec.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, June 19.—Leading prohibitionists here express confidence that the House of Commons will fight the Senate in connection with the action yesterday of the Upper Chamber in amending the bill prohibiting the importation, manufacture and interprovincial transportation of alcoholic liquors, so as to make the prohibition end when peace is signed, instead of twelve months thereafter, as legislated by the Commons. Many representative bodies, such as the local Methodist Conference, are clamoring for the abolition of the Senate, but others are depending on the declaration of Hon. N. W. Rowell that the Commons will send the amended bill back to the Senate with the demand that it be reconsidered. It is pointed out that the attendance in the Upper Chamber when the measure was amended was not large, and reconsideration and another vote might bring about a different result.

The effect this amendment will have on the coming referendum in Ontario is a matter of speculation. If the bill as amended is allowed to stand and peace is signed in the meantime, it is argued that many voters who otherwise would vote for prohibition will not do so if the Dominion Government permits this province to be flooded with liquor from other provinces or from the United States.

What the Senate Did.

Ottawa, June 19—That order-in-Council prohibiting the importation, manufacture and transportation of intoxicating liquor shall terminate with the signing of peace was declared by the Senate yesterday.

A bill from the Commons, enacting as statute law the orders-in-Council of the Government proclaimed under the War Measures Act, was taken up by the Senate in committee of the whole. Senator Deveber offered an amendment striking out the words "and for twelve months thereafter" from the declaration that the regualtions "shall continue in force during the continuation of the present war and for twelve months thereafter."

Majority of Ten.

The amendment carried by 34 to 24 after a number of speeches chiefly dealing with the constitutional point raised on second reading that by section 121 of the B. N. A. Act interprovincial trade could not be interfered with. As a preliminary to taking up the bill, Sir James Lougheed read an opinion from the Department of Justice given on the constitutional aspect of the question at the time one of the orders-in-Council was made. This opinion observed "that section 121 applies only to articles of the growth, produce or manufacture of any one of the provinces and as to such intoxicating liquor as is of this description. I am of opinion that this section does not limit the power of prohibition possessed by the Dominion, because the object of it is to declare immunity from taxation rather than to affect the power which the Dominion otherwise has to prohibit exportation from one province to another of article which Parliament may consider ought not for the peace, order and good government of Canada, to be admitted in the latter province."

Opinion of Minister.

The Minister of Justice at this time further expressed the opinion that "while for these reasons I do not consider there is any ground for substantial doubt of the power of the Dominion to prohibit interprovincial trading such as above referred to, I would suggest that the possibility of questioning the validity of the prohibition legislation as to the transportation of the liquors would be very much reduced, or, in fact, entirely disappear, if, in the proposed legislation the terms of the announcement of Dec. 22, 1917, were adhered to. That announcement did not refer to interprovincial transportation of liquor in particular, but simply declared that transportation of liquor into any part of Canada where in the sale of intoxicating liquor is illegal will be prohibited on and after April 21, 1916."

High Bridge Again Tomorrow Night!

LEONARD CONSTRUCTION CO'S REPRESENTATIVES TO MEET BOARD OF WORKS.

Messrs. Robert Stuart and Hadsall of Chicago left the great western metropolis today for Peterborough. These gentlemen will meet the city Board of Works tomorrow evening and submit a proposition from the Canadian Leonard Construction Co. for building the proposed new Hunter street bridge.

In a letter to the Board of Works last week the Leonard Construction Co. expressed their opinion that they could build the bridge at a price well within the city's appropriation for that purpose, and offered to tender on the work, were the Council still open to accept bids. An affirmative reply was sent Mr. Stuart, and consequently he and Mr. Hadsall will be present at the meeting of the Board Friday evening.

Ald. Crowe, who is in Orillia, was wired this morning to be present on this occasion, when it is hoped by some of the aldermen and Mayor Duncan that a bridge construction proposition will be forthcoming possible of acceptance in settlement of this vexed problem.

A Pennsylvania railroad passenger engineer was taken ill while on his engine. He brought the train safely into Atlantic City, but died a few minutes after.

Ready to Sail For German Waters at Moment's Notice if Huns Reject the Treaty of Peace.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, June 19.—The morning newspapers feature the British naval and other preparations in the event of Germany refusing to sign the treaty of peace, and print under big headlines several unofficial reports which were current during the night. The Grand Fleet has again been placed on a war footing, it is reported, and is ready to sail for German waters at a moment's notice. It is also stated that dirigible R.-34 has been diverted from her transatlantic trip, equipped with bombs and machine guns, and has been sent, or is going, to the Baltic, while her companion aircraft, the R.-33, similarly equipped, left on Wednesday night for a cruise which will include the Kiel canal. A telegram from Copenhagen reports the arrival there of a dozen British cruisers and several destroyers prepared to enforce the blockade.

According to some reports, the R.-34, which is now over the Baltic, is neither armed nor loaded with bombs, but is undergoing a final trial preparatory to her Atlantic voiage. The Daily Sketch says the R.134 was over Berlin at 4 o'clock Wednesday.

CHANCE GIVEN RETURNED MEN

HON. MARTIN BURRELL REPLIES TO QUESTION BY J. H. BURNHAM.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, June 19.—That the new Parliament Buildings will soon be ready for occupation [illegible] indicated today at the morning [illegible]ion when a committee was appointed to confer with the Senate committee regarding allocation of space in the new building.

Answering the question of J. H. Burnham, Hon. Martin Burrell declared that returned soldiers were given every opportunity in the matter of obtaining government positions.

W. F. Maclean (Toronto) urged the Government to enact legislation to control essential minerals. He declared that the International Nickel Co., which controls the nickel output at Sudbury, paid recently to the United States Government three millions in war tax which should have come to Canada.

PRINTERS ARE BACK ON DUTY

DAILY PAPERS IN VANCOUVER ARE NOW APPEARING AS USUAL.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Vancouver, June 19—Apart from the return to work of certain members of the Typographical Union who are on strike there have been no developments in the Vancouver strike during the last twenty four hours. All the daily newspapers are publishing again in Vancouver following a temporary suspension of two of them. The dipute involved the question of the right of printers to censor news matter bearing on the strike.

The Daily Sun appearing this morning for the first time since last Thursday prints in its news column the editorial which the men formerly refused to set up.

Will of Mrs. C. J. Walker, negress, filed at Indianapolis, leaves the bulk of her $1,000,000 estate to her daughter, who will become the wealthiest of her race in the U.S.

THE TRIUMPH OF PROTECTION.

THERE MAY BE dissatisfaction in Canada with Union Government now that the mission of that coalition has been acomplished, but the dissatisfaction certainly is not directed against the element in the Administration which stands for a rational measure of protection. That much was demonstrated in the House of Commons today when the budget was sustained by a vote of 120 to 50, the drop in the normal majority being due to the defection of the Western Unionists who are unalterably committed to the free trade fallacy. The result of the vote also does away with the probability of an election for some time to come. The Government has been sustained, but this fact cannot be taken as an indication that the Unionist idea is still popular. It is protection that has been approved. The principles of the old-time Conservative element have been again vindicated just as they most assuredly would be if a wider appeal were made and a general election ordered.

BUMBLE WAS RIGHT.

BUMBLE IN DICKENS must have been looking far ahead, and with liquor prosecutions in Alberta in mind, when he said, "The law is a hass." Had he been living today the opinion he held would have become an absolute conviction in the light of the prosecution and sentence on the moonshiners of the Gros Ventre district. The history of the seizure of the huge still in the heart of a hill is now known to the public. The moonshiners were brought before the magistrate and each fined the sum of $200 without costs, says the Lethbridge Herald.

The fine imposed on the moonshiners was light enough considering the profits, we are told, that are made on the sale of illicit brew at the price it is sold. But the charge preferred against the moonshiner with the penalty that it involved was hardly in the nature of making the punishment fit the crime. That is if prohibition is to be regarded seriously.

The moonshiners were prosecuted for not having a license under the Inland Revenue Act for distilling and rectifying spirits. The manufacture of spirits in the province is prohibited by order-in-Council. We therefore witness something of a paradox in a man being prosecuted for not having a license to do what under the law he is forbidden to do. Of course, it is easily gathered that a license could not have been obtained. But the nature of the charge is peculiar. This is not all; a further charge was preferred against one of the moonshiners. It was that of selling liquor without having paid the excise duty. An excise duty on what it is unlawful to sell.

The "wisdom" of the whole thing, that to obtain a prosecution a route with something of conflicting principle in it has to be followed with nothing to allow of a direct charge to fully meet the case and to exact the full penalty, is something for wonder. To get off as the offenders did for selling poisonous liquor with infinitely more harm in it than the real article, with a fine of $200 only is making the law in regard to prohibition a farce. Punishments of this nature are not going to act as deterrents. Moonshiners will continue to flourish, with a payment of doles out of handsome profits. The law is simply defeating itself, and there can be no surprise, with such examples, for criticism launched in regard to the enforcement of the Liquor Act.

IF GERMANY HAD MADE PEACE.

THE LONDON DAILY MAIL publishes the following terms of what would have been a dictated peace should the Germans have won the war:

The Entente must be made to pay all Germany's war cost, including the cost of Germany's armaments for the next forty years, amounting to about £20,000,000,000—part to be paid in raw materials and by the surrender of half the Entente's merchant fleets, and seizure of all private and public property in the annexed territories. —The ex-kaiser in July, 1917.

Germany must obtain control not only of Belgium, but of the whole French coast from Dunkirk to Boulogne, with the possession of the Channel Islands; the mines of French Lorraine must pass under German control. The indemnities must provide for full reimbursement of war costs; payment for all damage caused by the war; the redemption of all German State debts; the creation of a large fund for (German) victims of the war.—Herr Erzberger.

In spite of what the Germans would have imposed on us, were they in the position to do so, there are men and women of the Ramsay Macdonald and Mrs. Snowden type who consider the enemy harshly treated in the Allies' peace terms. These individuals, who are a disgrace to their nationality, and others, if there happen to be any, might well withhold their tears.

THE SENATE'S LATEST.

THE RESPONSIBLE members of the House of Commons propose. The irresponsible members of the Senate dispose, and defeat the will of the people, who have no way of calling them to account, thanks to a system of government that first recognizes and provides for responsible government and then foolishly casts it away.

The Government by order-in-Council prohibited the importation and manufacture of liquor. When the time limit of one year expired the order was extended for another twelve months, by vote of the members of the House.

The Senate has nullified this legislation and decreed that as soon as the peace treaty is signed the prohibitory order shall cease to be of effect. The right to manufacture and import liquor is to be restored.

The Senate's latest move is of special interest to Ontario, which has been dry to some purpose since the order-in-Council referred to went into effect. But the Senate has upset the pot of beans. The man who wants liquor, once peace is signed, can import it either from the United States or Quebec.

There is now likely to arise an anomalous situation. Quebec has but recently adopted a law which permits the sale of beer only. Hard liquor is prohibited. The law will still stand in spite of the senatorial action. Quebec can resume the manufacture of whisky, not for home consumption but for export to those provinces where its sale has been declared illegal by the various legislatures.

What Ontario needs at this juncture is a cabinet that will stand up for its rights. No Legislature should be weak enough to attempt to evade responsibility. If the people of Ontario want a bone-dry province they are entitled to legislation to secure it. The Province can prevent the importation of liquor by outlawing it. The power that penalizes a man for keeping liquor in a woodshed can do as much with regard to his private residence.

AN HONEST WITNESS.

W. E. PATON, manager of the manufacturing company that bears his name, and who incidentally gave evidence before the Industrial Commission, has earned the distinction of being one witness who told a straightforward story and attempted neither to conceal nor to gloss over anything. He admits that his company made a profit of over seventy-two per cent. last year and that during the past five years they have almost trebled in the way of clear gain the original capital invested.

Mr. Paton is refreshingly frank. He says that his company was not organized for the "glory of God," but for the benefit of those who had money invested in it. The phrase which Mr. Paton has coined is likely to live with other celebrated saying by men of his class, such as "the public be d—d," and "to h— with profits." The author of the latter expression, camouflaging himself with a thin veneer of religion, proved later that he was not given to follow his own preaching. It must be said on behalf of Mr. Paton that he at least clears himself from all suspicion of hypocrisy.

The free traders are deprived of all material for argument in support of their case by the explanation given by Mr. Paton. The tariff had nothing to do with his excessive profits. The war was the real reason. The market for his products was in England, and that market would have been in existence even if there had not been one cent of duty upon the articles made by Mr. Paton's company. It was simply another case of a man making ungodly profits out of the agony of the Empire.

But Mr. Paton is not alone in his failure to co-operate with Providence. The workingman does not ask for an increase in wages for the glory of God, but for his own benefit and that of his dependents. All classes of humanity are essentially selfish, intent only on gaining their own ends.

Mr. Paton says there was something wrong with any man who failed to make money during the war. For the honor of Canadianism let this fact be proclaimed. There are still in existence unselfish and devoted patriots as well as self-centred mercenaries. There are still men who set principle above wealth. There are hundreds of Canadians poorer today as a result of the war, made so by the voracity of men of the Paton breed, poorer, too, in what to them is of vastly more account, by the loss of relatives who gave their lives for the very Empire that Mr. Paton and his kind were bleeding white while it suffered.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

THE POOR OLD SENATE is past reform.

• • •

WHOM PUBLIC OPINION would bring into popular disfavor it sends to the Senate.

• • • • •

ALL HONOR to Alcock and Brown. They really crossed, instead of merely circumventing, the Atlantic.

• • • • •

THE BATHING committee might as well be frank like Mr. Paton, and let the public know that there is not the slightest hope for a beach this year.

• • • • •

TAKE NOTICE that the farmers who have been or are likely to be nominated for Legislature or Parliament are all advocates of the provincial road system.

• • • • •

UNLESS AN EARLY CHANGE for the better is noted, the mind of the ambitious young man is likely to be turned from the West, where the chief opportunity these days seems to be arrest on suspicion.

• • • • •

"IT IS UP TO the Liberal party to save the country," says our contemporary, or something to that effect. A certain element of that party was not so hot on the salvation idea when there was the element of personal danger involved.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

WORSE LUCK!

(Ottawa Journal.)

"Mr. Lloyd George's lengthy speech, which lasted almost an hour and a half," says an Associated Press despatch. We have dozens of members of Parliament in Canada who often talk longer than that.

NOT THE GOOD ONES.

(Guelph Mercury.)

It's not a bit cheerful news to a lot of people that a Liberal doesn't have to disown his party to land a job in the gift of the Province. But at the same time there's comparatively few Grits holding down the real good jobs.

AUTO SPEEDS.

(London Advertiser.)

Can a motorist have a car under control at all times when going twenty miles an hour? We do not think he can. It is too fast for the safety of the public, and if it costs one's life the legislators responsible should never forgive themselves.

CHARGES BY SINN FEINERS

In England the sensation of the hour is the so-called Walsh report which is one of the most damaging attacks upon British rule in Ireland that ever saw the light. English officials and army officers are accused of most of the serious crimes in the calendar from murder to arson, the victims being in all cases Sinn Feiners, men, women and children. The prisons in which these unfortunates are confined are said to be unfit for caging wild beasts. Trial by jury has been abolished. Hundreds of men have been in jail for months without knowing the charges against them. There is an army of occupation estimated at 100,000, and it is treating Ireland worse than the Germans treated Belgium. The charges are, as a rule, of a wholesale character, and lacking in details such as names and dates.

American Friends of Sinn Fein

The report was written by Frank P. Walsh and Edward F. Dunne, two prominent Irish Americans who were sent to Europe by a number of Irish societies to further Irish independence. They tried to get the cause of Ireland before the Peace Conference and sought in vain for an interview with Lloyd George. Then they asked for passports that would enable them to examine the Irish question at close quarters. Provided with these they seem to have spent most of their time in going from jail to another. Without passing an opinion on the report one might suggest that if the British Government was willing that two such avowed enemies as Dunne and Walsh should inspect the Irish prisons is did not have a great deal it was ashamed to show.

Seventeen Grave Charges

The seventeen charges of the report are as fololws:

First—Within the last few months at least ten citizens have been killed by soldiers and constables under circumstances which, in a majority of the cases, the coroner's juries found to be wilful murder under the laws of England the last man having been murdered less than a month ago. In all these cases the perpetrators of the crimes have gone unpunished.

Second—Hundreds of men and women have been confined for months in the vilest prisons without any charges being preferred against them.

Third—At least five men have died as a result of atrocities perpetrated against themb while in prison. Postmortem examinations in soem cases disclosed marks of violence upon the bodies.

Fourth—Prisoners were confined in narrow cells with their hands handcuffed behind them day and night. In this condition they are fed by jail attendants. They are given no opportunity for answering the calls of nature and are compelled to lie in their clothing, befouled by human excrement for days at a time.

Fifth—Many persons are confined in cells which are not large enough for one man. They are not provided with beds or bunks of any kind but are compelled to sleep on bare floors. There are no toilet facilities and receptacles contain human offal, which has necessarily accumulated upon the floors, where men are compelled to sleep in filth, night after night.

Sixth—The food is insufficient and unwholesome. The prisoners, both men and women, are compelled to live days upon water and poorly baked sour, stale bread.

Seventh—Hundreds of men and women have been discharged from jail with impaired constitutions, in many cases incurable invalids, as a result of their treatment.

Eighth—During part of the winter and spring, streams of ice cold water were poured over the men confined in the jails and they were compelled to lie all night on cold floors in unheated cells in their wet clothing. Many of them were afterwards removed to outside hospitals suffering with pneumonia.

Kidnapping Children

Ninth—Policemen and soldiers habitually are permitted to enter cells where political prisoners are confined and beat them with their clubs.

Tenth—Solitary confinement in its most horrible form has generally been practised. Numbers of prisoners have been taken directly from jails to insane asylums, rendered maniacs by their treatment.

Eleventh—Large bodies of political prisoners in certain jails have been kept without any food whatever for days at a time.

Twelfth—The right of privacy no longer exists in Ireland. Homes constantly are being invaded by armed men and the occupants including delicate women and young children are cruelly beaten and otherwise maltreated.

Thirteenth—Children of suspected Republicans, many of them of tender years, are kidnapped and their parents kept in ignorance of their whereabouts for weeks.

Fourteenth—Women and children of refinement and respectability are arrested without warrants, and in company with rough, brutal soldiers are transported to distant parts of Ireland and England where they are confined in jail with the lowest prostitutes.

Fifteenth—The right to own private property no longer exists in Ireland. The places of business of Republicans are invaded by soldiers and constables, the fixtures destroyed and the property confiscated without compensation. In may cases the owners of such business property have been uterly impoverished.

Sixteenth—The heads of hundreds of families have been jailed or deported leaving their dependent women and children without means of subsistence. These dependents are being rendered objects of public charity.

Seventeenth—Men and women, on the mere suspicion of being Republican sympathizers are being taken from their homes or arrested in the streets or highways and deported to England, or else they are confined in jails in remote places from their home, while their distracted families sometimes are kept in ignorance of their whereabouts for many months.

The authors of the report demand that the Peace Conference shall appoint a commission to investigate their charges.

WIT AND WISDOM

Small for Their Age.

Farmer's Wife—What do you think of our eggs?

Paying Guest—Too small for their age.

Just the Same.

"Do you act toward your wife as you did before you married her?"

"Exactly. I remember just how I used to act when I first fell in love with her. I used to lean over the fence in front of her home and gaze at her shadow on the curtain, afraid to go in. And I act just the same way now when I get home late."

A Definition.

"Mother, what is propaganda?" asked a child quoted in Life.

'Propaganda, child, is the bunch of compliments your father pays me on my old hat, when he knows I am thinking of a new one."

Would Work With Men, Too.

"Now, if you can't wait on a lady immediately, give her something to interest her."

"Eh?"

"Ask her to examine one of our new hand mirrors."

Good Mixer.

"A good mixer, isn't he?"

"You betcha!" replied a citizen of Grudge quoted in Judge. "He can tell more funny stories, borrow more money, pay less of it back, get more signers to petitions, be elected to more lodge offices and do less honest work than any other three men in town."

Could Probably Go.

"She seems a timid, flowerlike girl."

"Well?"

"Do you think her mother would allow her to go to the theatre without a chaperon?"

"Why, I think so, my boy. She drove a supply wagon in France during the war."

Those Small Brothers.

Her Small Brother—I guess Sis thinks you will propose to her tonight—she's been practising a cold and scornful look all day.

EDITOR'S MAIL

WHAT THE LABORING MAN WOULD LIKE TO KNOW?

Editor Review: Is the city paying the police force enough money to enable them to stick to their job? Is it fair for members of the police force to be taking odd jobs in their spare time (and they have an awful lot of it)—washing cars, driving tourists and many other things—when there are so many good men anxious for work who are idle and would be glad of the job? This is a matter that should be taken up by the proper authorities.

ANXIOUS WORKER.

HOW TO KEEP YOUNG

Editor Review: In connection with the presentation of "Veteran's Jewels" to several members of Otonabee Lodge, No. 13, I.O.O.F., I note that you have made special reference to the fact that three former editors of your paper were among those honored on this momenteous occasion, by reason of their association of twenty-five years or more, with the "Triple Link Order."

You were considerate enough to add that Mr. S. R. Armstrong and Mr. F. D. McKay, who deserted journalism, had "reformed" but "Mr. Van Blaricom, according to latest reports, is still pursuing the same reckless career, being at present on the editorial staff of MacLean's Magazine in Toronto."

I appreciate this kind reference but wish to inform you that if there is any "reckless" spirit in the air it is evidently not far removed from the "Review" office, for it is over ten years since I was associated with MacLean's Magazine and your chronological calendar, so far as my newspaper career is concerned, assuredly needs some recent revision.

For a long time now I have had the honor of being editor of the "Canada Lumberman," a paper which, by the way, was once published in Peterboro in the "Review" office by E. J. Toker and Co. The early files are in our vault in Toronto and looking over the pages today reveals many interesting incidents. The "Canada Lumberman" was launched in October, 1880, and is today a strong and aggressive trade publication, being issued semi-monthly and our recent "Export" edition contains nearly three hundred pages of advertising and editorial matter.

Yes, it is over a quarter of a century ago since I was initiated into the mysteries of Odd Fellowship. Time flies rapidly, yet it is with a feeling of gratification that one reads the names of so many veterans being still on deck.

The late Sir John A. Macdonald was once asked which was the quickest route to public life and told his inquirer to join the Orange Order and get elected an alderman. If the query were put to me regarding what tends to length of days, I would be tempted to tend the advice "Join Otonabee Lodge" and you will keep young in spirit, thought and action for many decades. If you do not believe the truth of this assertion, kindly interview Col. J. W. Miller, who is today even more up-right in stature and elastic of step than when he "first rode the goat" nearly half a century ago.

With best wishes for the continued prosperity of Otonabee Lodge and to my old friends in Peterboro, I am,

Sincerely yours,

G. B. VAN BLARICORN.

Toronto, June 18, 1919.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

Dr. Blank, a competent dentist, has a girl ten years old, whose teeth have always been perfect. The girl was never allowed any candy until she was eight years old, and to this fact her father ascribes her well-preserved teeth.

There is no other feature I can suggest that means so much for the health of a child as well-preserved teeth. The child with perfect teeth rarely or never has any serious trouble from enlarged tonsils, adenoids, sore throats and the long train of deplorable sequels of nose and throat infections. But Dr. Blank frankly admits he may be mistaken in his view.

Mr. Dash, a newspaper man, has two little girls, one about six and the other about nine years old. Mr. Dash also has a mean, low sense of humor. One day he took me, a stranger in his city, for a ride in his gasoline wagon. It turned cold, and he asked if I ever took a little whisky. "We'll drive up to Jane's place," he said. Well, not to prolong the agony, "Jane" proved to be the reprobate's wife. When we dropped in the children were pulling on all-day suckers. Never saw more perfect teeth than those healthy little girls had. Moreover, they seemed immune to tonsil and adenoid troubles. They had all the candy they wanted. (The "whisky" served there would never concern the revenue authorities—but I was terribly embarrassed until I saw the children; then I knew we were safe.)
